In retrospect, as a tri-captain for the soccer team last fall, he guided his club to its second straight trip to the Division Three State Final game. Unfortunately, Cohasset lost to Bromfield in four overtimes, 4-3. Fitzpatrick tallied a goal in the first ten-minute overtime (in soccer, if the contest is not decided on most goals after the first ten-minute OT period, they they played another one. Just in case there is no winner after that, they settle for a sudden-death round). Ironically, Bromfield defeated Cohasset two years ago, a 3-2 outcome in two overtimes, for the state title.

"Those two defeats haunt me a little bit. In the first year, they (Bromfield) were the better team. Luckily, we were able to come back and tie the game. Last year, we were definitely the better team. We led throughout the game," said Fitzpatrick, who now owns the school's record for most points in a career (68 points — 42 goals and 26 assists), surpassing the previous mark of 65 held by Bob Shultz (class of 1986). "In my first two years in the program, it was tough to get respect around the league. We were such a laid back team. Then, we got a new coach (Dan Magner) after my sophomore year and he immediately taught us the fundamentals of the game. Everybody blended together as a team."

Fitzpatrick capped off a stellar senior campaign by collecting a team-high 22 goals. He was then selected to the SSL all-star team and , subsequently, to the Patriot Ledger all-scholastic squad for the second time around.

Just like soccer, hockey also augmented some bitter moments, especially in his final high school game against Duxbury.

Fitzpatrick and his teammates begrudgingly watched Duxbury skate off with a EMass Div. 2 final victory, 4-3, in overtime (If the Skippers had won, they would have gone on to the state semifinals).

"Of course, it was very disappointing to lose to Duxbury in overtime. They beat us three times during the season," he said.

Fitzpatrick, teaming up with center Dan Pompeo, became the best scoring tandem on the South Shore. The right-winger, who possesses a deadly wrist shot, netted 35 goals and registered 29 assists, thus finishing in sixth place in the final Div. 2 scoring race (64 points).

"Danny and I have been on the same line since youth hockey. He knows where I am going to be at all times on the ice. We like to use the same style in hockey as we do in soccer. In hockey, we can be much more fancier with the puck than with a soccer ball. This is more evident when we play the weaker teams," he explained. "In the Hockey Night in Boston Tournament last summer we were on the same team but the coach didn't put us together as linemates. I found it very difficult not playing alongside him."

Todd Fitzpatrick (center) received the 1988 Pilgrim Arena Scholarship from Edward G. Taylor (l), president of Pilgrim Arena, and Maj. Gen. Woodrow P. Swancutt (ret.), chairman of the scholarship committee.

The tri-captain was named to the SSL high school all-star team. More importantly, it was his first appearance on the elite squad.

Last April, Fitzpatrick competed in the Midget National Tournament (ages 16-18) at Detroit, Michigan. "Eight teams were invited to go there and we (Seahawks — athletes from Cohasset, Scituate, Hull, Marshfield and Norwell) didn't make it to the semifinals," he said.

He is currently perfecting his hockey skills at two summer leagues, Hingham and Rockland.

"I am playing in the two programs because I do not want to lose my edge. It becomes so easy to develop rustiness in this game. I just want to improve on my shooting and skating," added Fitzpatrick, who is groundskeeper at the South Shore Music Circus for the summer.

Finally, while performing for a team that complied a losing record during the baseball campaign, he still managed to swing an impressive bat, concluding the spring season with a .400 average. In addition, he also displayed a superior glove at shortstop. he has been a starter on the varsity club since eight grade. He is currently perfecting his hockey skills at two summer leagues, Hingham and Rockland.

At the moment, Fitzpatrick is anticipating his transition into college sports.

"I am getting ready for the soccer season. I will leave for school on August 28. I just hope I get a lot of playing time as a freshman. My coach has indicated to me that I will play right away," added Fitzpatrick, who was ranked 15th in his graduating class. "For hockey, I heard it was a tough program. In fact, they are a reputable hockey school. They lost to Merrimack (moving to Div. 1 next winter) in the ECAC Div. 2 championship finals. I expect the competition to be strong up there. I will have to bust my butt to make the team."

When asked how he maintains an active schedule, he replied: "I just like doing it. I guess it is mandatory I play all these sports. I do not think about it. I try to discipline myself in every sport.

If I had applied to a Div. 1 college, they would not allow me to play two sports. With Bowdoin being a Div. 3 school, it gives me the opportunity to compete in two sports or maybe three. I would like to play three sports but everybody tells me I am crazy to even think about it. Then again, they think I am already crazy going out for two sports."

Although Fitzpatrick is still undecided about his major at Bowdoin, he acknowledged that sports medicine may turn out to be his career goal.

Meanwhile, if Hercules was alive today, he probably would empathize with Fitzpatrick.

Minot Light cruise

A number of reservations aboard the charter vessel "Seabreeze" for the Cohasset Historical Society's special boat tour to Minot's Ledge Lighthouse Sunday, July 31, are still available.

The tour features a ride to and around the world-famous offshore lighthouse to view the extensive renovation currently underway at this historic structure. Leaving from Cohasset's Government Island pier, with parking available at St. Anthony's Church parking lot, the tour will have four installments, with "Seabreeze" leaving for the trip to the light at noon, and again at 1, 2, and 3 p.m. A bus will be provided to transport tour members from the parking lot to the pier.

There will be guides to comment about the history of the lighthouse and about the current work going on to repair the upper part of the tower itself.

Reservations for the tour may be made by calling the Historical Society at 383-6930. Since accomodations aboard "Seabreeze" are limited participants are asked to specify which of the four hourly trips they wish to attend.

Cost for the tour, with refreshments served at the Society's Caleb Lothrop House on Summer Street adjacent to St. Anthony's parking, is $15 for Society members, $20 for non-members. This is an unusual chance to view close-up the historic Minot's Ledge Lighthouse as its first major renovation in a century and a quarter takes place.

Costume show Aug. 10

The Cohasset Historical Society's Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street, Cohasset, will be the site of a special event from Wednesday, August 10 to Saturday the 13.

One those days, from 2 to 5 p.m. the Society's Costume Committee will present an exhibit featuring Garden Party dresses from the extensive Cohasset collection of period costumes.

This first show by the Costume Committe, Betty Grassie, Chairperson, will include a guided tour through the 1821 Georgian house where costumes will be displayed. Members of the committee will describe and comment upon the various examples of garden party dresses on view. This forthcoming special event will be an opportunity for members and friends of the Society to see some of the many Cohasset-related costumes recently discovered in the Society's unique collection.

The Caleb Lothrop House, constructed by a Cohasset merchant whose name it carries, serves as headquarters of the Cohasset Historical Society and itself is furnished in 19th century sytle. Early artworks add to the decor of this 1821 brick-ended Georgian dwelling, and provide a fitting ambience for the display of 19th century garden party dresses.

Refreshments will be served at the special costume event, and admission to the tour will be $3.50. Several future costumes exhibits are being planned by the Society's Costume Committee and will be announced soon.

Lamaze classes

A three week refresher course to prepare for childbirth utilizing the Lamaze method is being offered in Scituate. This class will be led by a registered nurse, fully certified by the American Society for Psychoprophylaxis in Obstetrics (ASPO.) The course will provide a structured update for couples who had a complete childbirth class with a previous pregnancy.

The class will review information about labor and the birth process. It will discuss modern and proven tools and techniques used during labor such as conscious relaxation, visual concentration, breathing techniques, and activities for the birth support partner. The sessions will also cover the post partum period (after the birth experience) and the preparation of older brothers and sisters for the new baby.

The next class will begin August 1. For more information or to register for the class, contact Rebecca Fay, RN, ACCE, at 545-7020.

Open auditions

The North River Community Players will hold open auditions for their fall production, "Design for Murder," a mystery thriller in three acts by George Batson, at the North River Community Club, 513 River St., Norwell, Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 8 and 9, at 7:30 p.m.

The production, which is being directed by John Senk of Weymouth, calls for five females and three males, age 20-50. The play will be presented in October.

For more information please call 335-4295.

Carillon concert July 31

Marietta Storm Douglas, Associate Carillonneur of the First Presbyterian Church in Stamford, Conn. will perform a free recital on the 51 bell Jessie M. Barron Memorial Carillon at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Avenue, Sunday, July 31 at 6 p.m.

Bring your lawn chairs, blankets, and picnic suppers to enjoy on Cohasset Common for this fifth recital of the summer series. Printed programs are available.
For further information call St. Stephen's Church at 383-1083.

Summer story hours

A summer story hour for children 3 1/2 to 6 years, is being held Friday mornings at 10 a.m. at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Each of the programs consists of several picture book stories, a simple finger play, song or craft, and lasts approximately 35-45 minutes. There is no registration for this series, which will continue through August.

Registrations are currently being accepted for the fall pre-school story hours Thursday morning and Friday morning. Children must be 3 1/2 years old.

Art center programs . . .

Artist performances

The floor of the South Shore Art Center's Dillion Members' Gallery will become the stage for performances by members of a newly-formed artist community.

The performances are scheduled during the opening of the center's August exhibits, works by Gallery Artists in the Bancroft Invitational Gallery and in the Dillon Gallery, works by members of Artists Drawn Together, a growing community of visual and performing artists on the South Shore.

The performing artists will appear during the opening reception Sunday, August 7, from 4-6 p.m. at the center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset. This is the first such occasion when a center gallery has served an an umbrella for exhibiting both the visual and the performing arts.

Local artist Syma who has been instrumental in putting together this event credited Ellen Kelly, a South Shore director and writer, for coordinating the performances. Listed among those appearing during the opening are Elizabeth Torrey with a poetry reading of original work, Nikki Hu with a dance performance to music created by her husband Guy Nan Duser, Daureen Scullen, also performing a dance, Pat Desmond with a reading of an original piece and others.

In the Bancroft Invitational Gallery, the works by gallery artists "gives our artists an opportunity to exhibit their works in the center's main gallery," according to Chris Rifkin, coordinator of gallery exhibits. Each center artist member can submit one work for this show. The center's gallery artists are all juried in as artist members and such juryings occur periodically during each calendar year. Currently, the center has over 100 artists-members from towns of the South Shore and representing all the art mediums including photography.

Exhibiting their works in the invitational gallery puts these artists at the forefront of the art collecting community and the public.

Exhibits in both the galleries are open to the public Monday through Friday, 10 am. to 4 p.m., Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Sunday, noon to 4 p.m.

For further information, call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. Center programs are supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Montserrat art

The results of Virginia Avery's winter workshop, "Montserrat Art" will hang in the Dillon Members' Gallery of the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset through the month of July.

The watercolors depict the artists' treks to the ruins of an old plantation, to an active volcano and to the Governor's Mansion where the Governor's wife personally met with the visitors and conducted a tour of the grounds and the house. Avery's adventurous participants even climbed down into the crater of the volcano for a closer look at the formation of a volcano.

For the older students, ages 10-15, the Center offers Judy Rossman's Clay Jewelry, August 16 and 18 from 9 a.m. to noon, and a George Dalton course Wheel for Kids, meeting on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4-5:30 p.m. starting August 2.

For complete information on the classes, fees and registration, call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. The Center is supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Children's workshop at center

Parents looking for a creative outlet for their young artists can enroll their students in one of several South Shore Art Center young artist workshops scheduled during August.

Workshops are planned for the Center's main location at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset and at its satellite locations at the Life Saving Museum in Hull, the South Shore Conservatory in Hingham, and the South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell. Advanced registration is required for all children's programs at the Center.

Two sections of Painting and Drawing from Nature for ages seven to eleven will meet with one in Norwell, taught by Serena Brundige, August 8-12, from 3:30-5 p.m.; and in Hingham, by Lis Wyman, August 22-26 from 3:30-5 p.m. The workshop uses the outdoors as a reference point for painting and drawing projects and emphasizes the understanding of shapes, shadows and contrasting values.

Lynn Rizzotto will teach two sections of Summer Adventures in Art for ages seven to eleven, with the first being in Hull, August 8-12 from 3:30-5 p.m. and the second in Cohasset, August 15-19 from 3:30-5 p.m. Students are instructed in the essential elements of design using a variety of media.

VoTech committee denies increase

South Shore VoTech school committee members turned down a request by Esio Grasi, an automotive teacher, to increase his pay level before his anticipated retirement in two years.

Grasi requested a two-step increase from $33,816 to $35,113 at last month's school committee meeting. The committee granted him a one-step increase to $34,435.

Grasi contends that former superintendent George Tucker orally agreed to accept his credits from schooling acquired before he was hired. A person hired by the school system is given credit for accomplishments up until his or her date of hire.

Grasi claims his aircraft engineering license and related courses were not included to determine his pay scale, but that Tucker promised they would be in the future.

"There is an issue of logic and an issue of ethics; however, there is also an issue of precedent," said Superintendent Clifford Easton. "Whenever a person is hired by the school, they are given all the credit they've earned to date. If they obtain a certification, they are then granted additional credit.

"All of his step placement in 1970 should have been made on the basis of the experience and training he brought to the interview," he said. "My concern is that the decision was made 18 years ago to place him on one step placement. Esio says there was an agreement, and I believe him, but I'm not sure you (the school committee) should be held accountable for the agreement."

Trying to bring Olympics to Greece

He noted that only two countries, Greece and Switzerland, have participated in all of the Olympic games.

"We want to get the message to people that the Olympic games don't have to do with politics," said Lazaris.

"The Olympic games are an idea to bring people together."

If the drive is successful, Lazaris hopes to go to the Olympics in Greece in 1996.

"That would be the best present that I ever had," he said.

The Panagia Church's position on the drive was also expressed in its book for the Greek Taverna.

"Our heritage is Greek and we enjoy the many facets of that heritage that have served us so ably for years and indeed, centuries.

"(The year) 1996 marks the 100th year since the reinauguration of the Olympics and would it not be marvelous for it to return to that place where they were first held on that day — Greece?

"...They (athletes) could enter into the world with a new pledge to do battle in high jump and discus, in javelin and races, in volley ball and basketball, in broad jump and in relay, along side of all those from the past 100 years who saw and lived the race for humanity.

"They could strive along side of those ancient athletes who competed so that at least once in four years there was peace in the land.

"Could it be that this time, at the Golden Olympics, the athletes could go forth carrying the torch of love and peace into the world?

"We have pledged to support the golden Olympics in Greece with the fervent prayer that peace may reign, not once in four years, but forever more."

Information on drugs may help prevent abuse

By Lt. Paul Hayes
Hanover Police Department

In our system of government, crime is defined as a particular set of circumstances perceived to be unacceptable to the majority of citizens.

Crime affects the entire community, directly through economic costs and indirectly through a threat to public safety.

With very few exceptions, substances such as cigarettes, alcohol, and drugs are neither legal nor illegal; rather, it is the condition under which they are produced, distributed, possessed or used which determine whether the particular set of circumstances is unacceptable and meets the definition of a crime. The sale of cigarettes to a person under the age of 18 is unlawful, whereas sale to a older person is not. The possession of amphetamines without a doctor's legitimate prescription is a crime; possesion with a prescription for medical purposes is not. There are well-defined parameters which establish who may possess, sell acquire, and use each of these substances.

With the regulation of alcohol, society has taken one additional step: not only does it set a minimum age as a requirement for purchase and use, it has also defined what level of legal use is "acceptable." A thirty year old individual consuming alcohol is acceptable; however, it is unacceptable for that same person to drive a car under the influence of alcohol. This is the basis of the concept of "responsible use," a concept which has been inappropriately applied to illegal substances. By definition, "responsible use" cannot exist if even mere possession of a substance is itself illegal.

Law enforcement must continue to arrest high-activity drug involved felons and serious criminals, but must also be aware that the criminal justice system is growing increasingly dysfunctional. Cases before prosecutors and courts are logjammed, and over 400 penal institutions in 35 states are under court order to relieve overcrowded conditions. Law enforcement must make adjustments in the process used to control drug abuse and crime, but these adjustments must be made in concert with adjustments to the criminal justice system.

Drug abuse is a school problem, a neighborhood problem, a business problem, a family problem, a medical problem, and a criminal justice problem. It is, therefore, a community problem, and any strategy devised to curtail drug abuse must be community-wide. Law enforcement should not and cannot abandon its enforcement responsibilities to reduce crime in the community. It must deal effectively with those persons who choose to abuse drugs and commit crime. But it is also beneficial for law enforcement to deter those who have not yet made the choice to use illegal substances or commit crime.

In the next few weeks, the Hanover Police Department, in conjunction with the Mariner Newspaper, will be providing current, factual information on drugs in our society. Each week will feature an article on a particular class of drugs; what it looks like, paraphernalia used to administer it, its effect, and the consequences of its abuse.

It is the hope of the Hanover Police Department and the Mariner Newspaper, that the information that will be provided, will be a key in the efforts of the communities involved, to provide a basis of knowledge to prevent drug abuse.

GLOSSARY OF DRUG TERMS

Addiction — The state of being physiologically (as opposed to psychologically) dependent upon a drug, in that, the drug must be administered periodically to prevent the discomfort of withdrawal symptoms which can vary from drug to drug. (See also Dependence.)

Amphetamine — A class of drug that stimulates the central nervous system.

Barbiturate — A class of drugs that produce a depressant effect on the central nervous system. Used widely as sleep inducers, they carry a high risk of overdose, especially when taken with alcohol.

Cocaine — A short-acting stimulant drug extracted from the leaf of the South American coca plant and commonly ingested by sniffing and infrequently by injection. Cocaine does not result in physiological dependence, although some psychological dependence may result.

Controlled drugs — Controlled drugs are those placed on a schedule or in special categories to prevent, curtail, or limit their distribution and manufacture, under authority of the Controlled Substances Act of 1970.

Dealing — Dealing is illegally supplying or selling controlled drugs to users on a small scale. (See possesion and trafficking.)

Dependence — The state of reliance on, but not necessarily addiction to, a drug. Dependence can be physiological and/or psychological. A heroin addict may be physiologically dependent, but a chronic user of a non-addictive drug may be only psychologically dependent.

Depressant — Drug that tends to depress the central nervous system, such as a barbiturate or alcohol.

Detoxification — Management of the physiological manifestations and distress occasioned by withdrawal of a patient from addictive substances.

Drug — Any non-nutritive chemical substance which alters the body's function resulting in physical, psychological, or behavioral change.

Drug abuse — Drug abuse is the non-therapeutic use of any psychoactive substance, including alcohol, as to adversely affect some aspect of the user's life.

Drug addiction — Drug addiction is a "physicial" dependence on a drug. This term is gradually being replaced by the more neutral "drug dependence." (See drug dependence.)

Drug dependence — Drug dependence is the need for a drug which results from the continuous or periodic use of that drug. This need can be characterized by mental and/or physical changes in users which make it difficult for them to control or stop their drug use. (See drug addiction.)

Drug problem — The drug problem is the sum of the negative medical, social, and economic consequences of drug abuse and misuse as they affect the user, the user's family, and the community at large.

Druge use — The intake of a chemical substance under circumstances or at dosage levels which significantly increase the hazard potential, whether or not the substance is used therapeutically, legally, or as prescribed by a physician.

Hallucinogens — Consciousness-altering drugs such as LSD, peyote, psilocybin, and psychedelics, which commonly produce hallucinations as part of their effect.

Multiple substance abuse— Sequential, concurrent abuse of more than one drug.

Narcotic — Often loosely applied to many drugs but, taken in the medical sense, a derivative of opium or chemically-related compounds.

Overdose — The act of taking such a large dose of a drug that side effects, unconsciousness or even death, result.

Physical Dependence — Habituation of body tissues to the continued presence of a chemical agent, revealed in the form of serious, even life-threatening, withdrawal symptoms following cessation of use. The extent of physical dependence and the severity of withdrawal varies according to amount, frequency, and duration of use.

Polydrug use — A phenomenon in which a drug user utilizes more than one substance at a time. This is of great concern because of the increased use of drugs that are potentially dangerous in conmbination with one another.

Possession — Possession means: (1) having controlled legal drugs that are not obtained either directly from a doctor or from a pharmacist using a valid prescription; or (2) having controlled drugs which are illegal for use under any circumstances, like heroin or marijuane.

Psychoactive drug — a natural or synthetic substance which affects mental processes or alters mood and/or behavior.

Psychological dependence — a tendency or craving for repeated or compulsive use of an agent because its effects are deemed pleasurable or satisfying, or because it reduces undesirable feelings, such as anxiety, insomnia, or depresssion. A person may thus be psychologically dependent on drugs, food, television, sex, relationships, recreation activities or any number of things.

A further distinction can be drawn between gratification dependence, in which major withdrawal symptoms are generally minor or absent, and emotional dependence, in which serious withdrawal symptoms can appear after use is discontinued.

Psychotropic — Psychotropic drugs modify behavior and alter moods.

Soft drugs — a generic term referring to non-addictive drugs, such as LSD or marijuana.

Stimulant — Any of a wide variety of drugs that tend to stimulate the central nervous system. Examples are amphetamines and cocaine.

Tolerance — Tolerance is a state which develops in users of certain drugs and requires them to take larger amounts of the drug to produce the same effect. Tolerance often, but not always, occurs along with (physical) dependence.

Trafficking — Trafficking is the illegal manufacturing, distribution, and sale of these drugs to dealers on a large scale. (See dealing and possession.)

Senior Center news . . .

Message from the Director:

In the final days of the Congressional Session in Washington, Congress brought us funding under the NEW AMENDMENT to the OLDER AMERICANS ACT. For the first time, Congress approved funds for a special in-home service program for frail elders. Although funded at just under $5 million, the program will hopefully signal a stronger commitment to developing in-home programs through the Act.

Funding for Senior Centers, Social Services and Congregate Nutrition Programs was reduced slightly from last years under the bi-partisan deficit reduction plan, which was agreed to by the Administration and Congressional leaders for both parties.

However, Older Americans Act Programs were spared the larger reduction that were made in the domestic spending programs.

Under the Title III-B, services received $268 Million, down 3/4 of 1 percent from last year. Congregate meals were funded at $344.6 million, or 1 percent less than one year. Home delivered meals received a 2.2 percent increase to $75.6 million, and the Senior Aides program received $331.3 million, up 1.6 percent over last year.

Some of the new initiatives in the reauthorization of the Act, cannot be implemented until funding for the traditional programs is increased under Fiscal Year 89 budget. New funding for services to protect elders against abuse, for health promotion and education, and the ombudsman program will be delayed until funding for traditional Title III services receive 105 percent of the funding levels prior to the amendment. The ombudsman program will continue to be funded under Title III. When the threshold is reached, the ombudsman program will have its own funding, separate from other Title III services. For more information, please contact: Kathy Bryanton at 383-9112.

TRANSPORTATION IN AUGUST

Do you need a ride? The Senior Shuttle is available on a daily basis to pick you up at home and bring you anywhere you need to go within Cohasset.

Everyone is looking forward to the first annual clambake to be held at the Senior Center on Friday, August 12 from 11 a.m to 3 p.m. Great Bakes of Carver will be catering the New England style clambake which will include lobster at $15 or chicken at $9, served with clam chowder, steamed clams, corn on the cob, chilled watermelon, cold beverage, coffee and tea. Don't wait and miss out. Games include Bocci, horse shoes, music.

HARBOR ISLAND SUNSET CRUISES

Mark your calendar for Aug. 15, don't miss the boat! The Cohasset Council on Aging will be sponsoring a Sunset Cruise to the Boston Harbor Islands from Hingham. You will enjoy a breathtaking sunset and star filled skies. The cruise will leave from the Mass Bay Lines in the Hingham Shipyard at 6 p.m. Tickets $7 and transportation. Bring a picnic supper, beverages and snacks for the boat ride. Advance reservations suggested before Aug. 12. Call the council at 383-9112.

INSTRUCTORS ARE NEEDED!

Arts, choral group, needlepoint and photography. Call us at 383-9112.

SOUTH SHORE CONSERVATORY

Invites all Cohasset seniors to a free concert on Friday, August 5, 11 a.m at the South Shore Music Circus on Sohier St. This performance will include the students from the intermediate and advanced wind group. The performance should be only about 1 hour.

SUMMER LUNCHEON

Every Monday, a well balanced lunch is served at the Scituate Council on Aging on Brook Street. You will enjoy the ride from your home across the waterfront to the beautiful Council on Aging for the noon-time meal. Every Monday the lunch is a different menu. All Cohasset seniors are welcome to come for lunch. Call in advance to make reservations at 383-9112 weekdays. Donation $1.25.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The Cohasset Council on Aging needs help in the following areas: afternoon office coverage to answer phones. Set up for classes a.m. and p.m. Deliver meals at the Social Service League. We also need talented people who enjoy teaching at the center. Instructors are needed in the following areas. Art class, crafts, choral group needlepoint, photography and sewing.

DAY TRIP

Amelia's at Quincy Marina Bay, No. Quincy Tuesday August 4. Spend the day walking the boardwalk of the new Marina Bay and enjoy the great shops as you stroll along. Luncheon at Amelia's price range from $2.50 for salad up to $6.95 for broiled chicken teriyaki. Seats will be limited, call 383-9112 for reservations. Bus leaves at 10 a.m from the center and return to the center at 1:30 p.m. Cost $3.50 for the bus. Lunch on your own.

Federico resigns

Anne Federico, longtime administrative assistant to state Sen. William Golden D-Weymouth, has resigned her position to go back to school.

Federico said she has been studying community development at the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

The South Shore Coalition presented her with a large bouquet of roses and wished her luck last week, thanking her for her years of service.

MAPC a coalition member

The South Shore Coalition voted to make the Metropolitan Area Planning Council a full voting member at its meetings.

The vote was 5-1 with two abstentions. Those who did not vote in favor of the measure did so because they wanted to bring the question before the other board members in their towns.

MAPC provides a majority of the funds that support the 10-town coalition.

Summer at the Natural Science Center

Summer is half over — make the most of this gorgeous season by learning more of the world around you at South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell.

Grape Island Adventure

Enjoy spectacular views of the Boston skyline as well as a close-up look at the marine life of Boston Harbor as you hike this Boston Harbor Island. Bring lunch, a drink, and comfortable walking shoes. Natural Science Center staff naturalists will lead you on a perfect summer's expedition on Tuesday, August 2 from 9 a.m. to approximately 3 p.m. (Details of departure time at registration.) Pre-paid registration required (members/$10; non-members/$12.) Call 659-2559.

Wednesday Nature Walk

Luddum's Ford is home to many unusual plants and animals, including the Coho salmon. Enjoy exploring this beautiful site along the North River with a staff naturalist on Wednesday, August 3 from 10 a.m. to noon. These informal walks are perfect for all ages. Wear comfortable shoes. Meet at the SSNSC first. Pre-register by calling 659-2559 (members/free; non-members/$4.)

Summer Excursions

Webb State Park in Weymouth is the ideal spot for a summer adventure! Cool shore breezes, beautiful views, history and interesting plants and animals to seek out! Led by a staff naturalist, you can share this exploration of Webb Park with your child on Friday, August 5 from 9 to 11 a.m. Pre-paid registration required (members/$3; non-members/$4.) Call 659-2559.

Summer Sleepover

Spend a night camping under the stars! Kids 8 years and older are invited to join naturalists Trygve Swift and Sandra Palmer for the summer sleepover on August 5 (7 p.m. drop-off) to August 6 (9:30 a.m. pick-up.) During a night walk you will look for the nocturnal animals at the Center and do some star gazing. Weather permitting, roast marshmallows over an open fire. In the morning search the trails for summer bird residents and discover through track-reading what animals visited during the night. Parental permission and medical forms requried.

Bring flashlight, sleeping bag, toiletries and a change of clothes if necessary. Pre-paid registration required (members/$22; non-members/$28.) Call 659-2559 for more information.

South Shore Natural Science Center is on Jacobs Lane, Norwell, just off Route 123 and less than a mile from the Route 3 and Route 53 interchange (Exit 13.) The Center is open Mondays to Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Closed on Sundays during August. Trails, exhibits, library, gift shop. Free admission.

Trustees say they are abiding by deed . . .

open land in the town."

In his letter, Leggat noted that "the trustees have insisted on restrictions which not only honors Mrs. Cox's wishes, but also meet responsibilities of the trustees to preserve areas of the town which contribute to its quality and character."

Leggat said that the restrictions "fully protect the basic interest which Mrs. Cox had."

The trustees have reserved the right to approve any proposed aesthetic change to the structure, the wharf or the parking area, according to Leggat.

"The trustees shall have the right to refuse to approve any such plans or specifications which are not deemed suitable or desirable, in their opinion, for aesthetic or other reasons," state the regulations.

The impact of any changes on the harbor, vistas and the existing structure as well as neighboring areas will be considered by the trustees, according to the restrictions.

"Any suggestion that trustees, by reserving aesthetic control, are arrogating responsibilities of public officials fails to consider the narrow scope of power of public officials with respect to aesthetic aspects.

"Public officials overview is limited to matters under zoning, building or public health regulations or the like.

"They cannot substitute their judgments for those of property owners otherwise complying with regulations.

"The trustees, by contractual deed restriction, retain broad aesthetic control over any proposed alterations.

"This has been done to assure preservation of a unique property."

Leggat explained that purpose of the conservation trust is to "acquire properties that will contribute to preserving these attributes of the town which make it a special place in which to live."

"The sale of the Salt House, while preserving its character through the restriction, will provide the trustees with funds which enable them to acquire additional land for the purpose for which it was established — to preserve open spaces and the quality of the town for the benefit of present and future generations," he said.

"It is unfortunate that so much publicity has been given to an erroneous misconception," concluded Leggat.

"The action of the trustees has been consistent with the highest standards of fiduciary responsibility protecting those aspects of the Salt House which need to be preserved while providing funds to further trust purposes."

At the July 25 selectmen meeting, Pratt also noted that the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering has received an application from local realtor Peter S. Guild of Hallmark Properties Ltd., Route 3A, Cohasset, for installation of ramps and six slips at Cohasset Harbor, 40 Border St.

That realty company is handling the sale of the Salt House.

"That's a very disturbing element," said Pratt.

Housing partnership rejects Route 3A plan

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

The Cohasset Housing Partnership is not recommending the proposed Deck Point project off Route 3A as an appropriate affordable housing project, according to an Aug. 1, draft report by the partnership.

"... The overall quality of life would not be appropriate for a housing development which would include children," states the 31-page report, compiled by partnership chairman Israel Sanchez and directed to selectmen.

Concerns about geographic and environmental factors as well as ease of integration by the prospective Deck inhabitants to the rest of the town figured in the partnership's decision.

The partnership also included concerns about the marketability of such a development.

Sanchez noted at Monday night's meeting that he based the draft report on members' opinions expressed at earlier meetings. No official vote was taken.

He invited members to comment on the draft report at the partnership's next meeting, Aug. 15, at 8 p.m. at Town Hall. Those who can not attend are asked to submit any written comments.

The comments will be put together for the final report, according to Sanchez.

"I would be surprised if the sentiment goes the other way," said Sanchez.

The partnership, which held its first meeting in June, is a coalition of nine local officials, business leaders, and housing advocates appointed by selectmen to examine affordable housing opportunities within Cohasset.

Purpose of the partnership is to organize local participants and focus local action so as to promote the development of affordable housing in the community.

The draft report is the housing partnership's first.

"We have no power," explained Sanchez. "We report to the selectmen. We have an advisory role."

Selectmen Martha Gjesteby, that board's liaison to housing partnership, received a copy of the draft report at the meeting.

The report explains that the project, proposed by Deck Point, Inc., of East Sandwich, is submitted under the Homeownership Opportunity Program (HOP).

That means that at least 25 percent of the units are to be priced as "affordable," an average of approximately $78,500 (40 percent in the case of a development needing a comprehensive permit.)

Qualified homebuyers under HOP may put down

Executive Secretary Donald Andrew contemplates his future away from Cohasset.

Don Andrew leaves small town politics for the big city

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

He has always been a political junkie - a dutiful follower of national and state political campaigns. But after three years, Donald Andrew has had his fill of small town politics.

The executive secretary to the board of selectmen will be leaving next week. Andrew, 37, will be returning to his first love - municipal accounting.

And better yet, he will no longer be the focus of attention - the man who deals directly with the town's leaders and its residents.

He smiles and says, "I'll be a little fish in a big sea now. I like that."

Andrew, who was hired as the town's executive secretary and town accountant in June of 1985, will be leaving for Everett where he will serve as the city's auditor.

A graduate of Bentley College, Andrew spent two years in Washington, D.C. as an administrative specialist for a criminal investigation committee. It was 1972, and Andrew, who closely observes the functions of both political parties, was able to watch the Watergate investigation from his own backyard.

"I was there for the entire time," he recalled. "And when President (Richard) Nixon flew off in a helicoptor to Andrews Air Force Base (after he resigned the Presidency), he flew right over where I worked. We were watching it on television and got out of the building just in time

A look at the dresses worn in days past

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

If you have always been drawn to the days when ladies carried parasols and attended garden parties, then set some time aside August 10 to 13 for a special event by the Cohasset Historical Society.

The society's costume committee will present an exhibit on those days from 2 to 5 p.m. featuring garden party dresses from its collection of period costumes.

It will include a guided tour through the society's Caleb Lothrop House at 14 Summer St., where costumes will be displayed. Some date back to the 1800s.

"Garden parties were very popular up until about 50 years ago," said Mrs. Betty Grassie, chairperson.

"Everybody had formal gardens years ago, and that is where the garden parties were held.

Pollution closes more beaches

By Jane Lane

Popular swimming areas along Cohasset Cove were closed Friday afternoon while Sandy Beach was shutdown Saturday afternoon when high bacterial counts were uncovered by the health department.

The swimming areas along the sailing club, the yacht club and at Sandy Cove were closed Friday afternoon by Health Agent Joseph Godzik.

And after observing waste debris along Sandy Beach on Saturday afternoon, two health board members decided to close down that swimming area about 4 p.m.

But based on tests conducted Friday night, and after an inspection of Sandy Beach on Saturday evening, Dr. Godzik reopened the beach that night.

In total, Sandy Beach was closed to swimmers a few hours Tuesday afternoon and again Saturday afternoon.

The health department conducts weekly tests of the swimming areas. Thursday's tests, which were completed Friday afternoon, yielded high bacterial counts in three popular swimming areas, including the yacht club, the sailing club and Sandy Cove beach.

The results of those tests indicated a high fecal coliform count and the swimming areas were closed Friday.

Results of tests conducted Friday evening were completed late Saturday and as a result, the three swimming areas were reopened Saturday evening, he explained.

Although the cause of the pollution is not known, Cohasset's sewer treatment plant has been ruled out.

Stephen Cushing, supervisor of the Cohasset plant, said that fecal coliform tests tests conducted last week at the location of the plant's discharge into James Brook indicated low bacterial counts, much less than the allowable limit.

"It's hard to determine exactly what caused this," Dr. Godzik explained. "But it may have been due to the heavy rain and the inability of private cesspools in the James Brook area to handle the run off without mixing with sewage and the storm drains or septic systems. You're

Cohasset's week . . .

Drug awareness week Aug. 8

The Cohaseet Recreation Department will conduct drug/alcohol awareness programs during the week of August 8.

The purpose of the program is to educate both youngsters and adults of the dangers associated with substance abuses.

Monday, August 8, Valerie Hamilton, of the Girls Scouts of America, will speak to children in the 5-12 year old program about drug and alcohol awareness. The program is specifically designed and tailored to younger children and is free of charge. It will be held at 1 p.m. at the Osgood School on Monday, Aug. 8, but parents must register children, at the playground prior to Monday, noon.

The Cohasset Recreation Department will co-sponsor with BFI Inc. a drug and alcohol abuse program to be presented by Derek Sanderson a former National Hockey League player. This program is designed for adults, and will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Cohasett High School auditorium Thursday, Aug. 11.

Landfill expansion

Cohasset Heights Ltd. filed an environmental notification form with the state, requesting expansion of 27.5 acres at the landfill.

The proposed expansion will be constructed in area five, adjacent to sites currently used by the landfill operation.

In the notification form, Cohasset Heights Ltd. owners explained that the expansion site will be capable of providing regional compost and recycling facilities, and will be capable of receiving a maximum of 299 tons each day.

Catherine Salisbury, chairman of the Hingham Board of Health, urged state officials to conduct an complete environmental impact review. Results of recent monitoring indicated "that at least two areas of the present landfill there are detectable, significant amounts of volatile organics (specifically benzene, ethylbenzene and toluene). It remains to be seen whether these levels will rise even higher in future sampling."

Salisbury noted, "we feel that although this proposed exapnsion is located within the town of Cohasset, the environmental impact could well extend beyond its boundaries. Therefore, representing the interest of Hingham's residents, we urge that a complete environmental review be required for this project."

Programs at center

This summer, the Cohasset Community Center is offering a variety of courses for children and adults, including gymnastics camp, pre-school nature camp, tennis, aerobics, Latin, girls and boys gymnastics classes, and investments for women.

Gymnastics camp with Ruthann Sargent is being offered on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons from 4 to 7 p.m. Camp will offer girls ages 7 to 16 an opportunity to hone their techniques with more personalized instruction. Regular gymnastics classes are also being offered in 3-week sessions, with the next session beginning August 9. Classes for girls ages 4-10 are held Tuesday and Thursday mornings, and boys ages 4-8 attend on Wednesday mornings. All classes are grouped according to age and ability.

Pre-school nature camp is an opportunity for youngesters to explore their environment, their creativity, and their relationship with peers — under the professional supervision of Velma Begley, one of our regular pre-school teachers.

In the fitness arena, tennis lessons are offered to anyone age 6 to adult at beginner through intermediate levels. Call 383-0088 to arrange for a convenient time.

There are two classes of low impact aerobics, one is a regular workout on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. and the other is a gentler workout on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 7:30 to 8:30. In addition to the low impact classes there is a more strenuous workout Saturday mornings from 8:30 to 10 p.m.

Another course, called "Money Management for Women," which offers a four-week overview of money management and financial planning begins August 11.

An introductory Latin class is scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. during the month of August.

For more information or to register for any of the classes above, please call the Cohasset Community Center at 383-0088.

The Cohasset Community Center is a non-profit organization open to all residents of the South Shore.

going to get a lot of cesspool runoff in that type of weather and it can go right into James Brook.

"The upstream counts, above the sewer plant discharge point at James Brook, were high. That may be caused by private cesspool run-offs during the heavy rains, and other elements, including dog feces."

Testing will continue, the health agent noted.

According to sewer plant supervisor Cushing, tests are conducted at the plant's discharge point at James Brook every Thursday. Although the capacity of the plant was exceeded last Wednesday due to the heavy rainfall, the coliform count was less than 10 parts per milliliter of water. The limit for "safe" water, he explained, is anything less than 200 parts per milliliter.

As a precaution during the heavy rainfall, Cushing said he shutdown two large aeration tanks in the plant. "It worked very well and we were able to discharge treated water without disturbing the rest of the treatment plant," he explained.

Health board supports Penobscot

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

If all goes according to schedule, Cohasset's trash will be transported to Penobscot, Maine, beginning next February at a cost of about $410,000 a year.

The health board voted unanimously July 27 to support the Maine waste-to-energy option until 1991 when the town goes with SEMASS, the trash-to-energy solid waste disposal firm in Rochester.

Town counsel Richard Henderson will look over the contract which will be signed shortly, according to health board chairman Sharon Becker.

Becker said that all of the health board members were in accord over the vote.

"All three of us feel this is necessary right now," she said. Other members are Michael Sullivan and William Baird.

The health board also approved a proposal by SEA Consultants, for a $560,000 transfer station at the landfill. The money for design and construction was already appropriated at Town Meeting.

"Now that goes out to bid," explained Becker.

"That could take about a month or six weeks. Then a decision will be made on a contractor.

"We hope the cement work will be done before the ground freezes, and that all the work will be done by February," she said.

The board's action followed discussion of three short-term options regarding the solid waste problem.

Attending the meeting in the board room of the Super Stop & Shop in addition to the board of health were members of the selectmen and the solid waste disposal committee, and a few residents.

The first option was the Maine proposal which included tipping fee, transportation, transfer station cost over 20 years, and cost to operate the landfill.

The second proposal, by M and M Solid Waste Equipment Inc., was considered too costly.

"The biggest unknown was site preparation," said Becker.

A third option of using Cohasset's landfill for two years at a cost of about $275,000 a year was also turned town. The landfill has an estimated life of three to four years.

"That space is valuable," said Arthur Pompeo, of the disposal area study committee.

"Everyone we have talked to has said not to use up the landfill. You're going to need the space over the next 20 years."

"The land is worth so much to us," said Selectman Rocco Laugelle.

"This piece we should try to hold on to."

"I'm satisfied with the Maine waste to energy," said health board member Baird.

"It's sounds and makes good sense.

"We've explored the options as far as I'm concerned."

Selectmen chairman Burt Pratt said, "You've come to the original consensus we arrived at a long time ago.

"That's to save the Cohasset landfill as long as we can because we are going to need it, to go to Penobscot for two to three years, and then to SEMASS when they will take us in," said Pratt.

He explained that selectmen voted May 16, to have the disposal area study committee report to the board of health which runs the landfill and will operate the transfer station.

Then those two groups will report back to selectmen and the recycling committee, he said.

"It seemed logical that the two boards should work together for a common purpose," he said.

"The disposal study committee has been working on this for five of six years and can be a great help to the board of health," said Pratt, who left to attend another meeting.

About half of the other attending also left.

Resident Peter Whittemore said that if the town recycles, it won't need to build a compacter for SEMASS.

"If we can approach 50 percent (of the town's trash being recycled) we will be sitting pretty," he said.

"In the long run, we should look at separating trash.

"Hopefully, we won't need SEMASS half as much as we think now."

"When do you think we have to start dumping at Penobscot?" asked Becker.

"By Feb. 1," answered Jeff Power, another disposal area study committee member.

"We're fortunate that we have been moving forward the whole time," said Gould.

He also raised the question of excluding packer trucks, the rubbish collection compactor trucks.

"How much is it worth to have packer trucks use the facility?" Gould asked.

"I think it's somewhat short sighted to exclude them," said Sullivan.

Health board agrees - take trash to Maine . . .

"Five to 10 years down the road, we might regret it.

"I feel strongly we shouldn't exclude packer trucks," he said.

"I tend to agree," said Becker.

Whittemore commented that, "the packer truck is the death knell of recycling," because recyclable items cannot be separated in them.

The health board also voted to go with the proposal to have the recycling adjacent to the transfer station, and to have an 18 foot grade separation so the town can consider a push pit option.

It also voted not to consider putting in a mobile crane at this time.

After the meeting, Becker noted the work of the disposal area committee.

"They've given it so much work.

"We just needed to be brought up to speed on it."

payments as low as 5 percent and borrow the balance at interest rates as low as 5 percent, according to the report.

"The entry into the development is from Route 3A, a very heavily traveled highway, and is at a curved and graded point where sight lines are poor and no pedestrian controls exist," according to the report.

"There is no access to public transportation on Route 3A. To reach the bus line, the area stores, other residential areas, recreational areas and schools, one must cross or travel on Route 3A.

"The site is on a hillside where natural changes in grade are extensive (well over 100 feet front to back). Site preparation work will need to be extensive and expensive.

"To create enough flat ground for roadways, parking areas and foundations, it is expected that very steep grades will have to be created. The long term stability of such grades is questionable.

"The parcel appears too small (16 acres) to accommodate approximately 128 units of condominium housing. This is planned for the maximum density of eight units per acre allowed by state regulations.

"Cohasset has traditionally been a community of detached, single family homes. This fact, plus present market condition, may lead to a serious problem in marketing 75 units of this type, particularly at the predicted price of $200,000 per unit. (The 'affordable' units are to have an average price of $75,000.)

"Cohasset needs affordable housing for families. The town is a stable community where people move as they build and raise their families.

"The only way 128 units of housing will fit on this site profitably is by having the great majority be one and two bedroom units.

"The Housing Authority and the Fair Housing Committee both find a great need for three bedroom units. The developer will have to sacrifice many units in order to create enough three bedroom units to make this a worthwhile addition to the housing stock of the town."

Concerns were also noted in the draft report about such things as sewage treatment planning and an "apparent lack of green space for future residents at Deck Point."

The report also touched on other subjects such as the housing authority grant to develop 12 units of scattered-site family housing through the commonwealth's Chapter 705 program.

It noted that the partnership is examining the "Crystal Woods" project proposed by Crystal Development Corporation on the Scituate/Cohasset border.

The entire parcel, according to Jack Hurley of Crystal Development, will be 100-120 units. Eight acres are in Cohasset, the remaining 12 are in Scituate.

The housing partnership will invite Crystal Development to send a representative to its meeting Sept.12. A report on that proposal will be submitted by the housing partnership to selectmen.

Andrew to leave for the big city . . .

to see him going past our building."

He laughed and said, "I guess you could call me a student of politics - mostly national and state politics. I collect memorabilia from campaigns and I've attended the last three inaugurations."

During Reagan's first inauguration, Andrew recalled that the parade viewers had no ideas the hostages had been freed. "Until," he said, "a vendor came around with buttons saying 'I was in Washington the day the hostages were freed, Jan. 20, 1980.' I bought it for $3 and later that day, I saw the same button selling for $25."

Andrew had the best seats for the last inauguration - Reagan's second term as president. "I was able to get six tickets for standing room and two very good seats, for the first time. And then what happens - Reagan cancels the inauguration because of cold weather!" he remembered.

He will attend the festivities this January in the nation's capital - regardless of whether the governor of Massachusetts will be the honored host.

Andrew will be leaving Cohasset after three years and serving with three different boards of selectmen. It was a decision he's considered since his vacation last winter.

"I was in the last year of my contract and it was time to leave on my vacation," he said. "I knew it was time to consider whether I wanted to continue here or not. I thought I needed some rest to think about. But when I returned, there still wasn't the enthusiasm there - it was a signal.

I should have been ready to tackle problems with enthusiasm, once I returned. But the oomph was gone, and I realized how much I miss municipal accounting. I realized I was happier in accounting and I wasn't really happy in municipal administration.

"Was it the town, the people or the field that was the problem?" he asked himself. "It was probably a combination of everything, but a majority of it was the work."

The descent of his enthusiasm began about 15 months ago, Andrew estimated, when an election changed the membership of the first board of selectmen with whom he had worked. That first board included Frank England, Cliff Mitman, Diane Sullivan, Mary Jane McArthur and Rocco Laugelle. "They were great to work with," he said.

Following the election, the second "great" board consisted of Mitman, Jim Gallagher, McArthur, Laugelle and Sullivan.

Then McArthur resigned. "I was very sorry to see her go. She was a person who wanted to see things done for this town and stuck with it until it was finished. She was a pleasure to work with as the chairman - she is a very classy lady," Andrew noted. "But she was physically and emotionally burnt out."

Diane Sullivan replaced McArthur as chairman, and once again Andrew said it was "a pleasure" to work with the chairman of the board. "She was little more aggressive in her style than Mary Jane, but the sincerity was the same. She's another 'volunteer junkie' who truly cares about this town."

After her chairmanship, Sullivan decided not to run for re-election. "The makeup of the board was very different after that," Andrew said.

"Change," he added, "is the nature of this business. You work well with some, and not so well with others. But if you get up in the morning and really don't feel like coming into the office, then it's time for a change for you. When you really don't want to come to work, and you have to tackle rush-hour traffic and you're the aggressor, you have to start listening to yourself."

After his vacation, Andrew was caught in the middle of the budget shortfall and the ensuing Proposition 2 1/2 override controversy. As soon as he arrived back in his town hall office, some fingers pointed in his direction, placing blame for the unexpected budget problems in his lap.

"For anyone to say it was my fault, or selectmen's fault, they are terribly uneducated about the subject of municipal finance," he said.

"I thought we would have problems this year, as we have had in the past when town departments want more than the town is willing to spend," he said. "I knew their 'wish list' this year was going to be big. But for anyone to say it's my fault - no one has control over the state cherry sheet, motor vehicle excise taxes which dropped drastically, or new construction revenue which declined drastically. Those things are beyond our control. They happen because the economy is in trouble. Just like the state budget is in trouble. And you can't just blame the governor - it's happening in every town and in every state in this country."

As he prepares to leave Cohasset, Andrew

Andrew leaves for the big city

warned that residents must "open their eyes" to some problems that are not bound to go away. Regarding the override situation, Andrew warned it is far from over. "For those people who said, 'you got your money this time, but never again,' the news is it's going to happen again. Common sense tells you that you can't increase spending by an inflationary rate when your half your revenue is only increased by only two and a-half percent. The bubble is going to break.

"Override is not a dirty word. It was placed into the law for a reason and when an override election is called, don't say never," he explained. "Look at the issue and don't for or against it because it's an override question. Vote for it because of its merit. Instead of saying no, look at the ramifications of your vote, and don't cut off your nose to spite your face. If anyone thinks there aren't anymore overrides coming, they're kidding themselves. There will be a lot more."

Another issue that will not fade away, Andrew warned, is the state-mandated need for affordable housing in Cohasset.

"I think there's a distinct lack of understanding about this issue," he said. "Once again, residents shold not cut off their nose to spite their face. When someone has grown up here and can't afford to live in the town any longer, something has to be done. But nothing we be done as long as we have conversations like "I may not be able to afford to live here any longer,' and they are given an answer, 'then maybe you shouldn't live here.' That type of response, which I have heard in this town, is elitist and snobbish. And nothing will be done about affordable housing if people in this town feel that way."

Andrew, who said he will enjoy leaving the limelight of being " a big fish in a small pond." has never savored his name published in the local newspapers each week.

"Some people might get a charge out of it, but I don't," he laughed. "It will be really nice to get into an office and not have to deal with that. Some people love to be the center of controversy and the center of attention,. I didn't mind it, but now I won't have to worry about it."

around town

□ Steve Lawrence and Edie Gorme were in town last week, and they managed to make celebrities out of five local Girl Scouts by having them sing "God Bless America" at the end of the show. In case you want their autographs, their names are: Jemilah and Aliah Afshar, Jessica and Rebecca Jenkins, and Anne Lindgren. The audiences loved the 50 scouts that participated, and they are all stars in our book!

□ William F. Malloy Jr. is back in Cohasset, and he sure has accomplished a lot since he graduated from Scituate High in 1975! After graduating from the Naval Academy he entered Surface Warfare in Virginia, then finished in Newport as an instructor with a rank of Full Lieutenant. He won't be home for long, he's off to Harvard to obtain his master's degree. Best of luck to you Bill, we know you'll "knock 'em dead."

□ Had a phone call from Dick Towle last week. He has been staying in Hingham for a while. Dick and his wife Louise live in Florida now, and have certainly made a name for themselves recently! Dick, at the age of 73, is Club Champion of the Vero Beach Golf Club; Louise won the 3rd flight for the ladies championship! Is it any wonder that their son, Rick Towle, is a scratch golfer at Cohasset Golf Club? It's in the genes! Congrats to all.

□ We hope that Fred and Marge Howe are better as they read this! They were both hospitalized last week, a day apart; we've often read about loved ones that become ill when the other one does, so let's hope that they mend in exactly the same fashion. They are a wonderful couple.

□ It may have been extremely hot last Saturday, but Kevin McCullough was a "cool" groom as he wed Susan Rocha in Taunton. Susan looked beautiful, and all of the McCullough Clan looked marvelous! Sure was a happy day for all.

□ Although it was awful at the time, we were lucky to get by with Sandy Beach only being closed for a day . . . it surely is a sign to all that something must be done about the situation that has developed regarding sewage. It isn't only Boston's problem anymore. . . .

□ If you haven't already gone, there is still time. Cohasset Jewelers is having a huge Million Dollar Antique and Estate Jewelry Show through Saturday (Aug. 6), and a portion of the show proceeds will be donated to the South Shore Art Center, which will go towards general operating expenses of the Center. There will be at least one item that will be sure to catch your eye (perhaps your pocketbook, too), so be sure to go!

□ Be sure to ask Donna McGee about the Democratic Convention that was held recently, and is more than happy to tell all who want to know about the election and her candidate, Mike Dukakis.

□ There is a special event that will be taking place the third week in August; it's a mystery gathering. If you want to find out the details, please get in touch with Bob Magner or Clark Chatterton. You will be glad that you did.

☑ A lot of people will remember when the dress shop "Bristol's" was in downtown Cohasset, and you are sure to remember Liz Bristol. She is in a nursing home now, and would love to receive a card or letter from you. Her address is Countryside Health Care, 3825 Countryside Blvd., Palm Harbor, Florida, 34684.

□ The next time you are downtown, go into Cohasset News and try their yogurt. It is yummy!

□ Cohasset's Robert Leggat will attend Dartmouth College in the fall where he will be a candidate for the Big Green football team.

A 1988 graduate of St. Mark's School in Southborough, Leggat earned three varsity letters in football and two varsity letters in lacrosse at St. Mark's. He was a midfielder on the 1986 and 1988 lacrosse teams that won the Independent School League championship.

James Kuhn

In football, Leggat was a second team All-League choice in 1987 and was the recipient of St. Mark's football award, the Smith Football Trophy.

At Dartmouth, Leggat will be vying for a spot on the freshman football squad, the Pea Green. Ivy League regulations prohibit freshman from playing varsity football.

Leggat plans to study economics at Dartmouth and to pursue a career in business. He is the son of Richard and Patricia Leggat of Cohasset.

□ Next week is an exhibit of "Garden Party" dresses from the extensive collection that the Cohasset Historical Society has. It will be held at the Caleb Lothrop House on Wednesday, Aug. 10 through Saturday, Aug. 13 from 2-5 p.m., and includes a tour of the house. Admission is $3.50, and will be worth it! I can say that because when Connie Parker was president of the Society, she was kind enough to show me all of the period costumes, and they are breathtaking!

James P. Kuhn of Cohasset has been named president of Metrocorp, publishing company for ATLANTA, BOSTON and MANHATTAN, Inc.

Kuhn, who will remain publisher and executive vice president of both BOSTON and ATLANTA magazines, began his career with Metrocorp in 1965 as an account executive at PHILADELPHIA magazine. After a brief stint as associate publisher/general manager of MIAMI magazine, Kuhn rejoined Metrocorp in 1975 as associate publisher/director of advertising at BOSTON magazine. He became publisher of BOSTON January of 1982.

Kuhn was appointed a vice president of corporate affairs in March 1985; executive vice president in January 1987; and in September, 1987 Kuhn was made publisher and executive vice president of ATLANTA.

Kuhn, 49, lives in Cohasset with his wife Elizabeth and two daughters, Laura and Krista. His base of operations will remain in Boston.

□ Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute has awarded the Rensselaer Medal to Melissa Nothnagle of 25 Atlantic Avenue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Nothnagle.

□ That's the news for this week. Give me a ring and let us all know what's happening in your family.

Scituate-Cohasset Men's Softball League final regular season standings

DIVISION ONE

	W	L
*South Shore Auto Parts	16	3
McCarthy's Masonry	16	3
Old Colony Marketing	14	5
Crossen Construction	9	10
Red Lion Inn	6	13
Bulman Fisheries	2	17
Bilbo Roofing	0	19

*South Shore Auto Parts were awarded first place because the tie-breaker is based on most runs scored per team and they led the league.

DIVISION TWO

	W	L
Harborside Shell	16	3
Mill Wharf	14	5
Swain Painting	13	6
Mealey Post	12	7
McCullough Landscaping	9	10
Corner Meat Shop	4	15
Architect Group	3	16

Swain Painting and Mealey Post have qualified for the playoffs in the Scituate-Cohasset Men's Softball League. Crossen Construction, meanwhile, could be invited to the post-season tournament as well, depending on their preliminary-round contest for the final and eigth on Wednesday, August 3.

This week marks the whole month of playoff action in the men's league.

The defending champion, McCarthy's Masonry, will try to repeat this year. Previously, McCarthy's Masonry has made it to the final round three years in a row, winning it last year for the first time. In retrospect, they defeated Reynold's Package Store (now called Harborside Shell because Reynold's Package decided to drop out as a sponsor) three games to two in the finals. However, the most serious challenger for McCarthy's Masonry at the monent is South Shore Auto Parts. The regular-season divisional champion led the entire league in runs scored. McCarthy's Masonry finished second.

Based on the playoff format, it is very doubtful that these offensive-minded clubs will face each other in the finals. Most likely, it will come down to the semifinals.

Only eight out of 14 teams in the league qualified for the second season.

"We had an excellent season. There were no rainouts. We managed to complete all 19 scheduled games. As a matter of fact, we played in every unfavorable condition," said Bob O'Meara, who just finished his seventh season as president of the league. "There was certainly parody in the league. I expect a big turn out for the playoffs."

O'Meara predicts that McCarthy's Masonry will sneak into the finals again.

The first-round action will begin tonight (8/4) at Central Field, Scituate starting at 6:15. It will be a best two-out-of three series with the winner advancing to the next round, the semifinals. The last two rounds (semifinals and finals) will be a best three-out-of five series.

All of the playoff games will continue until Labor Day. Every single game will be played at Central Field (6:15 starting time as well). The pairings will appear in next week's edition.

There are banks in Weymouth with more depositors but none with more satisfied customers.

Walk into any one of our branches and you'll very quickly understand what customer satisfaction really means. You're a neighbor – not a number.

The atmosphere in our offices is warm. Pleasant. The tellers friendly and helpful.

Of course we offer the complete range of banking services. And attractive rates. We're working hard to be not the biggest bank with a lot of depositors, but the best bank for our community. Not just good bankers, but good neighbors as well.

Why not drop by our office in South Weymouth, North Weymouth or East Weymouth. We'll show you that banking can be a satisfying experience.

We make you feel like a million dollars.

Editorial

A solution is needed

This past week, certainly points up the fact that protecting our environment and our shores is a shared responsibility.

While Cohasset continues to fight for a sewer plan that will help our residents while saving the environment, we have had to contend with a neighboring situation that has spoiled our beaches for the past week.

Local officials claim the pollution which climbed aboard our shores this week has nothing to do with our sewer treatment plant operation. Throughout the heavy rainfall, the plant has functioned well, according to its supervisor.

The latest threat to our bathing beaches has likely arrived from Boston Harbor and the Nut Island treatment plant. It has been a disgusting voyage from that troubled facility onto our shore. And that worse thing is, there is nothing we can do but sit and wait for the cleansing action of the tides to rinse it away.

Boston will not be fined for each day it pollutes our waters. There is no remedy we can seek from the bureaucracy at city hall or in the state house. Boston is under a court order to implement a new treatment facility - action resulting from disgruntled Quincy residents who have suffered through this type of incident for many years.

It is frustrating that our only recourse is to sit and watch the tide recede as we endure an intolerable heat wave.

In the meantime, we have no money to construct a sewer system of our own. The sewer commissioners have blamed the state for pulling the rug from under us. And many residents argue that the state never had any intention to fund the plan. The lack of a housing agreement with the state prevents us from receiving any state grants. And that includes the money we anticipated for the design and construction of the sewer plant. We were told that fact at town meeting when the final plan was voted on.

No matter who is to blame, we are still without a sewer plan. And that is a big problem that is without any foreseeable solution.

It seems inexplicable that we are being denied funds to implement a corrective sewer system, when our shores are being abused by another sewer system that continues to spew forth poisons without a solution in sight.

Who is responsible for this situation, and where can we turn for help?

We are in a predicament that will not soon be resolved. Our shores are being devastated while we are forced to watch.

It seems our sewer plant has been functioning well. There is no connection between our problems last week in the cove and the operation of our small treatment facility.

But imagine how great the problem must be in Boston where thousands of gallons of unhealthy, untreated sewage is now finding itself on shore throughout this area. Likely, we will never know how extensive this problem really is.

But we have every right to know. And we should not be content until we know when and how the problem will be resolved.

Commodities

Commodities are moving up
And I should buy some ere I sup.
Right now or never, so they say;
You never win when you delay.
Ten thousand, quick,
Could do the trick.
Write the check, my buttercup,
Commodities are going up.

And here's my harbor mooring bill.
Well, that can wait a while until Old Harry badgers, badgers me:
A month or two or maybe three.
The Town knows I must surely take
First things first, for goodness sake.
Commodities are going up
And I must buy them 'fore I sup.

What is so rare as days in June,
So often fair, they pass too soon.
But Harry's gone, he calleth not;
The mooring bill I plumb forgot.
But that's okay, the boat is in
And let the Town sing Rin-Tin-Tin.
Commodities are on the up,
The new man's nothing but a pup.

Pay my bills on time, you say?
When where you born, just yesterday?
I'll sue you all and then you'll see
That I'm important, yes siree.
No need to pay it when it's due;
That's for simple folks like you.
Commodities are up, up, up
And I shall skin you ere you sup.

Letters

To the Editor:

Although I am a registered Democrat, I have decided to arrange to vote for State Representative Mary Jeannette Murray at the earliest opportunity, plus to help her in any way I can. When one of my older children became ill and needed to go to a local facility this month, Mary Jeannette spent a whole weekend trying to help arrange that, and finally made one telephone call and it was done. She was the most warm considerate person to me which is rare in this world from people involved in politics. She never asked me if I was a Democrat or Republican. I just want everyone to know that I found her to be a great help when we needed that.

PS I also want to thank Dr. Robert Sceery for all his help to our family and in this instance for reminding me to call Mary Jeannette.

Commissioners blame the other guy

To the Editor:

The "shock and outrage" of the Cohasset Sewer Commission in reaction to the absence of state funding is a thoroughly predictable one in the light of their responses during five years of mistakes and failed promises: blame the other guy!

Though it may be of small comfort today, it seems appropriate to remind people that Cohasset could have had a functioning, subsidized, adequate affordable system by now if the present leadership of the Sewer Commission had not stepped in at the last minute to forestall it and set the will-'o-the-wisp course that has let to the present impasse. Nothing that they say now should obscure the fact that after years of study and debate, the town had reached virtual consensus, a plant site finally determined, and government funds earmarked when they moved in to abandon this sound program.

It also should not be forgotten that the earlier leadership of the Sewer Commission (when it was joint with the Water Commission) brought us the functioning, subsidized, affordable and adequate water supply that is the envy of towns still struggling with the problem. Yet this leadership was rejected and discredited.

It is almost unbelievable that the present leadership enjoys any credibility after its record of failed promises. And even now they speak of losing "our funds" when it is clear that no subsidy for their plan was ever firmly available. And they speak blithely of an agreement with Hull when it seems clear that no final, specific agreement has ever been approved or signed.

Given their talent for fiction and the public's gullibility, it wouldn't surprise many if they escape rightful blame now. The fact is, however, that it is they who have created the situation for which there seems no solution.

Cooperative artists 'draw together' for exhibit

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

An emerging community of South Shore artists are staging a first-of-its kind collective exhibit this month at the South Shore Art Center.

"Artists Drawn Together", a newly-formed group of professional artists in this area, plan to mark the opening of this exhibit in an unusual manner.

Sunday, Aug. 7 from 4 to 6 p.m., the exhibit will be celebrated by a number of local artists, who will perform their own dance, music and readings.

"For the first time, the audience will get to see the visual and performing artist together - to see the connections between the two," Hingham artist Syma explained. Syma, a well-known artist-in-residence at many South Shore schools, is helping to coordinate the show.

Another unique element to this show is indicated in the exhibit's theme - "Bread Work, Soul Work - Known Work, New Work." This, according to the show curator, Cohasset artist Gil Coyle, is the group's intent to display the two sides of an artist, the work the artist must perform to support him or herself. And the other portion of his work is done solely for the love of art, she explained.

"Each artist will have two pieces in the exhibit - one piece will be from their business and the other will be what the artist likes to do. If you're lucky, what that means is you're a fulltime artist, but it doesn't always work out that way," she explained.

Gil is an art teacher at Derby Academy. When she's away from the classroom, she works in oil crayon, monotypes and pottery.

The show will be held through Sept. 3 in the Margaret Dillon Room of the art center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset. The late art center president "would have loved this exhibit," Syma said. "And she would have loved seeing ten artists cleaning the walls and hanging our work together. There were no egos involved. We put things where we thought they looked the best.'

Coyle added, "we didn't choose something on the basis of whether it was good enough. We wanted the entire collection of work to look right toegther."

Through this newly-formed alliance and support group for local artists , many discoveries have been made. Those discoveries created the reason for this exhibit, Syma explained, as a need for the public to fully view the many talented artists in this area.

"In Search of Cinderella" is one of the many exhibits to be shown this month at the art center.

"What's exciting about this show," she noted, "is that the public will be able to see two sides to the artist."

Coyle noted that when she joined Artists Drawn Together, she never knew she shared so many common bonds with other artists in this area. Formerly from Maine, Coyle welcomed the support and companionship she found through the alliance.

One such "find" was well-known childrens' book illustrator, Joan Drescher of Hingham. Until their meeting with the local group, Coyle was unaware that Drescher also creates huge "healing" wall murals at area hospitals.

Drescher's exhibit at the art center will feature photographs and explanations of the murals she has completed in the children's radiation treatment center at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston.

Art, she said, is a proven method of soothing and healing. In her designs she depicts children flying kites along with colorful animals. International signs for healing, such as the carp, and the butterfly, are prominently displayed.

"I think people will find out all sorts of things about local artists - things people don't know anything about," she explained.

Drescher added that many other artists, including Jim Earl, a Hingham interior designer, will show his unique furniture scupltures during the exhibit.

Twenty-seven artists will participate in this summertime show. Illustrators John Kilroy and Luynn Rizzotto, will also show their more personal art work. Professional photographer Gail Bryant will also be featured, including her work as an international travel photographer.

Syma, who is currently working on an architectural commission at Davis Square in Somerville, talked about the potential of artists. "We are beginnig to integrate the artists," she explained. "There is so much potential in terms of the collaboration in this community of artists. Seeing the personal side of our artistry is an exciting attempt to see the way we deal with art."

Drescher agree, adding that bringing together the community of artists "allows us an opportunity to share. It's the difference between cooperation and competition. Without that sharing, an artist can get pretty stagnant."

Seafarers get a glimpse of Minot Light history

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

Despite a steady downpour, more than 150 people braved the unwelcomed elements as they ventured out of Cohasset Harbor to take a sailor's view of the famed Minot's Ledge Lighthouse.

Sponsored by the Cohasset Historical Society, the hourly boat excursions aboard the "Seabreeze" were billed as a "revisit" to the granite lighthouse which is currently unlighted as it undergoes extensive repairs.

The 114-foot high lighthouse, with the familiar 1-4-3 beacon, is about two and a-half miles from the Cohasset shore. For 128 years it has provided a careful warning to sailors to steer clear of the granite ledges and dangerous reefs along "Cohasset Rocks."

This trip into the past was narrated for the novice sailors by local historian Osborne Ingram. Buffeted against the rain and winds with all manner of foul weather gear, the hearty passengers enjoyed the excursions despite the weather.

As the boat left Cohasset Harbor, Ingram explained that the first white man to visit these rocky shores was Capt. John Smith along with a crew of about eight or nine Indians. In 1614 he was met in Konahasset , the "long, rocky place' by Indians along the shore. A battle erupted and one Indian was killed. Smith Rock now marks the site of where the foreigner first entered Cohasset Harbor.

Ingram explained that Cohasset Harbor is only 90 feet wide, and is continually dredged to maintain its six-foot depth.

The tour continued through Cohasset Harbor to the site of the 1949 wreck of the St. John. Ninety-nine lives were lost in that disaster, although 22, including the captain and his crew, were saved. The event was later chronicled by poet and author Henry David Thoreau.

The first Minot's Lighthouse, Ingram explained, took about two years to complete. Construction began in December, 1849 but the early stages were demolished when the lighthouse was struck by a boat.

In 1850, the first Minot's Light was erected, but in April, 1851 the structure went down to the sea in a violent wind and rain storm. Along with the lighthouse, its two keepers, Joseph Antoine and Joseph Wilson, perished.

In 1855, construction of a second lighthouse began. But in that year, crews who meticulously fit the jigsawed pieces of granite together, fastened by bolts and cement, only managed to work 155 hours that year; 157 hours the following year, and 130 hours in 1957, because of the harsh weather.

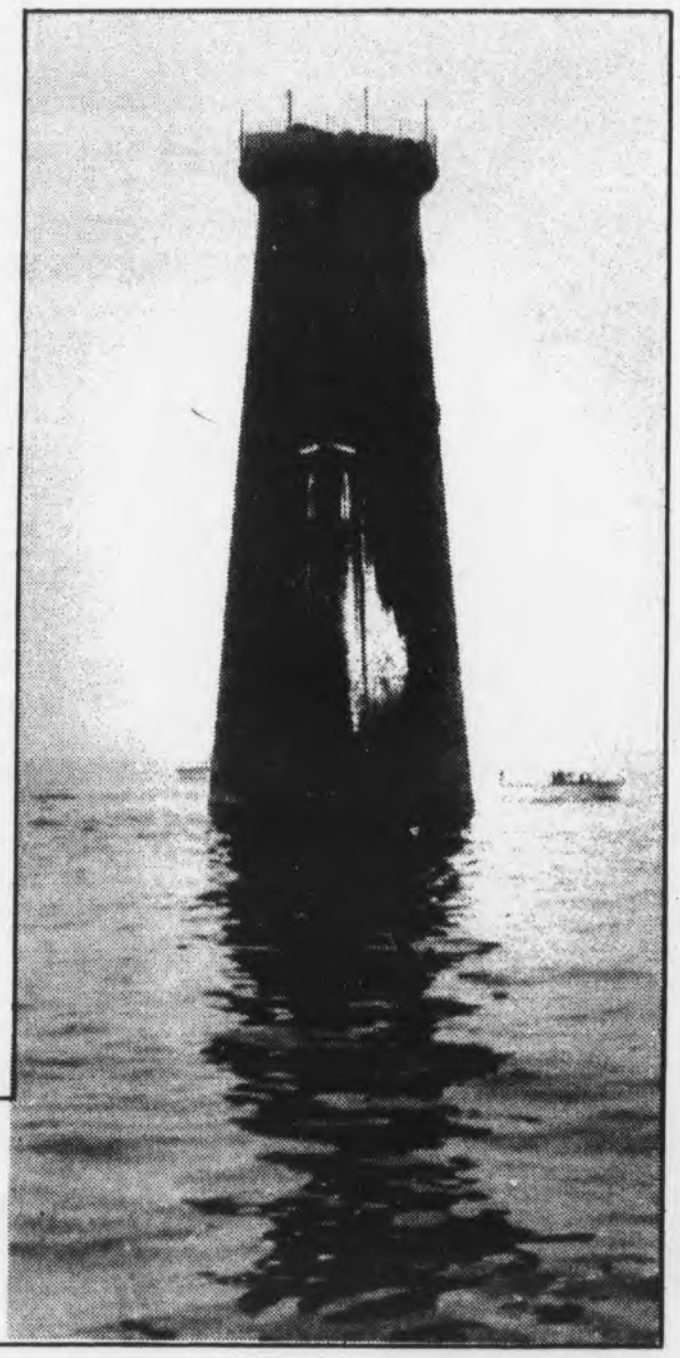
Despite advances in technology, and the use of a helicoptor to airlift the blocks to the lighthouse, the Coast Guard has only managed to work a similar number of hours this year because of weather limitations, Ingram explained.

Through the winter, new granite blocks, duplicates of the original constructed of Quincy granite, have been carefully carved in Milford, N.H. They have been transported onto Cohasset's shore along the Ballarmine Estate, while some of the 3,000 to 4,000-pound rocks have been stored carefully atop the lighthouse, awaiting placement.

The original blocks have been placed along Government Island where they will be reassembled into a replica of the lighthouse watch room.

The replacement of the lighthouse watch room was necessitated when deep fractures were discovered in the original blocks. These severe gashes in the stone were thought to possibly endanger the entire structure.

As cameras clicked away and the "Seabreeze" carefully motored past the impressive structure last Sunday, passengers were reminded of the ominous and lonely mission of this ocean lighthouse - to protect all sailors from the hidden dangers off the coast of Cohasset.



Minot's Light, with its watch room about to be re-assembled, was viewed from the deck of the "Seabreeze."

Estate jewelry sale

A $33,000 Art Deco platinum and diamond bracelet with 30 carats of round and baguette diamonds will be among the show pieces at Cohasset Jewelers third annual Million Dollar Antique and Estate Jewelry Show Aug. 3 to 6.

Hours will be 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., an extension of the store's usual hours.

A portion of the show proceeds will be donated to the South Shore Art Center, Cohasset. Art work from the center will also be displayed for sale.

"We're anticipating a good crowd," said Mark Cirone, an owner of the family business at 790A Route 3A, Cohasset, with his parents, Jerry and Netta, and brother, Don.

This year's show will include over 1,000 items filling five display cases, he said. Prices start at $50.

"Come in and browse," he said.

"There will be a lot of items people haven't seen before."

Drug education program

The Cohasset Recreation Department, in conjunction with Browning-Ferris Industries, Inc. will present a drug and alcohol awareness program by former Boston Bruin Derek Sanderson.

The program will be held at the Cohasset High School Auditoriumat 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 11. The educational program is designed for parents. All parents in the local area are welcome, and encouraged to attend the free program.

Sanderson brings to the program a powerful message from a man who at one time enjoyed being the world's highest paid athlete, a recognized idol. Later, he suffered despair as a penniless drug-dependent alcoholic.

The Cohasset Recreation Department wishes to thank both Sanderson and Browning-Ferris Industries, Inc. for making this program available and possible to us.

Drug talk for kids

Tuesday, Aug. 9, at the Osgood School, the Cohasset Recreation Department will sponsor a talk by famed NFL player, and Cohasset resident, Walter Sweeney.

The program given by Sweeney is designed for children age 9 and over, and is not limited to Playground Program participants. All children are invited to attend at 1 p.m.

Trip to Catskills

The Friends of Scituate C.O.A. will sponsor a trip to the magestic Catskill Mountains Sunday, Sept. 18 through to Thursday, Sept. 22.

A single occupancy will cost $235. A deposit of $25 is required. Please send it to: Diane Barke, 27 Broad St., P.O. Box 259, Scituate, Ma. 02066.

Summer wind ensemble

Seventy-five young musicians in the Summer Wind Ensemble will give a concert at the Music Circus in Cohasset August 5 at 11 a.m.

This will be the culmination of five weeks study at the South Shore Conservatory's music day camp program, now in its 16th season. The students come from 20 south of Boston towns to improve their playing under the direction of Malcolm Rowell and his staff.

They are in grades seven through 12 and play brass, woodwind and percussion instruments. Chosen by audition, they play in either the Intermediate or the Advanced Ensemble. At the end of the five weeks they present a number of concerts, which are free and open to the public.

The August 5 program will feature classical, light classical, and familiar selections of band music.

The Advanced Ensemble will be conducted by Malcolm Rowell, and the Intermediate Ensemble by Sally Cole Tucker.

"We are looking forward to giving the last concert of the season at the Music Circus," said Rowell. "It is exciting for the students to play in a professional theater, and we thank Edward Kasses for giving them this opportunity."

Preceeding the concert, the Conservatory will have a coffee for Conservatory Trustees, the Board of the South Shore Music Circus, faculty and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Ripley of Cohasset. Sheldon Ripley is on the Board of the Music Circus and Denise Ripley is Communications Director at the South Shore Conservatory.

Outings for young naturalists

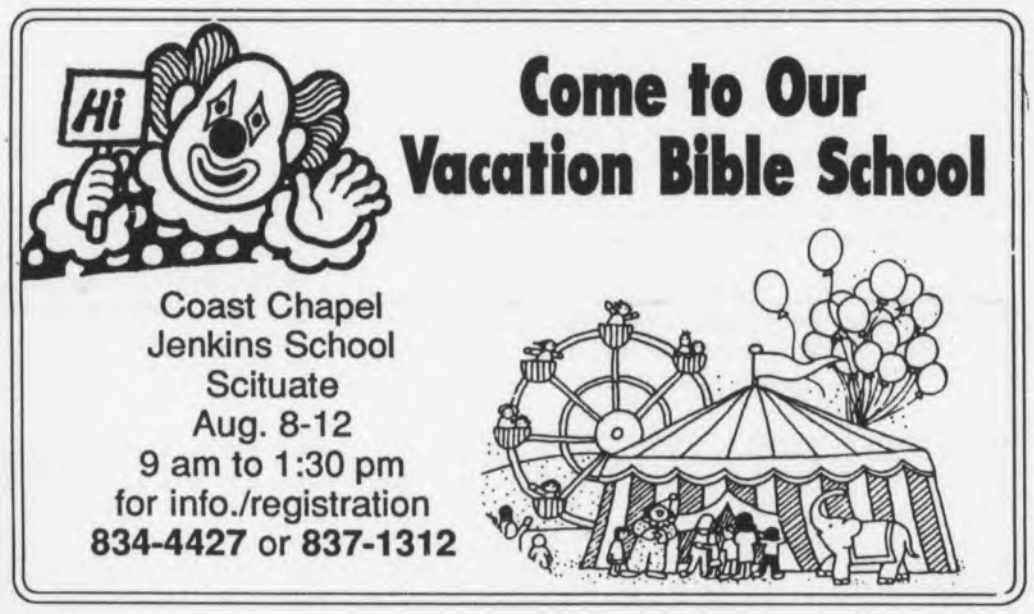
The South coast of Massachusetts has so much to offer those interested in the out-of-doors.

From Aug. 15 to Aug. 18 interested youngsters can join Massachusetts Audubon Society regional director David Clapp in exploring the local haunts of birds and beasts. The sessions are from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and will be limited to six people.

The group will visit coastal, grassland and woodland habitats in the area.

There will be an opportunity for the participants to learn about plant communities and animal populations that use each community.

Call the Massachusetts Audubon Society's South Shore Regional Office at 837-9400 to register.



Sailing club season in full swing

Sailing instructor Bob Jackson assists his sailors at they begin on another voyage.

The Cohasset Sailing Club's junior and adult classes have passed the mid-season point with a full compliment of sailors in six different programs, according to Commodore Paul Carlson.

The junior training program is under the direction of returning chief instructor, Alan Cooke. Junior sailors can choose from four levels of instruction based on age and sailing ability. Classes are held three days a week for two hours and include classroom instruction and a lot of hands on training in the club's boats.

During the season, the club's sailors participate in numerous local sailing events such as the Hingham Bay Junior Regatta.

The adult training programs this year are shared by long time club instructors, Bob Jackson and Bob Davenport. Two levels of instruction are offered with the beginner class scheduled for three hours on Saturday morning and the intermediate classes on Sunday morning. Instruction covers basic boat handling, safety, knots and rigging. In addition, the intermediate classes use racing to learn the five points of boat handling, sail trim and rules of the road.

In addition to sailing instruction, the club offers the Stanton Series for the racing family. It allows juniors and parents to share racing competition on Wednesday evenings using the club's Mercury boats.

Veteran instructor, Bob Jackson says, "It's gratifying to see many of our students become active in racing with Cohassets' Flying Scot fleet or going on to get their own crusing boat. It's the best way to learn how to sail and, not a bad way to spend the summer."

The Cohasset Sailing Club uses a fleet of ten, fifteen foot Mercury and six Turnabout sailboats for class instruction. One of the benefits of club membership is the free use of all boats anytime they are not used for classes, including afternoons on both Saturday and Sunday. Dinghy space and shore berths for small boats such as Sunfish and windsurfers are also available to members.

The club's annual clambake will be held this year Saturday, August 20. The event is open to all members and friends.

A look at dresses of days past . . .

"They would serve such things as tea sandwiches and punch.

"I remember going to one with my mother on Bow St., Cohasset, when I was about 17.

"It was the first and last one I've ever been to.

"You had to be dressed to the nines.

"Everybody looked very pretty," she remembered.

"It was a very graceful time," agreed Mrs. Tinka McLean, past committee chairman.

"Ladies were terribly, terribly feminine, and all the social amenities were observed.

"As far as the clothes, they were lovely but they must have been uncomfortable."

All of the items in the collection were donated to the historical society.

"When people die, their children often give clothes and artifacts to the historical society," explained Grassie.

The two women, who have known each other for some 40 years, said that many of the collection items were acquired starting in the early 1950s when the late Eleanor Marsh was costume committee chairman.

"She got people to donate," they said. Marjorie Ladd of Scituate also assisted.

"Past president Constance Parker was greatly involved in this, too," said Grassie.

The society has an extensive collection of clothes from the Baron Bancroft collection, added Grassie.

"That was Mrs. (Jessie) Cox and her mother," she explained.

In addition to dresses, the collection includes such things as parasols, petticoats, nightgowns, hats, shoes, gloves and bags.

Last fall, Nancy Rexford helped historical society members sift through the clothes to determine what was worth keeping and what was not, and how to care for them.

"You are not supposed to have the clothes dry cleaned," said Grassie, who noted that members were literally taught to handle the clothes with white gloves to keep from soiling them.

For next week's event, eight of the garden party dresses will be displayed on mannequins and others will be layed out in five rooms of the house.

Committee members will provide information about the articles on display.

The dresses are light and feminine, and most are white and ankle-length.

"White was a very popular color," explained McLean.

"It was the color of elegance and wealth, as well as virtue and virginity."

Tinka McLean and Betty Grassie prepare for the Historical Society costume show Aug. 10. Antique dresses and parasols will be featured in the show. (Kym Marcella photo)

Flowers for the occasion will be provided by Eleanor Bleakie.

The two women noted the work of costume committee members Mary Campbell, Polly Blanchard, Martha Hurtig, Jan Pierson and Jean Boe.

In addition, McLean's sister, Katy Dodd, has worked on conservation of the gowns.

Tickets for the event, at $3.50 each, will be available at the door.

"We'd like to raise money so that we can eventually have or own costume museum," said Grassie.

"The Catholic Church (St. Anthony's next door) has been very kind to loan us a huge room."

Grassie said she doesn't know where the costume museum might be located.

"Maybe on this property," she said. "There are two garages in the back.

"But it will cost a great deal of money. It has to be climate controlled."

The committee is also trying to promote use of the Lothrop House, constructed by a Cohasset merchant whose name it carries.

The 1821 Georgian house is the headquarters of the Cohasset Historical Society.

Senior Center news . . .

The Dog Days of Summer are upon us again!! Dog Days, the hottest, most uncomfortable day in August: so it's called because during that period of time the Dog Star rises and sets with the sun. Dog Star, (so called as it lies in the constellation Canis Major), which in ancient times was observed to rise when the days were the hottest.

As seniors we need to be very careful during the Dog Days of Summer. As we get older, our bodies become less able to respond to long exposure to heat. During this long hot, hazy, humid weather, a build-up in body heat can cause heat stroke or heat exhaustion. This is especially true of people who have a history of heart and circulatory disease, stroke, or diabetes.

What are heat-related illnesses? Heat Stroke is a medical emergency requiring immediate attention and treatment by a doctor. Among the symptoms are faintness, dizziness, headache, nausea, loss of consciousness, body temperature of 104°F(40°C) or higher, measured rectally, rapid pulse, & flushed skin.

Heat exhaustion takes longer to develop than other heat-related illnesses. It results from a loss of bodywater & salt. The symptoms include: weakness, heavy sweating, nausea, & giddiness. Heat exhaustion is treated by resting in bed away from the heat & drinking cool liquids.

Protective measures — in hot weather — the best precaution during hot spells is to remain indoors in an air-conditioned room. If your home is not air-conditioned, you might go to a cool public place (like a town library, movie theater, or mall) during the hottest part of the day.

Other good ways to cool off include taking cool baths or showers, placing icebags or wet towels on the body, and using fans to cool you. In addition, it is wise to: 1. Stay out of the sunlight, & avoid strenuous activities. 2. Wear lightweight, light-colored, loosefitting clothing that permits sweat to evaporate. 3. Drink plenty of liquids such as water, fruit & vegetable juice, & iced tea to replace the fluids lost by sweating. Try not to drink alcoholic beverages or fluids that have too much salt, since salt can complicate existing medical problems, such as high blood pressure. Use salt only with your doctor's approval. Above all, take the heat seriusly and don't ignore danger signs like nausea, dizziness, and fatigue.

Caution, common sense, & prompt medical attention can help avoid serious illness due to heat related illnesses. Don't wait. Call for help. Senior Center 383-9112, Social Service League 383-0771.

Historical Society museums open for summer

The Cohasset Historical society's two museums at Elm Street in Cohasset Center are continuing their summer seasons through August and September.

The Capt. John Wilson House and Maritime Museum are open each afternoon from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. except Mondays.

The Capt. Wilson House contains an extensive collection of artifacts and artworks from the old homes of the town, displayed in an early 19th century setting. Furniture, toys, kitchenware, china and stoneware, and a large mid-1800's doll house are some of the items on display. Paintings showing Cohasset as it appeared a century ago, done by local artists, adorn this early 19th century Sea Captain's home. On the first floor an unusual old settle bench having a folding center shelf can be seen, and on the second floor a unique "corner clock," built in to the corner of a room, can be viewed.

Adjacent to the Capt. Wilson House the Society's Maritime Museum, an 18th century ship chandlery for the Bates family's fishing fleet, holds a large collection of artifacts, pictures, documents, charts and memorabilia relating to Cohasset's illustrious "Age of Sail." The story of the town's volunteer lifesavers, its mackerel schooner fleets and its "Deep Sea Captains" is shown in pictures and historical artifacts from the early 19th to early 20th centuries. Models of clipper ships, decorative carvings from Cohasset-built mackerel schooners, and the figurehead from the last schooner built at "Ship Cove" (today's Cohasset Harbor) are on view.

This summer the extensive collection of pictures and items relating to Minot's Ledge Lighthouse has been augmented to mark the renovation of the historic offshore light. Early photographs showing the construction of the famous light have been added to the Maritime Museum's display, as have some items taken from the structure itself during the extensive repairs taking place this summer.

The Maritime Museum's second floor contains collections relating to the town's general history, from early stone tools of the resident Indian tribes, early carpenters' and blacksmith's equipment, and shoemaker's tools, to school desks, early apothecary instruments, Civil War swords and militia muskets. A 19th century "Fisherman's Country Store" can be seen holding the counting desk and samples of items in stock at Tower Brothers' store in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Admission to the Historical Society's museums at Cohasset Center is $1.50 per building, with 50 cents for children from 6 to 12 years.

Special group tours can be arranged by calling the Society at (617) 383-6930.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 85P2347C1
NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To Lydia M. Kanzler, The Massachusetts Department of Mental Health and to all persons interested in the estate of LYDIA M. KANZLER of Cohasset, in said County, a mentally ill person.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the amended first and amended second account(s) of JOHN R. WHEATLEY as Conservator - (the fiduciary) of the property of said ward have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the thirty-first day of August, 1988, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this twentieth day of July, 1988.

Name the newspaper contest

The Jack Conway Real Estate Company is sponsoring a "Name Our Newspaper" contest to find a new name for its monthly newspaper.

The winning entry will receive a dinner for two at the Satuit Restaurant in Scituate Harbor.

According to Jon Bond, Conway Co.'s director of advertising, the publications name "Good News," is covered by a copyright held by a North Shore newspaper.

The Conway Co. newspaper includes news about the company, the local real estate market, information about buying and selling real estate, features about places of interest in the area, and pictures and descriptions of properties offered for sale.

The contest is open to the public. Suggestions may be mailed to: The Jack Conway Company, 137 Washington Street, Norwell, MA 02061, Attn: Advertising Department.

Selectmen want to buy Salt House

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

Selectmen Monday night took the first step in acquiring the Old Salt House at Cohasset Harbor by eminent domain.

In a unanimous move, selectmen voted to retain a real estate appraiser to ascertain the fair market value of the historic structure. Selectmen Cliff Mitman was not at the meeting.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson, who attended that part of the meeting, also recommended that a title search be done.

Trustees of the Conservation Trust had been invited to attend the meeting, but did not appear.

"They have a right not to come here if they don't want to," noted Henderson.

The Conservation Trust plans to sell the property deeded to it in 1974 by Jessie Cox because it feels its purpose is to acquire and maintain conservation land, not waterfront property.

Negotiations have almost been completed. The new owner intends to use the property as a ship's chandlery and will comply with a list of restrictions.

Selectmen feel that if the property is sold, "future generations are denied the beauty and enhancement that it adds to Cohasset Harbor."

Henderson told selectmen that the next step in taking the land by eminent domain would be to have a warrant article prepared for a special town meeting to pay for an appraisal.

He said that the last time the town paid for an appraisal of land it cost about $2,000 to $3,000.

"But this one should be much less," said Henderson.

The town counsel explained that land may be taken by the town for public purposes such as recreation or conservation.

"As long as the public purpose is legitimate," he said.

(See page 17)

Reason for absence

Members of the conservation trust informed selectmen last week they would not attend their Monday night meeting to publicly discuss the sale of the Old Salt House.

Instead, Chairman Richard Leggat said, they offered to meet them in closed session to talk about the imminent sale of the Cohasset Harbor structure. "We did not disregard selectmen," Leggat said this week, explaining their absence from selectmen's session. "We had talked with the executive secretary last week and indicated that we felt an open meeting was not appropriate."

"Our basic thesis was that we had accomplished everything by creating a set of restrictions to go along with the deed," he noted. "We just can't understand why selectmen feel compelled to take the building by eminent domain, or why they feel some

Temporary headquarters replace Route 3A cleaners

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

Within one hour, a fire which began Friday morning, Aug. 5 in the attic of Dwyer's Cleaning Spot, gutted the wood-framed building.

The Rte. 3A store was the main office and central processing facility for Robert Dwyer's six other drycleaning stores. This was the store where it all started more than 30 years ago, and in one hour, it was destroyed.

"No one was hurt except for me," a dejected store owner said as he watched the firegfighters extinguish the remaining flames that lingered under the building's roof.

"A lifetime of work is gone," he added. When asked if he will rebuild the familiar white, one-story store, he replied, "Sure. But who the hell knows when."

Dwyer, a Scituate resident, has six other stores scattered around the South Shore, including one in Scituate and in Hingham.

No one was injured in the Friday morning blaze, although there were 15 employees in the store at the time the fire was reported.

According to Cohasset Fire Chief Daniel Brock, a Cohasset firefighter on inspection notified the department about the fire at the same time a call was received from a Dwyer's employee. Although the fire began in the attic, perhaps along some electrical wires, the chief explained, it quickly spread through the one-story structure.

Firefighters from Scituate, Hull, Hingham and Norwell responded to the fire. Because of the intense heat of the fire and the 90 degree outdoor temperature, firefighters were forced to work in short shifts. After a few minutes of battling the blaze, each firefighter was relieved, the chief explained.

"There's always a danger of someone getting dehydrated on a day like this," he said, sweltering in the hot sun under heavy protective gear.

"This is miserable," he said, surveying the scene as his men poured streams of water onto the smoldering ashes. "When it's cold out, you can always wear extra clothes and button up your jacket. On a day like this, there's nothing you can do because you have to wear this heavy protective equipment.

"The men are going 100 percent, and on a day like this, it really drains everybody," Chief Brock noted.

Although the state fire marshal was called in to investigate the fire, Chief Brock said the blaze was not suspicious. It appeared to have started in the electrical wiring in the attic of the building.

Cohasset's week . . .

Interim position

Selectmen voted unanimously Monday night to appoint Janet Chalke as acting executive secretary and parking clerk.

Chalke, currently administrative coordinator in the selectman department, will serve in those positions until a replacement is found for Don Andrew who left Aug. 5, to become Everett's city auditor.

"We have to fill the job," said Burt Pratt, selectman chairman.

He noted that Chalke has been out sick, but that he asked her by phone if she would be willing to take on the added responsibilities.

"She said by all means," said Pratt.

Later in the meeting, Pratt noted that the town has received two applications for the position of executive secretary.

One is from a man, one from a woman, he said.

Selectmen action

Cohasset Selectmen took the following action at Monday night's meeting at Town Hall:

• Denied a request from Papa Gino's for a video machine license.

"Some years ago, we decided we didn't want them where alcohol is sold," said Selectman Rocco Laugelle.

Papa Gino's manager Patricia Galley said the video game would be used by patrons waiting for a pizza.

• Continued to Aug. 15, a request from Panagia Greek Orthodox Church for two, one-day beer and wince licenses Aug. 20 and 21, 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. No representative from the church attended this week's meeting.

• Approved the appointment of Capt. Roger Lincoln as acting fire chief during Chief Daniel Brock's absence Aug. 28 to Sept. 2 to attend a national fire chief's conference in Washington, D.C.

Selectmen Martha Gjesteby questioned whether Brock would be attending the conference on his vacation time or town time.

Selectman chairman Burt Pratt said he would find out.

"Whatever way he is going, I'm sure that it is the proper way," Pratt said.

• Granted a request from the Paul Pratt Library for use of the Cohasset Common Aug. 26, at 1 p.m. for a puppet show.

• Granted a request from the Cohasset Yacht Club for four, one-day liquor licenses Aug.. 20, 21, 22, and 23, 5:30 to 8 p.m.

• Voted to write a letter to the Cohasset Fire Department for "doing a fine job" at two recent fires.

Selectmen also agreed to thank surrounding towns for their mutual aid.

• Voted to write to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs requesting an environmental impact report on the Cohasset Heights Landfill which has requested an extension of 27.5 acres at the landfill.

• Granted a step rate increase to Polly Litchfield, town hall custodian.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle abstained because Litchfield is his sister.

"She's doing a very good job," said Selectman James Gallagher. "She's a real asset to the town."

Board opposes CHL

The Cohasset Planning Board finds the proposed expansion of the Cohasset Heights landfill "unacceptable", according to a letter sent by the board to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, Boston.

The Aug. 3 letter referred to an environmental notificaton form Cohasset Heights filed with the state requesting expansion of 27.5 acres at the landfill.

The letter was signed by board members John O'Toole, vice chairman; Daniel C. Cotton, clerk; Patrick A. Plante and Alfred S. Moore, Jr.

Chairman Robert Sturdy was on vacation.

"Between the Cohasset Harbor, Little Harbor, Lily Pond, Sanctuary Pond, the Reservoir, Great Swamp, Black Swamp, Bread and Cheese Swamp, Aaron River, Bound Brook, Conahasset River, the Gulf, and other streams and their contiguous flood plains and wetlands, plus trustees land, Cohasset's small total area leaves far less than almost any other Massachusetts town in the way of buildable space," stated the letter.

"It has a relatively modest amount of land zoned for light industry. Of that, the DPW has preempted a good sized piece and Cohasset Heights already is using up a substantial portion of remains unused.

"The 27 acres in question represent the bulk of usable light industry land that we have to develop in the future.

"A landfill is a short-lived use that renders the land unusable for decades to come.

"Any taxes it might pay during its short life could never make up for the lost business and job opportunities in the fallow future.

"The town has already made one shortsighted mistake in allowing a dump on this once picturesque and usable site. We do not want to enlarge and perpetuate it."

Conrad quits

Joel Conrad, the director of the South Shore Art Center, has resigned to accept a new position in Boston.

The 50 year-old Quincy resident has accepted a position as art consultant and interior designer for Paine Furniture in Boston. "It's a 37-hour work week, with a salary increase and benefits," Conrad explained, noting that he currently works many more hours than that at the art center.

Conrad was named art center director in January . He is pleased with the direction he has led the art center during those months, but acknowledged he was working "a killing schedule.

"It was a very interesting time, but it was also quite difficult," the director said. Conrad will leave the art center Friday, Aug. 12.

Public school registration

The Cohasset Public Schools will hold registration for all new students entering the system from 9 a.m. to noon daily during the following dates: Monday, August 22 through Friday, August 26.

You are urged to phone for an appointment to assist us in making the registration as smooth as possible. Joseph Osgood School, Grades K-3, 383-6117; Deer Hill School, Grades 4-6, 383-6115; High School Guidance, Grades 7-12, 383-6102.

Truck out to bid

Selectmen voted 3-1 Monday night to allow the highway department to go out to bid for a front end loader. Selectmen Martha Gjesteby was opposed.

But the money for the $50,000 to $60,000 machine will have to be approved at a special town meeting.

"We can do it, but we don't have the money," said Selectman chairman Burt Pratt.

Jane Goedecke, chairman of the advisory committee, told the board that it would cost $16,000 to refurbish the old machine.

"But they need a new one," she said.

"I feel that one way to go would be to present an article at town meeting," said Goedecke. "We could fund it from free cash, but we won't know how much that will be until September."

Goedecke said that she spoke to the town accountant and free cash for the town could be a little over $200,000.

"Last year, it was $370,000," she said.

"It had been $500,000 for a long time."

Goedecke said that the water department has a front end loader with backhoe, but that lending it to the highway department could jeopardize the life of the machine.

"It just doesn't make sense to take the water department machine," said Selectman Rocco Laugelle.

"I'd like to see the quickest and best way for the town — like you say, that is a special town meeting."

Goedecke suggested that articles be drafted to purchase the machine and another to refurbish the old one.

"I supposed it's always smart to have a second article, but I hate to see it go that way," said Laugelle.

Former NFL All-Pro Walter Sweeney, a Cohasset native, returned to talk to the youngsters of Cohasset about the dangers of drugs. The talk was sponsored by the Cohasset Recreation Dept.

RADIO ASSIST
We're looking out for you!

The family in this disabled car is relieved.

They won't have to take a long walk in the rain to get help. All they have to do is wait, because they've been spotted by an Eastern Edison Company employee in a radio-equipped service vehicle.

Our employee will call the company dispatcher who will quickly relay the information to the police, rescue or fire department.

We've always been committed to helping our neighbors in the cities and towns we serve. We want to make sure that you know we're out there if you ever need us.

That's why we've given this program a name. We call it Radio Assist!

And we've identified all our radio-equipped vehicles with a "Radio Assist" decal.

This includes vehicles of other Eastern Utilities Associates companies that travel through our service territory, such as Montaup Electric Company and Blackstone Valley Electric Company.

Radio Assist will continue our established practice of reporting emergency situations, such as:

- ☐ Fires
- ☐ Accidents
- ☐ Safety Hazards
- ☐ Road Hazards
- ☐ Disabled Vehicles

So — if you need emergency assistance, approach our Radio Assist-marked vehicles for help.

And help will soon be on the way!

Radio Assist — we're looking out for you.

An architect's rendering of the new five-store addition to the Jonathan Livingston Square on Rte. 3A.

Planners approve five-store Livingston Square

A five-store building next to Jonathan Livingston Square on Route 3A, Cohasset, could be open by late winter now that the planning board has given it approval for the plans.

Owner Thomas Cummings said after the board's Aug. 3 meeting that he hopes to have the foundation of the building in before the first frost this year.

"We would expect occupancy in March," said Cummings, who is planning the building at 130 King St. with his brother, Paul. He said the building will contain retail dry goods stores.

The planning board's 4 to 0 vote came with the stipulation that the basement of the new building not be used for retail space because that would require more parking spaces. It also stipulated that the old building be fixed up in a timely manner to coordinate with the new building.

The fifth board member, chairman Robert Sturdy, was on vacation.

"We've been working on plans to make the face of the old building look like the new one," said Cummings. "It's ranch style.

"We might almost do them simultaneously."

The matter had been continued for an opinion from Town Counsel Richard Henderson on the fact that to reach the 50 required parking spaces for the new property, patrons would have to travel through the original property.

Henderson said that would constitute extension of a legal non-conforming use and would require a special permit form the zoning board of appeals.

He also said that the new property complies with the zoning regulations. He said that only 50 spaces are needed because there is only 5,000 square feet of floor space.

Board member Al Moore said that he was happy that in the interest of public safety, one of the two entrances to the property is being closed.

Dan Cotton, another board member, asked Cummings if he would agree not to use the cellar of the old building for retail space.

"The building is not creating a problem," said Cummings.

"I go along with the plan with the restrictions," said member Patrick Plante.

Planners deny more Cohasset Plaza stores

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

Plans by Donald Staszko for a 12-shop plaza next to the super Stop & Shop on Route 3A were turned down by the Planning Board Aug. 3.

Board members voted 2-2 on the plan, but Town Counsel Richard Henderson explained that three votes are needed for a plan to pass.

"In the absence of that, it is defeated," he said.

Voting in favor were board members Patrick Plante and Al Moore. Those against were John O'Toole and Dan Cotton.

The fifth member, chairman Robert Sturdy, was on vacation.

The vote came after more than an hour of discussion on such things as the lot's impervious covering, or paving, and reserve parking.

According to a town zoning amendment, no more than 60 percent of a lot may be covered by buildings and pavement.

Up to 30 percent of the required parking spaces may be left as green space until they are needed at the discretion of the planning board.

Some 25 percent of the spaces would remain unpaved according to Staszko's proposal. That would mean that 58 percent of the lot would be paved and the proposal would comply with the zoning amendment.

However, if the spaces were included, the total would be 67 percent, which is above the limit.

Charles Humphreys, Staszko's attorney, and Cotton, had a long discussion on whether or not the reserve parking spaces should be considered impervious or pervious.

"Any parking space is impervious," contended Cotton.

Humphreys, who pointed out that parking spaces at the South Shore Music Circus and town hall are not paved, said that the board could stipulate that reserve spaces be made of pervious material.

"You can force the greenbelts off the plan," said Humphreys. "You would be taking out the green belts to prove that you can make the parking spaces now."

"I think we've beaten that horse," Moore said, as he tried to end that discussion. He said he was more concerned that there be no entrance to the plaza on Sohier St.

"I'd like that loop hole to be completely cut," said Moore.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson, who was called in to comment on the matter, said that "the project appears to comply with zoning in every respect except the 67 percent.

"But if you take the reserved 25 percent parking as pervious, then it becomes 58 percent which doesn't violate the zone requirement."

"The thing far exceeds coverage," said Cotton. "It has an excess of impervious coverage."

"Would you rather see parking spaces or green spaces?" asked Plante.

"I'd rather have them green and stay green," answered Cotton.

"All he has to do is knock off a third of his building (reduce the parking requirement) and he's in business."

Motions to consider the reserve parking as impervious or pervious both were deadlocked at 2-2.

Plante made the final motion to accept the plan with a number of stipulations.

The stipulations were that there be no access from Sohier St., that a parking space be eliminated so that it could be used in the pedestrian walkway between the Super Stop & Shop and the proposed plaza, and if the reserve spaces are activated they should be made pervious to the satisfaction of the board.

"The building is much too large for the area," said Cotton, after the motion was defeated.

"The lot is incapable of taking it.

"Too much is being asked of the piece of land."

Humphreys did not say if the board's action would be appealed.

Several years ago, Staszko and his attorney appealed the board's denial of plans for the Super Stop & Shop.

That project was completed last year.

Fire destroys Dwyers . . .

he said.

Damage estimates, which Dwyer Co. officials say is low, have been set at about $ 1 million for the building and its contents. Dwyer marketing director Kerry Crehan said until the insurance figures are finalized, a more realistic estimate will not be available.

In the meantime, a trailer has been set up at the Rte. 3A location. "Business is as usual," Crehan said, noting that customers may still bring their clothing to the trailer for service.

Throughout the weekend, employees set up the cleaning machinery in the Scituate and Hingham stores. "The only difference at this time," she said, "is that same-day cleaning must be brought in by 9 a.m. instead of 10 a.m. and there may be a short delay, about 48 hours, for shirts," she explained.

Although the trailer may not remain on the site for long, there will be a sign posted at the Rte. 3A location, directing customers to the nearest store.

There are claim forms available at the trailer for customers who lost merchandise in the blaze.

Along with clothes, the cleaning company lost all its records, its financial reports and marketing accounts in the fire.

"We lost thousands of dollars in machinery, and we lost our computers and records," Crehan said. "But now we have plenty of work to do at our other stores."

Crehan said the Rte. 3A store was the heart of the Dwyer's cleaning company. Built in 1958, the store employed 30 people amd was open six days a week.

"It all started here," she said. "We're not about to let it go. The plans are to rebuild."

"TRAVEL WITH THE CLIPPER"

Two local teens home from a year abroad

For two young Cohasset women, Laura Kuhn and Kim Hunt, the year that each recently spent abroad was one of the best of their lives.

Kuhn, 18, stayed with a host family in West Germany. Hunt, 19, was hosted by a family in Turkey.

But each had totally different experiences.

Kuhn found herself up against stereotypes of the "ugly American", while Hunt was received into a culture which responded to the "beautiful American."

"Germans hold themselves back a little," said Kuhn, daughter of Lizzie and Jim Kuhn of Pond St. She arrived home July 15.

"Americans tend to recognize that as unfriendly. But it's not intentional."

Hunt, daughter of Betty and Jim Hunt of South Main St., found Turks, with a few exceptions, to be warm and friendly and interested in getting to know her.

"I've never been so popular in my life," laughed Hunt, who came home July 3.

The young women, who met a few years ago at Cohasset AFS events, took different routes to their year abroad.

Kuhn who spent her senior year abroad, became aware of the all expense paid opportunity through the Cohasset schools guidance department.

Her year abroad was paid for by the U.S. Congress and its West German counterpart.

The program, which involved about 300 students from the United States and from Germany, was coordinated by Youth for Understanding, Experiment in International Living, and AFS.

Hunt, who had recently graduated from high school, applied to the AFS to live abroad for a year, and paid $3,500 of the $4,500 cost with money she had earned. AFS paid the remainder.

Neither could speak the language of the country in which they were to stay, but both eventually learned by necessity.

Kuhn stayed with a host mother and sister, who spoke just a little English.in Beverungen, Westfalia, a city of about 7,000 people.

"I felt like I was part of a zoo," smiled Kuhn, who explained that the family had a horse, dog, two cats, a parakeet, two geese, three hens and a rooster.

"It was an old style home with a stable," she explained.

Because she was staying in their home, she found the German family a bit friendlier than others she had met.

"They were friendly, but not in the same way as we are used to.

"They don't volunteer personal information, and you wouldn't ask.

"They aren't unfriendly, just not overly friendly."

Kuhn attended a school, known as Gymnasium, for grades 5 to 13.

Until she really learned the language, classes were hard to follow, she said.

"You weren't expected to keep up at first," she said. "Just to do the best you could."

Once she became more familiar with the language, she found classes no more difficult than they had been in Cohasset.

"It was equal to, or easier, than Cohasset," said Kuhn. "But there was more participation, more involvement in a topic or project."

School was also much more relaxed than she had expected.

"I expected it to be rigid," Kuhn said.

"Teachers are not as authoritative as I thought they would be."

Hunt stayed with a well-to-do family consisting of a mother, father, three daughters and a son in Istanbul, a city with a population of about 5 million people, she said.

Her host brother spoke a little English.

For the first half of her year, Hunt attended a strict, all girls school.

"You weren't allowed to wear make-up or jewelry, and you had to wear your hair up," she said.

"When the teacher entered the room, or left, you had to stand up."

"Hitting by teachers isn't illegal," she noted. "It's not encouraged, and it is uncommon. But it isn't illegal."

One such incident caused her to change schools.

When one of the students giggled during a math class, the teacher hit her over the head with a leather brief case five times.

"She was hysterical, and so was everybody else," said Hunt.

"It wasn't a very typical situation, but it made me want to be transferred."

Her second school was an art school, where she felt more comfortable.

She found the other students eager to get to know her.

"It was like being a 'mini-celebrity' everywhere I went," she said.

While Kuhn tried to be open and friendly, she found that the German students held back.

One friend that she had made before school started helped her become acclimated.

"He helped me and showed me around," she explained.

Kuhn eventually made some good friends.

"I know I'll always have them," she said.

"The Germans are friendly, but on a different level than we are used to.

"The German culture, in general, is a very closed society.

"For 2,000 years, they had no need for foreigners.

"It sounds negative, but they (foreigners) weren't necessary.

"They are evolving to become more open. But they are still pretty closed to foreigners."

"I tried to stay really open, and not judge it, but understand it."

"They are not militaristic or cold.

"It's important to realize that they all feel the same things we do, they just don't always show it the same way."

Kuhn noted that the West Germans are more hostile to Americans than other foreigners.

"It was a compliment for them to say that I didn't look American," said Kuhn who was often mistaken for French.

Hunt found a big difference in the place of women in society in the United States and Turkey.

"Women have full legal rights in Turkey," said Hunt.

"But in society, there is a difference."

She explained that her host father came from a village in the Black Sea where women were expected to wear black and walk 10 steps behind a man.

Women also covered their hair and arms.

"At first I resented it," said Hunt, who was not required to follow that custom.

"But then I accepted it as their way of life. It's for religious reasons."

One of the best parts of life in Turkey is the relaxation, according to Hunt.

"Every day at 4 or 5 p.m. when I came home from school, I had tea with the family," she said.

Her Turkish mother also taught her to crochet and cook.

"The food was excellent," said Hunt. "We had shish kebab, stuffed grape leaves, baklava for dessert."

She even came to like a native drink called Ayran consisting of yogurt, salt and water.

"I didn't like it at first. But I loved it by the time I left."

Kuhn found some of the food a little different than what she was used to.

"I don't eat a lot of meat or butter. A lot of their food is loaded up with fats and salts."

Both celebrated Christmas in their different lands.

"In Germany, Christmas was on a much smaller scale," explained Kuhn.

"The whole Christmas spirit was much more subtle."

In Turkey, Hunt went to midnight Mass with some other Americans.

"There were Koreans, French, Americans, all gathered together," she said. "It was very moving."

"And we had a white Christmas.

"But overall, it was a really lonely time. My host family didn't understand Christmas."

Hunt also admits to being homesick the first month or two in Turkey.

"By five or six months, I understood so much better," she said. "Then I was rarely homesick.

"When it was time to go home, I didn't want to leave all that I had learned," said Hunt, who will attend the University of Vermont in the fall.

"I didn't want to go home either," said Kuhn, who will be a student at Tufts University in September.

"It seemed like I was leaving so much behind."

Dept. of Revenue prepares forecast

At the request of selectmen, the state Department of Revenue has agreed to prepare a five-year revenue and expenditure forecast for the town.

Selectmen requested the assistance after town officials were made aware of a budget shortfall only weeks before the April town meeting. That unanticipated budget deficit resulted in a subsequent Proposition 2 1/2 override referendum in May. Selectmen decided that with careful budget planning and forecasting, such a predicament will not reoccur.

According to the department, "the object of the study is to provide the Board of Selectmen, Finance Committee, Town Meeting and other town officials with an objective report on the town's financial position from FY90 to FY94. It is intended to assist these officials in making decisions concerning the town's capital spending, staffing and salary levels and future service levels."

The project will contain forecasting revenues for: property tax levy and new growth; cherry sheet aid; motor vehicle excise and other local receipts and available funds.

The forecast of expenditures will include: departmental budgets, school department budgets, fixed costs, debt service and other amounts to be raised by taxes.

The report, which will include findings and recommendations to the town, will assist town officials in determining the amount of revenue available for discretionary spending; the feasibility of future capital projects; preparing the FY90 operating and capital budgets; planning the use of the town's reserve fund in future years, and anticipating potential areas of financial concern for the town.

around town

□ Two Cohasset residents are participating in the Boston University Summer Visual Arts Institute, an intensive six-week program of art studio training, held June 27 to August 4 at the Boston University School for the Arts.

The residents are Susannah Lean of South Main Street and Melissa Nothnagle of Atlantic Avenue, both seniors at Cohasset High School.

They are among 15 art students enrolled in the program. Participants explore a variety of media and techniques under the direction of a team of professional artists and educators. The program curriculum includes studio courses in painting, drawing, photography, sculpture and graphic design, among others.

□ This is the last week of work for our Executive secretary, Donald Andrew. He is leaving to become the city auditor of the city of Everett, Mass. The town wishes him well, and we thank him for his diligence during his time as our secretary. His post will be filled as soon as possible. In the meantime, Janet Chalke, Administrative Assistant, will be taking over many of the duties. We'll bet she's hoping for a rapid appointment. That sure is a lot of work!

□ Spec. Scott A. Patrolia has been decorated with the Army Achievement Medal in West Germany. The medal is awarded to soldiers for meritorous service, acts of courage or other accomplishments. It seems that Scott has a lot of medals now, we have read of his various awards often in the past. Congratulations to you in Germany, Scott.

□ Katie Carroll is ceratinly having a busy summer, and there's more to come! Katie and Emily Spenser played in the Coastal district soccer game, where Katie was picked MVP of the team. She is also a member of the Cohasset Swim Team, and is doing extremely well in that. She has been invited to Rhode Island for a soccer tournament for girls under 14. Katie will have a choice to make, soccer or swim team . . . we'll bet that the swim team will win out!

□ Tonight is an important one for our town, so make your plans. Derek Sanderson will be in town to speak to adults at 7:30 p.m. in the Cohasset High Auditorium. Sponsored by our Recreation Department and BFI, there is no charge. They do guarantee that Derek will give you thoughts to remember, so anyone that is 18 or over, attend this most informative meeting. Remember, that's tonight (Aug. 11).

□ Happy 21st birthday to everyone's best pal, Brendan Mulcahy. We hear that there was a little surprise birthday party held in his honor last weekend, and he never suspected a thing! That's something, to put one over on Brendan. We sure hope you had a great time Brendan, and that you have a wonderful year ahead.

□ If you have driven by Carousel Antiques and seen the It's a boy sign and balloons, you know. If you have ventured in and seen Norma, then you have heard every wonderful detail. In case you haven't done either one, Mandy and Tom Burgoon had their baby boy on July 31st, and they have named him John Thomas Burgoon. That surely was an event that we were all waiting for, now we anxiously await the next one! We cannot wait to see John Thomas asleep in the antique cradle in Carousel (Grandmother is already on her second coat of paint to ready the office for the big day). Warmest congratulations to all of you.

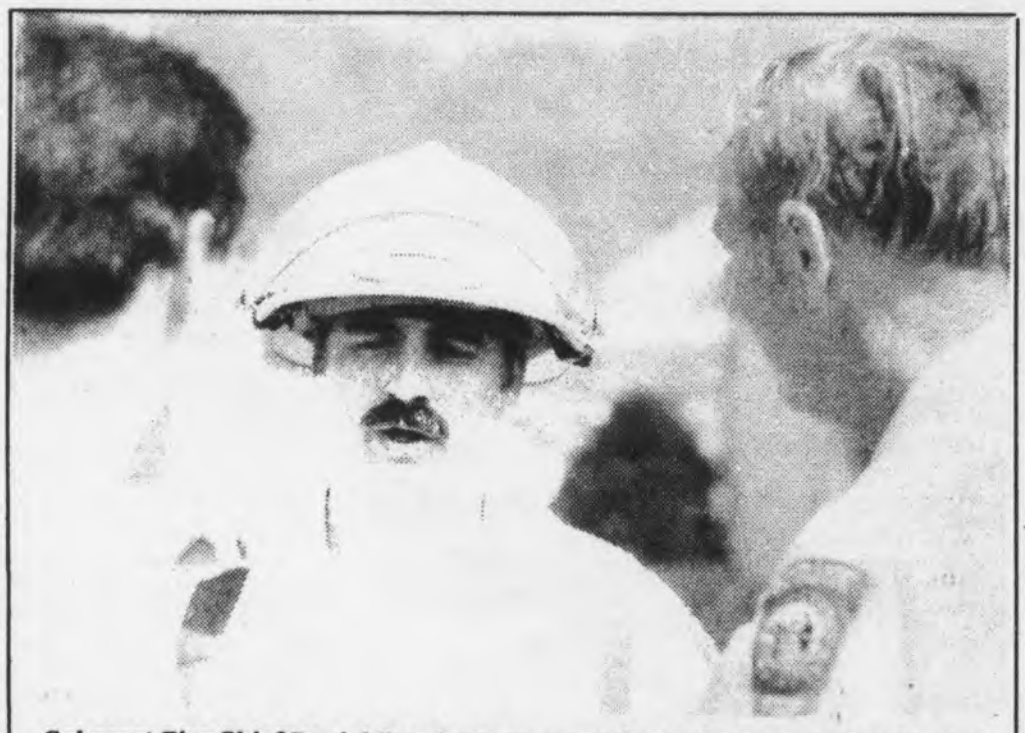
□ A reminder to fall sports players . . . Football physicals will be held on August 25th, soccer physicals will be on Aug. 26th. Watch for times and details in next week's Mariner.

□ You have undoubtedly seen John Barrett smiling a lot around town, and its with good reason. He and his wife Susan had a son on July 14th, born at South Shore Hospital.

□ Kerry O'Brien is "heading West" as this goes to press, and will be there until Nov. 17th. At that time she sure hopes to come home a "winner"; she is going to California as deputy personal director for Mike Dukakis' campaign. Kerry will be taking this semester off from college, but we are betting that she learns more than she would at school, what an experience! Anyone who knows Kerry knows how much she loves to win, so "the Duke" has a good, strong gal in his corner.

□ Fran and Kit Coffey are the proud and happy parents of a baby boy, John Coffey is his name. The one thing they are awaiting now is a good night's sleep . . . imagine having a baby in this heat?

□ Fran Walton is reportedly home and recovering nicely, she was bitten by a dog recently. Knowing how much she loves animals and how kind she is to them, it must be assumed that the heat gets to the animals too.



Cohasset Fire Chief Daniel Brock was commander at the scene of the fire last Friday at Dwyer's Cleaning Spot. Fire departments from Scituate, Hull, Hingham and Norwell assisted at the scene. (J. Paul MacDonald)

□ It sure is nice to see Walt Sweeney in town, he looks great and reports that Nanci is great too. As many of you know, he was here to give a talk at the Community Center, and a talk elsewhere in Mass. It's nice that he cares enough to make the trip from California to make our kids aware of the drug problems that are plaguing our nation, and we thank him for it.

Marshfield Fair offers something for everyone

The 121st Marshfield Fair opens Wednesday, Aug. 17, and will continue through Sunday, Aug. 30, offering something for everyone.

There will be horseracing, a midway, agricultural and livestock exhibits and craft demonstrations.

One of the oldest agricultural fairs in Massachusetts, the fair is a blue-ribbon occasion for youngsters and oldsters to attend the Plymouth County 4-H Fair held the first three days, Aug. 17 through Aug. 19.

4-H EXHIBITS

The following exhibits are scheduled:

Aug. 17 — pygmy goat, 10 a.m.; dairy cattle, 5 p.m.; rabbit, 5 p.m.

Aug. 18 — dairy goat, 10 a.m.; sheep, 2 p.m.

Aug. 19 — dog, 9 a.m.; swine, 6 p.m.

Aug. 20 — awards night, 7:30 p.m.

OTHER ANIMAL EXHIBITS

Aug. 20 — rabbit, 10 a.m.; sheep fitting and showmanship, 1 p.m.

Aug. 21 — sheep, 1 p.m.

Aug. 22 — swine, 10 a.m.; dairy cattle, 3 p.m.; senior blocking, 7 p.m.

Aug. 23 — pygmy goat, 1:30 p.m.; junior blocking, 7 p.m.

Aug. 24 — beef fitting and showmanship, 1 p.m. goat team fit, 7 p.m.

Aug. 25 — beef, 2 p.m.; novice blocking, 7 p.m.

Aug. 26 — dog, 10 a.m.; award interview, 1 p.m. lad and lassie, 7:30 p.m.; goat costume, 7:30 p.m.; sheep obstacle, 8 p.m.; talent show, 8:15 p.m.

Aug. 27 — dairy goat, 10 a.m.; awards, 7:30 p.m.

Aug. 28 — release time from 4 to 8 p.m.

The public is invited to take part in a self-guided tour of the 4-H barn throughout the fair.

COUNTY EXTENSION PROGRAMS

The Plymouth County Cooperative Extension Service will offer free pH soil testing from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Aug. 23 and Aug. 25 and again from 2 to 8 p.m. Aug. 26 and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 27 and Aug. 28.

Bring a cup of dried, sifted soil from your garden for analysis. One sample per household will be tested.

The extension service also will conduct clinics to identify plant and insect problems during those same periods.

Bring the insect, plant leaf or flower specimen to the fair for a free diagnosis. Deborah Swanson, horticulturist, and Dominic Marini, fruit and vegetable specialist, will conduct the tests.

Ann Marie Holsinger, an economist, will provide information about starting home-based businesses in a manual, Turn Talent Into Dollars Through Home-Based Businesses, and Michael Sikora will talk about alternative uses for land, such as establishing Christmas tree farms or small roadside stands.

From 4 to 9 p.m. Aug. 17 and Aug. 20 and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Aug. 22, home economist Liz O'Donoghue will demonstrate easy ways to make nutritious and delicious meals using summer produce, and an exhibit will show how to conserve water outdoors with trickle irrigation, mulches and drought-tolerant plants.

CHRISTMAS IN AUGUST

This year's country arts committee has adopted a theme of Christmas in August, and the second floor of the Exhibition Hall will be trimmed with gaily colored ribbons and ornaments.

A Christmas tree tableau will feature gifts of bygone holidays, and on the walls, quilt blocks designed with theme of Christmas in mind will be on display.

Local quilters will assemble a queen-sized quilt from the 20 winning squares of the nationally publicized 1988 quilt block contest.

The remaining 241 entries from Japan, Australia, Canada and many states also will be displayed. They will be assembled later for quilts for the Ronald McDonald House.

EXHIBIT ENTRIES

Contest entries for all types of crafts and art work —including Christmas-related items — will be accepted from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13, and from 1 to 4 p.m. Aug. 14 at Exhibition Hall.

In addition, a special registration table will be open from 10 a.m. to noon Aug. 13 on the first floor of the hall for those exhibitors who have difficulty climbing the stairs to the second-floor displays.

Food entries will be accepted on specific days after the fair opens:

For cakes, pastries and the newly added foods — appetizers, party casseroles and relishes — from 9 to 10 a.m. Aug. 18.

For breads and rolls — from 9 to 10 a.m. Aug. 20.

For all desserts, cookies, candies and the contest entries of Christmas cookies, gingerbread men, marzipan creations, gingerbread houses and Christmas family favorite foods — from 9 to 10 a.m. Aug. 21.

CHILDREN'S DAY

On Sunday, Aug. 21, Children's Day will be featured. Potato races, spoon races and three-legged races are planned for youngsters, beginning at 1 p.m.

A horseshoe pitching contest for parents is scheduled at 2 p.m., and a horsepulling contest will be held at 5 p.m.

A good opportunity

There hasn't been much time to spread the news around during the week, but it is a program that deserves a lot of attention from us all.

The Cohasset Recreation Dept. is sponsoring a week-long drug education program aimed at young children, adolescents and parents.

The recreation department, one that has consistently been singled out by surrounding communities for its innovative, creative programs and projects, should be congratulated. The department, headed by an energetic commission and director Jack Worley, are to be commended for bringing this first-time program into Cohasset.

This week's program is designed to bring the entire community together - to learn about the addictions and dangers of drugs.

A representative of the Girls Scouts spoke Monday to a group of young children about these dangers. Children are never too young, as the schools have repeatedly stressed, to begin this education.

Walter Sweeney, a former resident of Cohasset, a fabled athlete at Cohasset High School, talked with olders kids about the tantalizing, but destructive dangers of drugs. Sweeney, a former All-Star member of the NFL, lived through the nightmare of an addiction to drugs. He's not out to scare our kids - he's committed his life to teaching our kids, through his own example, that living drug-free is the only way to survive.

Sweeney, who once had the world in the palm of his hands, just threw it all away because of his need for drugs and alcohol. A man who was honored and revered for his athletic abilities, can no longer play the game. But his life continues in his commitment to help others stray from his path.

And finally, Thursday night, Aug. 11, former Boston Bruin superstar Derek Sanderson, will talk to parents about his life as a drug and alcohol-dependent athlete. Sanderson was another admired hero - he was handsome, outrageous, and a tough, well-respected member of the Big Bad Bruins.

But his life off and on the ice took a tumble when his addiction to cocaine and alcohol overwhelmed him. Nothing mattered to Derek except his drugs, and he did anything to get more.

That is not to say these nightmares belong only to superstar athletes. The boy down the street, the girl behind the supermarket check-out counter, may have these same problems.

But Derek and Walt and many others kicked their problems and have committed their lives to helping others from following their well-publicized problems.

We truly hope the entire community listens to what these "experts" have to say. It is just one small step in our education about drugs, but at least it is a movement in the right direction. No one can afford to look the other way, and say the problem does not affect me. It is an epidemic that is reaching into our schools and our homes.

And the only weapon we have available is education.

Thanks to the Cohasset Recreation Dept. for giving us all this opportunity.

The secret agenda of M & E opponents

To the Editor:

Please spare us the crocodile tears about the lost sewer funding. After all, the not-so-secret agenda of many opponents of the M&E plan was to do as little as possible for as long as possible. Despite the mis-representations of these opponents, the plan was environmentally acceptable and could have been built at a small cost to Cohasset relative to its enduring value, thanks to government funding then available (and now shrunk to zero).

The gullible swallowed the articulate selling of the Ward plan through its tortuous metamorpheses, beginning with pipe dreams about grouped on-lot systems.

The latest lamentable version — the Hull connection — would have served few in the town, and served them poorly. Most of us would rather put up with our own on-lot systems than be saddled with on-lot tanks connected to a 2" outlet.

Letters

Who really is unhappy that the plug was pulled? If there is anyone, it's pretty certain they don't live in the areas to be "served" by the Mickey Mouse scheme accepted at town meeting. Most who voted for it would not have been served by it; most who voted against it live in areas that would have been victims.

Evidently the existing system can be operated so as not to violate discharge requirements. So why not forget the whole sad saga of misrepresentation, ineptitude, gullibility, posturing and the promotion of self interest over the broad public interest. If the way to limit growth is to provide inadequate services, so be it.

Thanks to Cohasset Recreation

To the Editor:

As the summer begins to draw to a close it has come to my attention how little appreciation has been given to the enthusiastic staff of the summer recreation program for the children of Cohasset. This years' program is terrific. Headed by Marlisa and supported by her dynamic staff, the program has organized numerous new activities. Field trips to the South Dartmouth Childrens Museum, a petting farm, Weymouth Naval Station and Georges Island are just a few examples not to mention clown day, magicians and safety day.

The registration cost is minimal ($35.00) with additional money requested for special events which scarcely covers those costs.

I encourage all parents whose children are involved with the program to let the staff know how much their patience, hard work, and organizational skills are appreciated, if we don't I fear this years exciting summer program will be talked about as a past tense with future programs lost to mediocre enthusiasm.

This year is not just a "rec" program, it's what I'd suggest is much more, it's camp!

A poem in honor of Harry Ritter

He'd look at the water and say take a ride; We'd jump in the work boat — I'd cling to the side; He'd haul up the chain — putting strain on the cleat; I'd lean on the gunnel — the job was complete. But being the ballast is no claim to fame; It's not that important — over last name's the same; Now one year has passed since "H" hung up his cap; His name is in print sometimes good or a rap; The Coast Guard is calling — it's just like old times; The latest of zingers comes to us in rhymes; My blood pressure rises — he won't say a word; The people should know — the truth should be heard; They all get reminded — the poor and rich; He cares about people — regardless of nitch. 1. When Harry left office — he made it quite clear; Where to find by-laws to be used the next Now your waters are gone — blames an other poor clown. 3. He paid for a sticker and fines got at work; Now Pratt gives them out free — any incentive perk. 4. The boats that got moorings — just sailed themselves in; One thanks to the list for not making a din. 5. You measure a boat from the stem to the stern; Put a bowsprit on now — move up you will learn. 6. When he gave an order —the bosses played games; The office is empty — you all know your names. 7. When he went to retire — cause the shingles broke out; They told him at Town Hall — "No records about." As he shulled to the dock — his grandson swam by "What a legend" Jay said — I'll be there to help tie; I feel so much better — I've swallowed enough; For being the ballast can prove to be rough; So paint up your bottoms and shine up your brass; Go straight to the harbor and line up — enmass.

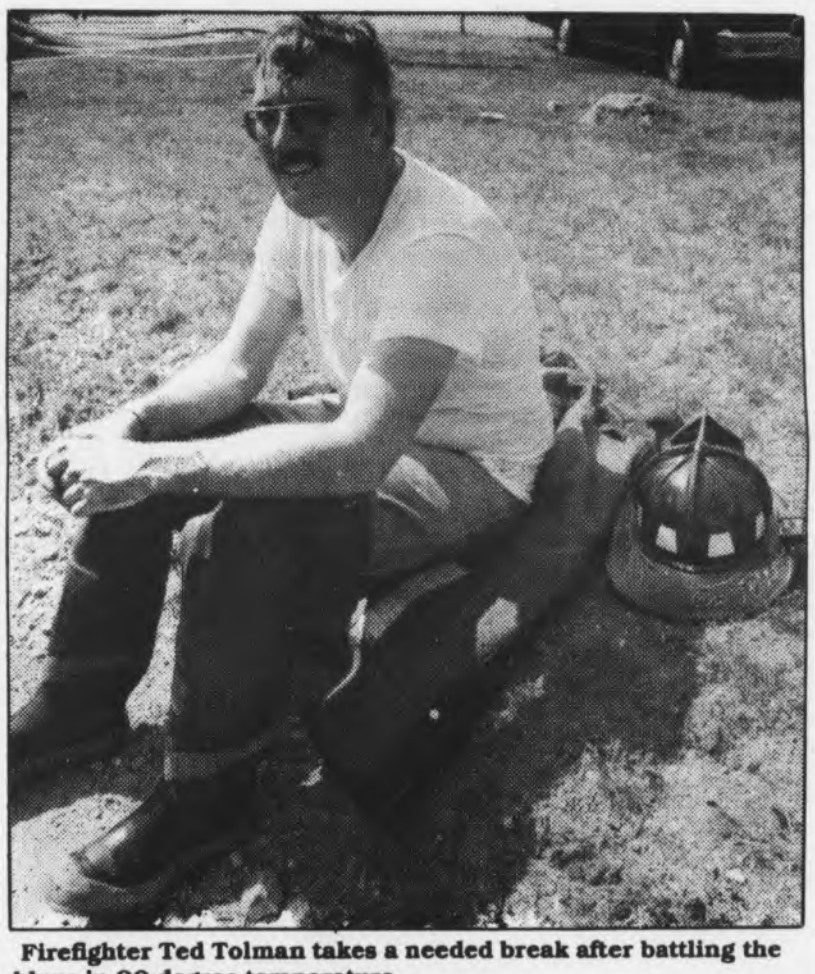
Familiar site on Rte. 3A destroyed by blaze

Photos by J. Paul MacDonald and Jane Lane

Barry Joseph of the Norwell Fire Dept. washes down the smouldering ashes at Dwyer's Cleaning Spot. The Rte. 3A business was destroyed in the Aug. 5 blaze.

Scituate Fire Chief Walter Stewart talks with Norwell firefighter Joseph during clean-up procedures after the fire.



Firefighter Ted Tolman takes a needed break after battling the blaze in 90 degree temperature.

After the fire came the flood — caused by the thousands of gallons of water needed to extinguish the blaze. The remains of the building have been removed.

Historical costumes

The Cohasset Historical Society's Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street, is the site of a special summer costumes exhibit of selected items from the Society's extensive collection of 19th and early 20th century clothing.

"Garden Party Dresses" an event planned and presented by the Society's Costumes Committee, is going on this week, and will run through Saturday, August 13 each afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m.

For the special showing of fine and unusual clothes from a by-gone era eight of the best of the society's summer garden party costumes will be presented on antique mannequins in the graciously furnished rooms of the 1821 Caleb Lothrop House, itself once the home of a well-to-do Cohasset shipowner and his family. A tour of the Lothrop House is included in this event.

The Cohasset costume collection has been deemed an exceptionally fine gathering of many types of clothing from the 19th and early 20th centuries, and represents an era now passed into history. The homes and estates of Cohasset were scenes of summertime garden parties in an age characterized by a graciousness not so often found today, and the presentation "Garden Party Dresses" catches the flavor of those by-gone times.

The Historical Society's Caleb Lothrop House itself bears the name of its youthful builder, a young Cohasset merchant and shipowner who raised the walls of his new home in August of 1821 when he was but 22 years of age. The handsome Georgian mansion later was lived in by Caleb's son John Quincy Adams Lothrop, one of the most respected and distinguished of Cohasset's public servants whose own record of service to the town spanned half a century. J.Q.A. Lothrop served as a Selectmen of Cohasset almost continually from 1854 to 1894 and as the town's Moderator from 1865 to 1894.

Today the Lothrop House, headquarters of the Historical Society, is tastefully furnished with examples of 19th century living and projects the ambience of that time, the era when Cohasset's summer activities included the annual circle of special and stylish garden parties.

Plan to visit the Historical Society's re-creation of that unique part of the town's history at the Caleb Lothrop House this week.

Admission to "Garden Party dresses" is $3.50, and a tour of the house is included. Guides will be present to comment upon the exhibits.

Gala event planned

A gala event is scheduled in Cohasset, Sunday, Aug. 21 from 2 to 6 p.m.

Contact Bob Magner at Cohasset Savings Bank or Clark Chatterton at 383-0560 for details.

Second Taverna

The Community of the Greek Orthodox Church of Cohasset, will host a second Taverna, Saturday, Aug. 20 and Sunday, Aug. 21.

Rain or shine, the food, the pastries, the delicacies, a little bit of Greece will find its way once again to the West Corner of Cohasset.

The day after the July 4th Taverna was over, innumerable requests came for another one to be held at some point during the summer. So, the Board of Stewards of the Church decided that mid-point between the two feast days of the Church would be the ideal time.

The Church carries the name of the Nativity and Assumption of the Virgin Mary. The Assumption is celebrated Aug. 15. The Nativity of the Virgin Mary, Sept. 8. So a mid-point date was selected for Taverna II. The Church is called Panagia (which means all holy one) as a term of endearment of the Birthgiver of God.

You may be the lucky winner of a 1988 Nissan Centra which will be raffled on the evening of Aug. 21. Starting time is 11 a.m. on both days and closing time is 8:30 p.m.

The Church is located at 817 Jerusalem Road in Cohasset near Route 228.

Carillon concert Aug. 14

Janet Tebbel, Carillonneur at the First United Methodist Church of Germantown, Pennsylvania, will perform a free recital on the 51 bell Jessie M. Barron Memorial Carillon at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Avenue, Cohasset, Sunday August 14 at 6 p.m.

Bring lawn chairs, blankets, and picnic suppers to enjoy on Cohasset common for this seventh recital of the summer series. Printed programs are available.

For further information call St. Stephen's Church at 383-1083.

Yacht club dance

All sixth graders and older kids are invited to join in the fun at the Cohasset Yacht Club's annual teen dance on Sun., Aug. 14, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Admission is $3. Bring a friend and dance to the music of DJ Jay Fiori.

Center courses

The Cohasset Community Center is taking registration for the final session of tennis lessons this summer.

Classes will be held on Monday through Wednesday mornings, and Tuesday through Thursday mornings. Lessons are twice a week for four weeks and cost $32 per session. Classes are arranged according to age and ability.

Call the Center at 383-0088 to arrange for a suitable time. Classes cancelled because of rain will be made up on Fridays.

There are a few openings in the Pre-School Nature Camp the week of August 8 and August 15. This camp is for 3 to 5 year olds for a period of five days from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. each day. The cost is $65 per week.

Sessions 4 and 5 of Gymnastic Camp have a few openings remaining. A new session, Session 7, has been added to the end of camp and is available for sign-ups. This session runs from August 23 to September 1 from 4 to 7 p.m. and costs $36.

Watch for the Fall brochure being mailed around August 15.

New offerings will include Ballroom Dancing, square dancing, adult tap lessons, Tai Chi, creative writing, gym classes for creepers and crawlers to toddlers and tumblers, a language class for pre-schoolers, assertiveness training, stress management, weight control, needlepoint, and wreath making. These classes along with many favorites from last year make up the year's activities.

Crossen Co. defeats defending champs

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

Every year, it seems that there is always a particular team that surfaces in the playoffs.

Last week in the Scituate-Cohasset Men's Softball League playoffs, Crossen Construction of Cohasset defeated the defending champion McCarthy's Masonry 4-3, in the first game of the best two-out-of three quarter final series.

Crossen Construction scored two runs in the seventh inning for the equalizer. From there, they managed to snuff out a potential winning rally by McCarthy's Masonry, including a game-ending double play.

"It was a mindblower," said the exuberant coach Ralph Crossen. "We have been (playing) real hot of late. We did not take them lightly."

Crossen reached the quarter final round with a 7-1 rout over Old Colony Marketing.

Both teams ended the regular season with identical 9-10 records, therefore a one-game elimination was played to determine the final playoff spot).

Trailing 3-2, entering the top-half of the seventh. Crossen won the grudge match on a bizarre circumstance. After a Fernando Rodrigues' double and a George Connors' single, Eric Bongazone beat out an infield hit to load the bases.

"We had loaded the bases twice before and failed on each occasion. But, I knew we would score in that situation," said Crossen, whose club became the first team ever to qualify for the playoffs in their rookie season.

The next battle for Crossen was Tad Frattalone. He drilled a hard grounder to deep short, sending Rodrigues home with the tying run, 3-3. On the subsequent throw to first base, Connors rounded third, and without hesitation, sprinted to the plate for the go-ahead run. As a result, there was a collision at the plate, and when the dust was cleared under the humid sky, Connors' teammates greeted him with joyful arms.

It almost became a premature celebration for Crossen because the defending champions (which also includes being finalists in the two previous campaigns) were not conceding the game yet.

Jamie Kelly led off the seventh with a single. One out later, Greg McGinnity followed with a single, placing runners at first and second. Left fielder Scott Ciulla stepped to the plate and two pitches later, blasted the white leather-covered ball towards short. However, the shortstop reached high for the liner, brought his glove down to make sure he had it, and simultaneously ran over to tag second base for the game's final out.

A stunned McCarthy's Masonry squad gathered on the third-base line, while on the other side of the diamond, there was joy on the Crossen bench.

"We didn't play well tonight. We committed to many errors," said the hard-luck pitcher Matt Nelson, who was last year's MVP of the championship series when he pitched a shutout and belted a three-run homer to help out his own cause in the deciding game. In addition, he collected all of the team's victories (three) in the finals.

Nelson also pointed out that McCarthy's Masonry lost the first game of every series last year, and still managed to win the league title.

Meanwhile Bob Barillaro picked up the complete-game victory, allowing only seven hits along the route.

Tony Alves was the main contributor for Crossen on offense, banging out two hits and driving in two runners. Behind him were Frattalone (two runs batted in) and third baseman Rick Ryan (two hits) that keyed the Crossen attack.

Steve MacDonald led McCarthy's Masonry with two runs batted in.

Jimmy Fund game rescheduled

The Cohasset Recreation Department thanks the following individuals, organizations and companies for their contribution to the Jimmy Fund and the town official softball league: Spensley Chevrolet, Inc.; Cohasset Associates; George H. Mealy Post #118 (American Legion); JC Waal Engineering Company; Brewer and Ford; Mr. and Mrs. Burtram J. Pratt; Richard Yocum; Cohasset Permanent Fire Fighters, Local 2804; Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Antoine, Jr.; and Lenny Davis, Locksmith.

The next game between the four towns will be on Sunday, September 11, at Central Field, Scituate at 1:30 p.m.

This year, town officials from the towns of Scituate, Cohasset, Marshfield and Hingham are participating in softball games, against each other in order to raise money for the Jimmy Fund.

As a result of last summer's participation and donations from the towns of Scituate, Cohasset, Marshfield and Hingham, Scituate Selectman, Mr. Gerald A. Dwight presented the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute with a check for $2,100.

Dwight is the organizer and originator of the Jimmy Fund Softball Program and has been responsible for coordinating the various towns into what is now annual, summer games played on various Sundays at 1:30 p.m., at Central Field in Scituate.

Softball teams consist of town officials and employees of the respective town's involved. Games are played with 10 players on the field, and the average collective age of the team must be 450 years at any point in time. The games tend to be entertaining to watch, while at the same time the spectators are supporting a worthy cause. The public is cordially invited.

210 Nationals to be held Aug. 21

A major sailing event will get underway August 21 when the National International 210 Championship races open in Cohasset.

210 skippers and crews from yacht clubs along the Massachusetts coast, New York's Long Island Sound, Wisconsin and Michigan will participate in the 8-race series.

With Cohasset waters designated for this year's championship, 210 racing comes "home" for it was here that the first work to unify the 210 class and upgrade the competition was undertaken by Richard A. Sullivan. Sullivan, a past 210 national champion and a past president of the 210 Association, has been an "indefatigable worker" for the organization whose efforts are honored each year in the Annual Sullivan Regatta, sponsored by the Cohasset Yacht Club.

The Cohasset race is expected to attract more than 30 participants to the colorful four-day event. The 210s will leave from the Cohasset Yacht Club to sail a race course between 6 1/2 and 15 nautical miles.

Recreation Department programs for August

Tuesday, August 16, from 10 to 2, the recreation department will hold its annual Fun Carnival at the Osgood School Field. Regular playground will not meet that day because the playground staff will be operating the game booths.

Tickets are 40 cents and children can probably try all games for about $5 to $6. Children should not report to playground that day. They may attend from 10 to 2 p.m. either on their own or with an adult. Younger children should be accompanied by an adult or older, responsible sibling.

There will be eight or nine game booths set up, and prizes will be given to the children based upon participation. The program is conducted by Fun Services, Inc. of Duxbury. Children and parents are invited, and the public is cordially invited.

ZOO MOBILE

The MDC Zoo Mobile is scheduled to be at Osgood School during the carnival, Tuesday, August 16, from 10 a.m. to noon. The Zoo Mobile is free, and open to the public.

RECREATION TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Through the recreation department Youth Tennis Program, Richard Redick and Derek Lacks will be conducting a New England Lawn Tennis Association sponsored Tennis Tournament for beginner's. There is no cost to register for the tournament, and if you wish to do so, please see Rich or Derek at the Miliken Tennis Courts as soon as possible.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Parents, check your blue-covered flier of special events for the remaining special activities and field trips this year. Remember, both the playground program and youth tennis lessons end Friday, August 19.

ANNUAL COOKOUT

Friday, August 19, the Recreation Department will conduct their annual cookout. Children (ages 3-12), in both groups should be brought to the Barnes Little League Field instead of the Osgood School, at 10 a.m. August 19. They should be picked-up at the Barnes Little League Field by 2 p.m.

Older children may wear bathing suits because recreational swim time will be held at the Town Pool. A $1 donation to offset the cost of the cookout is requested. Parents may donate baked goods or condiments.

August schedule for South Shore Science Center

Earth, water and sky — investigate the world around you through programs at South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell.

Marine Adventure Week

Calling all children, ages 8 through 12! Join us for the week exploring the marine habitats of Kennebunk, Me! We'll investigate the tidepools and beaches, view whales and sea birds from aboard the 75-foot Indian Head, go on early morning bird watches, visit the Maine Aquarium and more.

Your days will be filled with fun including setting up marine aquariums, natural history games and crafts, and evening campfires and stargazing. There are a few spots still open — register now by calling 659-2559 (members/$295; non-members/$350).

Wednesday Nature Walk

Join us every Wednesday for a nature walk to explore natural areas on the South Shore. From state parks to private conservation land, we look for birds and wildflowers, signs of glacial history, and scenic vistas. Join us on Wednesday, Aug. 17, as we focus on a natural area in an informal, leisurely guided natural history tour. All ages are welcome. Site to be announced. Wear comfortable shoes. Meet at the SSNSC first. Pre-register by calling 659-2559 (members/Free: non-members/$4).

Parents and Kids

Sharing nature with your child can be an exciting experience! Every Friday until September, we'll explore a different area, led by a staff naturalist. Look for shore birds; peek in tidal pools; hike the area woodlands. Be a part of the fun on Friday, Aug. 19, from 9 to 11 a.m. when we explore the Wompatuck State Forest. Meet at the Science Center at 9 a.m. Pre-paid registration required (members/$3; non-members/$4). Call 659-2559.

South Shore Natural Science Center is on Jacobs Lane, Norwell, just off Route 123 and less than a mile from the Route 3 and 53 interchange (Exit 13). The Center is open Mondays - Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Closed on Sundays during August. Trails, exhibits, library, gift shop. Free admission.

Vacation Bible school

One of the children attending Christ Lutheran Church, Scituate's Vacation Bible School said: "This is great. Why doesn't it go all summer long?

Each morning for 5 days in July, 35 children from local communities came to be part of "Welcome to God's Family."

The school featured Bible stories, puppets, crafts, music, games, and outdoor activities. Family and friends were invited to the church for a closing program featuring singing and puppets, followed by a picnic.

Rev. Douglas Rosenvinge, pastor of the church, said "It is exciting for our church to have a vacation Bible school for our community. Over one-half of the children are not from our church. The children's excitement each day is infectious. Our volunteer teachers and staff have done a wonderful job in preparing lessons and activities for the children."

Christ Lutheran Church welcomes visitors to its worship services and programs. Worship services are at 9 a.m. Sunday morning. Sunday School will begin September 11. Christ Lutheran Church is located on Route 3A, 1/2 mile south of First Parish Road, Scituate.

Birdsavers on sale for homeowners

To migrating birds, windows can be deadly. The glass often reflects the shapes and colors of nearby trees and bushes.

A window may look to a tired bird like a good place to rest.

Then....Crash!! Bird meets window.

To help prevent this the Audubon Society suggests a black silhouette of a diving sparrow hawk.

The "birdsaver" as it is called, breaks up the reflection seen on the window. The diving sparrow hawk will alert the birds to danger.

The higher it is placed on the window or sliding glass door, the more effective it will be.

The hawk is a bird of prey that hunts other birds. When birds swerve to avoid the hawk, they miss the glass.

The "birdsaver" is on sale at the South Shore Regional Center, 2000 Main St., Marshfield. Stop by or call 837-9400 if you would like more information on this and migrating birds.

'Superman' hit the Cohasset stage last week

By Kris Sheridan
Mariner correspondent

The story of the "man of steel," as staged by the Young People's Summer Theatre of Scituate, was absolutely super.

The crowd was getting seated at Cohasset High School last weekend, when suddenly the lights dimmed. Strains of frantic, cartoon-ish music filled the room and a blur of red, blue and gold streaked through the air.

The flash was neither bird, nor plane but — you guessed it — Superman.

Leaping, in a single bound, from the Broadway stage (where it failed miserably) to Cohasset High School this "Superman" was a resounding success. Director Donald Capen and Michele Pecoraro, who staged the production with Capen's assistance, deserve a great deal of credit.

Joe Celli of Pembroke played the dashing Krypton-born defender of truth, justice, etc., (and his alter ego, Clark Kent) with a perfect blend of naivete, unflinching (nearly unbearable) moral principles and super-ego.

His scenes, especially those which required him to fly (with the assistance of FOY special effects) were especially well-received.

The role of Lois Lane, Superman's romantic interest and the Daily Planet's ace reporter was vividly, harmoniously, delightly brought to life by Pembroke's Katherine Foley.

Foley's Lois was sincere, determined, warm and caring, without the relentless inquisitiveness that made the comic book Lois somewhat irksome, but it was her singing that truly set her apart. Her voice is as pure and clear in tone as a finely tuned piano and her range is considerable. In two instances her singing was a little tentative (perhaps the strain of several performances in a row combined with the sweltering heat) but then total perfection leaves you nothing to strive for.

The other featured cast members were appealing and competent with Scituate residents Regina Vanaria (Sydney) and Douglas Mathews (Max Mencken) being especially noteworthy.

Max (Mathews) is charmingly snide and wonderfully arrogant and his rendition of "Woman for the Man" was easily the most catchy, infectious, fun number in the show.

Sydney (Vanaria) is loud, boisterous, aggressive and totally lovable. Her serenading of Superman with the song "You've Got Possibilities" was one of the production's most comical scenes. The sight of Clark Kent being affectionately chased around the office — over desk and chair — pushed and groped by this woman with a mind of her own was truly hilarious.

Just as every man eventually meets his match, so every actor eventually is cast in the perfect role. Mark Fortier of Brockton in the role of the mentally unbalanced evil doer, Dr. Abner Sedgwick, was a true comic book character come to side-splitting, scene-stealing, show-stopping life.

Fortier (Sedgwick) was zany, frantic, madcap and terrific. When his first attempt to eliminate Superman fails he simply shrugs it off and says "Plan A didn't work, but its a big alphabet!" Each time Sedgwick strutted, frolicked and danced about the stage the entire audience was firmly seated in the palm of his talented hand.

Late in the play, Max teams up with Sedgwick in an attempt to destroy the "champion of the weak." When he accuses Sedgwick of being "some kind of nut" — something which, by this point, the audience is certain of — the good doctor's maniacal shriek sent a chill, and waves of laughter, through the room.

Edison hike hearing set

The Department of Public Utilities (DPW) scheduled public hearings in Brockton and Fall River to give the public and local officials an opportunity to comment on the $11.9 million proposed rate increase of Eastern Edison Company.

The first hearing in Brockton was conducted by Commissioner Susan Tierney Tuesday, Aug. 9.

Commissioner Robert Werlin will conduct the Fall River hearing Wednesday, Aug. 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the City Council Building (first floor), One Government Center.

Eastern Edison is seeking a 6.2% increase in annual revenue. If Eastern Edison's proposal is adopted, the average monthly bill for a residential customer (non-heating) would increase by $5.90; for residential heating customers the estimated monthly increase would be $12.19. The company's last rate increase was approved in 1984. At that time Eastern Edison had asked for an increase of $6 million and was granted an increase of $109,000.00.

Eastern Edison customers can speak at the public hearing or submit written testimony to: the Department of Public Utilities, 100 Cambridge Street, 12th Floor, Boston, MA 02202.

Selectmen go after Salt House . . .

The instrument of taking is to put it in the registry of deeds, explaind Henderson.

Then the fair market value of the property must be ascertained, he said.

"If there are opinions of various real estate appraisals, the court makes the award," Henderson said.

"It can take four to five years before a final disposition.

"You would have to get vote of town meeting to get at least fair market value," added Henderson.

Selectmen chairman Burt Pratt said the business is currently owned by a non-profit trust, but that the new owner may try to expand.

"Access to the waterfront is worth money," said Pratt.

A resident at the meeting asked selectmen if it would make any sense to sacrifice the salt house and go for the Cox estate.

"Not to me it doesn't," said Pratt.

"We missed that boat," said Selectman Rocco Laugelle, noting that the town had been offered the estate several years ago.

"It would cost $200,000 a year to maintain the place," he added.

Laugelle made the motion to start proceedings to take the Salt House by eminent domain.

"Let's at least get things started," he said.

At the July 14, meeting, Pratt called the Old Salt House "a genuine antique and a valuable resource to the harbor."

He said Mrs. Cox would be upset at the conservation trust's plans.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby supported looking into possible eminent domain taking of the property.

"I believe we would be losing access to the harbor," she said.

James Gallagher, another selectmen, said that Cox's sister is upset about the plans.

Gallagher said he felt strongly about using the land for docking facilities.

Jack Hubbard, chairman of the conservation trust, explained at that meeting that trust members voted several months ago to place the salt house up for sale.

"We had quite long deliberations about this," he said. "About whether we should continue the liability of the gas and oil pumping operation there.

"We decided that we really aren't in business to do that — it's not the sort of thing the trust was meant to maintain."

Hubbard said that Jessie Cox had no particular use for the salt house.

"A trustee, Richard Leggat, knew her well and talked to her about the property and at that time, we felt there was some interest in acquiring the property.

"In the old days, the gas and oil pumping operation was simpler. Now it's much more complicated.

"We can't buy any type of environmental insurance against gas and oil spills in the harbor.

"We felt that this operation was getting less and less away from what our original intent was — to preserve open land in the town."

Money from the sale will be set aside for the future purchase of conservation land in town, according to Hubbard.

"You know, selectmen sent us this letter saying how disappointed they were about the impending sale, yet they never offered any alternative.

"They didn't say why they were so disappointed," said Hubbard.

Local realtor Peter Guild that there are restrictions in the sale.

He said that the agreement prohibits all exterior alterations to the building without the written permission of the conservation trust.

"The trust will have the right to consider the suitability of any proposed changes and materials," Guild said.

"They will have to be in harmony with the existing structure, which is a replicia of the original," he said.

Hubbard noted that as part of the sale, they have been guaranteed the salt house will be preserved and maintained.

"There won't be any condos or anything like that," he said.

"The agreement is a good compromise so there will be no significant change in the appearance of the harbor.

"That was a big concern to us."

Absence explained

perceived need for us to hold onto the building. Mrs. (Jessie) Cox was very grateful to us for taking it off her hands. There is no legitimate basis for selectmen's action."

Leggat said the conservation trust members "are more than happy" to sit down with selectmen to discuss the situation. But because the matter concerns the negotiation of real estate, it is a legitimate reason to schedule a closed, executive session, he explained. Town counsel agreed with him, Leggat said, and was attempting to schedule a closed meeting with the town officials.

The sale of the Old Salt House is proceeding, Leggat explained. But the trust members do not intend to endanger those negotiations by discussing the matter in public. "We are not being obstructionists," he said. "We volunteered to meet with selectmen at their convenience, but not in an open session. We are not thumbing our noses at them, but we do not seeking a public confrontation on this issue."

Local anniversary

The 350-member congregation of Latter-day Saints on the South Shore celebrated its 20th anniversary July 30 and 31 at the meetinghouse on Gardner Street in Hingham.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, (sometimes called "Mormon," or "LDS," for short) is situated in a residential area of South Hingham adjacent to Accord Pond.

The Church, whose members are from Hingham and the surrounding towns, had its beginning in Weymouth. "We met first in homes, then in the Pond Plain Building," says Helen and Harry Call members back in the 1960's. They tell how they sometimes had to remove cigarette butts and beer bottles from the hall to prepare it for Sunday School and Sacrament — Mormons do not drink or smoke as dictated by their religion. The small group of members worked hard to earn money to buy the land in Hingham and build a chapel.

The present Hingham chapel, dedicated in the summer of 1968, looked much as it does today, with red-brick under the pine trees. In Hingham both the first and second phases were built at one time, and ten years later a large cultural hall/gymnasium was added.

The first Bishop in the new building was Bishop Clifford Clive, a Hingham World's End resident who worked as a professional with Proctor and Gamble, while serving as spiritual head of the congregation.

In a lay church, such as this, the Bishop and all of the leaders who help the "ward" (congregation) to function smoothly, serve without salary or financial compensation.

Bishop Robert E. Chatfield was the next Bishop. He lived in Braintree — now Norwell, and headed a local insurance company. He was followed by Dr. Brent W. Lambert of Hingham, an eye surgeon until Dr. Lambert was called to lead a larger ecclesiastical unit of the church. Then Dennis Lythgoe of Abington, a professor of history at Bridgewater State College, was called as bishop.

Some bishops have been "born into the church" and others like George H. Dresser, 3rd, grew up in Hingham, married, and then converted to Mormonism a few years later. Our present leader, Bishop Bradley K. Johnson, lives with his wife and five children in Hanover.

Saturday's events included flagpole dedication provided by Boy Scout Ken Sheldon for his Eagle project.

Selectmen seek support to stop permits

Marshfield selectmen have solicited the support of Cohasset selectmen in requesting legislative relief regarding the proliferation of comprehensive permit applications for affordable housing plans.

In a letter sent by the Marshfield selectmen to state officials, they expressed the concern about Marshfield's "ability to adequately adjust to the increase for services which this type of abrupt growth will demand. Schools, public safety, solid waste disposal, traffic problems and public works concerns are just a few of the areas which will be negatively impacted by this surge of mandated growth," they stated.

The comprehensive permit process is used by developers to construct affordable housing units in communities, as mandated by the state. A comprehensive permit allows the developer to bypass many local zoning bylaw requirements in order to construct a required number of subsidized affordable housing units.

Marshfield selectmen object to Chapter 744, noting it "could be improved to help communities absorb the impact associated with the precipitous increase in housing units which so often results from these projects."

They also noted that problems communities are facing now are compounded by the constraints of Proposition 2 1/2, a law which was not in effect when the Comprehensive permit Law was originally passed in 1969.

The four areas which Marshfield selectmen feel deserve prompt attention are: local preference - stating that at least 25 percent of the units should be offered exclusively to local residents; phased development - asking that the law be amended to include a provision that not more than one percent of the town's total housing stock be built for occupancy by developers under Ch. 774 in any given year; strict development presentation requirements - requiring developers to completely address public safety, school, traffic, sewerage and other issues before making their presentation; and modifying the ten percent rule - mandating a five or six percent level of affordable housing units in all communities, "creating more overall units, more appropriate locations, more community participation and better services for all."

Marshfield selectmen requested a meeting with state officials to discuss their concerns, and petitioned Cohasset's support for their action.

A chance to see local artists - love and work

By Kris Sheridan
Mariner correspondent

For many artists, the first step on the road to becoming totally self-sufficient involves having one's works exhibited at a gallery.

There, the artist hopes her or his creations will be viewed by many people — some who will like what they have seen enough to make inquiries as to price, and two or three who will(the artist and gallery owner hope [after all, one aspect of the multi-faceted art world is purely financial]) think enough of the artist's handiwork to make purchases.

The value and importance of gallery showings, to both artists and the general public, is quite apparent at the South Shore Art Center's current exhibit of works by gallery artists, many of whom are South Shore residents (on view through Sept. 3). The 33-artist show's exhibits range from basic works in oil to imaginative combinations of found objects.

Marshfield Hills-based artist Virginia Avery's watercolor rendition titled "Underwater Jewels" is one of the show's strong points. The painting's peculiar perspective gives the viewer the feeling of being drawn into the canvas, looking down into pale blue watery depths where the play of light, the refraction and reflection, transform shells, stones and sea vegetation into amber, turquoise and amethyst-colored treasures.

"Spring Bouquet" by Grace Lawrence of Quincy is as lush, lively and vibrant an arrangement of flowers as ever existed (in art or in nature). One glimpse and the onlooker immediately longs to possess this floral delight. Moss green leaves stretch and curl upward and outward like ethereal wisps of tinted smoke. Lilacs, carnations and (I think) peonies cloaked in various hues of pink, violet and cornflower blue display their beauty like proud parents showing off a newborn child.

"Garden Door" by Cohasset's Tom Lucas is another noteworthy show piece. The painting depicts an amazingly verdant garden whose raucous inhabitants are barely contained by the solid wooden door set into the white-pink stucco wall. Though the architectural features join forces in a valiant attempt to contain the resident plant life, the lush red, yellow and white blossoms spilling over the wall's edges and into the foreground make it clear that nature has gotten the

DOCKET NO. 88P1911E1

Estate of CHARLES S. ROSS late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK.

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above - captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that NANCY G. ROSS of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executrix named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on September 7, 1988.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court of Dedham, the second day of August, one thousand nine hundred and eighty-eight.

Exhibit of love . . .

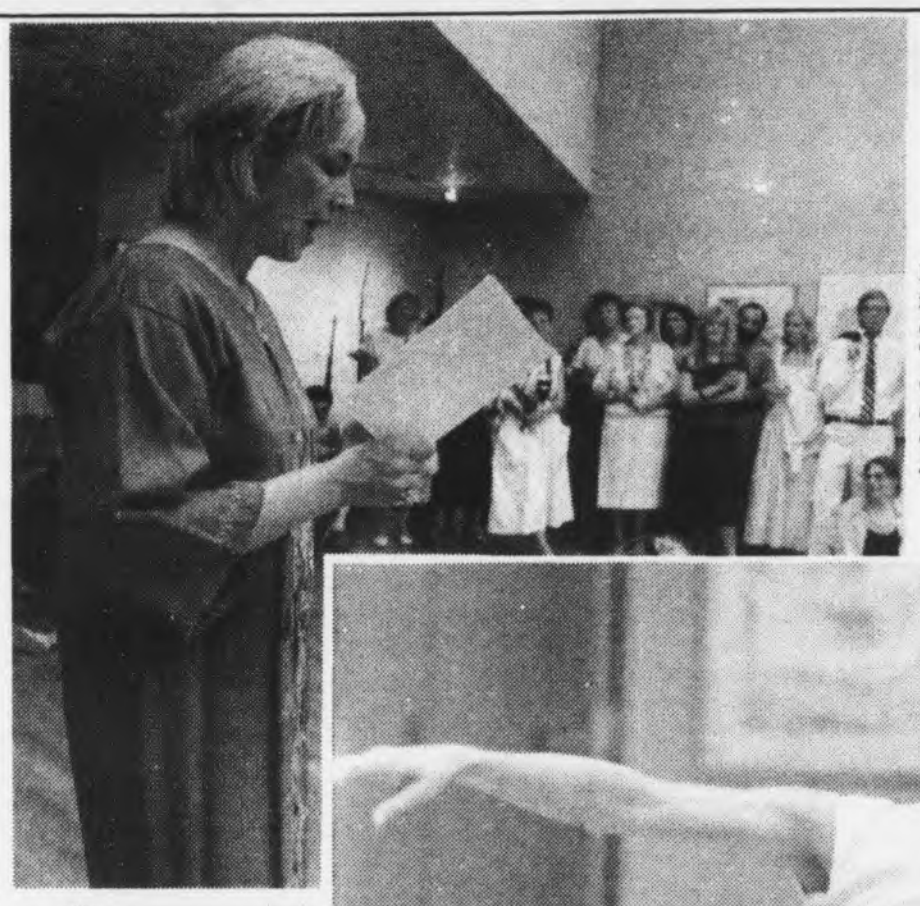
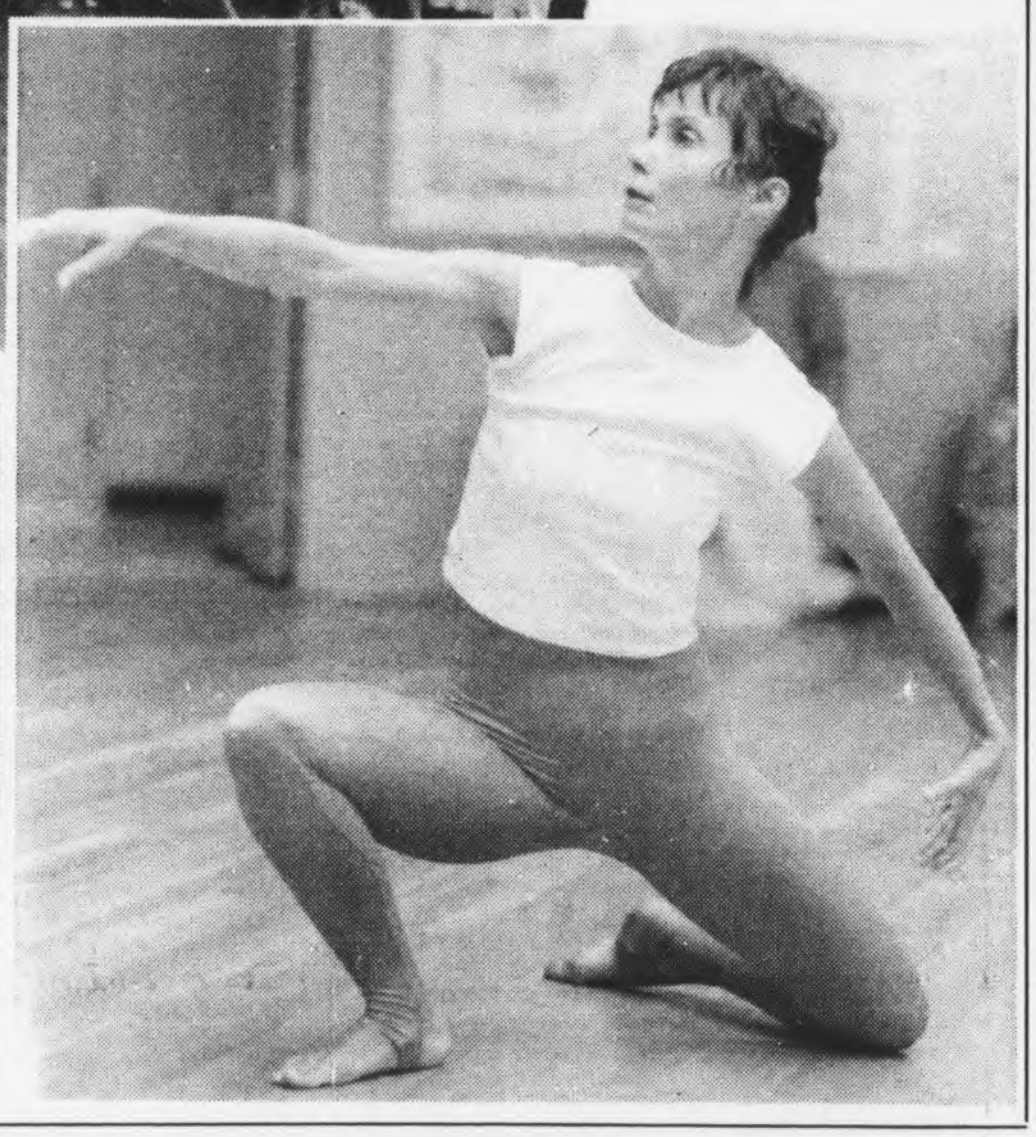
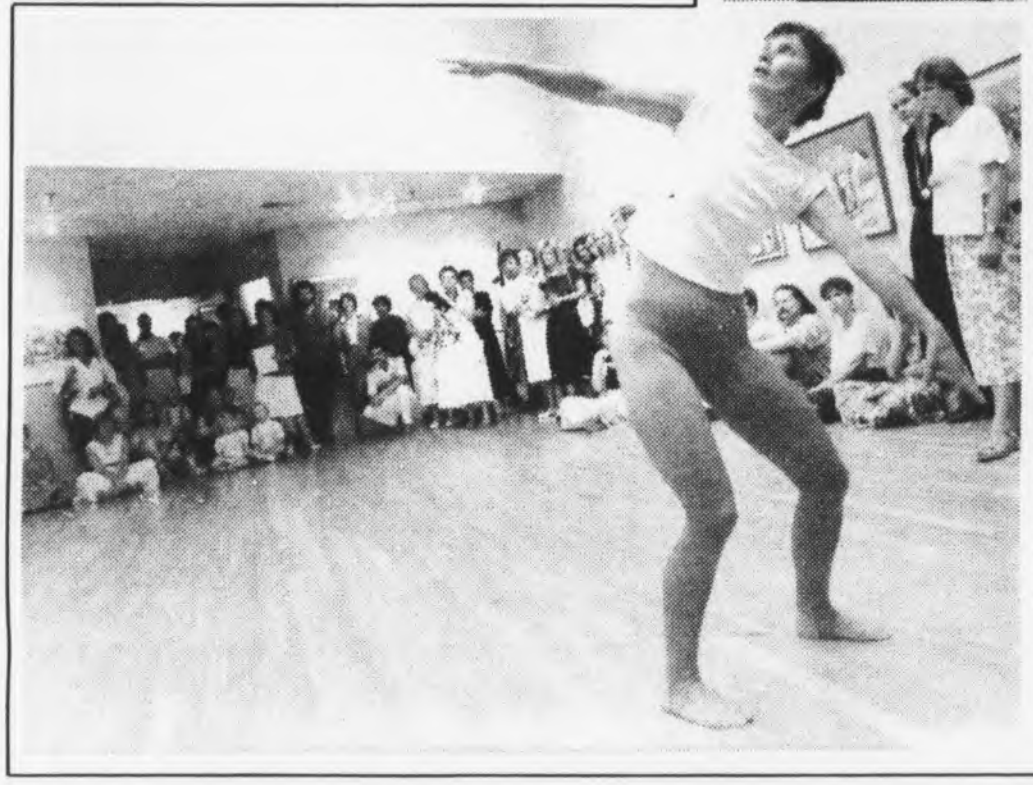
There are two works of art in this exhibit that are particularly deserving of attention. In spite of the unfavorable connotations that have come to be associated with the word "pastel" (T.V. cop shows and Santa Fe-addicted interior designers notwithstanding), Ann Murphy's oil painting "Spring Morning" is a pastel-toned wonder. Her work is beautiful, pale and fragile like some delicate Victorian heroine. In this pre-dawn landscape (trees surrounding a lake or pond) one can see — and almost feel — the dew, a misty remnant of the previous evening's fog, and the just-rising sun's rays wavering through the haze and cool air. The scene is so refreshing, so true-to-life, that rather than try to analyze it, one should just draw a deep breath of air and step right in.

Syma, a Hingham-based artist of some renown, has contributed to this show a three-dimensional piece she calls "In Search of Cinderfella." Utilizing a variety of mediums Syma has taken the Cinderella story and given it a decidedly clever, imaginative and truly artistic twist.

Although the exhibiting artists employ different styles, techniques and tools, what they have in common is a depth of talent that deserves both public praise and attention.







Local visual and performing artists joined together for a unique exhibit opening at the Art Center. "Artists Drawn Together" included poet Pat Desmond (left) and dancer Daureen Scullen. The exhibit will continue through August.

From the garden . . .

July's full Buck Moon has waned, and days that have either sizzled or drizzled are almost an hour shorter than at the beginning of the month.

Tempting though the hammock may be, there's much to be done now when the garden is at its peak. Rambler roses will bloom all summer long if the old flower clusters are snipped off.

House plants that are at their best when summering in the garden will offer winter blooms if you take cuttings now of your coleus, geraniums, begonias, and cactus. On drizzly days, set out late cabbage, cauliflower, turnips and other fall vegetables for yet another crop.

Blackberries, raspberries and blueberries should be picked each day and those that are not eaten right away, may be frozen.

Whoever said that summer is when the living is easy could never have been a gardener. No lawn flourishes and no garden grows absolutely carefree, and there's always some little problem such as having marigolds this summer. Mornings find them all too often reduced to a headless little spear adorned with leaves that appear to have been nibbled over.

'Tis a puzzlement and a first, with no answers to be gleaned from other gardeners. It's also that time of year when one must harden his heart and cut off the top two inches of petunia stems, as they are already getting scrawny. Fertilize and make sure they are getting full sun, and this will ensure new blooms until frost.

Each week, Seaside Gardeners in Marshfield arm themselves with a basket of tools and spend an hour or so weeding the herb garden at the Winslow House.

Stop and admire their handiwork, ongoing for the past 10 years. They recently were recognized by the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts with the presentation of "The Historical Preservation Award for the replanting, care and upkeep of the Historic Winslow House garden."

Members are grateful to Kit Daniele for hours of paper work also necessary to attain the honor.

Also, take a peek at the floral arrangements that Phyllis Burns and her volunteers place inside the house. Old-fashioned pottery containers filled with daisies, loosetrife, tansy, Queen Anne's lace and other wildflowers are in keeping with colonial times and are bright splotches of color set against the darkened wall panels.

As new homes supplant the woodlands, it's not easy gathering wildflowers. She can attest to that for she started out at 7 a.m. on her search for material for one week's arrangements, traveling 25 miles to search out "weeds" behind shopping malls and other out-of-the-way spots.

The sounds of hammering ring out where farmers once owned fields and pastures and gone are the July days when all else stopped for the haying season. However, Ellen Einhorn of the Mass. Audubon staff, says that cutting, baling and storing the hay at the 400-acre Dwyer Farm is not as romantic as it might seem.

For the month of July half a dozen others under the direction of David Ludlow, farm manager, have toted those bales in out of the rain and are now offering them to the public at only $3 a bale; 100 or more bales are $2.75 each. Useful as feed or for construction purposes, buyers are asked to call either Ludlow or the local Audubon headquarters for more information.

Lazy gardeners are beginning to learn about perennials, as they're much easier than annuals to have around. They don't need planting every spring and usually take care of themselves. Perennials can be planted either this fall or next spring and will bloom for years to come.

Suzanne Mahler has found perennials so challenging that, since buying their Hanover home, a year-and-a-half ago, she has planted and tended more than 20 beds of seedlings, designed to attract butterflies and provide foliage often as attractive as perennials when they finish blooming.

Another advantage to growing colorful perennials such as shasta daisies, coral bells, phlox, foxglove and day lilies, is that the plants multiply and can either be moved to another spot in one's garden or shared with neighbors.

Flowers such as those in her acre-and-a-half-yard, may be started from seed. When lecturing to garden groups, she recommends a free catalogue: Blue Stone Nursery, 7211 Middle Ridge Road, Madison, Ohio 44057.

Something new and different is in bloom each week in the Arnold Arboretum where the Boston Park Rangers host an introductory walk every Tuesday evening at 6 p.m. during the summer. The walks leave from the Visitor Center just inside the main gates on the Arborway at the junction of Routes 1 and 203, Jamaica Plain.

Counsel contends 12-shop plans are alive

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

Plans for a 12-shop plaza next to the Super Stop & Shop on Route 3A have not been rejected by the planning board despite opinions to the contrary, contends the attorney for Donald Staszko.

"The fact is that it hasn't been denied," said Atty. Charles Humphreys.

"As a matter of fact, it has probably been approved."

Planning Board members voted 2-2 on the plan Aug. 3.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson said that three votes are needed for a motion to carry.

"The town deemed that it didn't pass," said Henderson.

"I don't have any doubt that action was taken."

However, Humphreys disagrees.

"The 2-2 vote means that no action has been taken, as a matter of law," Humphreys said.

Voting in favor of the proposal were members Patrick Plante and Al Moore; against were Dan Cotton and John O'Toole.

In order to obtain a building permit in Cohasset, according to Humphreys, an applicant must receive approval from the planning board, or 75 days must have elapsed from the date of the plan's submission with no action by board.

The 75 days are up, he said.

"What we'll be doing is making a formal demand for a building permit," said Humphreys, who noted that more detailed plans will have to be drawn up first.

"We may end up going to court," he said.

Civil rights action may be taken in court, as well, said Humphreys, who contends that the board acted in bad faith.

He referred to a straw poll taken at the July 20, Planning Board meeting where most members indicated they would vote in favor of the proposal if town counsel agreed that legal requirements were being met.

Humphreys reluctantly agreed to a two week continuance to allow time for town counsel's opinion.

"Board members violated that (July 20) representation," he said.

Members Robert Sturdy, chairman, and O'Toole

Pro athletes note addiction recoveries

Two former star athletes who fell victim to drugs and alcohol braved the heat last week to talk about their addictions and subsequent recoveries with Cohasset children and parents.

Famed NFL player Walter Sweeney, a former Cohasset resident, spoke to more than 20 nine and ten year olds at the Osgood School Aug. 9.

Derek Sanderson, former Boston Bruin who played on two Stanley Cup championship teams, talked with 25 to 30 parents at the Cohasset High School auditorium Aug. 11.

Both programs were sponsored by the Cohasset Recreation Department.

And both speakers stressed the importance of bolstering children's sense of self esteem.

"Parents should make kids feel good about themselves from day one," said Sweeney, 47, who now works for Mediplex and is a consultant for alcohol and drug treatment at Sharp Hospital, the same San Diego hospital where he rid himself of his addictions.

"If you feel good about yourself, you're not going to get

Board supports spouse mooring theory

If a mooring holder dies, his or her mooring would be transferred to the surviving spouse, according to a proposed bylaw revision by the Harbor Committee.

That and other proposed revisions were presented to selectmen Monday night, Aug. 15.

The proposals were forwarded to the Bylaw Study Committee and the town's legal counsel.

After the meeting, Fritz Pfaffmann, chairman of the seven-member Harbor Committee, said that the idea behind the mooring holder transfer is for commercial fisherman.

"If the surviving spouse can't retain the mooring, he or she loses the possibility of earning additional income," Pfaffmann said.

"We felt that compassion should be shown," he said.

Pfaffman noted that the transfer would be with the permission of the harbormaster.

He said that his committee has been working on the proposals for two to three months.

"We had it on our docket to do," explained Pfaffmann," then selectmen asked if we could do it as soon as possible.

"It's taken a lot of work. I think we've got something a lot more efficient than we've had in the past.

"We're eliminating some regulations in conflict with the bylaws.

"We've tightened up and shifted a lot of items," he said.

"Previously, the harbormaster had a set of regulations

Jewelry donation

Cohasset Jewelers recently presented a donation to the South Shore Art Center, Cohasset, representing a percentage of the proceeds from its 3rd annual Million Dollar Antique & Estate Jewelry Show.

"The sale went very well," said Mark Cirone, an owner of the family business at 790A Route 3A, Cohasset, with his parents, Jerry and Netta, and brother, Don.

"It was very successful," said Cirone, "despite the hot weather, the fire at (nearby) Dwyer's Cleaners which closed a part of Route 3A for a while, and the fact that the Stop & Shop isn't next door to us anymore drawing customers."

Sales were up over last year, he said, and another antique and estate jewelry show is planned for next year.

The most expensive item sold was a $12,000, 40-carat aquamarine and diamond brooch from the 1940s, according to Cirone.

The art center donation was accepted by Joel Conrad, outgoing executive director, who was performing one of his last official duties before leaving to take a position as art consultant and interior designer at Paine Furniture, Braintree, Boston and Natick.

"I couldn't end it on a better note," said Conrad.

"It's been wonderful working with Cohasset Jewelers because of their interest in the art center," he said.

"Their generosity is certainly appreciated, and will be put to good use because of our high operating cost.

"We look forward to continuing association with Cohasset Jewelers."

Harbormaster to resign

Cohasset Harbormaster Steven E. Osborne has tendered his resignation effective Oct. 1.

Selectmen accepted his resignation, with regret, Monday night, Aug. 25.

Osborne stated in his letter that "the reasons for my decision are too numerous to list."

He said that he would like to take his 30-day vacation from Oct. 1 to Nov. 12.

Osborne has been harbormaster since July 1, 1987.

Pond fishing forbidden

You're never too young to be a concerned citizen.

Selectman voted Monday night, Aug. 15, to forbid all fishing in the duck pond at Cohasset Common after the action was requested in a letter from an 11-year-old resident.

Jason Crossman of Highland Ave. wrote to selectman that "someone almost got hit with a hook and I found a dead fish with a hook in it just after a sea gull had eaten it, and it could have killed the seagull."

"He's always been so interested in animal conservation," said Jason's mother. Barbara, the next day.

"He's a member of the Ranger Rick Club, a National Wildlife Foundation group for children," she said.

Selectmen plan to send a letter to Jason thanking him for his concern.

He will be a sixth grader this fall at the Deerhill School.

Wheelchair ramp approved

Selectmen's application to wrap a wheelchair ramp around to the south of the new town hall addition was approved Aug. 9, by the common historic district commission.

That means that the builder will be able to finish the addition on time, and town boards can move in Sept. 15.

Architect Brett Donham had called the wraparound design "inappropriate and unattractive" in a letter to the commission.

But Selectman chairman Burt Pratt said the ramp "tucks into the building very nicely."

Original plans had the ramp doubling back on itself at the entrance to the building.

But there was no room for the ramp to double back when selectmen decided to enlarge one of the offices in the addition by five feet.

It also left the end of the first section 17-inches above the parking lot.

Donham had proposed regrading the parking lot in a 45-foot semi-circle around the truncated end of the ramp and to install a five foot extension to meet the new surface.

Selectmen were opposed because they felt the regrading might cause drainage problems for neighbors and for the building.

A two-foot green strip is to be planted to screen the ramp from the side.

Promotional exams canceled

The state Department of Personnel Administration has notified Cohasset it has cancelled police promotional examinations scheduled for Oct. 15, and fire promotionals for Nov. 19, for budgetary and other reasons.

But that won't adversely affect the town's police and fire departments.

Police Chief Joseph Kealey said that no one from his department had been planning to take the exam, for sergeant, lieutenant and captain.

"We have no openings at the present time," said Kealey.

"We did have one opening which which we filled in December for a promotion.

"So the Cohasset Police will not be affected at all."

Fire Chief Daniel Brock said, "They don't offer it unless the town requests it.

"Cohasset didn't request it because we didn't have any openings."

The fire exam was to be for lieutenant and captain.

According to Personnel Administrator David A. Haley, the exams were cancelled after an analysis of the demand for public safety examinations and the limitations of the DPA budget.

The next full cycle of the police and fire promotional examinations will begin with the police chief series Feb. 4, 1989 and continuing with the fire chief series March 11, 1989, the police sergeant, lieutenant and captain series April 8, 1989 the fire lieutenant and captain series, May 6, 1989.

The next entry level firefighter examination has been tentatively set for June, 1989 and the police services examination has been set for June, 1990.

Arts Lottery grants

According to the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council, the following grants have been awarded for the July 1988 funding cycle through certification by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council.

They are: Parent School Organization, $200 towards a performance at the junior high school by The Cumberland Company; Cohasset Community Center, $200 for a dance program; South Shore Art Center, $200 towards Festival — awards and performances; Folio, $150 for operating expenses; and Eleanor Gorman, $461 for a photographic documentary of "Big Sisters — Little Sisters on the South Shore."

The deadline for the next distribution cycle is Sept. 30. Applications for grants are available at the Selectmen's office at Town Hall. Completed applications should be returned to the Selectmen's office, or to Karin Bartow, Chairman, Cohasset Arts Lottery Council, 48 Sohier Street.

Arts Lottery funds support individuals or organizations dedicated to the arts and humanities. However, funds may be awarded to non-profit, tax-exempt organizations or public agencies whose purpose does not include the arts if they embark on an art activity.

Applications from public agencies, such as a public school, library or municipality, must demonstrate a new need, be a one-time expenditure, and be matched by other funds one-to-one. For further information or questions, call Karin Bartow at 383-0572.

separate from the bylaws.

"This would give us one set of rules to go by."

"The bylaw changes are very good," said Harbormaster Steven Osborne.

"I see a lot of hard work here," said Selectman chairman Burt Pratt.

If selectmen approve the revisions, they would be put in the warrant for town meeting, according to Pfaffmann.

If they were approved at town meeting, they would then go to the Secretary of State's office, he said.

Officials question spring water contamination source

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

A team of experts from the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) are trying to uncover the source of the spring water contamination at Wompatuck State Park.

The natural spring has been closed since Aug. 9 when Department of Environmental Management officials ordered it off limits because of high bacterial counts during the past two weeks.

This is the first time since the spring was opened to the public in the 1970's, that it has been shut down because of pollution.

All persons who drew water from the spring the week before Aug. 4 are advised not to drink it, according to park director Robert McKenzie. "Anytime anyone gets water from the spring, they do so at their own risk," he noted. "It is untreated natural spring water. Anytime they get it, it's a risk and there is no liability on our part."

Park officials are "cautiously optimistic" that the water will "naturally correct itself" and the contamination would be eliminated within a few days.

Several DEQE officials travelled to the site Thursday afternoon to physically survey the spring. At that time, McKenzie said, officials hoped they would locate a source of the pollution.

"At this point," he explained, "we figure the contamination could have been caused by the long, dry weather resulting in dry earth. The heavy, sudden downpours we've experienced will not allow the water to percolate through the soil. It's just flushed right through, picking up contaminants on the way down."

The site was closed Aug. 9 after two weeks of fluctuating bacterial counts. On July 28, testing indicated a count of 17 fecal coliform colonies per liter of water. The federal limit for safe drinking water is three colonies per liter.

The spring was not shut down for several more days when daily tests indicated the bacterial rate was declining. But on Aug. 4, those tests resulted in a total of 49 colonies per liter. And, although the rate declined the following day, DEM officials decided to close the spring until a source of the contamination is discovered.

McKenzie said more than 500 persons travel to the natural spring each day during the summer. Inlcuded in that number are residents of Boston, Brockton, Rockland and many South Shore towns.

"Anytime a community finds high sodium in their water, we usually get an influx of people here. Also, when there are problems with the town wells, such as in Marshfield, we get people here," he said.

There is no charge for the water, although there is a ten-gallon limit for each person in line at the spring.

Although bacteria tests are conducted each week, since the high levels were discovered, the testing is scheduled daily.

In addition to barricading the entrance to the spring, park officials post the water conditions at the visitors center near the entrance to the park.

Park staff member Meg Anastos of Norwell and Rachel Hershfang of Hull stood guard at the barricaded entrance this week.

Usually the spring attracts a steady stream of visitors to the area, they said. Many cars still travelled up the road from the entrance, inquring why the spring was not open.

"We've had about 15 or 20 people drive up here this morning (Aug. 11) and ask why they can't get water," Hershfang said.

Recently, park staff members conducted a survey of people who use the spring. According to Hershfang, some people drive as much as an hour and a-half to get the Mount Blue water. "It was a survey for the Department of Environmental Management, asking who came to the spring, why, how often, and where they come from. Most people seem pretty happy with the water here."

Anastos said many people were unaware of the spring's shutdown. "They're anxious to know when it's going to reopen," she noted.

In addition to their guard duties during the day, they two staff members are responsible for taking the test samples each day to DEQE headquarters in Lakeville.

Director McKenzie said water with the contamination levels found in Mount Blue this week, "will only harm people who are not healthy at the time they drink it. If someone is perfectly healthy, it probably won't affect them at all."

More than 50 calls a day have been received at the park headquarters since the spring was shutdown. McKenzie said the spring was expected to rectify itself within the week.

Aug. 15 selectmen's action

Cohasset Selectmen took the following action at their meeting Monday night, Aug. 15, at Town Hall:

• Granted two, one-day beer and wine licenses to Panagia Greek Orthodox Church for a taverna Aug. 20 and 21, 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

"It will be comparable to what we had over the July 4 weekend," said Rev. Fr. John Maheras, pastor of the church at 817 Jerusalem Road.

• Approved the Police/Fire Station Renovation Committee Charge.

The charge states, in part, that the "committee will concentrate its efforts on developing plans for renovation of the building, interior and exterior to halt any further deterioration, and to bring the building up to standards as prescribed by local and state building codes.

"In addition, committee will familiarize itself with all state requirements having to do with female accommodations in both police and fire departments, and include such facilities in its planning, also study requirements for handicapped access if applicable."

• Referred to the safety officer complaints regarding traffic conditions at the 500 Block, Jerusalem Road.

Ted Ford of Jerusalem Road told selectmen of speeding cars on the road, one of which recently struck and killed a dog.

"It's really a frightening traffic condition there," said Ford.

"If something is not done, there could be a tragedy."

Selectmen also agreed to write to Sen. William Golden asking him to request that the state provide monitors to ascertain the extent of speeding problems on Jerusalem Road.

• Approved a request to use a portion of Cohasset Road for a Labor Day Bike Race sponsored by the St. Vincent DePaul Society starting at 8 a.m.

• Agreed to pay Janet Chalke an additional $147 a week while she serves as acting executive secretary and parking clerk.

Chalke, administrative coordinator in the selectman department, will serve in those positions until a replacement is found for Don Andrew who left Aug. 5, to become Everett's city auditor.

Selectmen also approved the temporary appointment of Florence Kelly to assist Chalke.

• Agreed to return any mooring fees paid by residents who are appealing the loss of their moorings but are being allowed to remain in the harbor this summer.

Eight residents appealed to the Waterways Regulatory Program of the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering after selectmen voted to kick the residents off their moorings for late fee payment.

License hearing set for Central Market

Selectmen will hold a formal hearing Monday, Sept. 12, on the status of Cohasset Central Market's all alcoholic-retail license.

Abutters will be invited to attend.

The market at 60 South Main St. has been closed since June 29, when proprietor James Finucane informed selectmen that renovations and restocking would take place over seven days.

He later requested an extension because he said he was involved with negotiations for the sale of the business.

At the selectmen meeting Monday, Aug. 15, Chairman Burt Pratt said that a formal hearing could not take place that night because abutters had not been notified.

"All we can do is talk informally," he said.

Atty. Warren Baker, who represented Finucane, asked for an additional 30 days to find a buyer.

"We want to come before you to transfer the license," said Baker.

"If this is properly handled, we can bring the right people in."

Pratt replied, "I think we've been very indulgent and you've had time."

Why aren't you open in the interim period?" he asked.

Baker answered, "It's a matter of finances."

Sometimes, it takes months to attract the right buyer."

Baker said it would hurt negotiations to sell the market if the license were revoked.

Finucane said that it was a family decision to sell the business.

He said that he has received two proposals to buy the store, and that he expects to have a purchase and sale agreement within 30 days.

"All we are asking for is the indulgence of the board," Finucane said.

Selectmen Rocco Laugelle made the motion to hold a formal hearing on the matter in 30 days.

A decision will be made at that meeting, selectmen said.

ZBA public hearing

A public hearing will be held Thursday, Sept. 1, at 8 p.m. at Cohasset Town Hall to hear and deliberate on an application of Crocker II Realty Trust for a Variance from Section 7.3.3 of the Zoning Bylaws.

The applicant is seeking relief from the bylaws to construct a non-residential driveway at 231 Chief Justice Cushing Highway.

New children's librarian

Paul Pratt Memorial Library has appointed Kathleen Hickey as children's librarian. She will be taking the place of Marilyn Pope, Children's Librarian for twelve years in Cohasset. Mrs. Pope has accepted a position at the Middleboro Public Library.

Miss Hickey lives in Scituate with her husband and three children. She will be joining Suzanne Terry as staff librarian for children's services.

One person's view- 'The Ballast in the Bow'

Commentary

He'd look at the water and say take a ride
We'd jump in the work boat — I'd cling to the side
He'd haul up the chain — putting strain on the cleat
I'd lean on the gunnell — the job was complete
It's not that important — our last names the same
But being the ballast is no claim to fame
Now one year has passed since "H" hung up his cap
His name is in print sometimes good or a rap
The Coast Guard is calling — it's just like old times
The latest of zingers comes to us in rhymes
My blood pressure rises — he won't say a word
The people should know — the truth should be heard
The all got reminded — the poor and the rich
He cares about people — regardless of nitch

1. When Harry left office — he made it quite clear where to find by-laws to be used the next year.

2. Harry went to court twice and won for the town
Now your waters are gone — blame some other poor clown.

3. The boats that got moorings — just sailed themselves in Owe thanks to the list for not making a din.

4. You measure a boat from the stem to the stern
Put a bowsprit on now — move up you will learn.

5. When he gave an order — the bosses played games
The office is empty — you all know your names.

6. When he went to retire — cause the shingles broke out
They told him at Town Hall — "No records about."

As he skulled to the dock — his grandson swam by
"What a legend" Jay said — I'll be there to help tie
I feel so much better — I've swallowed enough
For being the ballast can prove to be rough
So paint up your bottoms and shine up your brass
Go straight to the harbor and line up enmass.

Despite heat, water situation is fine

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

"We're doing fine with the water supply," said Cohasset Water Department Superintendent Ben Curley, despite the summer's intense heat which has taxed power supplies as well as people's tempers.

"Cohasset is in fine shape," said Curley, superintendent for eight years, and a water department employee for 22 years.

"We have a sufficient amount of water in the reservoir, and the water plant is working fine."

No water conservation measures have been instituted.

Curley said that some of the summer's downpours have helped.

"We had over a half-inch of rain in 40 minutes last Friday, Aug. 12," he said.

To keep up with demand, some water department employees worked a few hours of overtime Sunday, Aug. 14, according to Curley.

"The demand is out there," said Curley. "People are watering their lawns, filling their pools, taking showers."

He acknowledged that the overtime is taking a bite out of his budget.

"The budget has to last until next June," said Curley, who noted that his largest overtime expenditures occur during the summer."

"We were a little bit over budget last summer," he said.

"But the year before, we turned money back in."

You just put a guesstimate (in the budget) as far as what you need."

"It's like the snow-plowing budget. You never know how much you'll need."

The biggest demand for water occurs between 5 and 8 p.m., according to Curley.

Earlier in the summer, residents at the end of the distribution line experienced very low water pressure during those hours, according to Curley.

"The problems have leveled off," he said.

Curley credits the town's water plant, on line since 1978, with the town's favorable water condition.

We're fortunate in Cohasset that we do have a new plant," he said.

Curley advises residents to water their lawns at night rather than in the morning or during the day.

"That's when Mother Nature holds the water in the ground," he said.

"If you water in the hot sun, half of it will be evaporated."

Curley said total in June and first part of July registered above average water uses.

"We record the usages," he said. "Then we average it out."

"August hasn't been too bad. The rain has helped us."

"Even a little bit helps."

Affordable housing pact delayed

"Frankly, I'm angry," said selectmen chairman Burt Pratt when only one member of the Housing Authority, Joanne Nawn, responded to a request to attend the board's Monday, Aug. 15, meeting to discuss a state agreement concerning affordable housing.

No one from the Planning Board, which was also invited, attended the meeting. However, board member Dan Cotton did notify acting executive secretary Janet Chalke that he would be unable to attend because of other commitments.

"He said he would be happy to sign the agreement," Chalke said.

"I'm angry that they didn't show," said Pratt.

"We probably should have made the letter a little stronger," he conceded.

In the Aug. 9 letter sent to the boards, selectmen explained that, "this agreement in its present form is the only one that the state is willing to accept from the town, and it is similar to the one that was agreed to upon in Rep. Murray's office October of 1987.

"The only difference is that EOCD has deferred to the Housing Authority and agreed that title to both the Bates Building and Government Island House be retained by the town.

"If the town does not sign this agreement, it will be back to square one with EOCD and the prospects for settlement in the near future will be greatly diminished.

"The board is asking for your full cooperation in resolving this issue so that the town may get on with its business in good standing with all state agencies."

Pratt said he would like to see the agreement signed by all three boards "the sooner the better."

"All our grant money is tied up, (until then)," said Pratt.

He was scheduled to attend the planning board meeting, Wednesday, Aug. 17, to discuss the EOCD agreement.

During the Monday night meeting, Town Counsel Richard Henderson said "that he had no problem with the EOCD contract, other than a clause at the end," "and could then be considered in compliance with Executive Order 215."

"It adds nothing to the meaning of the contract," said Henderson.

"If we change one period, the agreement may be rejected," said Pratt.

Henderson said he would check with Clark Ziegler of EOCD about deleting the clause.

Pratt asked Nawn to check with the chairman of the housing authority to see when selectmen could meet with members and sign the agreement.

The food, pastries, the delicacies and a raffle will all be part of the fun again. The place is the Church at 817 Jerusalem Rd., Aug. 20th and 21, and the time is ll a.m. until 8:30 p.m. There is even a 1988 Nissan Centra to be raffled.

□ Jean Higgins has a brand new wallet we'll bet, or she's looking for one. The reason? New grandbabies of course!! Her son Robert and his wife, who live in Merrimac, Mass. had a little girl named Abigail born July 20th. Abigail will have a lot of fun at family gatherings with her cousins who are the daughters of Jim Higgins. Twins were born Dec. 16 and were named Katie and Erin. What fun Jean will have with all of those little girls . . . congratulations.

□ Frank Wheelwright, Lot Bates and Erma Bates all have something in common this month . . . that's right, birthdays! Their birthday is Aug. 27 and we hope they all have a grand day.

□ It is sad to go down Route 3A and see nothing left of Dwyer's building! Weren't they lucky that no one was hurt! They are still in business however, though the gals that are out front must be "cooking" in this heat. Sure shows dedication to customers, doesn't it.

□ Karen Anderson, MSN, has been appointed Director of Nursing Services at the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged in Roslindale. Karen was Associate Director of Nursing at Morton Hospital and Medical Center in Taunton, and is a member of serveral nursing organizations. With all of this experience, we know that she will do an admirable job at her new post, and certainly wish her success.

□ This Sunday is the big day, the one everyone has waited for. What is it? Why is it? Call Bob Magner at Cohasset Savings Bank or Clark Chatterton at 383-0560 to find out all of the details, but hurry up!!

□ Kerri O'Brien called from California to inform her mom and dad, Mary and Bill, that she made it to California, safe and sound. She also wanted to give a message to all of you college bound voters! Be sure to register to vote if you haven't already done so, and be sure to ask for an absentee ballot if you won't be here to vote. Now you can see why Mike Dukakis wanted her on his team in California; she's always thinking.

Ashley Mihos, 7, of Cohasset was a Milk Duds honorary bat girl June 2 at a Boston Red Sox game. Here, she was congratulated by Red Sox pitcher Jeff Sellers and another bat boy winner Lee LeClerc.

□ Jim and Kay McNeill were spotted around town this week, and the New Hampshire life must certainly be agreeing with them. They look wonderful. And they report all of their kiddos are fine and doing well. They are a special family, and Cohasset's loss sure was Hudson's gain. Come back for a visit real soon, Jim and Kay.

□ Eric Theriault, a newscarrier from Cohasset, is among the first 917 graduates of The Boston Globe's Paper Route to College Program, which provides participants with up to $5,000 towards their college tuition.

By completing three years of continuous service in the home delivery of The Boston Globe, Theriault met the eligibility requirements for the Paper Route to College scholarship. Under the terms of the program, each carrier will receive a maximum of $5,000 from The Boston Globe towards his or her first year's tuition at any accredited school or college, including trade and professional schools, in the United States. Those carriers who have not yet graduated from high school will receive their scholarships upon acceptance and enrollment in college with payment being made directly to the school.

□ Cohasset resident Carol F. Bonnar, Vice President of External Relations at Goodwill Industries, will teach a new course, "Managing Non-Profit Organizations," at Simmons College this fall.

Carol Bonnar has been V.P. of External Relations at Goodwill Industries since 1986. She was Director of Development/ Public Relations for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children from 1981 to 1985; and Director of Annual Giving and Alumni Activities at Milton Academy from 1979 to 1981.

□ Phil Mahoney left for Cornell this week, we wish him a great year. He'll be back in October, as Cornell is slated to play Harvard in football at that time. That's hard to imagine Phil Mahoney playing against Bob Durkin after having been teammates and roommates all of these years.

□ Two CHS classes held class reunions recently; the Class of 1968 held theirs at the home of Nancy and Terry White on Jerusalem Road. A perfect party house, and a great time was had by all (they sent me a meaningful note that I will treasure and I thank them for it). The Class of 1978 also celebrated their graduation in style, at the home of Jeff and Don Steele. They had perfect weather as they danced under the tent overlooking the river. Isn't it nice to have a great town to come home to for these events, and parents that are so willing to be a part of things. We are all lucky.

□ Leslie Woodbury of Whitney Woods Lane (off King Street — Cohasset) will be leaving Thursday, Aug. 25, for a semester abroad at Brigham Young University-Jerusalem Center, Israel. George Carlin at the Music Circus

Comedian George Carlin will appear in concert at South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset Saturday, Aug. 27. He will present two shows at 6 and 9:30 p.m.

One of the comedy world's unpredictably incisive leaders, George Carlin is expanding his creative horizons. To an already busy schedule of more than 100 concert dates a year, Carlin has added movies, books and a series of radio and television commercials for Fuji Tape. He also recently starred in his sixth comedy special for HBO.

With 30 successful years in the entertainment business to his credit, Carlin has a string of awards including four gold albums, a Grammy Award and five nominations.

As Carlin says, "Having started out in radio as a D.J., my albums are very important to me. They're a tangible record of my ability to produce comedy material over a period of time."

In 1986 Carlin's presentation of the classic "A Place For My Stuff" during the HBO "Comic Relief" benefit prompted the show business trade publication, "Variety," to dub his stand-up piece "the funniest and most apropos routine of the night."

In addition to his recent appearance in the film "Outrageous Fortune" with Bette Midler and Shelley Long, Carlin has written "Sometimes A Little Brain Damage Can Help," "George Carlin's Best Stuff," is an illustrated compilation of his best routines.

For tickets and information, patrons may call the Music Circus at 617-383-1400 any day after 10 a.m. Music Circus tickets are also available at all Ticketron locations.

Sign the agreeement

It's time the town stopped talking and got down to signing an affordable housing agreement. It has dragged on too long, as selectmen will agree. But it's time to iron out the differences and get this agreement into the state.

The state has penalizied us long enough for our failure to implement the housing agreement. That's ironic in a way, since they have been of little help when assistance was requested by local officials. Phone calls into the state Executive Office of Communities and Development went unanswered. There were few replies to messages sent by Cohasset's executive secretary.

But even though the state bureaucracy has not been helpful, the burden remains on us to respond. An affordable housing agreement, one in which the town pledges to work toward improving the housing situatiuon in Cohasset, must be in place. There are no questions about that.

Yet the town has spent months quarreling about one agreement, and writing several subsequent versions. They have not met with the state's approval.

Executive Secretary Donald Andrew visited EOCD officials two weeks ago to gain a sense of what agreement the town would approve. The state will approve the original agreement, signed by selectmen, the planning board and the housing authority. It must be a unanimously-supported document, without deletions or additions as was found in subsequent forms of the agreement.

The housing authority and the planning board must agree, along with selectmen, that certain steps will be taken by this town to ensure a quantity of affordable housing units here. That is no small guarantee, we understand. But it is an important promise, one that holds some hope for future generations to remain in this community.

We can not underestimate the seriousness of this goal. A housing agreement, per say, is the bureacratic tool the state waves in front us - making us aware that we have a legal commitment to follow through on our promises.

But we also have a moral obligation to others who would like to live in this fine community. Children who were raised here, have every right to continue living here as independent adults with new families.

We are indeed fortunate to live in Cohasset, but certainly that good fortune can be shared. We all worked hard to buy our homes in this town. But people seeking lower-priced homes work just as hard. We all need some place to live. Cohasset is one of the best places, but why not share that with others who now only dream about it now?

A housing agreement with the state is only a small step, but it is movement in the right direction. It shows we are committed to welconing people who bring a varied and diverse background with them. Our community will be more interesting and more enriched by their presence.

Cohasset will always maintain its special character and unique characters. Nothing the state bureaucracy mandates will change that.

This agreement is a challenge to our commitment - to help others and to build a better future for this town and its people.

Sewer board chairman responds to issues

To the Editor:

In two previous Mariner issues Mr. Ozzie Ingram and Mr. Murray Campbell commented, among other things, on the recent change in funding availability for our sewerage construction project. In order to simplify my effort and to save readers time, I'll respond to both now.

Mr. Ingram laments that had we accepted the state grants in 1983 we would have our own wondrous plant in operation by now. He is absolutely correct. However, it would have been a plant located in a wetland adjacent to Fairoaks Lane with an outfall within a half mile of Sandy Beach.

Contrary to Mr. Ingram's assertion that the rejected plan was affordable, the former plan would have cost nearly three times the present plan with the cost to the rate payer nearly twice that for the Ward Plan.

Of most concern to the sewer commissioners and the overwhelming majority of our citizens was the rejected plan's impact on the future development of our town. The M & E project would have ultimately led to the sewering of our entire town.

This would lead to the development of every undeveloped lot in the town and exert extreme pressure to increase the density of development in presently developed areas.

In fact, the M & E plan envisioned a 1,000,000 gallon per day operation. A plant that could sustain a population of nearly 17,000! (Our present population is 7,200).

We believe as most of our citizens do that the incredible beauty of Cohasset, its relatively quiet residential streets, and its inspiring coastline are unique in this development — crazed region. We believe that the consevation of nature's gifts to our town are worthy of public policy for the enjoyment of ourselves, our visitors and future generations.

By not sewering the entire town we ensure that Rte. 3A does not become another Rte. 53, we ensure that our precious coastline is not overrun with condominiums, and we help ensure that our citizens can travel in relatively uncongested streets while enjoying the calm of some open space.

Few people lament, save developers and large land holders, the demise of the M & E plan. The Ward plan will, if our partners, the state, can fulfil their funding obligation to Cohasset serve best the environmental and financial needs of our community.

Mr. Campbell notes that many in the proposed new sewer service areas are unwilling recipients. If this is a reaction to the $408 annual total charge for the new sewer customer under the Ward plan, we wonder what the reaction to the $700-800 annual new customer charge to the M & E plan would be.

Please Mr. Campbell, they are — as you well know — 4" pipes not 2" pipes. (10 homes out of 435 new connections will have 2" pipes for their pressure sewer). Perhaps Mr. Campbell is not familiar with such systems.

However, every engineering firm that wants to stay in this business is, for it's the EPA recommended solution for small communities.

While we await legislative action on our lost funds, we will continue to operate our plant within permit requirements. If our plan must be further modified because of insufficient State participation, we assure you that any new plan will be within the financial capability of our community.

Respectfully yours,
Charles De Santis, Chairman
Cohasset Sewer Commission

Letters

Former sewer superintendent rebuts charges

To The Editor:

Congratulations to Mr. Osborne Ingram and Mr. R. M. Campbell for telling it like it is. (Letters to the Editor Aug. 4 and Aug. 11.) They have spoken out for the silent majority. They have clearly stated the facts. Now the Town must face these facts.

A commitment was made in 1967. In the fall of 1968 the Town began the operation of a sewer system. The advantages of the system were soon realized and expansion took place in 1972. With rapid changes in regulations and a push by the state in 1979 a consent agreement was signed, resulting in the plans and design of a long range and complete system.

Areas needing sewers then, still do, and the list grows longer. Growth will always be limited in Cohasset, with or without a sewer system.

There is a solution to the present dilemma — Revolution. Back up to 1980 and start again.

First a new sewer commission must be formed, by whatever procedure it takes. The new group should dust off, revise and update the Metcalf & Eddy report and move on to construct a system that is proven sound, durable, efficient, and will serve the needs of all residents and businesses of the community. It is well known that a system as designed in the Metcalf & Eddy report would be, as Mr. Ingram said, subsidized, without question, (when funds are available) functionable, adequate and affordable.

A community sewer system is designed for long range phase construction, takes years to build and with proper operation and maintenance will serve its purpose forever.

Edwin H. Pratt
Former Superintendent
Cohasset Sewer Department

School Committee briefs. . .

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner correspondent

Aptitude Achievement tests

The results of student aptitude and achievement tests done for the first time last year, were released by school department officials Monday.

Joanne Cheetham of the Educational Records Board said, 1200 schools across the country are members, but only 100 are suburban, college preparatory school systems like Cohasset. She also praised the Cohasset public school system saying that it is the only school on the South Shore serviced by her company.

Jack Monderer of ERB, said the tests administered by ERB are split into two parts, aptitude and achievement.

Monderer explained that the tests administered to Cohasset students might not be of any use in another community because "suburban kids tend to be brighter" and therefore give a more accurate reading.

He also said that teachers are "a crucial element with" ERB's test because of the way results are prepared.

He then showed how class groupings could be made from the test results, allowing faculty to place exceptional children with their peers for a better learning environment.

Monderer revealed the results of Osgood School. Second grade students performed very well, compared to the rest of the nation.

Monderer showed a chart to the crowd listing the percentile in which the second graders fell.

Listening	84th percentile (50 percent is average)
Writing	85th
Math	91st
Reading	67th
Word Analysis	81st

Monderer said that all of the results were up to par and the low mark in reading may have something to do with the program or the group of kids. He said he had no way of knowing if this was normal for the group of children tested because it "was not a longitudinal study" done over a period of time.

The test results were almost the same for the fifth grade but were lower for the 10th grade students. Mr. Ford exclaimed "it's really striking" when you see the 10th grade drop in performance. Monderer again said he had no way of knowing if it was a drop because of the system or if it was just the students.

Monderer concluded his presentation by saying that Cohasset schools are attended by "a bunch of very bright men and ladies."

Orientation class proposed

Fran Cronin, a ninth grade English teacher, Monday night at the school committee meeting proposed a ninth grade orientation program for the incoming class.

The program would be run for all 85 incoming members at a camp in New Hampshire that Cronin called "a little piece of heaven."

Committee Vice-Chairman Barbara Bliss noted that the ninth grade is "really such a pivotal year" for the students.

Transportation for the group would run around $1,200 but Cronin said all expenses would be taken care of by students and the camp. The only thing she was concerned about was the child who might not have the money to attend.

She suggested that the school committee pick up the tab for needy kids because "we'd like all the students to come, but we wouldn't want to exclude any."

Russell Reidy, also a committee-member, said it's "a lot of money to spend in a time of fiscal restraint" but agreed that if almost all the expense were taken care of by students, it was a fine idea.

After Committee member Dr. Christopher Ford said that "opportunities like this can be the most rewarding educationally," he moved to approve the proposal which was unanimously passed. The tentative dates for the trip were set for the weekend of Sept. 16.

Other action

In other school committee action, the committee approved minutes and business from the July 11th meeting, appointed Russell Reidy to a voting position for the upcoming MASS/MASC convention and approved teaching positions and school contracts.

Out of 200 applicants Karen Litzinger was chosen to be the new first grade teacher at the Osgood School. Litzinger spent her last two years teaching in Scituate and was "happy" with the appointment. Litzinger was unanimously approved for the position.

Also chosen to work in the Cohasset school system was Laureen White. She will work at the junior/senior high as a business teacher.

Puppets love the library

Cohasset Public Library, 106 S. Main Street will host Beth Katz and her traveling Red Rug Puppet Theatre Friday, August 26 at 1 p.m. on Cohasset Common.

The ten puppets in the cast will present the "Love Your Library Show" which is making its second summer tour of New England libraries.

The "Love Your Library Show" is an audience-participation program for all ages.

The puppet show features a unique dancing puppet stage which acts as the hiding place for the puppeteer who creates all the voices and movements of the puppets and props.

This action-packed comedy stars a loveable dog, Blizzard Wizard, who delights children and adults with his rhymes, jokes and antics.

Puppeteer Beth Katz is a native of Exeter, New Hampshire. For a Decade she has been promoting the wonder of public libraries through her 300 puppets.

Beth Katz is script-writer, director, costumer and stagehand as well as all the actors and actresses in the traveling library show.

Ms. Katz lives in Michigan in the winter, and she has toured ten states and Puerto Rico with her puppet shows.

She gives puppet shows in French and Spanish and she uses puppets to teach foreign languages.

Miss Katz performs in schools, museums, churches and outdoor festivals as well as libraries.

Over 40 children's librarians who saw the program last summer described the puppet show as "wonderful entertainment," "lively and delightful" and "a real crowd pleaser." The Boxford Chronicle called the puppet show "clever, imaginative, joyous and just plain fun!"

Beth Katz has scheduled puppet shows at over eighty public libraries in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut and New York for the summer.

The puppet show is free, and the performance will take place outdoors on Cohasset Common if weather permits. Otherwise, the puppet show will be held in the Unitarian Parish House.

This presentation will celebrate the completion of the library's summer reading program. For more information contact Suzanne Terry, Children's Librarian, at the Cohasset Public Library 383-1348.

Beth Katz and the Red Rug Puppet Theatre will come to Cohasset Common Aug. 26 at 1 p.m. The theatre event is sponsored by the Cohasset Public Library.

AN ENRICHMENT PROGRAM FOR CHILD AND PARENT

Former pro athletes discuss drug abuse info. . .

hooked on drugs."

Sanderson, 41, who now does color commentary for Bruins games, urged parents to make a fuss over their children's accomplishments.

"Little things build confidence," said Sanderson, whose talk was held in conjunction with Browning Ferris Industries where he heads the youth drug awareness initiative.

"Only confident children can stand up and say 'no, not me' (to drugs)."

Sweeney talked about his 14-year NFL career with the youngsters who sat around picnic tables outside the Osgood School.

He told them he spent 11 years with the San Diego Chargers, and three with the Washington Redskins.

"The Chargers traded me for taking drugs," said Sweeney. "Then I was with the Redskins."

When his career ended, what little self esteem he had was gone, he said.

"They said I was a great football star, but I never really believed it," said Sweeney, a member of the Chargers' hall of fame. "I didn't feel good about myself.

"I did menial jobs. My head was like one big drug."

In California, he met his future wife, Nanci.

"She said she was going to leave me because of my drinking and taking drugs," said Sweeney.

"Going to the hospital (to get straightened out from drugs and alcohol) was the hardest thing I ever did.

"I got to the hospital with a friend and I was out for two days.

"My friend died two years ago of an overdose.

"I knew I didn't want to die.

"Drugs make you do crazy things. They call it dope for a reason—it makes you stupid. It's not wisdom."

Sweeney said he stopped taking drugs six years ago.

'It's a miracle that I'm alive today," he said. "A lot of my friends have been killed.

"You first start to drink and take drugs to have fun. Then you do it to feel normal."

Sweeney asked the youngsters what they would do if their friend was taking drugs.

"I would tell them to stop," answered one of the children.

"Sometimes you have to love someone else enough to tell on them," said Sweeney.

Sweeney said he started to drink beer when he was a quiet 14-year-old.

"I used to have blackouts. Anyone who has blackouts is going to have a lot of serious problems," said Sweeney, who feels he was an alcoholic right from the start.

"One of the problems with people who drink and take drugs is that they don't think they'll get addicted.

"I was a big football star, then I got into drugs and alcohol.

"If it can happen to me, it can happen to anyone."

After his talk, Sweeney noted he was born across the street from the Osborn School.

"It used to be a hospital," he said.

His father was killed by a drunk driver when Sweeney was two years old.

"My mother raised seven kids, and I was the youngest," said Sweeney, who graduated from Cohasset High School in 1959.

He attended Syracuse University on a football scholarship.

Sweeney said he got into drugs when he joined professional football.

"The NFL during the 1960s used to pass out drugs," he said.

Sweeney said he went along with it.

"It was a peer pressure-type thing. I jumped right in.

"I took them one time and I was addicted."

Now that's all behind him. But he still attends three to four support group meetings a week.

"I don't go because I still have a desire to use," he said. "I go because I don't want to forget where I came from."

DEREK SANDERSON

"I was a successful athlete," said Sanderson, who became the highest paid athlete in the world at a salary of $3 million for the World Hockey Association's Philadelphia Blazers.

"But I was really a drug addict and alcoholic."

"The biggest question I get asked is when do you get addicted?

"It came for me the first time I picked up a drug—alcohol.

"It was a coping mechanism for fear.

(See page 15)

Concerned Citizens criticize BFI sponsorship

Concerned Citizens of Cohasset praised a recent visit to the town by former Boston Bruins star Derek Sanderson to talk about drug and alcohol problems.

But the group also said it was hypocritical for BFI to sponsor the event because of the company's legal problems.

"We know that it takes courage and commitment to do so," said a flyer handed out by the group at Cohasset High School where Sanderson spoke.

"We thank him for coming."

But the group headed by Alix White of Cohasset, also said that it was "appalled" that the event was sponsored by Browning Ferris Industries (BFI).

"We feel that it is corporate hypocrisy," stated the group. "BFI has been convicted in Vermont, Georgia, and Ohio of price-fixing.

"They are currently on trial in four other states for price-fixing and racketeering.

"In our town, BFI is the major dumper at Cohasset Heights Landfill (CHL). Approximately 80 percent of the 200 tons per day dumped at CHL comes from BFI.

"CHL is seeking a major expansion of 26.5 acres. This will turn the present mole hill into a mountain for all of us to see from 3-A, to smell and, perhaps, even to drink, as this dump is in our watershed.

"Drug and alcohol abuses are serious problems, but so are racketeering, price-fixing and pollution. Wolves dress in sheep's clothing.

"We must recognize the complete picture: it is not accident that they are sponsoring this event while CHL is seeking to quadruple its size."

The flyer closed by asking residents to help stop the expansion of CHL by writing to Jacquelyn Wilkins of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs.

"It's too bad this isn't being accepted for what it is," commented John J. Bailey of Hingham, BFI vice president, who accompanied Sanderson to the event also sponsored by the Cohasset Recreation Department.

"It's not our trash," Bailey added. "We don't make it."

Drug abuse talk. . .

"At first, one beer worked, then two, then six, then eight."

He told the group of parents that he was seven when he was given his first beer at Christmas by an uncle.

"At seven, I was very shy," remembered Sanderson.

"After the beer, I acted goofy. Everyone laughed. I was the center of attention."

When his father, an alcoholic, found out, he threw the uncle out and gave his son a spanking.

That was enough to keep Sanderson from drinking for a while. But the next time that he was really upset, at 12 years old when he had his first crush on a girl, Sanderson remembered that beer had worked.

"So, I had a beer," said Sanderson.

"I feel I was an alcoholic at this point."

Thereafter, when he felt uncomfortable or afraid, he had a drink.

"I started to get recognition and to be famous. I didn't deal with myself.

"As an athlete, I was accomplished. But as a person, I was a zero."

"I should have asked my parents for help at a very young age," said Sanderson.

"My parents had no idea that I had an alcohol or drug problem until I walked in the door at 31 years old," he said.

Sanderson told parents to be aware of their children becoming belligerent, or of changes in their eating habits, friends or grades.

"Get involved. Ask what's going on," he said.

"A child is easy prey. Drugs are epidemic.

"Kids find, as I did, that drugs and alcohol work.

"You won't feel pain. You won't feel anything."

Sanderson noted all the advertisements linking drinking and good times.

"Everyone is convinced you can't have a good time without beer," he said. "I've had some of the best times of my life since I've been sober, finally. But there is a lot of positive marketing.

"Addiction comes very easy to some people.

"You get addicted the first time you know you like it, that it works," he said.

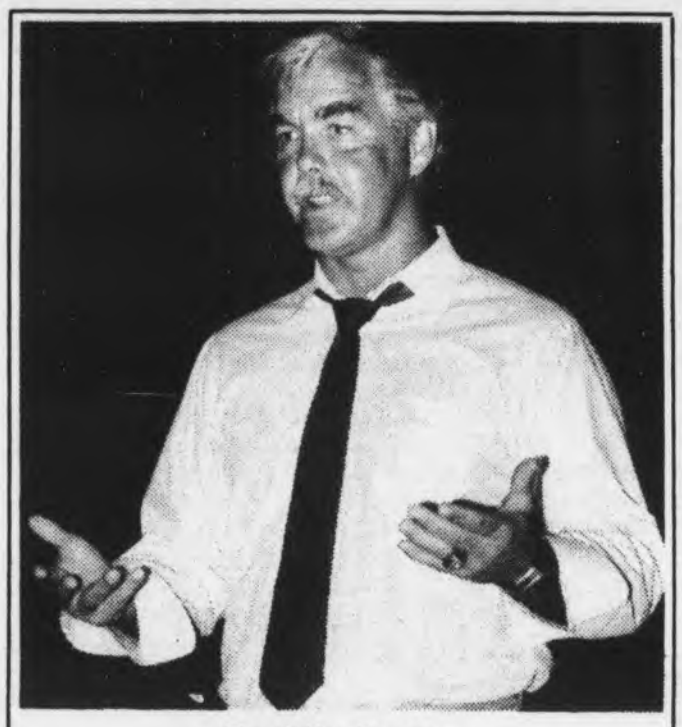
"The first time that you say 'I need a drink'—watch out!

"When you do drugs, one of three things happens to you," said Sanderson. "You die, you go insane, or you go to jail.

"Kids think it is harmless. Then, you steal or you deal.

"When I was drinking and drugging, I'd steal your wallet, then help you look for it."

Sanderson advocates drug and alcohol education from kindergarten to grade 12.



Derek Sanderson

"They say it costs too much money. But what's more important than kids?"

"You people here know there is a problem in Cohasset.

"We have to stop the advertising of drugs and alcohol on TV," he said.

"Stop glamorizing it.

"You don't have to clean up the country.

"Just clean up Cohasset."

He also said that too much pressure is put on youngsters to achieve.

"If you're a good person, you're not a failure," he said.

Softball League playoff competition heating up

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

Besides the torrid weather around our region, what is the other hot item circulating in Scituate and Cohasset?

If you said the Scituate-Cohasset Men's Softball League playoffs, then you win a free trip to Fairbanks, Alaska (one of the coldest places in the nation last week.)

Kidding aside, the competition in the softball league playoffs are certainly heating up. August 16 the Old Colony Marketing came from behind to score three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning against South Shore Auto Parts. Unfortunately, for Old Colony Marketing, the 6-6 contest ended due to the darkness covering the Central School field (An extra-inning affair would be made up the following day).

South Shore Auto Parts still holds a 1-0 series edge (best out-of-three-game format), disposing of OCM in the first game, 10-4, August 15.

After Paul Croke of South Shore Auto Parts belted a solo homerun in the sixth, OCM was on the brink of elimination. Three more outs and OCM's first appearance in the playoffs would come to a close. Trailing 6-3, starting pitcher (and eventual winner) Ted Holland reached on base with a single. One out later, John Levangie's single brought across Holland from second base. Scott Sorrentino followed Levangie with a run-producing single to cut the deficit to one, 6-5.

Then, OCM's diminutive second baseman Bobby Dauthne became the apparent hero when he drilled a liner through the shortstop hole, scoring Sorrentino with the tying run.

After SSAP escaped further damage by inducing a fly ball to the next OCM batter, the coaches of the two sides met at home plate. Joining coaches at home were the umpires and the Vice-President of the league Matt Nelson, who is also a player-coach for McCarthy's Masonry. Henceforth, all sides agreed that it was too risky to continue action.

OCM (16-7) had built itself a quick 2-0 lead after the first frame. But, SSAP stormed back with three runs in the third, and two more in the fourth to take a 5-2 lead.

Mike Stewart of South Shore Auto Parts highlighted the fifth inning. He led off with a single. Moments later, teammate Brian Donovan stroked a single and subsequently took second base when the toss from the outfield to nab Stewart at third was too late, putting runners at third and second. A slow grounder to first recorded the first out of the inning.

After OCM's first baseman stepped on the bag to retire the batter, he ran halfway across the infield diamond to hold Stewart at third. But Stewart never returned to the base, thus enticing the first baseman to make a throw to third. The ball then sailed underneath the legs of the third baseman, allowing Stewart and Donovan to race home as the ball rolled all the way back to the steel fence near the SSAP bench.

Dave Barnes was the hitting star for OCM. He collected two hits and knocked in the two runs as well. Croke, meanwhile, banged out two extra base hits (triple and a homerun) for South Shore Auto Parts (19-3).

In other playoff action, Mealey Post of Cohasset (formerly Strawberry Parfait), had to forfeit their first semifinal game against McCarthy's Masonry, the defending champions, because there were not enough players to form a team that night (August 15). Therefore, McCarthy's Masonry now leads the series, 1-0.

The first game was originally supposed to be played August 12, but the contest was cancelled due to the heavy rain.

Mealey Post (14-7) advanced to the semifinals by upsetting Harborside Shell, whose club finished in first place in the regular-season standings with a 16-3 record, in a two-game sweep. McCarthy's Masonry, on the other hand, needed a final and deciding game as they fought off a stubborn Crossen Construction of Cohasset, two games to one. Crossen had defeated McCarthy in the opening contest, 4-3.

It could be revenge time for McCarthy against Mealey Post. When Mealey Post was previously affiliated with Strawberry Parfait, they easily upended McCarthy for the league crown in back-to-back years (1985 and 1986).

Area skaters honored nationally

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

Several South Shore figure skaters from the Winterland Skating Club were honored last week while competing in their first national event in Dallas.

All 22 Winterland Skating Club members at the competition, sponsored by the Ice Skating Institute of America, earned a medal or a ribbon.

The local skaters placed 13th out of 84 teams from across the United States and several other countries. More than 4,800 skaters competed.

It was a major victory for a club, comprised mostly of 8-to 12-year-old girls that has had its share of problems over the past year.

The club's first home, the Cohasset Winter Gardens, was converted to a boatyard, sending them to a rink in Rockland. They had to move again to a Hingham rink, after an explosion damaged the rink in Rockland.

The team's top winner was nine-year-old Michelle Buckley of Cohasset, who won six medals and a ribbon. Meanwhile, Kim Ward, also of Cohasset, won five medals.

The team members, mostly from the South Shore, arrived home August 14 from the week-long competition.

The skaters were judged in seven events, from tracing figures to solo performances, improvised solos, and group presentations. Medals were awarded for the first three places, and ribbons for fourth and fifth places.

Many of the young skaters will now move on to the United States Figure Skating Association competition.

In the adult competition, John Landrey, at 72 the oldest competitor, and Ann Healeny, both of Hingham, each won two gold medals. Nancy Stevenson of Scituate won a silver medal.

Other award winners were: Michelle Ward, Cohasset: three medals, one ribbon; Lauren Wood, Cohasset: three medals, two ribbons; Julie Flodden, Hingham: four medals; Erin Singleton, Hingham: three medals, two ribbons; Jenny Fisher, Hingham: one medal, one ribbon; Kevin Hayden, Hingham: three medals; Megan Lindholm, Hingham: four medals, two ribbons; Courtney O'Dey, Cohasset: two medals, one ribbon; Kara Protulis, Cohasset: three medals, one ribbon.

International sailing championships are here

One hundred and 30 skippers and crew members representing 34 boats from Michigan, Wisconsin, Long Island, Hingham , Scituate and and Cohasset Yacht Clubs will arrive in Cohasset this weekend for the National 210 Championships.

The event will be hosted by the Cohasset Yacht Club and will be sponsored by five national companies.

The International 210 Championships will begin Saturday and last until Tuesday. Two races will be held daily, off Cohasset Harbor. Saturday's race begins at 11 a.m. and the Sunday through Tuesday races will begin at 10 a.m.

The races will last about two hours each and the second races will begin about 1 to 2 p.m. According to Yacht Club Race Chairman Tom Hamilton, wind and fog could postpone the daily races.

The championship can be concluded with as little as four races. The races are seven to 13 miles long and will begin and end off 1½ miles off the coast off Cohasset Harbor.

Hamilton said the Yacht Club has hosted the national 210s before with the previous event seven years ago.

"This is a prestigious event to host. This is a very important, competitive, premier sailing event. The Cohasset Yacht Club is a great club to sponsor this race. It has a lot of experience," said Hamilton.

Individual crew members will be staying in the homes of various yacht club members during the four-day races.

The race is co-sponsored by Miller Beer, Hendries Ice Cream, Timberland Shoes, Patagonia Inc., an outdoor sports wear company, Beck's Beer and Cressey Sailmakers of Marblehead.

Counsel contends plaza plans not rejected by board indicated that they would vote for the proposal if the legal conditions were met, according to Humphreys.

"Town counsel said it does not violate the bylaw," said Humphreys.

However, O'Toole voted against the proposal, Humphreys said. Sturdy was on vacation and did not attend the meeting.

Planning Board members voted on the proposal after more than an hour of discussion on such things as the lot's impervious covering, or paving, and reserve parking.

According to town zoning amendment, no more than 60 percent of a lot may be covered by buildings and pavement.

Up to 30 percent of the required parking spaces may be left as green space until they are needed, at the discretion of the planning board.

Some 25 percent of the spaces would remain unpaved, according to Staszko's proposal. That would mean that 58 percent of the lot would be paved and the proposal would comply with the zoning amendment.

However, if the spaces were included, the total would be 67 percent, which is above the limit.

Cotton contended that any parking space is impervious.

Humphreys disagreed, and pointed out that parking spaces at the South Shore Music Circus and town hall are not paved.

He said the board could stipulate that reserve spaces be made of pervious material.

Henderson agreed that the project would comply with zoning if the reserved 25 percent parking was considered pervious.

Motions to consider the reserve parking as impervious or pervious both were deadlocked at 2-2.

Plante made the final motion to accept the plan with a number of stipulations.

The Planning Board's certificate of action filed by O'Toole with the town clerk's office Aug. 10, listed the reasons for those objecting to approval of the plan.

They were:

"A finding and determination that the proposed construction would be unsuitable or detrimental to the neighborhood because it violated zoning.

"Specifically, the land area covered by impervious material consisted of 67 percent of the entire site, while zoning permits only 60 percent.

"Additionally, pursuant to the terms of a prior stipulation for final judgement filed with Norfolk Superior Court. . .in connection with a portion of the site, it was agreed that there be no access between the original site and the portion of the combined site on which the new construction is proposed."

Several years ago, Staszko and his attorney appealed the board's denial of plans for the Super Stop & Shop.

That project was completed last year.

Adult child care is provided downstairs following the childrens' sermon.

A coffee hour will be held following the service.

The church will hold its second annual Blueberry Festival at the church Sunday, Aug. 21 at 6:30 p.m.

The church will have blueberries in many forms. The "Touchtones" Barber Shop Quartet will provide entertainment.

Church members report Bob Richardson is recuperating at his Maine home following successful by-pass surgery.

Lindsey Berents wins theater award

The Young People's Summer Theatre recently held their annual end-of-the-year banquet following the success of their two productions, "Showcase 88: "Adoles'Sense'," and the musical-comedy"Superman."

The annual "Five Year Mugs," awarded to members who have been a member of YPST five years, were given to Amy MacPhetres, and Jenni Limbacher of Scituate, and Lindsey Berents of Cohasset. A special mug was given to Assistant Director Michele Pecoraro. Member of the year went to Anthony Simmons of Hull, who provided outstanding leadership within the group and genuine concern for the progress of YPST.

Annual scholarships were also awarded to Jenni Limbacher and Jeanne MacLellan, of Scituate, and Lindsey Berents of Cohasset. Spring scholarships had been awarded to members Richard Donovan and Deena Paolucci. Scholarships now total over $12,000.00 since the program began.

Don Capen, director, thanked the 3M Company for its generous support.

This Year, August 1988, marks the 53rd Anniversary of Social Security: It is well to reflect, a half century later, on what the passage of the Social Security Law has meant in the lives of the American people. It was in April, 1932 that Franklin Delano Roosevelt spoke the words quoted above. His vibrant confidence gave courage to millions of Americans caught in the midst of a paralyzing depression. He initiated a "new beginning" in his first hundred days in office. And, when on August 14, 1935 he signed the Social Security Act, he referred to the legislation as a "cornerstone" "the cornerstone in a structure which is being built but is by no means complete." Many changes have occurred since August, 1935. The population now being served by the Social Security Programs is markedly different from the one of 50 years ago.

In 1930, 5.4 percent of the population was age 65 or older: today that percentage has reached 11. Today too, the life expectancy at age 65 for women is 13 years: for men it is 9 years. Those who are now age 75 can expect to live another 12 and nine years respectively.

Not only have the general demographics changed the composition of the workforce itself has altered. Women now make up 43 percent of all workers.

The Social Security Law too has changed as different amendments have been added: 1939: Gave benefits to certain dependents and survivors of insured workers. 1950's: Coverage was extended to cover most jobs as well as self-employment. Disability Insurance too was later added. 1965: Medicare. 1975: First payment of Cost-of-living increase. 1983: Insured the financial soundness of the cash benefits programs. At this time, according to the Annual Report of The Social Security Board of Trustees, the following statement can be made: Old-Age, Survivors and Disability Trust Funds are Safe Well Into the Next Century.

The Social Security Act has often been referred to as a "Compact", a mutual agreement between the government and its people. May our national realization of its accomplishments not blind us to the ongoing necessity of its sturdy continuance.

Carillon concert Aug. 21

Donald Traser, Associate Carillonneur of the War Memorial Carillon in Richmond, Virginia, will perform a free recital on the 51-bell Jessie M. Barron Memorial Carillon at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Avenue, Sunday, Aug. 21 at 6 p.m.

Bring lawn chairs, blankets, and picnic suppers on Cohasset Common for this eighth recital of the summer series. Printed programs are available.

For further information call St. Stephen's Church at 383-1083.

Cable quiz show

The August edition of the Cable Quiz Show will air Thursday, Aug. 18 and Aug. 25 at 7 p.m. on Community Channel 3.

This month's show will feature contestants from Milton, Quincy and Scituate who will compete in a fast-paced, two-round game testing their knowledge of cable programming.

Questions come from the monthly Cable Guide. This month's grand prize winner will receive a get-away weekend, courtesy of HBO/CINEMAX, who will sponsor the August edition. HBO/CINEMAX will also provide the runners-up and home-viewer prizes for this month's program.

An entry blank for the September edition of the Cable Quiz Show can be found in the August Cable Guide. Entry blanks are used to choose three contestants for the show, and are used to draw for our home-viewer prizes.

The Cable Guide Quiz Show is a regional production of Continental Cablevision and is aired the third and fourth Thursdays of each month in Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Norwell, Randolph and Scituate.

Science Center in August

Explore the natural beauty of the south shore through Science Center walks and talks!

SCITUATE BEACH NIGHTWALK

Stars and starfish . . . planetary moons and moon jellyfish . . . rocky tidepools and a constellation-filled sky . . . What better way to unwind after a long hot summer day? Enjoy the sunset and search the late summer beach for our local marine animals and plants.

This walk on August 30 will meet at the Scituate Lighthouse, at the end of Lighthouse Road in Scituate, at 7 p.m. to explore the quiet beauty of a sheltered cove, transitional between the rocky coastline of the north and the sandy shores of southern New England. You will be astonished at the natural diversity within a few miles of your own backyard! This informal walk is great for people of all ages. (members $3.50; non-members $4.50). Pre-paid registration is required. August 30, 7 to 8:30 p.m. Call 659-2559 for details.

WEDNESDAY NATURE WALK

Our last nature walk in August will explore land in Marshfield. We'll meet at the Science Center and carpool towards the Bradford Property, an 11 acre parcel of privately-owned land at the headwaters of the South River. This spot includes a small stream, part of a pond, and some old fields and forest.

After exploring the Bradford Property, if time permits, we will continue on down the South River to the Monahan Reservation, owned by the Science Center. This beautiful piece of land borders the marshes of the South River and is home to many interesting plants and animals. Members free; non-members $4. Call 659-2559 for further details. Wednesday, August 29, 10 a.m. to noon.

South Shore Natural Science Center is in Jacobs Lane, Norwell, just off Route 123 and less than a mile from the Route 3 and Route 53 interchange (exit 13). The Center is open Mondays to Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Closed Sundays in August. Trails, exhibits, library, gift shop. Free admission.

Hallmark 100 properties

Hallmark 100 Properties was ranked number one in market share in Cohasset and Scituate according to figures released by Prudential Real Estate Affiliates, a division of the Prudential Insurance Company.

"Our figures show the same result", noted Chris Ford, President of Hallmark 100, "but it is always gratifying to have an independent source, such as Prudential, come up with similar results".

Hallmark 100 ranked first in both listings and sales in the combined Scituate-Cohasset market place for the first half of 1988 according to the figures compiled by Prudential and by Hallmark 100's own calculations.

"Hallmark 100 Properties was involved in more sales than any other real estate firm in the combined Cohasset-Scituate marketplace this year. While total volume in sales has declined in 1988, the market share controlled by Hallmark 100 continues to rise dramatically", said Ford.

"There is a simple explanation for our success," explained Ford. "We have been able to attract and hold some of the most experienced and sucessful sales associates in the area. What began as a novel approach five years ago (the notion that sales associates would assume financial responsibility for their own business expenses in return for being able to retain from 90 to 100 percent of the commissions they generate) has transformed our firm into the most progressive and motivated sales force in this market place," he said.

Hallmark 100 has grown from one to four offices over the past three years. In addition to the Scituate and Cohasset offices, Hallmark 100 maintains a branch office in Hingham and an affiliated office in Plymouth.

Gait Disorders in the Elderly

Loss of the ability to walk is a common problem among the elderly which may lead to disabling injuries and loss of independence.

Walking is a very complex activity requiring a step by step program of many interconnected body parts. Nerves in the feet send signals to the brain about where the body and limbs have moved in space. The brain is the computer for the whole activity of walking and transmits its commands to the limbs through the spinal cord and a network of nerves that leave the spine to connect with the muscles.

Muscular strength is needed to move the legs and support the body. Tendons must be limber and joints must be mobile to provide fluid motion of the limbs.

Even in the absence of specific treatment, sessions with the physical therapist on proper safety and exercise, as well as the use of assistive devices like canes and walkers, may build confidence and allow one to continue to function with relative independence.

Failure to recognize a problem of gait and to seek treatment can lead to an unrealistic or excessive "fear of falling" which can be more disabling than the actual problem. A thorough assessment of the situation by a physician along with treatment, counseling or physical therapy can help avoid unnecessary accidents and restore confidence. Remember, consult your doctor first!

Harbor island cruise

Harbor Island Cruise scheduled for August 15 was cancelled and rescheduled for Monday, Aug. 22. There is a slight change. Visitors will leave the center at 4:45 p.m. sharp by bus to Rowe's Wharf and the boat will leave the wharf at 6 p.m. for tour and arrive back at 9:30 p.m. and visitors should be back about 10:15 p.m.

The cost is still $7.

Call 383-9112 for reservations.

A big thank you to all who gave their great help and time in the terrible heat to make a roaring success of our "Clambake". Again, thank you.

ENERGY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Teaming-up

This is simple.

If you Team up with Eastern Edison Company, then you'll save money.

How? By using less electricity. Eastern Edison will help you buy or install energy-efficient equipment and material.

Why are we doing this?

Because our region is facing a continuing electric-capacity problem. The demand for electricity is very high — almost higher than our capacity to generate it.

So — it helps us if you use less. And it will also help you.

We want your participation — and we've made these programs very attractive. They're flexible, efficient, common-sense ways to use electricity. And they'll save you money.

Here are the Teaming-up programs for 1988:

For our residential customers

WRAP - Electric Water Heating Conservation Program
At no cost to you, we will insulate your electric water heater and hot-water pipe and install water-saving showerheads. You'll still get all the hot water you need — but it will cost less!.

WAT41 - Electric Water Heater Conversion to Rate 41
If you let us rewire your water heater so that it doesn't run during the hours of peak demand for electricity, we will bill you at a lower rate. We'll do it all for free — and you will save money.

FILTER - Swimming Pool Energy Management Program
New for 1988! — We will pay you up to $40 during the summer months if you let us set the time-clock on your swimming pool filter so that the filter does not operate during the hours when the demand for electricity is greatest. There'll be no decrease in the quality of the water — and you'll save money!

AIRCON - Air Conditioner Incentive Program
Also new for 1988! — We'll give your contractor rebates for installing efficient central cooling equipment. You'll save money on efficient air-conditioner equipment and your electric bill.

And — we also have money-saving programs for our commercial and industrial customers as well!

For more information on Eastern Edison's Teaming-up Program, simply fill out the form below and mail it to:

Historic Old Salt House sold; now town wants it

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

The historic Old Salt House at Cohasset Harbor has been sold by the Conservation Trust to a Boston lawyer for $400,000, but the selectmen chairman says the town will still seek to obtain the property by eminent domain.

"It really doesn't make a difference," said chairman Burt Pratt about the change in ownership.

"I see no reason not to go forward."

"If Burt Pratt can get the town to spend $400,000 for nothing then good luck to him," commented Richard Leggat of the Conservation Trust.

The trust sold the property Aug. 16 to Thomas Eisenstadt of Atlantic Ave., Cohasset, according to Leggat.

"You can rest assured that the Salt House will be as it has always been," said Eisenstadt,who declined to comment at length on the sale which he said has already received enough publicity.

"It's a private sale and a very simple matter," he said.

Legget said, "The restrictions that we imposed were accepted.

The trustees have reserved the right to approve any proposed aesthetic changes to the structure, the wharf or the parking area.

The purchase price was listed in the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds."

The property was deeded by Mrs. Jessie Cox to the Conservation Trust in 1974.

The trust decided to sell it because it felt its purpose

Dwyer's Cleaning Spot set to rebuild on Route 3A

Construction is scheduled to begin Thursday, Sept. 1, on a new main office and central processing facility for Dwyer's Cleaning Spot, Cohasset, which was destroyed by fire Aug. 5.

The new building will be at the old location, 754 Chief Justice Cushing Highway.

"We're going to try to get the walls up before the snow flies," said Kerry Crehan, Dwyer marketing director.

"We're anticipating a six month construction period.

"The foundation is still there, so we'll build on what we have," said Dwyer from the business' temporary location at the old Stop & Shop at Tedeschi Plaza.

It is between Nobel's Camera and Cohasset Jewelers, three stores down from the old Route 3A location.

The wood-framed, one story structure which served Dwyer's six other dry cleaning stores was destroyed within an hour by a fire which began in the attic.

Firefighters from Scituate, Hull, Hingham and Norwell responded.

Although the state fire marshal's office was called in to investigate, Cohasset Fire Chief Daniel Brock said the blaze was not suspicious.

It appeared to have started in the electrical wiring, Brock said.

Damage estimate for the building and contents was set at about $1 million.

"That's probably low," said Crehan, "Everything was gone."

"Most of it was covered by insurance."

The business moved into the old Stop & Shop last week after operating out of a trailer at the Route 3A locations after the fire.

"We're in an L-shaped area," said Crehan.

"They have let us have this until we can get into the new building."

A shirt unit, to press shirts, as well as offices were moved into the site.

It is a drop-off site for customers, as well, Crehan said.

"We're open the usual hours," she said, "They are 7

Town signs affordable housing pact

"By mid-week, we should have it all signed," said Selectman Chairman Burt Pratt regarding the affordable housing agreement between the state and the town.

"Then we'll hand deliver it to Boston to Amy Anthony, Secretary of the Executive Office of Communities and Development(EOCD)," Pratt said.

Signing of the agreement will conclude a process which has been "stewing for several years," he said.

At their Aug. 17, meeting three members of the planning board signed the agreement at the urging of Pratt who attended the meeting.

The other two members, Patrick Plante and chairman Robert Sturdy, did not attend the meeting.

Selectmen had invited the planning board and housing authority to discuss and sign the agreement at its Aug. 15 meeting, but only one member attended.

Pratt was scheduled to make a similar visit to the housing authority's meeting this week.

He explained to the planning board that the agreement was essentially the same as was agreed to in Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray's office last October.

"Everything you people (planning board) wanted remains," said Pratt.

"Do you want this signed tonight?" asked John O'Toole, acting chairman.

"I certainly do," replied Pratt.

He referred to an Aug. 4 letter to former Cohasset executive secretary Don Andrew in which EOCD assistant secretary Joseph I. Flatley said, "It is our expectation that this final draft will be executed promptly by the Board of Selectmen, the housing authority and the planning board and that the town will then become in compliance with Executive Order 215.

'When Fat Lady Sings' wins the 210 regatta

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

The largest fleet ever to sail in an International 210 class championship regatta assembled at Cohasset Yacht Club last weekend.

When the issue was finally settled, 'When the Fat Lady Sings,' co-owned by Rick Schulz and Jim Summers with crew member Al Cook, was credited as being the overall winner of the 210 Nationals.

The 210 Class, which was born in 1946 was the brainchild of the late C. Raymond Hunt. A Cohasset native who first designed the 210 sailboat in 1939, patented it after the 110's he devised several years earlier.

Since its creation, 400 210's have been built.

In addition Hunt also designed the Boston Whaler.

The 210 Class held its first national championship regatta in 1948 when six boats competed for the prestigious title at Wianno Yacht Club on Cape Cod.

George O'Day was the first recipient to capture the national sailing trophy.

At the 41st running of the 210 National, one hundred and 30 skippers and crew members representing 34 boats from Michigan, Wisconsin,. Long Island, along

Planning board action

The Cohasset Planning Board took the following action at its meeting Wednesday, Aug. 17:

The board approved Crocker II, a proposed three-building office park off Chief Justice Highway. The developer, Peter Floyd, is scheduled to seek a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals Sept. 1 to construct a non-residential driveway at 231 Chief Justice Cushing Highway.

The planning board voted to recommend approval of the variance and the board voted to recommend that the ZBA approve an application from David and Julianna Hassan for a nursery school day care at 479 Beechwood St.

Sewer staffing issue

The state Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering is taking issue with the Cohasset Sewer Dept.'s staffing of pumping stations near the high school and at the Cohasset waste water treatment plant.

Sewer Commission Chairman Charles DeSantis said the state wants two "capable men for handling the daily inspections of the confine space pumping stations and unsafe work." The sewer department now staffs one person with a radio at the pumping stations, DeSantis said.

A meeting is scheduled this week with DEQE officials and DeSantis to solve the issue. A notice of noncompliance was sent to DeSantis Aug. 5 with a warning that a financial penalty and further legal action could be taken if the DEQE rules were not followed.

Unlicensed dog owners

Cohasset's town clerk has forwarded to selectmen a list of 152 unlicensed dog owners in the town for 1988.

"Every year, we have 150-200 unlicensed dog owners," said Frances Marks, town clerk.

"They were all sent a postcard reminder in July," she said.

"Then we forward the list to selectmen."

The licenses are due April 1 every year, according to Marks.

"We're still collecting into July," she said.

"This has been an ongoing thing for years."

Charge for the license is $3 for a male, neutered or not, and spayed female; and $6 for an unspayed female, Marks said.

There is no fine for having an unlicensed dog, she noted.

Marks said the names of unlicensed dog owners are taken from the census sent out in early January.

Selectmen's next meeting is Monday, Aug. 29, at 7:30 p.m at Town Hall.

Landfill costs awarded

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, said she was informed by State Auditor Joseph DeNucci that the court has ruled that requirements for sanitary landfill liners violate the anti-mandate provisions of Prop 2 1/2.

Judge William H. Welch ruled in Norfolk Superior Court that Hull is entitled to $279,766 in state funds for the installation of the liner at its municipal.

The ruling applies to Hull, Norfolk and New Bedford, which had also filed suit, "...and to future towns and cities that might face this issue," Judge Welch said.

In April 1985, the state ruled Hull had to be reimbursed for liner costs. Earlier, Hull had appealed to the division of land management claiming it was being directed by the state to undertake a costly project without any state compensation.

That process is illegal under the rules of Prop. 2 1/2, which says that state-ordered projects must be paid for by the state.

Rep. Murray said because Hull did not receive any state funds following the DLM decision, the town took the matter to court.

Fire chief applies for state funds

Cohasset's fire chief has written to the state Rate Setting Commission, Bureau of Ambulatory Care, requesting almost $700 in financial assistance to complete a cost report required under Proposition 2 1/2.

In his Aug. 18, letter to policy anaylst Thomas Faiella, Chief Daniel F. Brock, said that a total of $685.28 would be needed.

According to Brock the estimated costs to complete the report are: $487.20, for 40 additional man hours at $12.18 an hour; $48.72, four hours to attend technical assistance sessions; $24.36, two hours travel time to Boston and return; $15, mileage to Boston and return (60 miles); $100, copies of reports and forms required, 1000 at 10-cents each; $10 postage and handling.

"Upon receipt of the financial assistance, we will begin to expedite the report requested," stated Brock.

In his letter to the town, Faiella explained, "The Rate Setting Commission is the state agency charged with the responsibility of establishing rates of payment for medical services provided to publicly-aided individuals, such as Medicaid clients and industrial accident patients.

"The commission's statutory mandate is to set rates that are fair, reasonable, and adequate and to the extent possible based on providers' costs.

"Current ambulance and chair car rates are based on a 1983 study of industry operating costs.

"In order to insure accurate rates of payment, it is necessary that the commission conduct another study of the costs incurred in the provision of these valuable services.

". . . The data required by this report will be used as the basis for determining your organization's further payment rates."

Affordable housing pact signed . . .

"As you know, however, this proposed agreement will be withdrawn by EOCD if it is not promptly executed by town officials in its present form," said Flatley.

"Why the haste?" asked O'Toole. "I want Sturdy here."

"We have several million dollars in grants backed up (pending the agreement)," explained Pratt.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson said that state funding for such things as a sewer plan and water projects are being held up.

"I really don't like signing anything with a gun to my head," commented member Al Moore.

"It's sort of like a war-time confession.

"If we don't agree to this, we'll lose all this money?" Moore asked.

"This is the commonwealth that we live in," answered Pratt. "We've got to do this."

Members O'Toole, Moore and Dan Cotton then signed the agreement.

According to the agreement, "the Selectmen, along with the housing authority and planning board will formulate an overall housing policy, working through the Cohasset Fair Housing Committee, which will prepare a draft report for submission to the above boards for review, comment and possible amendment, which will lead to a final policy for the town.

"This policy will establish specific goals for the town in defining and meeting the housing needs of its citizens and will be designed to meet the following objectives:

- The formation of local policies and regulations which foster the development of affordable housing;
- The actual development of housing specifically available to low and moderate income families, through both public and private channels.

"The town will apply to the EOCD for a mini-grant to hire a consultant to work with town officials, including the Cohasset Fair Housing Committee, in formulating the overall town policy.

"Additionally, assistance will be sought from the South Shore Coalition, the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and the Massachusetts Housing Partnership, recognizing that constraints on funding may limit the overall participation of these agencies.

"Timetable for completion: Feb. 1 of 1989."

Dwyer's Cleaning Spot to rebuild

a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday to Saturday."

For one-day service, customers must have their clothes in by 9 a.m., rather than the usual 10 a.m. to have them out by 5 p.m., she noted.

"We hope in the next week or so to return it to in by 10, out by 5," Crehan said.

Customers are still coming in to make out vouchers for clothes lost in the fire, according to Crehan.

"It's not the onslaught of the first few days, but they are still coming in," said Crehan, who explained that some were on vacation when the fire occurred and just learned about it recently.

The customers fill out insurance forms, she said, and if they are done properly, checks are mailed from the insurance company in a week or two.

"We are asking for purchase receipts for anything bought over the past year," she said.

"Then they verify the purchase price and replacement cost."

Crehan said that about 500 customers have submitted vouchers and "so far, so good."

She noted that the vast majority of customers are continuing to patronize Dwyer's.

"We're very grateful for that," she said.

"We're still here and we still want their business.

"Most customers have been very good.

"They've been very patient and understanding."

"We'll be back, better than ever, as quick as we can."

New roof for Panagia Greek Church

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

When members of the Panagia Greek Orthodox Church look heavenward , it will be towards a new $30,000 roof expected to be completed Friday, Aug. 26.

The church at 817 Jerusalem Road has been raising funds since last April for the work which also includes some restoration, according to Rev. Fr. John Maheras, pastor.

"We haven't collected it all yet," said Fr. Maheras. "We have about 80 percent of the funds.

The work started Aug. 11, according to Fr. Maheras, and the front half of it was completed in time for the church's second taverna, a celebration with food and dancing, last weekend Aug. 20-21.

"The steeple took two full days of work," he said. "The roofing company created its own scaffolding for it.

"There was a limited area where they could work. It was interesting to watch them.

"The steeple is 80 feet in the air."

"The work is being done by Associate Roofing Co. of Scituate.

GAF Timberlane shingle is being installed, according to Associate Roofing owner Michael Lynch of Scituate.

"We did the steeple work without the use of a crane," noted Lynch.

"This is one of the highest roofs we have worked on."

"It's a beautiful, beautiful piece of property, and we're trying to bring it back as close as possible to the original."

"They straightened the cross while they were up there," added Fr. Maheras.

He said that the granite church was built almost 100 years ago.

About 25 years ago, the last roof was installed, he said.

"We didn't own the church at that time," Fr. Maheras explained.

He said that the Greek church bought the property about seven years ago.

The new roof will be guaranteed for 30 years, according to Fr. Maheras, who has been pastor for three years.

The exterior of the church will also be washed and cleaned of mold and mildew by Associate Roofing, he said.

Praise for CHS vice-principal

Letters

To the Editor:

I wonder if the parents of our high school students, as well as the students, have any idea of how lucky we are to have Jack Delarenzo as our vice-principal at Cohasset High School!

He gives cheers and support to all our teams during the school year rarely missing a football, basketball, or hockey game.

When, however, he appears at the Cohasset Swim Team meets, we know for sure how sincerely he cares about our children. He came to both of our home meets this year and gave everyone encouragement and pats on the back.

Then, Saturday, Aug. 13 when we all traveled to the Duxbury Yacht Club for the South Shore league championships who should appear? Yes, it was Jack, all dressed in his "Cohasset, We've Got Spirit" T shirt.

Our swimmers, not surprisingly came through for win and placed second in the final scoring!

Thank you Jack for being the kind of person you are in wanting our kids to know you are there for them even though it is not a school affiliated activity.

Golden pleads for landfill report

State Sen. William B. Golden has written to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs requesting that a full environmental impact report be required in connection with the application of Cohasset Heights Ltd. for a 27.5 acre expansion.

The expansion would be in Area V of the Cohasset Heights Landfill on Crocker Lane, off Route 3A, according to Golden.

In his Aug. 15, letter to James E. Hoyte, Environmental Affairs Secretary, Golden wrote, "There has been considerable controversy between state and local officials and private parties over this facility.

"There have been fears expressed about the possibility of run-off draining into the Weir River, an area of critical environmental concern, and ultimately Straits Pond.

"I am very concerned about any potential threat to water resources in either Cohasset, which would host the landfill expansion, or in nearby Hingham or Hull."

Federal authorities examine possible Abbey mail theft

Federal authorities are apparently continuing their investigation of the possible theft of mail addressed to the Glastonbury Abbey of Benedictine Monks, on Hull St.

"I haven't heard from the inspectors," said Hingham Postmaster Paul Shea.

"I assume that it hasn't concluded."

According to Shea, the postal inspectors questioned a long-time employee of the Hingham Post Office last week.

"No disciplinary action has been taken," said Shea, who noted that the individual has not worked or been paid while the investigation proceeds.

Citing department policy, postal inspector Don Howd declined to comment on the situation in Hingham.

Postal agents asked the abbey's permission to "withhold our mail for a day," according to James Lagrotteria, business manager for the abbey.

"We haven't heard a word since last week," said Lagrotteria.

"I think this might just be routine.

"We're not missing any mail. We've never found mail missing.

"As far as I know, this is a routine inspection."

Lagrotteria noted that the Talbot's, Country Loft and Hitchcock Shoes do a large volume of catalog sales.

"I don't know why they singled us out.

"They get a lot more money in their mail."

Lagrotteria said that monks sometimes receive donations in the mail to pray on someone's behalf.

Shea said he did not know how postal authorities became aware of a possible theft of mail at the abbey.

"They have their own system," Shea said.

"I didn't know how they became aware of it."

Old Salt House sale now up in the air . . .

was to acquire and maintain conservation land, not waterfront property. Liability of the gas and oil pumping operations there were also noted.

Selectmen voted unanimously July 11 to pursue a possible eminent taking of the property.

Pratt called the Old Salt House "a genuine antique and a valuable resource to the harbor."

He said Mrs. Cox would be upset at the conservation trust's plans.

Other selectmen such as Martha Gjesteby supported looking into the possibility eminent domain taking of the property.

"I believe we would be losing access to the harbor," she said.

Selectmen James Gallagher said that Mrs. Cox's sister was upset about the plans.

He said he felt stongly about using the land for docking facilities.

Selectmen took further action Aug. 8, when members voted to retain a real estate appraiser to ascertain the fair market value of the historic structure.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson also recommended that a title search be done.

The next step in taking the land by eminent domain would be to have a warrant article prepared for a special town meeting to pay for an appraisal, according to Henderson.

He said the last time the town paid for an appraisal of land it cost about $2,000 to $3,000.

"But this one should be much less," he said.

Trustees of the Conservation Trust had been invited to attend the meeting, but did not appear.

Members offered instead to meet with selectmen in a closed session to discuss the imminent sale.

Pratt said that he was attempting to set up a meeting between selectmen, town counsel and conservation trust members when he learned the sale had taken place.

"I'm disappointed that they saw fit to go ahead with the sale without hearing our concerns," said Pratt.

"Richard Henderson called me (about the meeting) the day after papers were passed," said Leggat.

"They had about 10 days before that.

"We're very grateful that it went through with all the turmoil," said Leggat of the sale.

"We didn't like all the publicity.

"We thought we were fulfulling our responsibility to Mrs. Cox and to preserve the attributes of the town which make it a nice place to live."

Leggat said that the property is leased until November to Frank Kerry who runs a ship chandlery and gas service, and leases slips.

He noted that the restrictions will be in place for at least 30 years.

He also said that the money from the sale will allow the trust to continue its purpose.

"We want to be able to preserve the quality of the town and make sure it doesn't all get gobbled up with development," he said.

Additional show for singer Roy Orbison

Due to overwhelming demand for tickets, Roy Orbison will give a second performance at South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset Sunday, August 28. The newly added show will take place at 4:30 p.m. All seats are $17.50.

In announcing the additional concert, Music Circus Executive Producer Edward R. Kasses said that Orbison's 7:30 p.m. concert was one of the first attractions to sell out when the theatre's box office opened for sales in May.

Orbison is known for a string of hits that includes "Crying," "Oh Pretty Woman" and "Only The Lonely."

Tickets for the new 4:30 p.m. Music Circus concert are available at the Music Circus box office on Sohier Street off Route 3A in Cohasset or by calling the theatre at 383-1400.

Orbison tickets are also available at all Ticketron locations or by calling Teletron at 720-3434.

Mandatory glass recycling ordered

The health board voted unanimously Aug. 22 to institute mandatory recycling of non-broken bottle glass, aluminum and returnable cans and bottles starting Oct. 1.

The town had already begun recycling paper, yard wastes and heavy metal July 1, at the Cedar St. landfill.

The recycling was approved at the April town meeting.

The board's vote came after more than an hour of discussion with recycling committee members and other interested citizens.

Health board chairman Sharon Becker suggested a separate car sticker for the recycling program at the landfill.

Arthur Lehr, chairman of the recycling committee, suggested a competition in the schools for the recycling program. He noted that two, $400 scholarships were given by the Boy Scouts from returnable bottles proceeds.

Peter Whittemore said a poster contest could be held for the program.

Becker said that one of the biggest problems with the recycling program is enforcement.

Board member William Baird said, "Perhaps someone in the future could be hired, a 'policeman-type person, at the dump.

"We may have to go that way."

The third board member, Michael Sullivan, said, "If its mandatory, people shouldn't be able to get away with not recycling."

"It's very difficult to say mandatory recycling when there is no enforcement."

Whittemore said the key is training people to start with two different waste baskets in their homes for recyclables and trash.

Sullivan recommended an education program as well as random checking at the landfill.

Health board secretary Carol Puffer showed two notices of failure to recycle which were drafted.

Recycling committee member Jack Hubbard suggested that his committee research recycling program in other communities. The committee will meet informally Sept. 11 at 11 a.m. at the landfill.

Whittemore suggested that the town ask the state for funds for recycling.

"If you don't recycle you are taxing all the other people in Cohasset." said Baird.

"If we need more money, we should ask for it at the next town meeting."

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening until 8 pm, Saturday 9 to 5:30.

around town

□ Peter Kasperowicz, who is studying to be an accountant at U Mass Amherst makes his Boston Comedy debut at Catch a Rising Star, Monday, Sept. 12. The show starts at 9 p.m., but people who want seats should be there by 8:30 p.m.

Catch a Rising Star is located at 30 JFK Street in Cambridge.

□ Welcome home to Brian Shultz, who has spent the last eight weeks in Brazil. He returned home this past Monday after participating in the AFS soccer program. Brian lived with a family in Juiz de Fora and he is hopeful that his Brazilian brother, Andre , will visit Cohasset for a few weeks next summer.

□ Speaking of soccer, don't forget that soccer physicals will be held Friday, Aug. 26 at 9:30 a.m. Football physicals will be held Thursday, Aug. 25 at 1:30 p.m. All girls physicals will be done at school once the new school year is underway.

□ Another sports note, from the football coaching staff at CHS. CHS football welcomes all eighth and ninth graders to pre-season starting Thursday, Aug. 25 at 6 p.m. on Milliken Field. This is a first in Cohasset in recent years.

The coaching staff agrees that the youngsters' early exposure to the football system will enhance the teaching of fundamentals, basics and skills.

Teaching and conditioning will be the first priority during these sessions, there will be no live contact in practice for the youngsters.

□ The Pilczak family sure can tell you about the recent heat wave, they have been busy! Kenn and JoAnn Pilczak had a daughter, born July 8 whom they named Margaret Olivia. Margaret Olivia joins her two brothers, Matthew, 6 and Tim, 2. Everyone sure is happy to have a little girl around the house!

□ There is great news for all of you Roy Orbison fans. Due to an overwhelming demand for tickets, he has added a show for this Sunday afternoon, Aug. 28. Call the South Shore Music Circus box office at 383-1400 for details.

□ Plans are firm and the date has been set for the CHS class reunion, year 1945 to be exact. It will be their first, and the committee is Jay Jason Healy, Jim Sullivan, Marge Ritter and Betty Emery. It will be at Hugo's, Aug. 26. There were 13 members of the class, two boys and eleven girls! The only reason that there were two boys was that all of the rest were in the service, and those two were to young to join. They must have been popular, right! Anyone would take those odds. Have fun.

□ Happy birthday to Norman Swain.

□ We are happy to see Helen Ketchum walking again! Helen has been "sidelined" for a long time with sciatica, but she is walking further than ever now, and looks super.

□ Jared Thomas Kinch was born Aug. 3 at 9:23 a.m. at St. Margaret's Hospital in Dorchester. Jared is the third son of Diana and James Kinch, 77 Forest Ave. He joins brothers Andrew, 6 and Benjamin, 4 1/2 years old.

□ The third annual Eastern Mass High School Soccer Classic was held Wednesday, Aug. 10 at Boston University's Nickerson Field. The game pitted the best high school players in northern Eastern Mass against those from the southern area. The players were chosen by the Eastern Mass Soccer Coaches Association and are league all-stars. Cohasset's own Dan Magner was one of the southern area coaches. Joel Reidy and Todd Fitzpatrick were on the team representing Cohasset.

□ Happy birthday to Libby Pompeo!

□ Jeff Steele sure was surprised recently, and still can't really believe it! Don Steele and their daughters Nina, Laurie and Andrea chartered a sailboat out of Squantum, got 60 of her friends together and off they went. There was a four piece band on board, tons of yummy food, songs by friends and people from everywhere. Another bonus, it was cool out on the ocean (the event was held in the midst of the recent heatwave.)

□ Another huge surprise that really worked was the Roast for Rocky Laugelle. First time anyone has been able to surprise Rocky, and he was speechless! His family and friends (including his friends from Mississippi) had a super time remembering back to various adventures they shared, the food was great and there wasn't a dry eye in the house when Rocky received his birthday present. . . a trip to Italy. Congratulations Rocky.

Dramatic Club director

The Cohasset Dramatic Club is seeking a director and choreographer for its late fall cabaret production of Sugar Babies (The Burlesque Musical) conceived by Ralph G. Allen and Harry Rigby. Interested candidates should phone 383-1871 or 545-0942. Positions will be paid.

Notre Dame celebration

Notre Dame Academy of Hingham is celebrating its 135th anniversary this year with a series of events beginning in September.

Saturday, Sept. 17, students, parents, alumnae and friends of the girls' college preparatory high school are invited to a festive Family Field Day from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The day will include games, prizes, face painting, moon walk, caricaturists, clowns, raffles, food, music and a soccer game.

"Admission is free and the public is invited," said school Principal Sister Anne Monica Ruane. "We hope to have all of our present and past students, their parents and many friends of the Academy here to help with the celebration."

Serving on the Family Day committee are Academy Trustee Kelly Carney Kelly; Trustee and parent Margaret Comer, Hingham; Friends President Nancy Graham, Abington; Alumnae President Molly Comeford, Hingham; League President Jean Luoni, Weymouth; Alumna Martha Doyle Schwartz, Hingham; and Academy staff members Madeline Bartlett, Hingham; Donna Brickley, Braintree; Phyllis Hayes, Canton; Maryanne Jackson, Hingham; Sister Marie Julienne, Hingham.

The event is being coordinated by Development Director Grace Regan who is available at 749-5930 for additional information.

Other events scheduled for the anniversary celebration are the annual Alumnae Luncheon and Fashion Show to be held at the Boston Marriott, Newton, Saturday, Nov. 5 and a dinner and evening at the Raynham Taunton Greyhound Park Wednesday, Nov. 9.

Plans are also being finalized for a Christmas Tea Dance to be held at a Boston hotel in December and "Evening of Stars II," a repeat of the evening which brought a host of sports celebrities to the Hingham school two years ago. This red carpet event is planned for April of 1989.

New music ensemble

There's a new music ensemble on the South Shore founded by two area women, Lynne Wilkinson of Plymouth, and Joan Gatturna of Hingham.

Ayriel is a vocal and instrumental ensemble which specializes in breathing new life into the music of bygone days. Performers in the ensemble, dressed in a variety of period costumes, ranging from the Pilgrim era to Victorian times, interpret the music of past centuries with a blend of music-making commentary.

Upcoming concerts include "A Parlor Musicale," a look at Victorian woman in song, to be presented at the Mayflower Society House in Plymouth, and "Colonial Harmonies: The Musicke of Revolutionary Boston," at the historic Old South Meeting House in downtown Boston.

For information about Ayriel and their upcoming appearances, call 740-2889 or 508-747-0212.

A precious commodity

Most days, we tend to take things for granted. We have plentiful food, nice clothes, a car or two, good schools, and a nice community in which to live.

Ocassionally we stop to think how fortunate we are, in comparison to the people who have not. But most days, we simply go about our routine, unmindful of how tentative our existence is. It's probably a good defense mechanism - afterall, if we had to walk around worrying all day, we wouldn't enjoy our food, clothes and cars.

But when something is taken away, that void is fairly difficult to ignore. When something as precious as our water is no longer available, that's when we take the time to realize just how valuable it is.

Most of us live in the beautiful South Shore because of its scenic water views. How tragic it would be if we were forced to sit by and watch, but not to fully enjoy the splendor of the ocean. It is a tragedy for those residents who must sit inside during this hot summer, unable to take a swim in the refreshingly cool salt water.

And then there are those communities that are forced to limit their water consumption during the dry summer months. Decreased volumes of water in the summer force many towns to issue water bans during certain hours or days in the week. The sad fact is, the more we need water, the less there is to go around.

And now we find the popular Mount Blue spring at Wompatuck State Park has been polluted. Whether it was caused by nature's soaking rains that never allowed the water to filter through the soil, or whether it was a prank, there will be no more free water for a while.

In the summer, more than 500 persons a day would travel up the main road through the park to the fresh water spring. More than the camping sites themselves, the spring water was the most popular attraction in the entire state park.

And now, people who have come to rely on the quality and natural low sodium of this spring, must look elsewhere for their water. It is a precious commodity which they will have to pay for now.

Something as insignificant as heavy rainstorms may be to blame. But because of that, there has been no water for several days.

Taking away what we have taken for granted hurts a lot. But it also serves to remind us how precious everything is, and how we must appreciate everything we have. There's no guarantee it will be there for long.

Scenes of Old Cohasset available

By David Wadsworth
Special to the Mariner

Scenes of Old Cohasset, — early photographs of a small New England seacoast village, are featured in the Cohasset Historical Society's new and unique 1989 wall calendar now available through the society.

From its archive collection of old photographs the Society has chosen a group of pictures showing the town as it appeared during the last half of the 19th and first half of the 20th centuries.

Among these rare pictures are found scenes of Cohasset's center village, its harbor waterfront, Town Common and Victorian seashore homes, its early railroad station, the first Police Station and original central schoolhouse, and its last summer hotel.

Picked from among the many old photographs in the Society's archives, these illustrations together forming "Scenes of Old Cohasset" portray things of importance — and some fascinating side-lights — of Cohasset as it appeared in by-gone times.

Interestingly, some of the scenes shown in "Scenes of Old Cohasset" still can be found as one views the town, while others have long ago disappeared.

For instance, the old railroad station today houses several businesses and still is recognizable. The town's first Police Headquarters, itself originally the Independence Fire Company station, can be found in the village.

Other scenes have changed much since the Society's archive photos were taken. On the common, the stately elms are gone, years ago ravaged by blight. The 2nd and 3rd Black Rock House hotels (both are shown in unusual views) departed Cohasset's scene in earlier years; as did the original Osgood Schoolhouse, Cohasset's first central school.

So did the block of stores owned by Joseph St. John at the south end of the Common, where today a war memorial tablet rests in open space. "Scenes of Old Cohasset" gives a glimpse of the town as it appeared from half a century to a century ago.

On its 1989 wall calendar the Historical Society also makes note of recent and on-going projects designed to preserve and present the unique history of Cohasset; such as the preservation of an antique "hand tub pumper" fire engine named "Konahassett," the development of the Society's museums and their collection, and of its extensive collection of antique costumes and clothing.

The Cohasset Historical Commission's "Captains' Walk" at the harbor, completed by the Commission several years ago, is noted, and future plans for preservation of the town's historical heritage are listed.

"Scenes of Old Cohasset" presents the town's past and also future plans designed to continue the work started by the Historical Society sixty years ago.

The 1989 wall calendar will be available throughout the forthcoming season at the society museums and other selected locations.

For additional information about "Scenes of Old Cohasset," the unique 1989 wall calendar devoted to our town's history, call the Society at 383-6930. Sale of the 1989 wall calendars will benefit the Historical Society in its continuing community programs and in the maintenance and improvement of its museums.

Dwyers Cleaning Spot says thanks

Letters

To the Editor:

We at Dwyers Cleaning Spot in Cohasset would like to publicly thank a cast of thousands for their help during and after the fire which destroyed our main plant on August 5. The fire departments from Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell, Hull, and Hingham, and volunteers from the American Red Cross gave us prompt attention that day, for which we are very grateful.

The number of businesses who opened their doors to us in the hours after the fire is a testament to the unity of the business community in our area. Bergsons gave up their office and their phone with no questions asked, and did their best to cheer the dazed employees who wandered into the store. Autohaus also generously gave us offices and phones.

Bathrooms, cold drinks, and telephones have been in high demand these past weeks, and Bergsons, Autohaus, Papa Ginos, King Jewelers, Mister Donut, Rockland Trust, and the offices at 760 Route 3-A have given these things to us without complaint.

Thank you also to our loyal customers, who have overwhelmed us with their patience and understanding. We always felt that we were very lucky, and these unfortunate circumstances have proven us correct.

Last, but definitely not least, we must express our deep appreciation for the dedication of our staff, and our favorite crew of carpenters, plumbers, and electricians. Everyone has pulled together cheerfully to carry out the enormous amount of exhausting work that we face. Thanks to all of these people it was "business as usual" the day after the fire. It just goes to show what "family" means!!!

In the meantime, it is definitely business as usual at the "Old Stop and Shop" in Tedeschi Plaza (thanks to Tedeschi Realty in our hour of need) until our new store is built.

An answer to Charles DeSantis

To the Editor:

Charles DeSantis may be correct in stating that few lament the demise of the M & E plan.

But that's because citizens were, and remain, misinformed and seem to love the rhetoric that keeps them that way.

The town was stampeded into voting against this golden opportunity (now lost forever) by grossly exaggerated statements about its cost.

My own after-the-fact analyses, widely-distributed in my treatise "The Seven Follies of Cohasset" in July 1984, were as widely-ignored -- even though there must be many others in the town with the experience and capability to confirm my exposé.

Why good sewerage damages the environment escapes me. An ocean outfall of purified water is vastly superior to the mess in many backyards and perhaps a few basements. Limiting growth by denying sewerage has its proponents, of course.

I'm glad my professional career was with the private sector. Municipalities always tend to do it on the cheap the first time -- and then spend and spend and spend to fix what should have been properly sized and properly done in the first place.

At least we have a good water plant -- even though a few still moan about the cost!

State govt. not aggressive enough

(The following letter was signed by 114 Cohasset residents)

To the Editor:

Massachusetts is missing a golden opportunity to save money and the environment by reducing, recycling and composting our trash.

To state it simply, our state government is not being aggressive enough in carrying out and expanding trash reduction, recycling and composting programs, even those developed and proposed during the last three years by Governor Dukakis and Environmental Affairs Secretary James Hoyte. Instead, developers are pushing expensive and environmentally harmful incinerators as the simple answer to communities' need to get rid of mountains of trash.

Reduction, recycling and composting are the cheapest and most environmentally safe methods for disposing of almost all of our solid waste. These methods avoid the toxic air pollution generated by garbage incinerators and the drinking water contamination that can result from landfilling unburned waste or toxic incinerator ash.

Something must be done. That's why we call on our state officers, legislators and local governing bodies to endorse and diligently work to implement MASSPIRG's Solid Waste Action Plan. Built on the foundation of the Governor's plans, the MASSPIRG plan calls for passage of the Packaging Reduction and Recycling Bill (H.1172) to reduce unnecessary and hard-to-dispose-of-packaging, a strict schedule for construction of 12 regional Materials Recycling Facilities (MRF's) to serve all of Massachusetts by 1995, a halt to the construction of new incinerators, and passage of the Toxics Use Reduction Bill (H.5653) to help reduce the amount of toxic materials in our trash.

We congratulate our elected officials who have endorsed MASSPIRG's plan, including: Rep. Murray.

Cary Ward, MASSPIRG

Cohasset Rec. Dept final summer report. . .

The Cohasset Recreation Department office will be closed for vacation during the week of Aug. 29. Facility permits will be issued on Monday and Wednesday, Aug. 29, and 31, from 10 a.m. to noon only.

SOCCER LEAGUE AND CLINICS

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct registration for the fall youth soccer program for boy's and girl's grades K-9, Saturday, Sept. 10, from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at town hall.

Grades K, 1 and 2 will have structured clinics which will be held Saturday mornings, beginning Saturday, Sept. 24, on the front field of Cohasset High School.

Grades 3-9 will be assigned to teams and will play games on Saturday mornings, also beginning Saturday, Sept. 24. Further details will be forth coming during the week of Sept. 5.

Parents who wish to assist coaching should indicate this at the time of registration Saturday, Sept. 10.

VOLUNTEER JUNIOR PLAYGROUND STAFF

Many thanks should go to the Cohasset youth who have volunteered their time this summer, assisting the playground staff. Each of the volunteers made specific time commitments over the seven week program, donating their time and help. The Cohasset Recreation Commission and staff wishes to thank each of them for their services this summer.

They are: Holly Pereira, Jason Whitman, Mark Whitman, Chad Whitman, Tony Royster, Shona McLaughlin, J.C. Parzyck, Jessica MacDonald, Brian Sasso, Robbie Moody, John MacDonald and Laurie Ringer.

SUMMER PLAYGROUND SURVEY

A survey has been sent home through children from the playground program. The survey has been designed to measure the effects of the restructured summer playground program, and it would be appreciated if parents would take a few minutes to complete the questions.

While the survey is an instrument designed to measure, it has also been designed to gather more information from parents regarding future programming, in an effort to meet the dynamic needs of residents.

Aside from specific questions, we are also interested in generating other pertinent data, such as comments, suggestions, ideas, etc. etc. and you should feel free to make detailed comments.

When you complete the survey, you may either drop it off at the recreation office, first floor, town hall, or you may mail it to: CRD-Town Hall, 41 Highland Ave., Cohasset, 02025

The survey may be returned signed or anonymous, whichever you feel most comfortable with. The Recreation Commission thanks you for your anticipated cooperation and the results of the survey will be available to anyone interested.

Some of the major changes in this year's playground program included: rainy day program for all children for usual playground hours, inclusion of three year olds, 1/2 day program, per capita fee charge for special events, activities, trips, etc. increase in the number of special activities and field trips, addition of one more staff member, more volunteer junior staff members, more intense arts and crafts programs, development and utilization of outside resource experts within program, use of parent volunteers to assist with various trips and activities, staff-camper ratio of about 6-1 for the 3 and 4 year olds and 12-1 for the 5-12 year old groups.

The fee for the 1988 playground program was $35, first child in 5-12 year old group, and $25, for second and subsequent children in a family, and $25 for first child in three and four year old group, and $20 for second and subsequent children in a family.

During the course of the summer there were about 18 special activities or trips, requiring a small per capita fee charges.

YOUTH TENNIS PROGRAM

Cohasset Recreation Department tennis staff, Rich Redick and Derek Lacks completed the seven week youth tennis season with a New England Lawn Tennis Association sponsored tournament for their class members.

The results of the NELTA/USTA tourney are: winner: Joey Magner and Mike Cisneros, Finalists: Paul Fougek and Tim Brister and Semifinalists: Sean Norris, Mike Reynolds, Pat Reynolds and Doug Drysdale.

The youth tennis program, under the leadership of Rich and Derek, completed a very successful season under less than ideal weather conditions. Both instructors have received numerous accolades from parents and players alike, and deserve a vote of gratitude from all of us for a very fine job.

BASEBALL CAMP

For the first year, the Cohasset Recreation Department conducted a baseball camp for Cohasset youths. Twenty participants registered for the camp conducted by Scituate High School varsity coach, David Harnett. The program was held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday, from Aug. 1 through Aug. 5.

Because of the success of the baseball camp, the program will be offered for at least one week, and possibly two weeks, again next summer.

SUMMER SOCCER CAMP

Over 70 children have just completed the week long summer soccer camp which was conducted in Cohasset by North American Soccer Camps, Inc. of Connecticut. The staff of North American are all players and coaches of Great Britain. A parent-coaches certification clinic was also conducted by NASC on Monday and Tuesday evenings, of the week of camp. This is the fifth year NASC has been contracted to provide our soccer camp.

Science Center news. . .

The first September nature walk will explore the Charles W. Monahan Reservation, a wonderfully picturesque piece of land owned by the Science Center. Located in Marshfield, the Monahan Reservation lies along the banks of the South River and contains a variety of natural habitats. Monahan's stately upland forest provides some of the largest yellow birches on the South Shore. Participants will hike the trail through this forest down to the brackish tidal marshes of the South River, searching the area for its diverse flora and fauna. This leisurely walk is designed for folks of all ages, on Sept. 7, 10 a.m. to noon. Members free; non-members $4. Meet at the Science Center. Call 659-2559 for further details.

MARS OPEN HOUSE

In September, the planet Mars will be the nearest to earth that is has been in the last 17 years. As a result, sky-watchers will have an excellent opportunity to observe this planet. Weather permitting, there is a good possibility that even the Martian polar ice caps will be visible through a strong telescope.

To celebrate this celestial event, the Science Center and the South Shore Astronomical Society will host an open house at the Science Center on Friday, Sept. 9, beginning at 8 p.m. Raindate will be Saturday, Sept. 10.

So. Shore Auto Parts moves ahead

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

South Shore Auto Parts opened up the Scituate-Cohasset Men's Softball championship finals August 22, defeating defending champion McCarthy's Masonry, 11-4, in the first game of the best three-out-of-five series.

Paul Croke got things rolling for South Shore Auto Parts quickly when he belted a three-run homer. Defensively, the fleeting shortstop also threw out a runner at the plate in the third inning and, in the fourth, he snatched a liner off the bat of Matt Nelson (the starting pitcher for McCarthy's Masonry), thus excaping further damage from the home team.

From there, SSAP blew the contest wide open, scoring four runs in the fifth. The decisive blow was a two-out, two-run double by left fielder Paul Conroy. One pitch earlier, Ralph Froio knocked in Mike Snow with a run-producing single.

In the sixth, Brian Donovan, the big burly first baseman, slugged a two-run double, providing his club the final runs of the night.

Paul Kent went the distance to gain the victory. He also helped his own cause by delivering a RBI single in front of a diving Chris Stone in the fifth. Stone insisted he made the catch, but the home plate umpire ruled it was a trap.

Scott Bearce was the offensive star for McCarthy's Masonry with two runs batted in. Third baseman Mickey McCarthy almost picked up an inside-the-park home run in the fourth, but Croke's toss to catcher Steve Donovan from short outfield nailed the runner at the plate.

The first three games of the series will be played this week. If necessary, the fourth game is scheduled for tomorrow night (August 26.) The fifth and deciding game should take place next week (most likely, Monday August 29.) Moreover, all of the games are played at Central School field, beginning at 6:15.

Right to Life endorses Bush

Massachusetts Citizens For Life is delighted with George Bush's choice of Indiana Senator Dan Quayle as his running mate.

Ruth Pakaluk, President of Mass. Citizens For Life, says "Bush's selection of Quayle as a running mate makes the Republican Ticket as pro-life as the Democratic Ticket is pro-abortion."

Quayle's consistent pro-life convictions are similar to those of his running mate, George Bush, she said. Quayle has served in the Senate since 1981, has a solid pro-life voting record, and is a strong supporter of a human life amendment.

Right-to-lifers take particular pride in the choice of Senator Quayle for Vice President having helped Quayle run on a strong pro-life platform to defeat veteran pro-abortion Senator Birch Bayh in 1981, Pakaluk said.

According to Pakaluk "It is gratifying to see a Senator who gained office with the help of pro-lifers now nominated for the Vice Presidency of the United States."

Studds fishing bill on president's desk

Before adjourning for the Republican Convention, the Senate today passed legislation to significantly upgrade commercial fishing vessel safety.

The bill is identical to one introduced in the House of Representatives by U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds and passed by the House in June. This legislation now goes to the White House for the President's signature.

The legislation mandates federal safety standards for all commercial fishing vessels. Under the bill, small inshore boats must be equipped with fire extinguishers, life preservers, and flares.

Documented vessels operating in federal waters or larger vessels with more than 16 people on board will be required to carry life rafts, safety or immersion suits, radio equipment, nagivation equipment, medicine chests and other safety equipment.

The most stringent safety regulaitons will apply to vessels with more than 16 crewmembers and built after December 31, 1988, with requirements such as proper radars, lifesaving and firefighting equipment, ventilation and electrical systems, as well as bilge pumps and alarms.

In addition, the bill mandates new regulations, starting in 1990, to govern the operating stability of vessels. The Coast Guard and National Transportation Safety Board believe this requirement will help prevent needless sinkings of boats outfitted or loaded in an unsafe manner.

"Commercial fishing is the most dangerous industry in the country," Studds said. "This new law should go a long way toward saving lives lost each year in unnecessary acidents on the water."

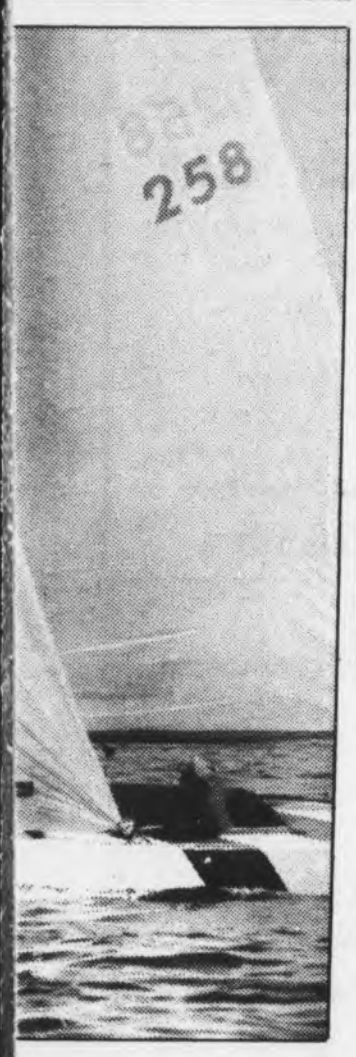
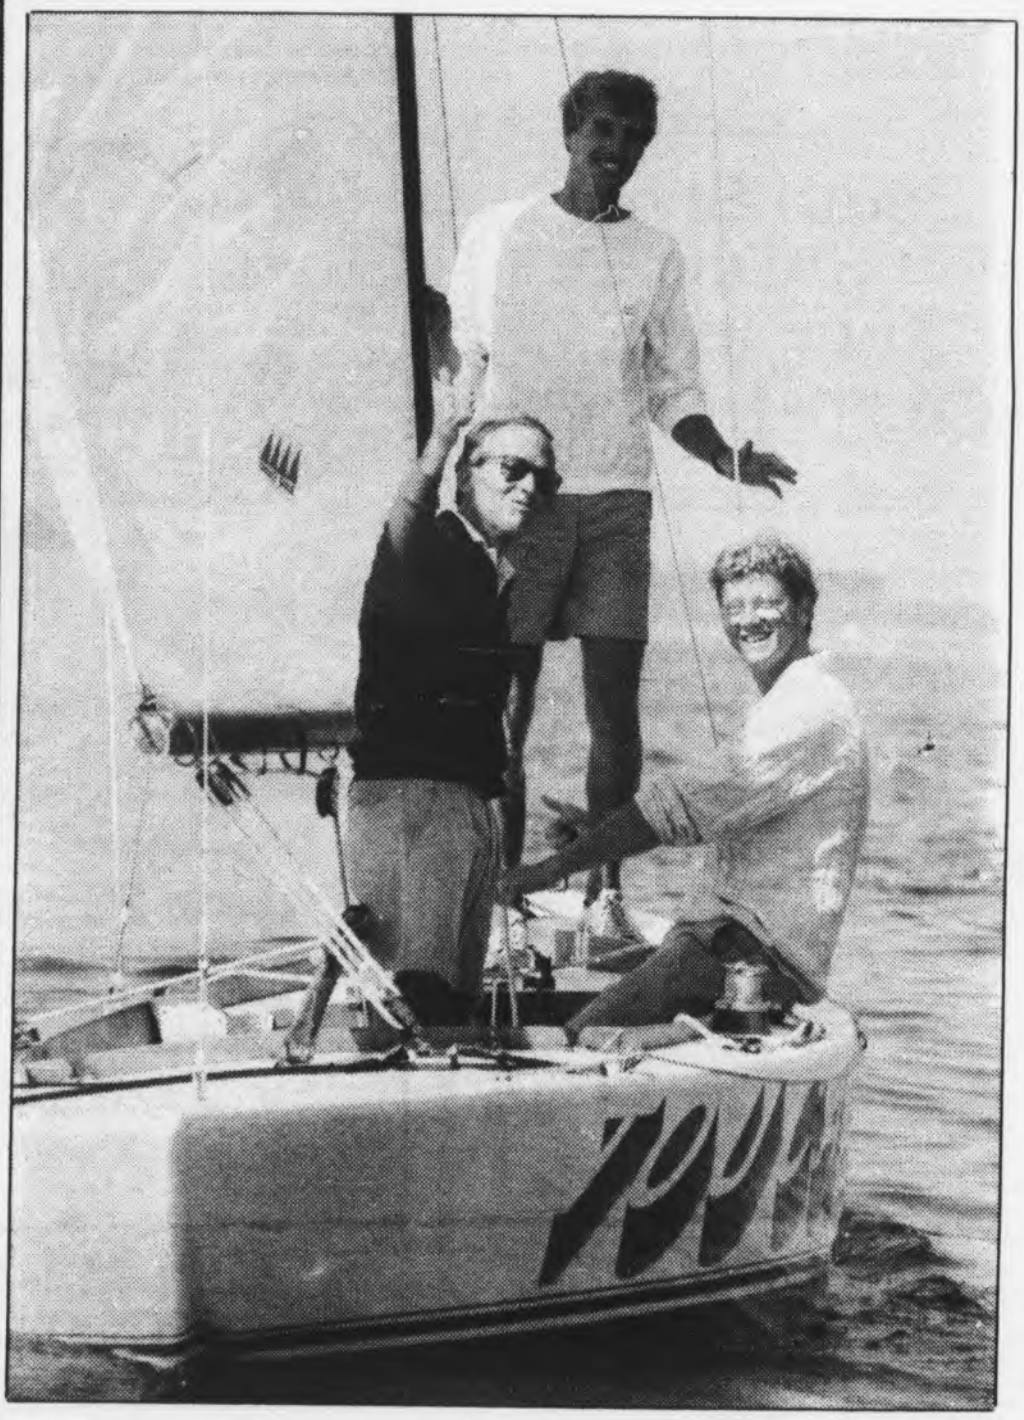
enthusiasts sail triumphantly Cohasset Harbor for a test



Here are scenes from the National 210 Championship held Aug. 20 - Aug. 23 off Cohasset Harbor. The crews ranged from all over the United States with the most recognizable being Tom Hamilton (below) giving the thumbs up sign. Wind conditions did have an effect on the race.



Photos by Chris Edwards

The 210 regatta

with Hingham, Scituate and Cohasset Yacht Clubs participated in the four-day, eight-race competition.

Incidentally, Cohasset is no stranger to the nationals. In fact, the last time they hosted this event was seven years ago.

"This big fleet is evidence that the 210 is beginning to grow again," said Regatta Chairman and CYC member Diarmuid O'Connell, who won the afternoon race August 22.

"As a matter of fact, this is considered the best Mass. Bay Sailing Fleet and ironically, most of them are from Cohasset. Many prominent Cohasset citizens, including F. Gregg Bemis (a three-time winner—1954, 1956 and 1957), have kept the tradition alive."

The International 210 championships began August 20 and ended August 23. Two races were held daily off Cohasset Harbor(two miles away from the yacht club.) The morning race took approximately two hours to complete the seven-mile course, while the afternoon race required more time and precision because it was a 13-mile bearing.

"This is a renowned event to host. This is a very important, competitive and premier sailing event. The Cohasset Yacht Club is a great club to sponsor this race.

"It has a lot of experience," said Tom Hamilton, who appeared in his eighth national. "I have come very close of winning this during that period (recording a second-place finish twice). I truly believe that, in order to win this event, it takes 80 percent of proper preparation."

All of the boats were submitted with the same design and length (29' 10".) Moreover, the minimum weight of each vessel had to total 2,300 pounds.

Meanwhile, some of the out-of-state entrants stayed in the homes of various yacht club members.

The 210 Nationals concluded with an Awards Banquet at Kimball's Motor Lodge By-the-Sea immediately following the final race of the tournament.

The banquet was shifted to accommodate the many potential contestants who could not spare the extra time away (the original play was to have the the banquet August 27.)

A little bit of nostalgia occurred in the four-day affair when the first 210 ever comprised, competed in the race. Sarah Leggat is the proud owner of this ancient vessel. Being the oldest sailboat, the regatta committee decideu to give Leggat the honorary number one.

The 210 Nationals will be held next year in Milwaukee, WI. As expected, most CYC members indicated that they will make the long journey to the host site, especially Schulz, who is a Milwaukee native.

The race was sponsored by Miller Beer, Hendries Ice Cream, Timberland Shoes, Patagonia Inc., an outdoor sportswear company, Beck's Beer and Cressey Sailmakers of Marblehead.

Prepare for storms before they hit!

Food

Water

Medical Supplies

Cooking

Lighting

Radio

Auxiliary Heating

Eastern Utilities
Eastern Edison

Major storms may cause interruptions to your electric service. Should a storm hit, you can be prepared.

Have an adequate stock of storm-emergency supplies on hand. And check them periodically for usefulness.

Here are some "must have" items:

Food...Have canned and packaged foods that need no refrigeration. They should be non-perishable foods that need little or no preparation. If you have an infant, keep several days supply of formula.

You can extend the life of perishable foods by turning the controls of your refrigerator and freezer to the coldest position before the storm hits. And food stored in a freezer will stay frozen longer if you keep the door closed as much as possible. Should the food defrost, some foods can be cooked then refrozen once the electric service is restored. During winter storms, you can use a picnic cooler outside your home to preserve frozen foods.

And don't forget your manual can opener.

Water...Clean, sealable containers such as one gallon, plastic milk containers should be filled with tap water in case your electric water pump or area water supply is affected.

Bathtubs and sinks can also be filled. This should be enough for cooking, drinking and washing until your service is restored. Also, you can flush a toilet by pouring water into the bowl.

Medical Supplies...You should have a complete first-aid kit with an instruction manual. You should also have an adequate supply of prescription drugs or dietary needs that family members may need on a daily basis.

Cooking...If you have a fireplace or a woodstove, it can be used for cooking. If not, gas barbeque grills or campstoves will do. But they should be used only in open and well ventilated areas — NEVER in your home, for safety's sake. Charcoal stoves must also be used in well ventilated areas; never indoors. Burning charcoal releases carbon monoxide — a deadly poison.

And every home should have at least one fire extinguisher. Check them regularly to make certain they have not lost their charge.

Lighting...Camper lanterns and battery-operated lights are safer than candles. Keep one flashlight handy for each member of your household. And keep an adequate stock of fresh batteries in stock.

Butane and oil lanterns are useful. But you need to store the fuel in a safe place.

Radio...A battery-operated, portable radio may be the only way you can get up-to-date information on what's going on during and after a serious storm.

Auxiliary Heating...Some type of heater is essential in the event of an outage during a winter storm. If you have a fireplace or wood stove, keep an emergency supply of dry firewood on hand.

A UL approved electric generator is an alternative. Since there must be no connection between our lines and your generator, it should be installed by a licensed electrician and inspected by your municipal wiring inspector. An improperly wired generator could endanger your life and that of your neighbors and emergency workers.

If your home heating system is down for an extended period due to a winter storm, drain your water pipe and traps. Remember to shut off the main water valve to prevent flooding when the power is restored.

A Final Note...Be sure to disconnect or turn off all other lights and appliances that would go on automatically when your electricity is restored. This includes your furnace, water heater and water pump. But leave one light switched to the "on" position so that you'll know when your electric service is restored.

Remember to stay away from fallen wires!

Oral health tips

Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs Secretary Paul J. Lanzikos reminds elders of the importance of good oral health.

"Often, older adults ignore an important part of health – oral health," said Lanzikos. "Part of feeling good and enjoying an active lifestyle means being responsible for proper dental hygiene. The Massachusetts Dental Society recommends following a program that includes daily oral care, nutritious meals, and regular dental visits."

The Massachusetts Dental Society can provide information and tips on good dental hygiene. The society's speaker's bureau has individuals who will speak to groups of elders free of charge. A slide show on good oral health and nutrition practices is also available.

Modern dentistry can assist elders in maintaining bright, healthy smiles. The Massachusetts Dental Society offers the following tips to elders:

Although root surface decay is prevalent among older adults, flouride prevalent among older adults, flouride products and new bonding techniques can help protect teeth.

Artificial salivas are now available to alleviate dry mouth caused by medical conditions or certain medications.

Adaptive devices such as extenders for toothbrush handles and specially designed floss holders can help individuals afflicated with arthritis, stroke or other medical conditions.

If conventional dentures do not function adequately, you may qualify for a dental permanently attaches replacement teeth to the gums or jawbone.

By practicing proper dental care, you can help your digestive system, your comfort, your overall health. For more information, call Ms. Peg Polland at the Massachusetts Dental Society between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at 1-800-342-8747.

New Friend to Friend coordinator

Melissa Gerry of Cohasset, the new Friend to Friend program coordinator, has more than 10 years' experience working with children. She has been an early childhood teacher, and activity therapist, an art instructor, a volunteer for a crisis hotline, and has read stories to children with leukemia at the Children's Hospital in Boston.

She has entrepreneurial experience organizing and establishing two community-oriented businesses: one, an art and consignment gift shop called The Main Artery; the other, a flea market in Kingston. She is completing a bachelor of arts degree in Adult Training in Human Services this year at the College of Community and Public Service at the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

Melissa is enthused about the Friend to Friend program and invites the participation of those who have a little extra time to make a difference in a child's life.

To become an older companion, call Melissa at the Friend to Friend office, 925-2975.

Latter-Day Saints celebration

When members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints of 379 Gardner Street, Hingham, invited Mary Jeanette Murray (State Representative for Hingham, Hull and Cohasset) to their 20th Anniversary celebration, they did not expect to receive a citation in their honor from the House of Representatives nor a flag of the Commonwealth to be flown on their new flagpole.

Mrs. Murray made presentation at the Saturday afternoon flagpole dedication and ice cream social that started off the church's two-day celebration.

The present LDS chapel and meetinghouse was dedicated in the summer of 1968 in the residential section of Hingham near Accord Pond, with members drawn from some 15 surrounding towns.

Since then the facility has been expanded to include a gymnasium-cultural hall, new kitchen and extra classrooms. Both women's and men's basketball is a part of the church's fitness program.

And "road shows", held annually, are a project for youth and adults working together.

As the Hingham Ward (congregation) has grown in numbers, it has been divided twice, once, to form the Brockton Branch, then again to form the West Bridgewater Ward, all part of the larger ecclesiastic unit called the Hingham Stake.

In the 350-member church, with its lay clergy, Bishop Bradley K. Johnson, noted growth in the church is through conversion and new Mormon residents to the South Shore.

St. Stephen's Church

ELECTION FOR SUFFRAGAN BISHOP

Nominees for Suffragan Bishop will be introduced to the Diocese on the South Shore at Christ Church in Plymouth on Saturday, Sept. 10 at 10 a.m. The nominees are the Rev. Canon Burgess Carr, the Very Rev. Denise Haines, and the Reverends Barbara Harris, Paul Schwenzfeier, and George Welles, Jr.

A special diocesan convention will be held on September 24 to elect a suffragan bishop who is an assistant to our Diocesan Bishop, David Johnson.

BISHOP OTIS CHARLES TO PREACH

The Rt. Rev. Otis Charles, Dean of the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, will preach on Sunday, Sept. 11. Dean Charles will speak of the important relationship bertween the church and its seminaries, and will be able to offer a direct report on the national church's General Convention, which was held in Detroit this summer. St. Stephen's gives one percent of its budget in support of theological education at the Episcopal Divinity School.

ORGAN RECITAL

Robert Barney, organist and choir director, will offer a special organ recital at St. Stephen's on Friday evening, September 23. The organ at St. Stephen's was built by the Aeolian-Skinner Company of Boston. It has 3,108 pipes in 52 ranks with 57 speaking "stops." Robert Barney is a very accomplished recitalist.

SEPTEMBER COURSE ON CREATIVE DIALOGUE

How does one work through divergent viewpoints which frequently occur with family and friends, in church committees and town meetings, and in the work place? How does one contribute to mutual understanding? Key concepts of creative dialogue will be presented and discussed. Workship dates are: Saturday, Sept. 17 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 21 & 28 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and Sunday, Sept. 25 and Oct. 2 from 3 to 5 p.m.

BIBLE STUDY NEEDED

One of the themes in the controversy around the movie "Last Temptation of Christ" is that people do not know their Bible and may be given a wrong view of Jesus. There is a great need today for a solid grounding in Scripture.

Beginning Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 8 p.m., a 35-session in-depth Bible study program using material from the Kerygma Bible Study method will be offered. The purpose will not be to teach you everything that is in the Bible, but to give the necessary tolls to use the Bible intelligently and with spiritual depth. Register with the Rector. There is an $18 charge for materials.

Other Bible study classes take place regularly on Sundays at 9:15 a.m. and Wednesdays at 10:30 a.m.

DEDICATION OF MARY-MARTHA LEARNING CENTER

Sunday, September 11 at 2 p.m. will celebrate the first successful year of operation of the Quincy Crisis Center's Mary-Martha Learning Center at 1045 Main Street in Hingham.

All are invited to attend the ceremonies at the center, which will be formally dedicated at this time. Come and see how the results of our support and a lot of hard work have made a difference in the lives of the young mothers with babies who are trying to become self-sufficient.

Mormon scholars

It's off to an early start for ten young people who leave this week for studies at Brigham Young University.

The Mormon college, located in Provo, Utah, is the largest privately run university in the United States with 26,000 students, and with a separate campus in Hawaii.

Three of the young people are enrolled in a Studies Abroad program in Jerusalem and London.

Holly Garrison of Hingham left a few weeks ago for England and Susan Edmunds of Duxbury plans to join her there next semester.

Leslie Woodbury of Cohasset and Karen Twomey of Marshfield will be heading for a semester at the BYU Jerusalem Center in Israel. They are the first from the South Shore to attend this new facility.

All of the students are members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, located on Gardner Street in Hingham. Others are: Kim Arkell, Wade Garrison, Clint McGrath, of Hingham; Jennifer Dresser and Robert Edmunds of Duxbury; Marc Mangum of Norwell; and Steve Morrison of Weymouth.

A new level of achievement for budding artists

"I now have the confidence to show my work to others," seems to be the consensus of opinion of four art students who have just completed the requirements to earn the South Shore Art Center Certificate of Drawing and Painting.

The Center, at 119 Ripley Rd. in Cohasset, offers a program of study which leads one to earn this certificate, a level of achievement the current graduates see as a step toward becoming exhibiting artists.

Linda Keating, the Center's director of education, will award, in a formal ceremony at 3 p.m. Sept. 11, certificates to Joyce Webster of Braintree, Jean Armin of Cohasset, Jane Zooleck of Hingham and Barbara Lawler of Hull.

Each of the women agreed that the intensity of the certificate program has helped them to refine their artistic skills and has challenged them to grow to new heights in their art.

"And from this I have gained a confidence in myself and my work that I can now show my work to others," which all four identified as a major benefit of the program.

For an artist to bare her work to others "takes a tremendous amount of confidence in yourself and in your talent and this I achieved through the pressures and expectations of the Center's instructors," Armin said.

The certificate program requires students to complete ten required courses including ones in drawing, color and design, painting, anatomical drawing, three-dimensional and art history plus an additional six courses of electives.

The requirements must be completed within four years although a student may petition for an extension. Keating equates the certificate program to that of a college art major in that "it gives a good sound basis in the visual art skills."

All the courses are taught by instructors who are working artists in their respective fields and several of whom are college instructors as well. Keating further explained that many of the Center courses have been approved for college credit through the Massachusetts College of Art Continuing Education Department "which allows our students to earn credit hours for their Art Center courses.

The four current graduates see the certificate program as a force which kept them working at their art and continually improving their ability. Each found the structured atmosphere of the program kept them moving along rather than becoming sidetracked by incidental interests.

Barbara Lawler said the program helps an artist to build a good portfolio of work which as Joyce Webster added is the beginning for becoming an accepted gallery artist member of the South Shore Art Center.

Jurying for artist membership is done twice a year at the Center and "to be juried in as a gallery artist is one of my goals," said Jane Zooleck, who paints landscapes and now feels more comfortable working with the fast drying mediums, acrylics and watercolors.

"You can take your watercolors everywhere," Zooleck added which means for her she can take her paints on trips and always be ready to paint.

Zooleck started the certificate program with the drawing courses which "I needed in order to loosen up my approach to painting," she said. Armin on the other hand started with Louise Kalish's Color and Design course and "it blew my imagination wide open. Louise gave me the confidence to experiment broadly and the courage to trust my ideas," she said.

All four agreed that the center instructors are very encouraging and "they have taught us how to accept criticism and to go on from there," the students said. Each agreed that they feel much better prepared for rejection and can learn from such experiences. "I also have the confidence in my art to know, that while not everyone may like what I do, that it is still good," Zooleck added.

For the four students, the hardest hurdle to overcome was completing the requirements for the independent art history project which requires a formal presentation based on a specific period in history, a specific artist or a specific style. Thinking about the art history course was worse than the actual course itself, they all agreed.

Each student found that once she began her project, "you became caught up in the material and found that you were going into greater detail than you expected," Armin added. She traced the influence of the medium of collage on the visual arts through the different periods and she credited Beverly Stanley, the instructor for the art history course, as the one who gave her the momentum to develop this project.

The Certificate Program is open to anyone no matter what his/her background may be in the visual arts. It is a program that was originally conceived by the center's former director Margaret Dillon as a way of encouraging students to keep reaching for new levels in their work.

Armin, who has been around the center since the inception of the program, believes she would never have developed her abilities without a structured program to force her to reach to new heights in her art.

And at the same time the program offers a nurturing atmosphere for students to gain the confidence they need to respect their own artistic abilities.

The center's education director invites interested students to sit down with her and discuss the program of study required for the Certificate. The formal presentation to the graduates and an exhibit of their work is scheduled for the Center's fall open house Sunday, Sept. 11 from 3 to 5 p.m. with the graduation ceremony occurring at 3 p.m.

Obituaries

Gregory T. Sullivan

A funeral mass was celebrated Monday in St. Anthony's Church for Gregory T. Sullivan, 52, of Cohasset, who died Aug. 19, in the Lahey Clinic, Burlington, after a short illness.

Burial was in Groveland Cemetery, Scituate.

Mr. Sullivan was a Norfolk County assistant district attorney from 1972 to 1975.

He practiced law in Brookline and Boston, and volunteered for Project Free, a legal service for poor people.

Mr. Sullivan was also president of Preferred Realty, Brookline.

A 1953 graduate of St. Sebastian High School, Newton, he was graduated summa cum laude from Providence College in 1957.

He attended the University of Vienna during his junior year, and was a Fulbright scholar at Johann Wolfgang Goethe University, Frankfurt, Germany from 1957 to 1958.

Mr. Sullivan was graduated cum laude from Suffolk University Law School in 1971.

He was a member of the American, Massachusetts, Norfolk and Boston Bar Associations, and the Institute of European Studies, Boston.

He is survived by his wife, Diane (Marks) Sullivan; three sons, Gregory T. Sullivan Jr., of Seattle, Wa., Thomas Sullivan of Wellesley Hills, and Matthew Sullivan of Cohasset; two daughters, Mary Sullivan of Winthrop and Barbara Sullivan of Newton; a brother, Brian M. Sullivan of Duxbury; and four sisters, Eileen M. Todd of Natick, Dr. Regina M. Todd of Worcester, and Dorothy M. Manton of Cohasset.

Funeral arrangements were by Gaffey Funeral Home, 757 Country Way, North Scituate Village.

Donations may be made to the American Red Cross, 99 Brookline Ave., Boston, 02215.

Henry B. Kennedy

A funeral Mass was celebrated Aug. 19, at St. Anthony's Church for Henry B. Kennedy, 93, of Cohasset, who died Aug. 17, at the Del Manor Nursing Home, Rockland.

Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Mr. Kennedy was an electrician for Boston Edison Co. for 15 years and a former Cohasset police officer.

He was also past commander of the George H. Mealey American Legion Post.

Born in Cohassset, he graduated from Cohasset High School in 1917 and joined the Army.

Mr. Kennedy served in Company K of the 101st Infantry in the World War I battles of Chemin-Des Dames, Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihiel Meuse Argonne and Verdun.

He was the only remaining member of the 26th division from Cohasset.

Mr. Kennedy was an electrician at the Fore River Shipyard, Quincy, during World War II, and also worked at the Navy Ammunition Depot, Hingham, before he retired in 1964.

A member of the Cohasset 60 Plus Club, he was a volunteer and a communicant at St. Anthony's Church.

He is survived by his wife, Eleanor (Whitney) Kennedy; a son, Donald B. Kennedy, both of Cohasset; and a sister, Ruth Campbell of California.

Funeral arrangements were by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St.

Donations may be made to the Cohasset Historical Society, Cohasset, Ma., 02025.

Science Center news. . .

On Sunday, Sept. 11, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., the Science Center will sponsor a canoe trip on the historic Charles River. Although most associate this river with the urban sprawl of Boston and Cambridge, the upper Charles is extremely picturesque. The group will put in in Medfield and canoe to the South Natick Dam, discussing the human and natural history of this waterway along the way. The host, professional guide Russell Sears, has led numerous trips on the Charles River, and is full of fascinating, fun information. The Science Center will supply all equipment, canoes, paddles, and life preservers. Bring a picnic lunch. Some canoeing experience is needed. Please note the raindate, Sept. 18, on your calendar. Canoes are limited to three adults, or two adults and two children. (Members, $18 Adults, $15 Children; Non-Members, $24 Adults, $20 Children). Special rates if you supply your own canoe! Please call 659-2559 for further information.

ENERGY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Teaming-up

This is simple.

If you Team up with Eastern Edison Company, then you'll save money.

How? By using less electricity. Eastern Edison will help you buy or install energy-efficient equipment and material.

Why are we doing this?

Because our region is facing a continuing electric-capacity problem. The demand for electricity is very high — almost higher than our capacity to generate it.

So — it helps us if you use less. And it will also help you.

We want your participation — and we've made these programs very attractive. They're flexible, efficient, common-sense ways to use electricity. And they'll save you money.

Here are the Teaming-up programs for 1988:

For our residential customers

WRAP - Electric Water Heating Conservation Program
At no cost to you, we will insulate your electric water heater and hot-water pipe and install water-saving showerheads. You'll still get all the hot water you need — but it will cost less!.

WAT41 - Electric Water Heater Conversion to Rate 41
If you let us rewire your water heater so that it doesn't run during the hours of peak demand for electricity, we will bill you at a lower rate. We'll do it all for free — and you will save money.

FILTER - Swimming Pool Energy Management Program
New for 1988! — We will pay you up to $40 during the summer months if you let us set the time-clock on your swimming pool filter so that the filter does not operate during the hours when the demand for electricity is greatest. There'll be no decrease in the quality of the water — and you'll save money!

AIRCON - Air Conditioner Incentive Program
Also new for 1988! — We'll give your contractor rebates for installing efficient central cooling equipment. You'll save money on efficient air-conditioner equipment and your electric bill.

And — we also have money-saving programs for our commercial and industrial customers as well!

For more information on Eastern Edison's Teaming-up Program, simply fill out the form below and mail it to:

Cohasset Mariner

Vol. X, No. 49 | Thursday, September 1, 1988 | 1-800-874-6969 | 50 cents

Developer sues town over plaza denial

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

Local developer Donald Staszko has filed a lawsuit against the planning board and the building inspector, saying an Aug. 3 vote on his plans to build a 12-store plaza was not a legal decision.

The developer plans to construct a 12-store mall at Cohasset Plaza on Rte. 3A on property adjacent to the Super Stop and Shop. After a series of public hearings, the plan resulted in a split vote by the board members who attended the Aug. 3 meeting.

Atty. Charles Humphreys, representing the trustees of Cohasset Development Trust and Sohier Street Realty Trust, said the board must take final action on the plans, as specified in the zoning bylaw. "Their options are to either approve the plan, approve the plan with conditions, or deny the plan. They did not do that," he said.

By virtue of the split vote, the planning board did not take proper action on the plan within the statutory limitation of 75 days of the filing of an application. Therefore, site plan approval must be granted, Atty. Humphreys explained.

When Staszko applied for a building permit for the project last week, Building Inspector Donald Robbins requested a legal opinion on that vote

(See page 7)

Selectmen go in reverse: no action on Old Salt House

Selectmen reversed themselves this week and have decided not to pursue an eminent domain taking of the Old Salt House on Cohasset Harbor.

Selectmen originally voted several weeks ago to begin the process to take the antique structure and wharf by eminent domain. And although two remain in favor of that action, three selectmen voted this week to reverse their original decision.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby suggested the procedure be halted since the sale of the property has been finalized. Although she originally supported the eminent domain process, Gjesteby said it was a consideration made before the sale was completed.

The conservation trust, proprietors of the harbor property for more than 10 years, sold the building to Atlantic Avenue resident Thomas

Happy memories from Souppes

By Nancy McLaughlin

There may be no place like home. But two young women from Cohasset and one from a small town in France feel they have found the next best thing in a cultural exchange program.

"I'm very comfortable in France. I fit in," said Celia Mullen, 17, of South Main St., who recently returned from four weeks in Souppes sur Loing, Cohasset's sister town in France.

"We had such a good time, from beginning to end," said Julia Atkinson, 22, of Elm St., who visited Souppes last summer and stayed with the family of Benedicte Ballot, 21, who is now visiting in Cohasset.

"I like the United States a lot," said Ballot. "For me, it is wonderful. Everything I see is beautiful."

The summertime visits were arranged by the cultural exchange committees in Souppes and Cohasset.

The four-year-old Cohasset committee is voluntary and appointed by selectmen, explained Lee Jenkins of Jerusalem Road, former chairman.

There are no requirements for the exchange program, which is open to residents of all ages, according to Jenkins.

"Just open-mindedness and a desire to learn and understand," she said.

"A spirit of adventure also helps, as does a great deal of stamina."

The School Bell Tolls For Thee

The school bell will toll Thursday, Sept. 8 for most Cohasset students.

The seventh grade students are the exception this year. They will begin September 7 with an orientation program that begins at 9 a.m. until noon at the high school.

The first day will be a full day of school for all students. Lunch will be served.

All three schools will be on the same schedule as last year.

Kindergarten classes will also begin Sept. 8.

Housing information for seniors

September 14 at 10 a.m. Senator William B. Golden will present a video film on the many benefits of a new law which allows senior citizens and qualified disabled people to protect their home from bankruptcy seizure.

To receive such protection, the elderly or disabled person must file a "Declaration of Homestead Protection" with the Registry of Deeds. Disabled persons have to show proof that they are unable to work or "engage in substantial gainful employment."

The program will be held at the Cohasset Senior Center, 3 North Main Street. Seating will be limited, so call today at 383-9112.

In addition, Henry Stowers, housing specialist from South Shore Elder Services of Braintree will present up-to-date information on housing arrangements and new housing options. He will explain how the Consumer Housing Information Service operates for senior residents.

The discussion will be held at 11 a.m. Sept. 14 at the senior center.

Landfill report

State Environmental Affairs Secretary James Hoyte has ordered a complete environmental impact report on Cohasset Heights Ltd.'s plans to expand.

Owners of the commercial landfill have applied for permission from the state to expand the operation into a 27-acre site. In response, several municipal boards and committees requested that an environmental report be filed by the owners.

The board of health and the conservation commission in Hingham added their concerns to those expressed by Cohasset town officials.

Secretary Hoyte ordered an environmental study of the landfill's leachate problems, location of wetlands, odor sources and the impact of building a recycling and composting center at the landfill.

The landfill was recently ordered by the court to stop taking general refuse and to accept only demolition debris which was allowed under the landfill's original permit with the town. Following the environmental report, the landfill must still acquire expansion approval from the local board of health and the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

State sewer funds

Although Cohasset has been told there is no more state money, the sewer commission has applied for available federal money for its proposed wastewater treatment project.

The local sewer commission rushed off a letter to the state Division of Water Pollution Control, expressing Cohasset's continued interest in obtaining up to 55 percent federal grant money.

According to DWPC Director Thomas McMahon, the rush for federal money is on, because "it is doubtful that EPA grants to municipalities will be available after October 1, 1988."

On July 13, McMahon wrote a letter to the Cohasset Sewer Commission, informing them that state funds for wastewater projects had been depleted. The only alternative, he stated in that letter, would be to reinstate Cohasset's interest in obtaining the state money, and hope that legislation allocating more money for such projects is successful.

Sewer commissioner Ted Guild responded to McMahon's Aug. 12 letter by noting Cohasset's continued interest in claiming the full federal grant amount for its planned wastewater project.

Cohasset voters had approved borrowing $2.2 million for the project that would extend sewer service to 435 homes while the town connects into the Hull wastewater treatment facility. The town had expected to receive about $2. 6 million from the state and about $2.2 million from the EPA.

"Depending on the status of state aid, we shall modify our wastewater project as appropriate in consideration of the overall availability of state and federal funds," commissioner Guild wrote. After Cohasset was informed about the depletion of state funds, the commissioners stopped all engineering work on the project, and have attempted to scale down the project in response to the reduced funding.

Beach pollution survey

Health Agent Joseph Godzik filled out a beach pollution survey for Sen. William Golden's office, noting that the largest source of pollution along the coast is the overflow discharge from the wastewater treatment facilities in Boston Harbor.

In the survey, Dr. Godzik noted that on two occasions in July, sandy Beach was closed because of high fecal coliform bacterial counts. Sandy Cove and the Cove were also closed on one occasion.

Sandy Beach was closed because of out-of-town pollution source, which Dr. Godzik concluded was caused by Boston Harbor sewer overflows during the rainy days in July. Although the town is working to construct a wastewater treatment plan, the project has been stalled because of a depletion of state money.

Beach pollution in Cohasset will be solved by a continuation of the Cohasset-Hull wastewater treatment plan, increased testing of the bathing water in Cohasset which is unlikely due to budget constraints, and continued repairs to failing septic systems along the water.

The health agent also noted that the Boston Harbor sewage overflows experienced in July probably occur in other seasons but are not detected because no one is on the beaches during those times.

Cohasset's week . . .

Senior van destroyed

A fire which firefighters believe started in the electrical system, severely damaged the senior shuttle van early Tuesday morning.

The vehicle, driven by volunteer Carol Martin of North Main Street, was travelling to 60 Elm Street to transport several residents to the senior center, 3 North Main St.

As she approached the area where the passengers were waiting, Martin noticed smoke coming from the engine of the van. She turned off the heater in the vehicle and then noticed flames shooting from underneath the hood of the van. Instead of picking up the residents, she turned the van back down the hill from 60 Elm Street and toward the rear of the fire station. She jumped out of the van and the fire was extinguished by firefighters.

Police Chief Joseph Kealey praised Martin for her quick action, saying the driver acted responsibly and correctly by refusing to pick up the waiting passengers. "Who knows what would have happened if she had a van load of senior citizens at the time," he said.

The van has been towed to a local service station, but authorities believe the vehicle is a total loss.

Senior center director Kathy Bryanton said there were less than 10,000 miles on the 1986 vehicle. It is used six days a week to transport senior residents to and from shopping and doctor appointments. In addition, the van transports residents to monthly shopping trips in Braintree and Hanover.

Many of the 55 volunteer senior shuttle drivers have offered to drive residents to their appointments in privately-owned cars. If anyone does have an appointment, they are advised to contact the senior center so that transportation can be arranged.

In the meantime, Bryanton is working with local agencies and South Shore Elder Services to provide interim transporation.

Curtis estate progress

Joseph McElroy, a member of the Curtis Estate Action Committee, informed selectmen Monday night that despite their efforts to delay a court hearing, it has been scheduled for Sept. 15.

The action committee submitted a site development plan for the Jerusalem Road property currently owned by a board of trustees who intend to sell the 55-acre property for private development. The action committee proposes that the existing structures be used for low and affordable housing units, and for housing for the handicapped and retarded.

The housing authority, selectmen and the fair housing committee have endorsed the committee's plans, along with District Attorney William Delahunt. The key to the success of the plan, McElroy said, is an endorsement by the Executive Office of Communities and Development.

Although the fair housing committee has attempted to schedule a meeting with EOCD officials, it has not yet been successful, he said. Their endorsement of the project is an "essential ingredient in assuring the success to our proposal," McElroy stated.

The housing authority's consultant views the Curtis land as an "excellent" choice for low and affordable housing, although that is not his first choice, McElroy stated. The sewer commission has also endorsed the use of the property, saying that on-site septic systems would be appropriate on that property. They recently added their support to the CAC's plans, noting they "best serve the expressed charitable purpose of the George E. Curtis will."

Selectmen endorse latest EOCD agreement

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

"Are you sure we haven't signed this before?" Selectman James Gallagher joked as board members signed the latest version of the town's affordable housing agreement.

Taking a pen to the document which was hand delivered to the state house Tuesday morning, Gallagher added, "I don't believe it."

"You better believe it," replied Selectman Rocco Laugelle.

Selectmen unanimously supported and signed the agreement Monday night which was sent the next morning to the Executive Office of Communities and Development. Housing authority member Fred Koed personally delivered it to EOCD Asst. Secretary Joseph Flatley.

The housing authority members signed the document Aug. 23 and the planning board supported the agreement at its Aug. 17 meeting.

For three years, the town has attempted to negotiate an affordable housing agreement that would place the town in compliance with Executive Order 215. More than a year ago EOCD declared the town was not in compliance with the executive order. All state discretionary funds have been withheld until a suitable agreement is signed by selectmen, the housing authority and the planning board.

Those funds, which Selectman Burt Pratt said total several million dollars, include state funding for the sewer program, along with various water department grants.

Selectmen Pratt and former Executive Secretary Donald Andrew recently met with EOCD officials to work out a suitable agreement. State officials said the draft agreement written last October would be acceptable, with a few minor word changes. That was the version submitted to the state this week.

In the Aug. 4 letter, Flatley noted, "this proposed agreement will be withdrawn by EOCD if it is not promptly executed by town officials in its present form. In order to comply with that requirement, Selectman Pratt brought the document directly to the housing authority and the planning board last week and emphasized the importance of immediately signing the document.

The housing policy will establish specific goals for the town in defining and meeting the housing needs of its citizens. The timetable for completion of those goals is February 1, 1989.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby had some good news to share after the agreement was signed. Now that the agreement has been submitted, South Shore Coalition Director Jean Christiansen notified Cohasset officials that Cohasset will be allowed back into a group of ten area towns that have received a $50,000 sludge disposal grant. When Cohasset was declared prohibitive by the state, the grant money was withheld from the town.

"We look forward to the notification that the town is in compliance with Executive Order 215," Selectman Burt Pratt said at the conclusion of Monday night's brief ceremony.

It is now up to EOCD to review the document and approve it.

Cohasset to join community program

Cohasset will participate in a work release program that will bring members of a minimum security correctional facility into the community to work on town projects.

Selectmen agreed to allow residents of the Braintree Alternative Center to participate in town projects at no cost to Cohasset. The community service program, under the direction of Norfolk County Sheriff Cliff Marshall, will provide volunteer labor for town projects.

Selectman Burt Pratt said one such project could be the renovation of a garage in the rear of the town hall. Although that building was scheduled for demolition, he was told that community service volunteers could renovate the structure. The town would only have to pay for materials.

"It's a good program that will not cost the town anything," Selectman Pratt said after meeting last week with community service officials.

"We should go forward and I'm sure you'll be satisfied," agreed Selectman Rocco Laugelle, Cohasset's designee to the Norfolk County advisory board. He suggested that selectmen look into the program which has been successful in many other communities through Norfolk County.

The program began in 1985 to alleviate overcrowded conditions at the Dedham House of Corrections. According to a recent demographic study of the Braintree Alternative Center, a typical resident incarcerated there is 20 to 29 years old and is serving an average 90-day sentence for drunk driving.

The work release program provides volunteer labor to non-profit organizations and cities and towns. According to a program description,

MBTA rejects critical study

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

The MBTA's Old Colony project manager called a graduate student's study of preliminary plans to restore South Shore train service "totally inadequate."

The critical report by Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government student Patricia Muldowney was published in a local newspaper Aug. 17.

During brief comments at an Aug. 25 meeting in Quincy of the Old Colony Railroad Citizen's Advisory Committee, Steve Polechronis said, "It's not based on a complete EIR (Environmental Impact Report.)

"She drew conclusions from restricted areas," he said.

The topic was introduced during the meeting by Weymouth Selectman Peg Goudy.

"That's a good topic for a future meeting," interjected Advisory Committee Chairman Terry Fancher.

"I'm not sure this is the time to bring it up.

"I'd like to see it at the next meeting.

"Not enough people have read the study to comment on it," said Fancher, who indicated that he would invite to a future meeting the author of the study.

According to an article in The Patriot Ledger, the report finds the plan expensive and ineffective.

The plan was called "a scandal" by Jose Gomez-Ibanez, faculty advisor to the study, a former senior staff economist for the Council of Economic Advisers to the Presdient during the Carter and Reagan administrations.

Muldowney spent more than 100 hours studying the MBTA reports, and said they did not support the $390 million cost for the project.

Other transit authorities, such as MBTA General Manager James O'Leary, also disputed the findings.

MBTA plans are scheduled to be submitted to the federal Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA) in September for final review. The federal government has been asked to pay half the project's cost.

If the plans are approved, the MBTA would rebuild an old, three-branch system between South Station and Scituate, Middleboro and Plymouth, via two dozen South Shore communities. They would be the Middleboro, Greenbush lines.

During the nearly three-hour meeting attended by more than 50 committee members and citizens at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, various aspects of the proposed plan were discussed.

Bob Lepore of Cambridge Systematics, a consultant, discussed the TSM (Transportation Systems Management) alternative, or the bus proposals.

According to Lepore, improved bus service by private carriers would be an important part of the success of reviving the system.

He said that park/ride lots are being proposed along Routes 3, 3A, 24, 18 and 53.

The existing MBTA bus routes would stay, according to Polenchronis.

"Even though commuter rail is foremost on everyone's mind," said Lepore," bus planning is a key component.

"This system has every liklihood of being implemented in part.

"It's not an either/or situation."

Cohasset Selectman Martha Gjesteby asked about the difference in emissions between buses and trains.

"On a one to one basis, buses give off less emissions," answered Lepore, "but there are more buses.

"Bus ridership will increase in the year 2,000, but the overall impact will be modest over the commuter rail." he added.

Donald Hunt of South Weymouth said that the train system will be antiquated before it starts.

"There are other alternatives," said Hunt, who noted that the Japanese are far ahead of us in terms of transportation.

"We are looking at alternatives," said Polenchronis.

He added that the MBTA is looking at the permanent solution to the parking problems in Hingham for the commuter boat passengers.

William Grimes of Hingham noted that the number of cars travelling to Boston in the year 2000 will increase.

"How much will buses increase the traffic?" asked Grimes.

"Lepore answered that buses will not increase traffic on the Southeast Expressway.

"It's already saturated," he said. "It will affect spillage on secondary roads in Quincy and Boston."

Grimes also added that Germany has used a monorail for 88 years.

Agenda items also included discussion with members of Citizens Organized for Sensible Transportation of Weymouth.

Mary Kerr, COST organizer, spoke for the 15 to 20 members of that group who attended the meeting.

COST with 70-80 members, was organized last September in opposition to the Greenbush line, she said.

"Our main concern is the trains," said Kerr.

"They would destroy the quality of life," she said, noting noise, vibrations and overflow parking problems.

She said that there will be 3.2 miles of track from the Hingham border to Weymouth Landing, and seven street crossings.

"Train crossings can be a big problem," she said.

"Whistles have to be blown at all major roads," said Kerr.

MBTA report...

"It's a real concern.

"They (the whistles) are never going to stop.

"That particular line does not have to go in.

"We don't have to go through the destruction of the quality of life."

"We urge the CAC to really listen to the Town of Weymouth.

"There are too many unanswered questions. We're not going to get any sleep with the whistles."

A Braintree woman said she lives with train whistles every day and agreed, "It's not a pleasant thing."

"It's a very real problem," she said.

In answer to another question, Polenchronis said that rail line reconstruction, particularly on the Greenbush Line, would feature fairly low activity.

"The stations and parking lots would generate more construction," he said.

A proposed East Weymouth station site on Commercial St. in lower Jackson Sq. with parking for 250 cars was also discussed.

"From my point of view, the site is totally unacceptable," said Goud.

PAC MONEY and the DOLPHIN KILL

DOLPHINS ARE DYING WHILE CONGRESSMAN STUDDS TAKES THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS FROM THOSE WHO DESTROY THEM!

"It's a political fact of life in Congress that if we come up with a bill the tuna industry is opposed to, it would be very unlikely to pass." Congressman Gerry Studds (8/17)

"Now why is that? Its power (the tuna lobby) is generated and expressed the same way as every lobby's power: money, money for political candidates, usually incumbents. And those who accept money from political action committees, known as PACs, must face the common-sense conclusion that PACs expect something in return." New Bedford Standard Times (8/18)

"Congressman Studds met with California tuna interest groups in May and received campaign contributions of $8,000 in just three months. Developer sues town . . .

from town counsel. Robbins also wanted to know whether Staszko will be allowed to combine the parking lots adjoining the two properties, or if that is prohibited by a court agreement initiated when the Stop and Shop plans were developed.

He has yet to receive an answer to that request, and has not approved or denied the application for the building permit.

Robbins explained he has 30 days from the time a building permit application has been filed to issue or deny that permit. "I think this lawsuit is frivolous and premature," he said Tuesday, adding he has three more weeks to make a decision on the application.

In the civil lawsuit filed this week in Norfolk County Superior Court, Staszko claimed that the Aug. 3 planning board vote does not constitute final action as required under the site plan review bylaw. And because the split vote is not a legal action, the plaintiff stated the board has failed to take the necessary action with 75 days from the date of his application, as required by the bylaw.

On Aug. 10, the planning board filed a Certificate of Action, outlining the vote taken Aug. 3 and the reasons why two members objected to the plan. It noted that the land area covered by impervious material exceeded the zoning bylaw limitation of 60 percent. The document also noted that a previous agreement between the town and the developer prohibited access between the original site and the portion of the combined site where the new construction is proposed.

Atty. Humphreys stated in the lawsuit that those reasons for denial are "incorrect and deliberately misrepresentative of the proceedings."

He also noted that the building inspector has failed to grant a permit, although the plan conforms to all sections of the zoning bylaw. The building inspector has exceeded his authority by failing to grant the permit, Atty. Humphreys stated.

In a letter sent to Robbins Aug. 19, Atty. Humphreys noted that recent newspaper accounts stating the plan had been denied by the planning board were "completely incorrect."

He stated, "a two/two vote is no action at all," adding that because no action was taken within 75 days of the plan's application May 13, 1988, the site plan must be approved.

"The planning board vote does not constitute any of the final actions required under Section 12.6.5 and as a matter of law, must be determined to constitute no action at all," he stated in the letter to the building inspector.

In the lawsuit filed by Atty. Humphreys, the plaintiff requested that the court annul the planning board's decision, that site plan approval be granted, that a building permit be issued, and that the plaintiff be awarded all court and attorney's fees.

Two years ago, the planning board originally denied the site plan for the Super Stop and Shop. That verdict was appealed by the developer to superior court, and an agreement between the town and the developer was initiated which allowed the building to be constructed.

□ Carol Whitney has joined the Cohasset office of the Jack Conway Company as sales associate.

Whitney is a graduate of Simmons College and the Katherine Gibbs School. She has also completed the eight day intensive training course for new associates sponsored by the Jack Conway Company.

She has several years of real estate experience having been associated with firms in New York and Connecticut.

Whitney is active in St. Anthony's Parish and is a Meals-on-Wheels volunteer.

A Cohasset resident, she has two children: Sarah Collins of Plymouth and Andrew of Cohasset.

□ There's great news for the Watts family this month! James Charles (Jake) Watts was born on August 1st at South Shore Hospital. Jake joins his brother Jamey, who is seven and his two sisters, Amanda who is four and Kristen who is two. Mom and Dad, Karla and Jim, certainly will be busy folks, that's for sure. Jake is also the thirteenth grandchild of Velma Rose.

□ In case you haven't seen or heard of it yet, there is a new store in our Village, located where the former Linen Chest used to be (at 5 Brook Street). The store is owned by Bob Gramarrossa and Linda Pratt, a brother and sister team. It has the charm of a country store, with over one hundred bulk items to choose from as well as packaged items. Some of the features are: one hundred herbs, vitamins, spices, nuts, seeds, grains, flours, beans, granolias, pastas, dryed fruits, fresh bread, cooking oils, teas, coffees, snack mixes, honey, sugarless candies, sandwiches, juices, cheeses, macro-biotic specialities and fresh organic vegetables. "Special request items are always welcome here at Nuth'n More Natural," says Bob, "We want to be able to meet all of our customers individual needs and will go out of our way to provide this to our customers. We are here to provide quality natural products in a friendly, old-fashioned way." Store hours are Monday 9:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. and Tuesday through Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

□ Welcome home signs must be hanging everywhere in the Howe household. Fred Howe is home from the hospital after undergoing recent triple by-pass surgery. We are happy to report that all of the Howes are feeling much better, and we hope that Fred gets stronger by the day.

Mary Ellen Neagle of the Jack Conway Co. Cohasset office, recently received the company's achievement award for listing the most properties in July.

□ I received a nice note from Elizabeth Bristol last week, saying that "she did not realize how many of her Cohasset friends still remember her and the Elizabeth Bristol Shop!" She wanted to be sure to thank everyone, she loved them.

□ As most people know, each summer Clark Chatterton holds a benefit for the Fred Troy Scholarship that is given to a graduating senior from our town. This year was no exception, and he should be extremely proud as the funds that were raised put him at a $12,000 total. That shows how many friends remember Fred Troy, and it assures that the scholarship will be able to continue for many years to come. Last year's recipient was Craig Mulcahy, who just left for college last week. A special thanks to all of you who support this benefit, you are wonderful.

□ The Community Center of Cohasset is looking for new members, with your membership making them able to meet a lot of their expenses. Membership is open to all, and they would like you to be "in the Center of things." Applications were mailed our recently, why not take the time to fill yours out! If you didn't receive one, call the Center at 383-0088. With their many plans for the fall, you will be glad that you did!

□ Congrarulations to Lindsey Berents, who received one of the annual "Five Year Mugs" for being a member of the Young People's Summer Theatre for five years. Lindsey was also the recipient of an annual scholarship at the banquet that was held recently.

□ If you are one of the 152 dog owners that hasn't "gotten around" to renewing your pet's license, do it today. See our town clerk, Frances Marks, for details.

□ The Cohasset Arts Lottery Council reminds all individuals and organizations dedicted to the arts and humanities to apply for one of their grants by Sept. 30th. Applications are available at the Selectmen's office at the Town Hall. After completing your application return it to the office or to Karin Bartow, Chairman, Cohasset Arts Lottery Council, 48 Sohier St., Cohasset.

□ Congratulations to Pamela Weisenfluh on her recent promotion at the Boston Five Bancorp. Pamela, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. F. Allen Weisenfluh, will be a Senior Investment Associate. Her responsibilities will include managing the liability side of the money desk as well as trading of all thrift stocks.

Pam is a graduate of The Dana Hall School and Skidmore College.

□ An achievement award was presented to Mary Ellen Neagle, an associate fo the Jack Conway Company's Cohasset office.

Neagle, who lives on Pond Street in Cohasset, negotiated the most sales and listed the most property through the Cohasset office during July.

□ That's all for this week, but with the busy weekend coming up you should have lots of news to report for next week. Give me a call with it!

Local piano lessons

Students of all ages are invited to join the class of Priscilla Daniels, teacher of pianoforte.

Her individual instruction has attracted students who have had careers in music, while others play just for the pleasure.

She stresses the importance of music theory, harmony and rhythm study, as the ABC's of a piano background, and incorporates these essentials as part of every weekly lesson.

Daniels is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, magna cum laude, with over 25 years experience. She is a member and past president of Alpha Chi Omega, national sorority, and a member of Pi Kappa Lambda, honorary professional society.

She has taught in Swampscott, Lincoln and Norwood, and now teaches at her Beach Street home in Cohasset.

New consulting company

Burk Ketcham, Aicp, of Cohasset has established Burk Ketcham and Associates, providing planning, housing, zoning and environmental consulting services to municipalities and land developers.

Mr. Ketcham has over 25 years of experience in new England and throughout the United States.

Prior to forming his own firm, he was a Vice President in charge of Planning at Anderson-Nichols in Boston and the Director of Planning for firms such as Jason M. Cortell and Associates in Waltham, Briggs Associates in Rockland, Daniel, Mann, Johnson & Mendenhall in Los Angeles, and Candeub, Fleissig and Associates in Boston and San Francisco.

Editorial

More communication

With any luck at all, this will the last editorial we write about the Old Salt House.

It has been sold to a local man who intends to continue a private business in the Cohasset Harbor property. Thomas Eisenstadt purchased the antique building and wharf from the conservation trust in a public sale. He paid $400,000 for the property where he plans to operate a ship's chandlery.

Before the conservation trust sold the property, they agreed to a number of restrictions to be placed within the building's deed. These restrictions severely prohibit the future use and appearance of the Old Salt House. About the only thing it can be used for is a ship's chandlery.

We have criticized selectmens' previous intentions to take the building by eminent domain. And let us say, we are now pleased that at least three selectmen have admitted it is a lost cause, and perhaps there are better ways for the town to spend $400,000. It's difficult to admit that although their actions were planned with the best of intentions, it was likely a futile effort. It's not easy to stop, turn around and publicly admit that it's a fight not worth continuing.

We have said this before, and we will say it again. The conservation trust must bear some guilt for not communicating with selectmen. It would have been common courtesy for them to acknowledge their selectmen and inform them of the sale of this valuable and scenic harborside property.

But they should bear no guilt for their decision to sell the property. The Old Salt House was a gift they received but never sought. It was a business they were not familiar with, nor inclined to continue. Sale of this property will bring them income that will be used to purchase additional open space - land they are anxious to keep undeveloped for public access.

These members of the conservation trust serve in that capacity without remuneration. They are volunteer members whose interest is in preserving valuable land for the residents of this town.

To say they have held this town and its residents in "absolute contempt" is unjust. Yes, they failed to communicate with selectmen. But certainly that does not constitute contempt. It was wrong. But they are within their legal right to sell this property and no one can argue against that. They certainly hold no contempt for the citizens of this community. Their only intent is to see that the people of Cohasset can enjoy the land for years to come.

Perhaps we were wrong to say selectmen waited until the last moment to begin eminent domain procedures for the Old Salt House. They say they learned of a pending sale from people other than the conservation trust and moved quickly to stop it. Without prior knowledge they were unable to move any faster. We believe that was indeed the case.

But we feel selectmen were incorrect to initiate the eminent domain process. Now that the issue has been settled, we hope the bad feelings will dissipate and more communication and cooperation will guide future actions by all town officials.

Dwyers Cleaning Spot says thanks

To the Editor:

We at Dwyers Cleaning Spot in Cohasset would like to publicly thank a cast of thousands for their help during and after the fire which destroyed our main plant on August 5, 1988. The fire departments from Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell, Hull, and Hingham, and volunteers from the American Red Cross gave us prompt attention that day, for which we are very grateful.

The number of businesses who opened their doors to us in the hours after the fire is a testament to the unity of the business community in our area. Bergsons gave up their office and their phone with no questions asked, and did their best to cheer the dazed employees who wandered into the store. Autohaus also generously gave us offices and phones. Bathrooms, cold drinks, and telephones have been in high demand these past weeks, and Bergsons, Autohaus, Papa Ginos, King Jewelers, Mister Donut, Rockland Trust, and the offices at 760 Route 3-A have given these things to us without complaint.

Thank you also to our loyal customers, who have overwhelmed us with their patience and understanding.

We always felt that we were very lucky, and these unfortunate circumstances have proven us correct.

Last, but definitely not least, we must express our deep appreciation for the dedication of our staff, and our favorite crew of carpenters, plumbers, and electricians. Everyone has pulled together cheerfully to carry out the enormous amount of exhausting work that we face. Thanks to all of these people, it was "Business as usual" the day after the fire. It just goes to show what "family" means!!!

In the meantime, it is definitely business as usual at the "Old Stop and Shop in Tedeschi Plaza (thanks to Tedeschi Realty in our hour of need) until our new store is built.

Talking Information Center golf tourney

The 11th annual Talking Information Center golf tournament will tee off Monday, Sept. 12, at the Marshfield Country Club.

Tournament Chairman David Drain of Duxbury already has this year's committee hard at work to continue the tradition of a well-run tournament that provides a great day of enjoyable golf, a wonderful meal and top-notch entertainment, great prizes and a sizeable contribution to a worth-while charity.

"TIC is really a great charity," said Drain, "and it's a local charity that involves and serves local as well as people throughout the state."

"It's amazing how much TIC has grown over the past 10 years," said TIC golf director and board member Barbara Elliott of Cohasset. "A great deal of that growth is directly related to this tournament's success."

Talking Information Center (TIC) is a radio reading service that provides the reading of daily newspapers, best selling books, current periodicals, calendars of community events, day tours of museums and points of interest, the reading of supermarket and department store ads and educational material to blind and print handicapped persons throughout Massachusetts.

The service started in Marshfield in 1978 with only 10 listeners and now serves more than 6,000 statewide.

All of the reading at TIC is performed by volunteers under the direction of a small, dedicated staff.

Drain is being assisted this year by committee members Bob and Jean Greenhalgh of Marshfield, Billy Jo Joseph of Cohasset, Bob Crockford, club manager, of Marshfield, Barbara Elliott, and Joe Goodrow of Scituate.

Teens return with memories of Souppes

Participants are responsible for their own expenses.

During her five-week visit, Ballot has stayed with four families, the Atkinsons, Mullens, Jenkins and now the Cooks on King Street.

Her sister, Marie-Pierre, was here last summer.

"It's been very interesting for me to stay with different families here," said Ballot, who has dark hair and eyes and speaks fluent English with a lovely French accent.

"At the beginning, I was a bit afraid," she said.

"I would just get used to one family, then go to the next one.

"But I'm glad that I did that. I've seen more of the American way of life."

During her stay, she has visited New York, Concord and Lexington, Plymouth, Boston and Maine.

"New York is like in the movies," she said, with a smile.

"It was very interesting.

"There were a lot of different people. You would meet one who was very poor, and then a very well dressed lady.

"When I go back to France, I will say that I have been to New York and they will be very impressed."

Ballot had studied English for seven years before she came to the United States.

"Language is a problem, but not a big one," she said.

"Now I understand much better after five weeks here."

She has enjoyed sampling different types of foods.

"I love peanut butter and ice cream," she said with a laugh, "because we have not so many kinds in France.

"I love all these things.

"We have no separate stores for ice cream in France. At least not in the small towns."

Ballot will reluctantly leave Sept. 2 to return in time for an exam Sept. 6. She is studying to be a chemical engineer. "I'm supposed to be studying here, but there are so many things to see.

"I wish to come back," she said. "I don't want to leave."

Mullen, a Cohasset High School senior, had a hard time coming home to Cohasset after her four weeks in France. "I wanted to turn around and go back," she said.

"I really felt like a daughter," said Mullen, who stayed with two different families.

"The first week, I wasn't used to the food, or how people acted.

"For example, they have wine at every meal, and make a big deal about smelling the cork," said Mullen, a delicate blonde who wore a University of Paris, Sorbonne sweatshirt.

But after that, she was very comfortable, she said.

Her sister, Diane, 21, was also in Souppes for part of the time, and the two visited Paris, as well as small towns.

"We were in Paris for Bastille Day, July 14," said Mullen.

"People were dancing in the streets the night before, and there were fireworks and a big band.

Celia Mullen, Benedictine Ballot, and Julia Atkinson shared common experiences as participants in the Cohasset-Souppes exchange program. (J. Paul MacDonald photo)

"Paris really was magical that night."

They also visited museums and churches.

"We saw just about all the museums in Paris," Mullen said. "I did tourist things with my sister.

"With the families (she stayed with) I saw things I wouldn't have seen on my own.

"I loved the food. I was used to meat and potatoes.

"In France, they have lots of delicious things that are light.

"French bread and cheese and wine are the best."

Mullen had studied French for four years in this country, but always carried a dictionary with her.

"I could make them understand," said Mullen.

"She speaks very good French," interjected Ballot, who noted how nice Americans have been to her.

"I don't know if the French people are as nice as you are," she said.

"Yes, they were," answered Mullen. "They were just like us."

"It's all in your attitude," said Atkinson, a red-head with blue eyes, who was recently graduated form the University of Maine with a degree in business administration.

"If you are snobby, then you will get a negative reaction.

"If you make an effort . . . they were very receptive to us, and we were open to them."

She visited Souppes with her sister, Sara, 20.

"We had a blast," she said. "I can't wait to go back. Maybe (I will) this spring."

They visited Paris and museums, such as the Louvre, churches and shopping centers, she said.

"I also had Greek food for the first time in Paris," she laughed.

Julia said she met many members of Ballot's family.

"In France, it's a very big honor to meet an entire family," she explained.

She returned home with postcards , chocolate paste, cookies and lots of photos, according to Julia.

"And a lot of good memories," she added.

Massachusetts ratified constitution in 1788

By David Wadsworth
Historical Society Curator

Commentary

Just over 200 years ago delegates from 12 of the original 13 United States met to form a new national government. The Constitutional Convention held at Philadelphia during the summer of 1787 framed a proposed national Constitution designed to strengthen the new nation's government and to solve the increasing problems which threatened to render ineffective the original Articles of Confederation.

Emerging from the Philadelphia Convention was a document the likes of which had not been seen before: an entirely new frame for the governance of a nation.

At Philadelphia, delegates from each state discussed and debated questions of government and finally agreed that a strongly centralized, or Federal, framework was needed.

Sept. 17, 1787 they affixed their signatures to the new document and soon sent it to the several states for ratification.

The proposed Constitution of 1787 would have to be approved by at least nine of the 13 states for it to become the law of the land. Each state would hold its own ratifying convention during 1788.

The Philadelphia Convention had shown that deep differences of political philosophy existed among the states. Americans differed with each other particularly on the subject of centralization of power; whether a strong national government was preferable to a weak and decentralized one.

Advocates of strong government won the day at the Convention, thus the proposed new framework took the form of a Federal Republic.

Those who feared strong centralization returned home ready to continue the struggle at state ratifying conventions, and in some states the ratification of the Constitution was felt to be in doubt.

One such state was Massachusetts, considered a key state in the ratification process. So much appeared to depend upon Massachusetts that in January 1788 it was written that "The Federalists have their doubts whether Massachusetts will adopt the new Constitution....they say, if that state does not, it will never take place."

Feb. 6, 1788, after a thorough airing of diverse views, Massachusetts ratified the Constitution by the close vote of 187-168.

The Massachusetts question having been settled, other states followed until June 21, New Hampshire, by a vote of 57-47, became the ninth state to ratify, thus giving the nation its new Constitution.

Throughout 1788, other states met to decide upon ratification, and having decided in the affirmative, to choose Senators and Representatives to serve in the new two-chambered national Congress.

September courses begin at Natural Science Center

The warm sunny days and cool star-filled evenings of mid-September are perfect times to explore the natural and cultrual history of Southeastern New England with the South Shore Natural Science Center!

CHARLES RIVER CANOE TRIP

On Sunday, Sept. 11, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., the Science Center will be sponsoring a canoe trip on the historic Charles River. Although most of us associate the river with the urban sprawl of Boston and Cambridge, the upper Charles is wonderfully picturesque. We'll put in in Medfield and canoe to South Natick Dam, discussing the human and natural history of this waterway along the way. Our host, professional guide Russell Sears, has led numerous trips on the Charles River, and is full of fascinating, fun information. We supply all the equipment, canoes, paddles, and life preservers. Bring a picnic lunch. some canoeing experience is needed. Please note the raindate, Sept. 18, on your calendar. Canoes are limited to 3 adults, or two adults and two children. (Members $18; adults, $15 children; non-members, $24 adults, $20 children). Special rates if you supply your own canoe! Please call 659-2559 for further information.

TRAIL GUIDE TRAINING

For those of you who have always been interested in nature, but don't know where to begin learning, trail guide training at the South Shore Natural Science Center may be the answer. If you have a strong interest in the environment and love children, you could make a great interpretive naturalist!

Science Center staff and consultant naturalists will provide in-depth training about the many different plants and animals of the South Shore. In four sessions you will learn about various habitats on Science Center properties. Insects, birds, plants, mammals, amphibians, and reptiles (you don't even have to love snakes!) will be discussed through informal workshops, nature walks, and talks.

In addition, you will receive practical, hands-on training in methods of teaching natural history to children. The registration fund is refunded to those who act as an interpreter for the Science Center for one season. Tuesdays and Thursdays, Sept. 13, 15, 20, 22, 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Members $35; non-members $45. Meet at the Science Center. Call 659-2559 for further details.

WEDNESDAY NATURE WALK

Every Wednesday, from 10 a.m. until noon, a naturalist from the South Shore Natural Science Center leads a public field trip to a natural area on the South Shore, in search of our local flora and fauna. The nature walk on Sept. 14 will visit the Norris Reservation, in Norwell.

Cohasset recreation programs

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct registrations for the fall youth soccer program Saturday, Sept. 10, from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at the town hall.

Fall recreational soccer is for boys and girls in kindergarten through grade 9. Grades K, 1 and 2 will be involved in league play, also beginning Saturday, Sept. 24. Schedules will be made available to players during the week of Sept. 19. However, all games will be held on Saturday morning through mid-November.

The fee for the soccer program will be $15 per person with a $5 discount available for second and subsequent children in the family. There will also be a $5 team shirt fee for all grades, K through 9.

The registration fee and the shirt fee must be two separate payments. Those who wish to pay by check should make the registration fee payable to: Town of Cohasset, and the Team Shirt fee to: South Shore Soccer Supply.

Children in grades K through 2 do not have to purchase a team shirt. However, a shirt may be ordered and paid for at the time of registration. No late shirt orders will be taken.

During the first week of school, each child will bring home a flier which includes all the information for soccer. The flier will also have registration forms on it. Please fill out one form for each child, and bring the form with you to registration, to expedite the process.

The recreation department needs high school referees who will be paid $4 per hour, and parent volunteer coaches for both teams and clinics. Parents who wish to assist coaching may indicate at the time of registration. Generally, there will be three coaches per team.

HUNTER SAFETY COURSE

The Massachusetts Division of Law Enforcement will conduct a hunter safety course beginning Wednesday, Sept. 21, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at Wompatuck State Park. The course will meet each Wednesday evening, through October 5, 1988.

The program will be taught by Massachusetts Environment Police Officers and trained volunteer instructors. Among the many topics covered will be the safe handling of sporting firearms and ammunition; hunting laws; wildlife identification; principles of wildlife management and basic survival skills. Classes are open to men and women, and minors aged 10 to 17 years, with parental permission. The program will include a minimum of 10 hours classroom instruction.

For further information, call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791, or Hunter Education Program at 727-3623.

Registration for the program will be accepted at the first class at Wompatuck State Park, Union Street in Hingham, at 6:30 p.m., Sept. 21.

AFS students return

Welcome home to Cohasset AFS students who spent the summer abroad. Allie Redfield, Laura Smart, Brian Shultz, Matthew Beggan and Brian Ormiston are safely at home and recounting their adventures.

Also, a special welcome to Paolo Baca, from Peru, who has just joined us in Cohasset for the upcoming school year. He is living with the Kuhns — Jim, Liz, Laura and Krista, of Pond St.

Thursday, Sept. 29, at 7 p.m., there will be a meeting at Cohasset High School for interested students and their parents to learn about the various AFS exchange programs. Parents are asked to be present for this discussion of qualifications, applications procedures, financial arrangements, etc. At that time we should be able to answer most of your questions.

SSI Recipients

A special money saving electric rate for you...

If you receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI), you may qualify for a special lower electric rate from Eastern Edison Company.

It's called RATE 5 — and it provides you with substantial savings on your electric bills!

For example, if you use 200 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month, you would usually pay $21.69. On the RATE 5 plan, you would only pay $18.09 — a 17% savings!

To participate in RATE 5, you must be:
- ☐ The customer of record for Eastern Edison.
- ☐ Currently receiving SSI.
- ☐ The head of household or principal wage earner.

For more information, contact the Customer Service Department at 675-2100 in the Fall River area. In the Brockton area call, 583-3700 or 1-800-242-5810.

The 49th National Championship Regatta of the International 110 was co-hosted last week by the Hull and Hingham Yacht Clubs.

The weather was cooperative giving the Mass., R.I., Michigan and Oregon competitors a range of breeze from heavy air (18-20 knots, 22 gusts) for the tune-up race and to light shifty breezes, making tactics very difficult for the last three races.

It was "down-to-the-wire" for the sixth and final race Friday afternoon when Billy Higgins, Sr., Jack Slattery, Fran Charles and Bob Adams all had a shot at winning the title. Although all four shared the middle of the fleet at various times, it was Higgins, from Boston Harbor Yacht Club with crew Billy McDonald, who managed to get some air in order to move ahead and place 2nd in that race to win the championship. Jack Slattery, formerly of Hull and now at Eastern Yacht Club, with his brother Bob as crew came in second place. Fran Charles and co-skipper Chris Clancy place third. Bob Adams from Salem State came in fourth and his brother Jeff Adams from Newport, RI came in fifth.

Local Fleet #14 and #29 competitors did well for their area among the 26 starters. Along with Fran Charles and Chris Clancy, Bill Dolphin from Hingham crewed for Jeff Adams and helped him sail a consistent series to capture fifth place.

Dave McGrath of Hull Yacht Club crewed for Jack Driscoll of Boston Harbor Yacht Club and the two made sixth place.

Russell Robinson with crew Mike Warner had great boat speed and with the exception of a capsize were neck-to-neck with Jeff Adams going into the fifth and sixth races. The light air gave them tactical problems and they came in at eighth.

The Craig brothers, Tom and Bill, won the Gold Cup (fourth race) but had tactical problems downwind throughout the regatta that were finally resolved in the last race. They placed ninth.

Cheryl and Peter Huston sailed their renovated 110 for the first time this season. They went into the last day of races tied for 10th place with a Michigan boat. Although they usually do their better sailing in light air, they kept finding the holes and ended up 13th.

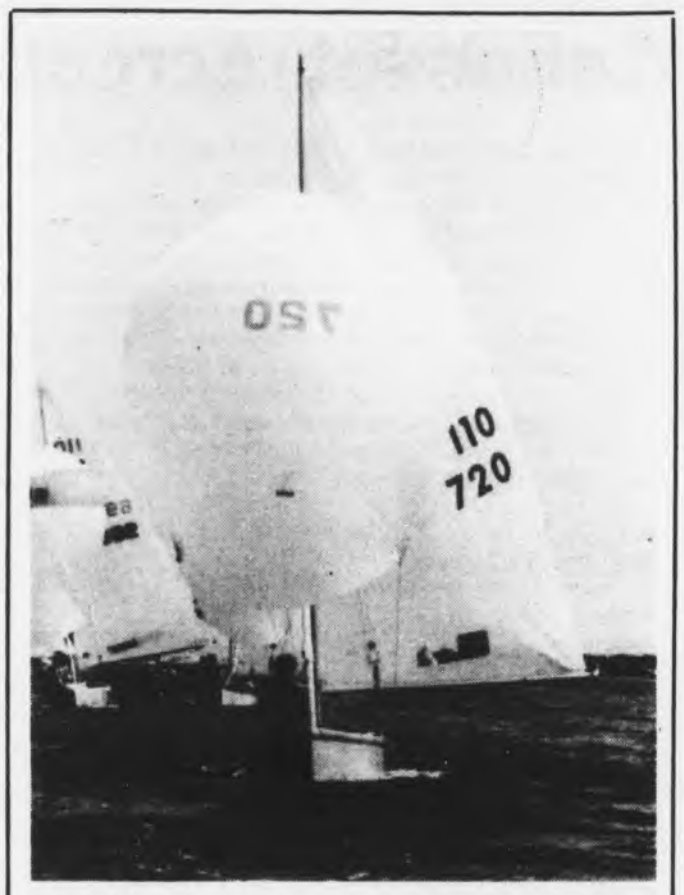
Fokke DeJong, a veteran competitive sailor from Holland, with his crew Kevin Bell skippered a 110 for the first time. They had a great series even though there were some earlier breakdowns. They captured the 17th spot.

As a new mother, Ann Craig with crew Doug Cooper split her time up at the regatta and sailed three excellent races and came up with an 18th.

Mark Donahue and his crew Lee Markey had good boat speed upwind but lost alot of boats downwind and would be constantly playing "catch-up". They came in at 20th.

Ellie Schnabel and her crew Kevin Kennerson despite earlier breakdowns in the heavy air proved to be a great competitor and placed 24th.

The entire 110 Class, Officers and Regatta organizers would like to thank the excellent Race Committee and Judges headed by Ron Pacella of Hull and Bill Collins of Hingham. A round of special thanks go to Susan Charles, who made the beautiful trophies; T-shirt design by Peter Huston and Susan Charles; clambake by Ann Craig, Hull launch stewards Dan Epstein and Bob Horack; and special dedication to details by Sue Epstein, Nancy Epstein and Marylou Walsh.



Billy Higgins Sr. of Boston Harbor Yacht Club was the winner of the 110 National Championships.

We would also extend our appreciation to the chefs at both clubs and the Commodores of Hull and Hingham Yacht Clubs, Edward Kimpton and Charles Langenhagen, respectively.

In addition, we thank the local businesses who enthusiastically sponsored the regatta by placing ads in our brochure:

Swim team honor

The Cohasset Swim Team has announced its awards for the 1988 swim season.

The Bancroft Trophy, awarded each year to a swimmer who over the years has voluntarily been an outstanding contributor to the Swim Center went to Jonathan deLima.

The Coaches Trophy goes to those swim team members who have been most helpful to the coaches in such ways as helping to run practices for younger swimmers. This year's winners were Liz Buckley and Chris Henderson.

The Mark Delaney Trophy give in memory of a well-loved member of the Cohasset Swim Team is awarded to a swimmer who has demonstrated outstanding team spirit. This year's winner was Becky Golden.

Awards were also given in each of the age categories. These placements were based on performance in five meets with Scituate Harbor Yacht Club, Hanover, Duxbury Aquadux, Scituate Knights of Columbus and Duxbury Harbor Yacht Club.

For 8 and unders, Maren Cameron and Greg Bilton were first, Cara McKenney and Justin Golden were second and Rebecca Jenkins and Derek Bugley were third. Most improved were Alea Afshar and Carl Dean.

For 10 and unders, Lauren deVito and Justin Buckley were first, Heather Littlehale and Greg Shultz were second and Dawn Meehan and Tom Greco were third. Most improved were Hilary Strong and Jamie Kondrat.

For 12 and unders, Becky Golden and David Leahy were first, Kate deLima and Chris Kondrat were second, and Tracey Reardon and Tim Brister were third. Most improved were Lindsay Tibbetts and Ryan Duffy.

For 14 and unders, Jennifer Jackson and Chris Henderson were first, Robin deVito and Tom Reardon were second, and Maureen Long and Mike Equi were third. Most improved were Becky Hackenburg and John Brister.

For 16 and unders, Veronica deVos and Jonathan deLima were first, Liz Buckley and Greg Nourie were second, and Brooke Anderson and Bill Baird were third. Most improved were Carrie Ripley and Glenn Marchi.

Rookie awards went to Greg Bilton, John Brister, Breezey Crossman, Chris Kondrat, Becky Hackenburg, Glenn Marchi, Jennifer Meehan and Lindsay Tibbetts. An Unsung Hero award was given to Tom Long who was always there when needed. Bobby Meehan, a hard-working ten and under was named Most Dedicated.

Lastly though, we'd like to applaud all the members of the Swim Team who aren't mentioned here. Some of them are the first place swimmers of tomorrow, some may never finish first, but they all help to provide the depth, spirit and enthusiasm that left Cohasset tied for first on the South Shore League standings. Thanks to all the members of the Cohasset Swim Team and their coaches. John Jackson and Eriv Karcher.

Childrens' classes begin this fall at art center

The young artist schedule of classes at the South Shore Art Center during the fall term offers a mixture of classes, workshops and drop-ins at the main classroom in Cohasset and the satellite locations in Scituate, Hingham, Norwell, Weymouth, Quincy, and Hull.

Registrations are being accepted at the Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset for all children's classes. Parents are invited to bring their children to the Center's fall open house, Sunday, Sept. 11 from 3-5 p.m.

The satellite locations are at the South Shore Conservatory in Hingham, the Life Saving Museum in Hull, the South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell, the Trinitarian Church in Scituate, the Beechwood Community Life Center in Quincy and the Old South Union Church in Weymouth.

The young artist department this fall offers two sessions September 19 to October 20 and October 31 to December 10. All classes meet 3:30-5:00 p.m. unless otherwise noted.

For very young children, kindergarten and grade 1, Serena Brundige will teach Primary Skills/Primary Colors in Scituate on Tuesdays. Linda Stevens, a new instructor in the young artist department, will teach the same course but for kindergarten only in Cohasset, Wednesdays starting Sept. 14 and in Hingham on Fridays starting Sept. 23. Her class will meet from 9:30-10:30 a.m.

The course offers a unique opportunity for young children to explore drawing, painting, collage and sculpture while developing their primary skills.

Three sections of Creative Painting and Drawing for grades 1-3 and 4-6 will be taught: in Norwell starting Tuesday, Sept. 20 and in Weymouth starting Wednesday, Sept. 21, both sections taught by Lis Wyman; and in Hull starting Thursday, Sept. 22 and taught by Lynn Rizzotto. Students will work with a variety of painting and drawing materials such as poster paints, watercolors, cray-pas, pastels, charcoal and china markers. The Hull course is for the older age group.

Wyman will teach a course for grades 1-3, Mixed Media/Collage and Assemblage in Hingham on Mondays starting Sept. 19. Nancy Connolly will teach the same course, but for grades 4-6 in Scituate on Fridays starting Sept. 23. The instructors will present an array of 2-D and 3-D projects using drawing, fabric, stamps, threads, plant forms and wood.

Students can delve into the world of fantasy creatures in Stevens Monster Mania meeting in Cohasset on Wednesdays starting Sept. 21. The class will work with clay, foam, plastic, paper, found objects and paint.

Serena Brundige will teach Firing Clay and Glazes for grades 1-3 in Cohasset on Mondays starting Sept. 19. She will work with firing clay, glazes and handbuilding techniques such as hollowing, attaching, building and carving texture. Students will create finished pottery pieces.

For moms and dads and their 3-5 year olds, Nancy Connolly will teach Moms/Dads and Tots in Cohasset on Tuesdays from 10-11 a.m. starting Sept. 20. This course is a great opportunity to learn basic art and craft techniques which can then be repeated at home.

T-shirt artist Janet Amiri will give a one-day T-shirt and Sneaker Painting Workshop on Saturday, September 24 from 1 to 4 p.m. Amiri, whose T-shirts and sweatshirts are seen all over the South Shore, will work with students on decorating garments with Tulip paints. Students should bring their own T-shirt or sneakers, preferably white or light color.

In the photography department, Brundige will teach for grades 7-9 a Basic Photography course in Cohasset on Fridays starting September 23. She will introduce her students to the proper use of a 35 mm camera and to developing and enlarging film in the darkroom. Students need to provide their own cameras and three rolls of 12 shots of black and white film.

For further information on these classes, the adult courses and the high school program, call the South Shore Art Center at 383-9548. Programs of the Center are supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Cohasset joins community program community service also introduces the inmates to "work responsibilities and teaches him trained professional skills that will assist with his reentry into society."

A staff of correctional officers supervises the inmates while on an assignment. Unmarked vehicles are used along with a radio communication system to maintain security and medical safety.

In other action this week, selectmen were informed by Town Accountant Mary Matthews that the financial picture for the upcoming year is not bright.

Local and state revenues this year were less than anticipated, she explained, including motor vehicle taxes, boat excise taxes, and harbor fees. There was a shortfall in unclassified revenues, she noted, because $72,000 was anticipated when it should have been set at zero.

"We're going to have a tight budget in 1989," Matthews said, "and we may not be able to set the tax rate—we may have to use free cash when that is state certified." Matthews said $56,000 is needed from that free cash reserve to pay for fire department overtime costs in 1988, an overlay budget deficit and to cover costs for the low revenues.

The lower than anticipated revenues will naturally affect the current year's budget, she said. Matthews submitted the financial report to selectmen at the close of FY 88.

Although town employees expect to move into the new town hall addition within the next four weeks, there is no money to pay a professional moving company. Selectmen wondered whether to ask tree and park department or highway department employees to help. But they were reminded that when one worker recently helped move newly-purchased file cabinets into the building, he severely injured his hand.

Selectman Pratt noted there is some heavy furniture to be moved into the addition, along with sensitive computers and some antiques. "Actually, there is not enough money to furnish the addition. We're just about out of money," he said.

"Then how can we spend money for a professional mover?" Selectman Laugelle asked.

"Charge it," Pratt jokingly replied. In a more serious tone, Selectman Pratt said they should request the additional money from the town, rather than asking town employees to complete the move without professional assistance.

Selectman Pratt will inquire about professional moving costs. If it is under $4,000 selectmen are not required to put a contract out to public bid, and they could immediately hire a company.

No eminent domain taking . . .

Eisenstadt for $400,000. Eisenstadt intends to use the property as a ship's chandlery.

At the insistence of the conservation trust a number of regulations are included in the building's deed which restrict the future use and appearance of the property.

In 1974, Mrs. Jessie Cox sold the building to the conservation trust for $1. But the trust members agreed the waterfront business was not an enterprise they were interested in continuing, and they decided to sell the property.

Selectmen were angered that the property was put up for sale without their knowledge, and discussed eminent domain taking as soon as they became aware of an imminent sale.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase land which the trust will maintain as public open space, chairman Richard Leggat explained.

Selectmen Chairman Burt Pratt continued to support the eminent domain taking, noting the town for many years has had "lost opportunities" to obtain limited harborside property.

He talked angrily about the negative publicity generated against selectmen regarding this issue, and said the conservation trust members "have held the citizens and selectmen of Cohasset in absolute contempt" by their efforts to sell the building.

"The point is, I'm not going to spend $400,000 on six floats."

Selectman Cliff Mitman

Once again he mentioned a meeting scheduled last month between the trust members and selectmen that never occurred because the conservation trust refused to attend. At that time, trust chairman Leggat said before the meeting he agreed to discuss the matter in a closed, executive session. But because the meeting was public, the trust members did not attend.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle agreed with Selectman Pratt, noting that recent newspaper editorials criticized them for waiting too long before taking action against the sale. "We went as fast as we could - as soon as we heard about the sale. The conservation trust was very uncooperative in the way they went forward. But we never sat back."

"Our point of view was never heard," Selectman Pratt replied, in reference to the newspaper editorials opposed to the land-taking.

Although Selectman Pratt remained "very much opposed" to the suggestion to stop the eminent domain procedure, Selectman Cliff Mitman noted there was merit to that argument.

"If we're trying to make the point of gaining more access to the harbor, instead of picking on the Salt House, we should pick a place that makes the most sense.

"Frankly, I'm not sure the Salt House is the best place in the harbor to look. Perhaps we should go to the harbor study committee and ask them if we were to spend $400,000 where's the best place for access to the harbor? Are we trying to preserve the Salt House, are we trying to prevent a private enterprise on the harbor or do we want to help out people on the (mooring) waiting list?"

Selectman Pratt said it was recently learned that the new Salt House proprietor submitted an application to the state Department of Ennvironmental Quality Engineering for six additional boat slips there.

"It's going to be a private, profit-making enterprise now. I don't think it's fair the town will have no control there," Pratt said.

"But the town never did have control," Mitman said, noting that selectmen do not have jurisdiction over the conservation trust.

"We can deal with the float issue by opposing the application," he added. "Even if we proceed with the eminent domain issue, it will take forever. A decision on the slips will be made before the eminent domain."

Selectman Mitman noted, "The point is, I'm not going to pay $400,000 for six floats."

Selectman James Gallagher said he was originally opposed to the sale "because the conservation trust received it for $1 from Mrs. (Jessie) Cox, and my reasoning was that we could get it for a damn good price."

Selectmen Gjesteby, Mitman and Gallagher agreed to suspend the eminent domain taking process. But all five selectmen agreed to have a real estate appraiser search the harbor for additional areas of public access.

"We should also make sure the harbor study committee stays' on top of that DEQE (float) application," Mitman suggested.

Director's Message

September has always been a very special month to me, and rather symbolic. I realize it's a month that means different things to different people. Before becoming a mother, September was a time to leave the beach and sand behind, get back to school, renew old friendships and dread the coming of winter. Now, as a mother, I am spending much of my time getting two kids ready for college and I do this with very mixed feelings. The seasons change and so do we!

I wonder where did the summer go? Labor Day is upon us! All to soon. I was just thinking, wouldn't it be nice to squeeze in a few more trips before the cold winds of winter blows?

Please join us Sept. 1, at 1 p.m., to hear and see the slide presentation by Mary Ann McMahon explaining the upcoming three-day trip to Summit Lodge in Vermont on Oct. 12-13-14. Fall in Vermont is the true season of spectacular change of nature. The crisp autumn days are perfect for exploring back roads to unique antique shops. Don't miss out — see you on Sept. 1st, 1 p.m.

We are also planning a day trip to beautiful Historic Deerfield, Wednesday, Sept. 28, at 9 a.m. Luncheon will be served at the Deerfield Inn, with time after for a bus tour of the town history. Total cost: $25.00, based on 45 people. Menu: Choice of sandwiches, one or two hot entrees, soup, salad bar, dessert and beverage. For more information, call Kathy at 383-9112.

Senior Shuttle Schedule — September

September 5 — Braintree Plaza; September 7 —Hanover Mall; September 8 — Hingham-Angelo's & Purity Supreme; September 14 — Marshfield Plaza-Lunch COA; September 21 — Hanover Hall; September 28 — North River Plaza/XMass Tree Shop-Lunch at COA; Sunday Church services 9 a.m. to noon; call 383-9112 for more information about trips.

Announcement

The Council on Aging will hold their Annual Meeting on September 12, 1988 at 11 a.m. Our Host will be "Kimball's by the Sea," 124 Elm Street. If you wish to attend, please call the Council Office before Sept. 8.

The following list of names are of those serving you as Council on Aging Board Members. If you have concerns or ideas to share, please contact the Board or call the COA Office weekdays.

Rev. John J. Keohane — 129 So. Main St.; Helen Barbary — 60 Elm St.; Dorothea C. Bjorkgren — 10 Parker Ave.; Mary Donovan — 678 Jerusalem Rd.; Anthony Finegan — 91 Doane St.; Gerard Keating — 10 Black Horse Lane; Lillian Lincoln — 60 Elm St.; Margaret Casey — 21 Little Harbor Rd.; Edward T. Mulvey — 50 Pond St.; and Jane Hamilton — Associate Member.

Housing Options: Sept. 14 at 10 a.m.

Cohasset Council on Aging invites Senior homeowner's to join us on Wednesday, Sept. 14 at 10 a.m. when Senator William Golden will explain the advantages of the "Homestead Act."

If you own your home, you should be thinking about declaring a Homestead. It is now a Mass. Law protecting a person's principal home up to $150,000.00 from court ordered seizure by certain creditors. For example: An auto accident in which you cause damage beyond the limits of your insurance policy, your creditor might be able to force the sale of your home. It does not cover debts, like loans, taxes and mortgage debts existing before your declaration. If is not a substitute for adequate insurance. There will be a person to notarize the Act if you wish and there is a $10.00 billing fee.

At 11 a.m., Henry Stowers, Housing Specialist of South Shore Elder Services will explain CHISS. What is CHISS? (Consumer Housing Information Services for Seniors.) It was developed by A.A.R.P. & S.S. E.S. to assist with housing concerns for the elderly. If the time has come for you to think of selling your home, investing the proceeds, moving to an apartment or you have questions about retirement communities, come ask Henry Stowers. Don't miss out on this important program.

Health Clinic Dates

The September Health Clinic sponsored by the Social Service League are scheduled for:

Thursday: September 15, 60+ Club , 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at 23 N. Main St.

Wednesday,: Sept. 21 at Senior Center, 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Good Health Habits — bring brown bag lunch.

Friday: Harbor View Hall, 60 Elm St., Sept. 30 at 10 a.m.

Flu shots will be given in November. Please check October Vista for dates. The production delay of the flu vaccine has caused the delay of the Health Dept. giving the shots until November.

Monday Lunches

Cohasset Seniors are invited to lunch at the Scituate Council on Aging — starting Monday, Sept. 12. You will be picked up at home by the Superior Bus Co. and taken over to Scituate via the waterfront to a catered luncheon served at noon in the Scituate Center (COA.) Reservations must be made by the previous Friday at the Council Office — 383-9112.

Menu: Sept. 12 — Chicken Patty with sauce, parsley potato, broccoli, hard roll, vanilla pudding.

Sept. 19 — Turkey A-La-King, rice, peas and mushrooms, choc. pudding.

Sept. 26 — Beef Stew, parsley potatoes, chilled fruit.

Donation $1.25 — All meals served with beverages.

Walking Club News & Notes

The Governor's Cup Walk in Boston will take place Sunday, Oct. 2. There are application forms available for those interested in this year's event. Completed forms must be in the Center no later than Sept. 12. Do not mail forms on your own. The processed form is your bus reservation. Although we have a bus available to Boston, it will be for walkers only. To be eligible for a reservation, you must walk 1 or 3 miles of the event that you choose on the application form.

The Fall All-Members Meeting of the Walking Club, will be held at the Center, Sept. 12, at 11 a.m. Mary Ann Hansen and Dr. Wayne Westcott will be our guest speakers on how to improve your health habits, to improve overall good health.

60 + News

Tuesday, Aug. 23, 1988 at 60+ meeting decided on the Fair, Oct. 20. 8 people were present at the meeting. We will have raffle tickets for our Sept. 15 meeting and give them to members. Next 60+ meeting — Sept. 15. Hope to see everyone that day!

Friends Group

Everybody needs a friend, and the Council on Aging is no exception. It needs lots of them, which is the reason for beginning an organization called "Friends of the Cohasset Senior Center." The purpose of this non-profit organization is to provide funds for the Senior Center, not presently provided by state-federal-local funding.

If you would be interested in serving on the Board for the Friends, please call Kathy at 383-9112. The more we can do — the better we become!

South Shore Conservation begins fall term

The fall semester at the South Shore Conservatory will begin Sept. 12 in its three branches in Hingham, Duxbury, and Brockton. To begin the season, each branch will hold an Open House.

The main branch in Hingham, off 19 Fort Hill Street, will be held Sunday, Sept. 11 from 3 to 5 p.m.

The open house of the Duxbury branch in the First Parish Church, Tremont Street, will be held Thursday, Sept. 8 from 7 to 9 p.m. and the Brockton branch, open house, 325 West Elm Street (Universalist Unitarian Church) will be held Monday, Sept. 19 from 7 to 8 p.m.

The Conservatory, a non profit organization, is a member of the National Guild of Community Schools of the Arts. It offers private and class instruction to students of all ages and levels of ability in music (both classical and jazz/rock), dance, drama, and voice. Its faculty consists of over 50 professional artists and educators.

At the Hingham school, there is an accredited pre-school program, which offers music, taught by a specialist in early childhood music training, as part of the curriculum.

This fall, the Hingham branch of the Conservatory will offer private lessons on all instruments as well as special programs and classes for the whole family. Music training begins early with the "Music for Mom/Dad and Me" program.

This is a program for little ones from birth to four years, with a parent, to share singing, movement, finger play, and poetry for an hour on Friday mornings.

Another introductory class for children four to seven is "The Joy of Music." This class builds music concepts and skills, while involving the child actively in movement, speech, rhythm, singing and playing the specially designed instruments.

Classes are scaled to the ability of various age groups and a child should plan to continue through several levels to benefit from this class, offered on Wednesday and Thursday.

A natural progression of the "Joy" program is "Recorder Class." This is a very good beginning instrument, inexpensive and quite easy to play. Children should be over six years old and have had the basic "Joy" training.

The Cedar Hill Children's Chorus is a new class this year. Children will develop singing skills, and learn the fundamentals of music such as: rhythm, pitch, and early music reading in a relaxed and enjoyable atmosphere. The chorus will meet Wednesday afternoons.

The Conservatory offers Suzuki training for strings, including guitar, and piano to children over four years old. A Suzuki trained faculty member will teach this highly successful method, which includes one private lesson per week, and one periodic group lesson.

A parent must be part of the training and attend all lessons, learn the philosophy, and help the child at home. The school recommends an interview with the director or his assistant, prior to enrollment.

The "Creative Dramatics" program Saturday mornings offers a wonderful outlet for children 5 to 12 years old. Classes are arranged by age and experience, beginning with an introductory class for ages four to seven called, "Curtain Going Up." Children develop self-confidence, poise and the ability to present themselves in front of others with ease and assurance.

Other classes for children include: "Guitar Fun," beginning classes; "Kids on the Keys," which is a class to introduce children to the piano in groups of four per class; "Classical Ballet" Thursdays; and an "Introduction to Dance" for children four to six years old on Mondays or Thursdays.

The Conservatory offers many programs for adults in addition to private instrumental or voice lessons. To accommodate those who work, many of these lessons are scheduled in the evening.

The Great Performance is a new music appreciation class on Wednesday evenings. The class will listen to tapes and records of great performances by solists, conductors, ensembles and orchestras. A discussion will examine what makes one performance more outstanding than another from the viewpoint of the artists, the conductor, the critic, and the audience. Mr. Douglas Wauchope will conduct the class and use his extensive collection of tapes and records and his musical expertise to make an exciting ten weeks.

Dancing classes for teens and adults will include: ballet, modern dance, and modern jazz dance. There will also be a folk dance workshop for ten weeks for singles and couples with no experience required.

For choir members and singers, who would like to learn sight reading, or improve their sight reading and skills, Margo Euler will offer "Smart Singing." The program will be divided according to beginning or continuing students Tuesday evenings.

The Conservatory offers senior citizens a discount on private lessons and also on classes such as, "The Cedar Hill Chorus," for adults who love to sing. They will learn folk songs and art songs in parts, directed by Sarah Smith. A beginning class in "Piano for Senior Citizens" will be part of the fall schedule with Don Crandall, of the piano faculty, instructing. It will meet on Tuesday or Wednesday; there will be a continuing class for those who took the summer session.

The Jazz/Rock Department, directed by Jeff Harrington and a faculty of professional jazz musicians, is an important part of the Conservatory. Jazz/Rock Ensembles, a Super Sax Ensemble and a special Adult Jazz Ensemble will be offered. Private instruction and improvisation lessons may also be arranged.

For further information and a catalogue describing in detail the programs in the Conservatory's three branches call 749-7565.

Gymnastics classes

Cape Cod Gymnastics' Scituate studio, which offers a comprehensive program designed for boys and girls from pre-school through high school, is now accepting registration for fall classes at the Jenkins School gym, First Parish Road, Scituate.

The pre-school program is for children two through five and focuses on perceptual awareness, motor development and coordination activities. Small and large muscle coordination, ground and space relationships and hand and eye coordination are a significant part of the curriculum.

The pre-school child works with a small group of children of the same approximate age. Both social interaction and independent action are encouraged. While progressing at his or her own pace, the child realizes both a sense of challenge and achievement.

The beginner and intermediate level program is for students who are proficient in basic perceptual and motor abilities. Emphasis is placed on the teaching of gymnastic skills at various instructional levels. Fundamental skills and combined movements are the foundation of mastering more difficult exercises on the various pieces of Olympic gymnastic equipment — the side horse vault, uneven parallel bars, balance beam and floor exercise for girls; the pommel horse, rings, long horse vault, parallel bars, single bar, and floor exercise for boys.

The advanced level or team program is offered for the gymnasts who have mastered the skills taught at the instructional levels. The competitive team levels range from novice through advanced. Team advancement is based upon mastering the reqired skills at each level, attitude and interest.

Registration information is available by calling 545-1578. Fall classes start Sept. 12.

Obituaries

Robert V. Jackson

A memorial service was conducted Aug. 30, at the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset on the Cohasset Common for Robert V. Jackson, 65, of Cohasset, who died Aug. 27, at Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital, Braintree, after a long illness.

A Cohasset resident since 1962, he was a former president of the Cohasset Youth Athletic Association.

Mr. Jackson was a sales representative for industrial products in the New England area until he retired in 1979.

Born in Boston, he grew up in Marblehead and lived in Shrewsbury before he moved to Cohasset.

A Navy veteran of World War II, he served in the North Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Mr. Jackson was a member of the George Mealy American Legion Post, the Masons, the American Red Cross and the Second Congregational Church, Cohasset.

He is survived by his wife, Charlene A. (Waugh) Jackson; two sons, Robert W. Jackson of Cohasset and Bradford L. Jackson of Wilmington; a daughter, Christine Sacher of Swampscott, and eight grandchildren.

The Rev. Gary Ritts conducted the memorial service.

Arrangements were by McNamara-Sparrel Funeral Home of Cohasset and Norwell.

Donations may be made to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, 25 Spring St., Walpole, Ma., 02081.

Edythe K. Twiss

A graveside service was held Thursday, Sept. 1, at Mount Hope Cemetery, Boston, for Edythe K. (Antoine) Twiss, 81, of Cohasset, who died Aug. 27 in South Pasadena, Fla., nursing home.

A golfer, she was the wife of the late golf pro John B. Twiss.

She lived in Cohasset most of her life.

Arrangements were by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Service.

Studds plans medical waste dumping ban

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds recently introduced legislation to prohibit the disposal of medical waste in the ocean.

This summer, waves of medical debris closed beaches throughout the Northeast. The source of the washed-up garbage has not been pinpointed. The federal government currently has no tracking system for medical waste and defers to individual states to regulate its disposal.

"Take a walk on the beach these days and you may well stumble over used bandages or syringes," Studds said. "While the medical risk associated with this debris is fairly low, it is intolerable that garbage finds its way into the ocean, and onto our shores."

The Sutdds bill explicitly bars ocean dumping of medical waste, and prohibits the Environmental Protection Agency from issuing permits for any such disposal. It would make illegal dumping a felony, increasing penalties for such dumping from $50,000 to $250,000, and from one to five years in prison.

The legislation wold also impose liability on those who illegally dispose of any materials that affect the marine environment — including medical waste — for any resulting clean up costs and economic losses.

"The bill's liability provision would constitute a major expansion of federal environmental law," Studds said. "It is based on the principle that those who cause environmental and economic harm should pay for it, not the innocent people who would otherwise suffer without any recourse."

The liability provision would permit recovery by state and local governments of lost tax revenues, by shoreline homeowners for damaged property, and by fishermen or tourist businesses for lost income resulting from illegal dumping.

Imagine

this was once how you turned on a light

Think about it.

A candle-light dinner may be romantic, but no one wants to return to the days when it was also a necessity. A lot has happened to the way we live since then. And electricity has been responsible for many of the changes that have made our lives healthier, safer, and more prosperous. In fact, it's hard to imagine life without electricity.

No easy answers

But the days of easy answers to our energy needs are over. We face difficult times ahead, and the choices we make now will affect not only ourselves, but future generations as well.

That's why we need to take the time to investigate and examine our energy options, so that we can make the most-informed and intelligent choices possible.

We need more electricity

And here are some things you should be aware of when making those choices: New England's energy supply is in a vulnerable position. The region's demand for electricity has steadily increased — last winter, records were set for electrical use — and there is every indication that the need for electrical energy will continue to grow.

New England's electric-load growth is more than twice that of the nation as a whole, and forecasts predict energy shortages by the early 1990's. That's right around the corner. At Eastern Edison Company, we're working hard to keep that prediction from coming true.

Using all our options

We're importing hydro-power from Canada, and encouraging and developing substantial increases in cogeneration and small power projects. We're promoting our "Teaming-up" conservation and load-management programs — programs designed to save you money while saving energy for all of us. And we're continuing our efforts to augment supply by extending the life of existing plants, and by bringing new facilities, such as Ocean State and Seabrook, on line.

Together — we can do it

But that still may not be enough. That's why we've got to keep working on comprehensive and innovative solutions to our present, and future, energy needs. Together. Because we're all in this together — and together we can make a difference.

After all, candle-light dinners should happen only when you want them to, not because they have to.

Electricity...imagine life without it.

"Beyond Infinity," a walnut sculpture by Constance Bergfors.

September at the art center

Sculptures and oil landscapes

The bold wood sculptures of Constance Bergfors set against the pale — almost white-on-white — disjointed oil landscapes of Gordon Green will offer a stark contrast in viewing for the South Shore Art Center's September exhibit in the Bancroft Invitational Gallery.

Both artists take from nature but execute their work in diverse ways. Bergfors, a Quincy native who currently resides in Maryland sculpts in wood, finishing her pieces to a smooth sensual sleek sheen. Green, a Boston-based artist, interprets his outdoor setting through a scrambled imagery on canvas that may almost appear harmonious to the viewer.

The exhibit of works by Bergfors and Green opens Sept. 9 in the Bancroft Gallery of the Center at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset and continues through Oct. 1. A formal reception for the artists will be held Sunday, Sept. 11 from 2 to 4 p.m., overlapping with the Center's fall open house from 3 to 5 p.m.

Bergfors love of art stems from her college years at Smith where, while majoring in zoology, she was introduced to drawing. She nurtured her talent at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, D.C. and at the Academia di Belle Arte in Rome. Her early work earned the descriptive phase "fragmented paintings" with two, three, four or more parts to each work. She stretched her canvas on irregular shaped stretchers and painted with closely related acrylic colors. Her first successful showing of "fragmented paintings" was at the Galleria Editalia in Rome, 1980.

But the sculptural overtones in her paintings caused her to begin a serious study of carving techniques in stone and then wood at the Glen Echo Park Sanborn Studio and back again at the Corcoran.

The fragmented surfaces of her paintings have now become three-dimensional in her carvings and the relationships more complex.

In Bergfors' sculptures, her surfaces are curved, the texture smooth and the movement is generally upward and "a rhythm is created between the edges of the spaces and solids of each piece. The fragments, however, remain a metaphor for how we see, for how we understand the world," Bergfors said in reflecting about her work.

She returns to the South Shore for her first one-person exhibit in the Boston area. Other one-person exhibits include the Community Gallery in Lancaster, PA; the Plum Gallery in Kensington, Maryland; Lines and Spaces at the U.S. Government complex in Langley, Virginia; the Capital Centre Gallery in Landover, Maryland; the Strathmore Hall Arts Center in Rockville, MD; and others.

Her work is included in the public collections of the United States Government, Howard University, Quinoil Industries, the American Embassy in Conakry, Guinea, and the law firms of Cladouhos and Brashers and Caplin and Drysdale, both based in Washington, D.C. She was awarded the Mary Lay Thom Award for outstanding achievement in sculpture in 1983 and the Montgomery County Purchase Prize in 1987.

Much of the work Green selected for this exhibit was completed while an artist-in-residence at the Cummington Community of the Arts.

Green's current work captures an optimistic and exuberant feeling while "steering away from the dialogue of opposites and narrative suggestions more apparent in my earlier work," he said. He sees in these paintings the viewer's eye being guided in an interesting and surprising way while maintaining a unified image which acts as both the starting and ending point of the eye's travel through the work.

Green works in oils using the pales of colors, almost a white-on-white feeling. He lets no one color assert itself and only occasionally a hint of the palest of reds or greens comes out of the thick white grounds.

His exhibit at the Center is the first of three consecutive one-and two-person shows in the Boston area this fall. The others are at Framingham State College in October and Art Intentions Gallery in Hanover in November.

Other one-person exhibits include Summer's World Center for the Arts in Worcester, Somerville Hospital Gallery, Cahpel Gallery in Boston, the Hilles Library Gallery, the Harvest Gallery and the Harvard Neighbors Gallery, all in Cambridge and the Hotel Meridien in Boston.

His work was accepted into the national juried competitions at the Creative Arts Workshop in New Haven, Connecticut and at the Pindar Gallery in New York. Other group exhibits include ones at Granite Rose Gallery in Nashua, Passaic County Community College in New Jersey, Northhampton Art Association, Faneuil Hall Marketplace, The Conservatory at Marriott Copley Place, Cambridge Art Association, School of the Museum of Fine Arts and the Alchemie Gallery.

Many of his pieces appear in private and corporate collections in the Boston area.

He was also an artist-in-residence at the Weymouth Center for the Arts in Southern Pines, North Carolina. He is affiliated with the Ward-Nasse Gallery in New York.

Visitors are invited to view this exhibit Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Sunday, noon to 4 p.m. For information please call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548.

Programs of the Center are supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

New teachers aboard for art center fall term

New classes, new teachers are on the fall line up of courses at the South Shore Art Center with a new term beginning September 19.

Enrollments for the adult and children's classes are currently being taken at the Center at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset.

An open house for visitors to tour the Center, meet instructors and see a student exhibit will be Sunday, Sept. 11 from 3 to 5 p.m. The open house overlaps with a formal reception for sculptor Constance Bergfors and painter Gordon Green whose works are on exhibit in the Bancroft Invitational Gallery through the end of September.

The fall schedule of classes introduces Catherine Zimmerman and John Kilroy as instructors of adult courses. Zimmerman, a noted artist and teacher of Sumi-e painting, will take over teaching the Oriental Brush Techniques meeting Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. She works with her students on the basic brush techniques which can be applied to many different media and she will illustrate the traditional Sumi-e (calligraphy and ink painting).

Kilroy, who has studied with John Asaro and Robert Bliss, will teach the Art of Illustration on Mondays from 7-9:30 p.m. His course will cover basic advertising, editorial and book illustration techniques with emphasis on picture making, compostition, reproduction, integrating and designing with type, values and color. Projects will include thumbnail sketches, roughs and finished artwork.

In the three-dimensional department, Judy Rossman and George Dalton will teach Handbuilding and Wheel in Clay for beginners on Tuesdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Students will work on basic handbuilding and wheel throwing techniques to create both functional and decorative clay pottery. Finished pieces will be fired and glazed. Dalton will also teach Clay on the Wheel for beginning and intermediate students who want to learn such techniques as centering, bringing up a cylinder, collaring and throwing.

This class meets Saturdays, 10 to 12:30 p.m. Rossman will give a four day Saturday workshop in Modelling the Figure in Terra cotta, meeting November 5 and 12, December 3 & 10 from 9:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The Drawing and Design Department offers David Tandy's Introductory Drawing on Wednesdays from 7:15 to 10:15 p.m.; Albert Abany's "Drawing to People Who Can't Draw a Straight Line" on Tuesdays, 10 to 12:30 p.m.; Rosalind Farbush's Life Drawing for all levels of ability on Saturdays 9:30 to 12:30 p.m.; and Louise Kalish's Creative Color and Design on Mondays, 9:30 to 12 noon.

In painting, courses include Tandy's Introductory Painting on Wednesdays, 7:15 to 10:15 p.m.; Abany's Oil and Acrylic Painting, for all levels of ability, Tuesdays, 1:30 to 4 p.m.; Virginia Avery's Watercolor, for all levels, Wednesdays 9 to 12 noon; Mary Lizotte's Draw and Paint in Watercolor for advanced artists on Thursdays from 9 to 3 p.m.; Katherine Smit's Basic Portrait Mondays from 12:30 to 3 p.m.; Clement Micarelli's Portraiture for intermediate and advanced students, Thursdays, 7:30 to 10 p.m.; and a special four-class session of Silk Painting by Joan Hausrath starting October 27, meeting on Thursdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Berj Kallian will teach Monotype and Collage for intermediate and advanced students on Fridays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., two four-week sessions beginning Sept. 23 and again October 21. Kalish will lead nine half-day tours to galleries and museums in Boston and Cambridge every third Thursday starting Sept. 15.

In the photography department, Beginning Photography taught by Tom Hannon will meet on Mondays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and Intermediate Photography taught by Paul Fortin will meet Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Beginning Photography covers F stops, shutter speeds, film filters, composition, lighting and subjects with emphasis on recognizing elements of good photography. The next level covers photographing portraits, figures and landscapes emphasizing aesthetics, composition and approach.

For further information, to enroll in classes or to take out a membership, call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. Programs of the Center are supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Art workshops for teen students

A new series of courses has been developed by the South Shore Art Center for high school students only.

"We want to reach this group of students with courses designed for them and with courses which give them a state of art as a profession, not just a hobby," according to Linda Keating, education director for the Center.

Keating, along with Susan Rodgerson and Albert Abany, both instructors at the Center, have developed four courses geared specifically for high school students. Each one focuses on making student aware of the seriousness of art and giving them an introduction to a commercial or fine arts career.

The Center, at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, offers on its fall schedule "A Taste of Art School Drawing," "Elements of Design," and "Saturday Morning Tour," taught by Rodgerson and "Portfolio Preparation" taught by Abany. Advanced registration is required for these classes as well as all adult and young artists courses on its fall schedule.

"A Taste of Art School Drawing," will meet Mondays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. starting Sept. 19. Students will experience the process of picture making through the power of observation and repeated study. Rodgerson wants her students to approach their subject matter in terms of understanding what they see and how to represent the image on paper.

In this course, students will fill their sketch books with quick gesture and contour sketches, long contour sketches, memory sketches and structural studies. Students will study color, value, form and the process of drawing, in terms of where to begin and how to keep their observations alive and exciting.

On the same night, but beginning Oct. 31, she will teach "Elements of Design." Rodgerson will work with students on how to create an illusion of depth on a two-dimensional surface. The basis of this course is "a look at how a piece of paper comes to life," she explained.

Rodgerson will give students advertising, graphic design and fine arts projects. She views the course as a good introduction to the commercial side of visual arts and the many professsional opportunities available to students interested in an art-related career.

Her "Saturday Morning Museum Tours" will take students to a particular collection within the Museum of Fine Arts for a close look at the work of successful artists. Rodgerson will tailor the tours to the interests of the group, selecting specific collections to match the interest.

Two-four week sessions of tours will be held during the fall, with the first starting Sept. 24 and the second, Oct. 22. Arrangements will be made to car-pool students to the T.

Abany's course, Portfolio Preparation, has been set up to work with students in putting together a presentable portfolio for art school admissions. He will cover the range of work to be included in a portfolio so that the portfolio reflects the person's abilities, interests and level of imagination. He will give step-by-step guidance in the preparation of a student's own portfolio and in the physical presentation of the artwork. Abany's course meets on Friday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. starting Sept. 23.

Keating plans to visit local high schools and to meet with the faculty of various art departments. She wants the high school students to become familiar with what the South Shore Art Center has to offer and how the Center courses can supplement the high school art department curriculums.

The Center high school series is one segment of the young artist department which offers courses for all children both in Cohasset and at its satellite locations in Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate, Quincy and Weymouth.

Asbestos study to begin at Vo-tech campus

By Patricia Masterson
Mariner correspondent

The South Shore Vocational regional school committee last week okayed $7,000 for a federally mandated asbestos study project to be performed by Briggs Associates, of Rockland, the sole bidder.

The study will show where asbestos is and what kind of asbestos is present in the Hanover-based high school. The study will also indicate what options are available to school officials to comply with federal regulations.

The asbestos management plan must be approved by the Department of Health.

"We should give serious thought to removing the asbestos during the remodeling of the building," said Paul Babcock, director of development.

To date, school officials are aware that asbestos is located in the boiler area, not in the areas occupied by students.

As a non-budgeted item, the asbestos study funds will be taken out of the building maintenance budget or surplus funds. Committee members consider the fee high, but they must comply with regulations.

Briggs cannot complete the study by the Oct. 12 due date, but Babcock will file a request for deferral to May 9, 1989. He told committee members that they do meet requirements for a deferral.

The state has its own asbestos regulations, and the school committee voted $400 to pay for general awareness training for all staff members. Babcock has applied for funding for consultants to teach the course.

Custodial training is also required by the state by Oct. 30. Briggs bid $2,500 to train the custodial staff, but the school committee will look for less expensive ways for training, such as joining with other school custodial staffs or attending a course at Tufts University.

Survey on bond

The South Shore Vo-Tech regional school committee is contacting member towns for a final decision to go forward in securing a $14 million bond for an addition and renovations to the Hanover campus.

The school committee is asking the eight boards of selectmen to hold special town meetings if they object to the plan to authorize the debt. The towns have 30 days to call for a town vote.

Six of the eight member towns approved the plan in town meetings recently, but unanimity is needed for the committee to move forward.

The committee needs a commitment from the towns to apply for a grant, which would provide 75-percent reimbursement by the state School Business Assistance Bureau (SBAB) if approved. The towns must give their support before they know if the grant will be provided.

SBAB determines the amount of a grant for construction and renovation with an evaluation of projected growth in enrollment in the region.

In the midst of financial crisis, Whitman and Abington defeated the 20-year bond articles at their town meetings. Committee members estimate that with the grant, none of the towns will pay more than six percent of the $14 million bond when the bill comes up in five or six years.

"Whitman faced a cash crunch which necessitated cutting thousands of dollars from the local school budget, and the finance committee wanted to be consistent," said Llyod Patriquin, a committee member from Whitman.

"The bond won't cost Whitman anything because their enrollment will go up, but they have already allocated the expected monies that would have been saved."

Abington has laid off teachers and clerical workers in their town and cut other school costs simultaneous to voting down the regional school bond.

The school is now housed at two campuses, in Hanover and Abington. Buses transport students between schools throughout the day. The regional school leases the former Abington Junior High School at $218,000 a year. SBAB standards may require the school to move from the location when the lease expires in four years.

If one town objects to the authorization of the bond, the regional school plans will die, school officials said.

The architect will need eight to 10 months to prepare a bid, and the committee would like to go ahead now to be in time for the July SBAB funding cycle.

The proposed addition and renovations are expected to be completed in December, 1991, if member towns approve the bond.

Post office closed Labor Day

Residents are reminded all post offices will be closed and there will be no regular mail delivery Monday, Sept. 5, in observance of the Labor Day Holiday.

Regular collection service will be provided Saturday, Sept. 3 and boxes scheduled for a holiday pickup will be collected on Labor Day. Express Mail and Special Delivery service will be provided throughout the weekend.

New window hours will go into effect at all area offices Saturday, Sept. 10. The goal of the new hours is to meet the needs of the community and they are based on consumer surveys done last month. Customers should check with their local post office for the new hours in their community.

Living legends of comedy cancels

The Living Legends of Comedy, starring Milton Berle, Danny Thomas and Sid Caesar, have canceled their Sept. 1 performance at South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset.

The Living Legends tour has dropped all its September dates in the northeast. Patrons holding Music Circus tickets for the September 1 performance may return them to the point of purchase for a refund.

State agency adds its support to Curtis plan

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

While the town anxiously awaits a court hearing on the status of the Curtis Estate property, members of the citizens action committee were buoyed this week by an important endorsement of their plan.

The state Executive Office of Communities and Development added its endorsement of the town-supported plan that would bring housing for low-income families, the handicapped, retarded and the elderly to the Jerusalem Road property now controlled by trustees of the estate of the late George Curtis.

EOCD official Elizabeth Sternberg notified Curtis Estate Action Committee members this week that the state agency supports their proposal to provide housing on the 55-acre site. This follows similar endorsements submitted by the Cohasset selectmen, the fair housing committee, the Cohasset Council on Aging and the Cohasset Housing Authority.

Continued support for the housing plan comes as welcomed news to members of the action committee as they await a court hearing that will decide its fate. "After next week, either we'll just be beginning, or it's all over for us," said Joseph McElroy, co-spokesman for the CEAC.

A hearing has been scheduled Sept. 15 in the Plymouth County Probate and Family Court to decide whether the trustees of the Curtis Estate will be allowed to break the terms of the will established by the late owner. The trustees, Evan Crosby and James DeGiacomo, have petitioned the court for permission to break the terms of the will and to sell the property with the liquid assets divided among a number of charitable organizations.

The citizens action committee opposes that plan and has attempted to fight the trustees' proposal through the state attorney general. The citizens committee has submitted an alternative plan which includes renovations to the existing Curtis Estate structures so that housing units may be provided to the elderly, low income families, and the physically and mentally handicapped.

It is now up to the state attorney general's office to endorse the citizens' plan for needy housing, or to support the trustees' proposal to sell the property and distribute the money to charities. "What she (Asst. Attorney General Gwen O'Sullivan) decides in that court room, will carry the most weight," McElroy explained. "If she sides with the trustees, it could all be over for us. But if she favors our plan, then very likely the presiding judge will also support us."

He added, "all we want is a fair hearing to express our views about the proposal."

The citizens action committee believes its plan most closely resembles the intent of Curtis' will which required the property be used as "a home and refuge for feeble, deformed or invalid women who are without means and are unable to provide for their own living."

Under the committee's proposal, the main

Business lost out to teaching

Laureen White

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

"Most of my friends think I'm nuts. I work a lot harder than they do and I'm not making as much money. But this is the job for me."

That's how Cohasset's newest teacher feels about her choice of careers.

Laureen White was early for work this week - preparing the business education classroom at Cohasset High School for her very first students.

Just as a young student excitedly anticipates the first day of school, this 25 year-old teacher felt the same emotions. "I can't wait to see them," she laughed, sitting in the computer classroom that soon would be filled with lively teenagers. "I'm really looking forward to meeting the students here.

"I can't wait to get into this."

White is a 25 year-old graduate of Merrimack College. She majored in business, but soon realized she had caught the teaching bug. As a business tutor, White admitted she "really liked" the experience. Soon after graduation, she entered Westfield State College and received her teaching certificate.

"I guess it was my senior year at Merrimack that I realized I really didn't want to go into business. I worked as an operator at Spags Supply Store for a while, working on the computers there. I earned enough money to get

Police, fire stations 'a dump'

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

Five members of the newly-appointed police and fire station renovation committee toured the Elm Street site Tuesday night, Sept. 6, and then discussed their next course of action for about an hour back at town hall.

Committee members will discuss their individual recommendations at the next meeting Monday, Sept. 19, at 7:30 p.m. tentatively scheduled for town hall.

"We'll try to come back with some clear ideas," said chairman Barbara Moore of Old Coach Rd.

Then they will talk to selectmen about the plans, and get an estimate on the cost of renovations, according to Moore.

Before the next meeting members will study information from an earlier committee which recommended a $1.1 million renovation in 1987 by Putnam and Associates, Architects, Boston. The proposal was accepted and then rescinded at town meetings.

The current committee was appointed by selectmen July 25. It has not been allocated any funds as yet.

Fire Chief Daniel Brock led the group through a tour of the fire station half of the complex, which houses two pumpers, a spare pumper, ladder truck, ambulance and forest truck.

Brock, chief since January, 1986, showed committee members through sections such as the dormitory which has six beds in one room.

"You couldn't have a female firefighter if you wanted to," noted Moore of the room which has no dividers.

While leading the group through his office, Brock commented that there is not enough room for both him and his secretary.

"We should have separate offices," he said.

He also noted that there are no bathroom facilities for women.

A recreation room with stove, chairs and a TV is large enough for the up to six men who are on duty at a time, but cramped when it is used as a training room, he said.

When asked by committee member Francis Collins if the fire department is adequately equipped for the future, Brock said that it should have one more pumper.

Police Sgt. Richard Barrow, who has been with the department for almost 39 years, assisted the committee as it toured the police station.

Barrow said that some kind of screening in needed on the front counter to protect officers.

- Thomas J. Cummings, seeking to construct a retail building at Johnathan Livingston Square, 130 King St.

COA annual meeting

The Cohasset Council on Aging annual meeting will be held at Kimball's By-the-Sea, 124 Elm Street, Monday, Sept. 12 at 11 a.m.

The agenda for the meeting is as follows: election of officers; secretary's report; finance committee report; director's report; report from Gerard Keating (S.S.E.S.).

Members and friends are cordially invited to attend. Please call 383-9112 if you plan to attend the meeting.

Revolving legislation

The Cohasset Board of Health has written to Sen. William B. Golden and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray regarding legislation to establish revolving accounts under the treasurer/collector.

The letter noted that the legislators had been requested to draft and file necessary legislation to accomplish the action voted by the annual town meeting.

"While the article mentions engineering and legal costs, the Board of Health requires such legislation for certain environmental concerns as well," stated Health Agent Jospeh R. Godzik, who wrote on behalf of the board.

"Two such concerns which depend on this special legislation are tire recycling and septage disposal.

"Establishment of an entity such as an enterprise fund would permit the town through the board of health, to enter into a contract with a tire recycler for removal of tires at no cost to the town.

"It would also permit entering into a contract with another municipality or sewage district for the disposal of septage, presently a serious problem for Cohasset since the Hull Wastewater Treatment Facility has stopped accepting septage.

"Filing in this session would permit earlier, much needed implementation and would be of great benefit to the citizens of Cohasset," stated Godzik.

Sen. Golden responded that he had already written to Sen. Michael J. Barrett and Rep. Henry R. Grenier, chairman, Committee on Local Affairs, asking for favorable action as soon as possible.

"Prompt legislative action on this bill would be of considerable benefit to the financial operation of various town departments," wrote Golden.

One-day licenses

The general manager of Kimball's-by-the-Sea has written to Cohasset selectmen with some suggestions to prevent those who request one day alcoholic beverage licenses from becoming "back-door competition" for full-time licensees.

Selectmen wrote in July to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission asking for a ruling after the Cohasset Community Center requested six, one-day liquor licenses.

The board approved two of the August dates, but members said they will wait to hear from the ABCC before acting on the other requests.

Daniel C. Leahy of Kimball's suggested in his letter to selectmen that organizations be limited to four serving events a year, the event be for debt reduction or other such goal, and that a certificate of insurance be presented to the town demonstrating adequate coverage in the event of an alcohol-related accident.

Leahy also said that one day licensees should be held to the same local inspection and hygenic standards as their "annual" counterparts, and that they should be accountable for having qualified supervision responsible as the manager on the annual licenses.

"These one day licensees should not become 'back-door' competition for your full-time licensees, remembering that they have no way near the mandatory overhead and thereby can reflect that in their 'retail' price," said Leahy.

Leahy also suggested that all events be internally conducted by the organizational directors or staff, "in lieu of simply renting the space to outside interests and then 'taking a piece of the action.' "

In addition, Leahy said that any group routinely exceeding many of the suggestions consider applying for a club license so that control and enforcement would be firmly established.

Leahy said he was writing to selectmen after observing an "apparent increase" in the quantity of one-day alcoholic beverage licenses requests.

"Those of us who qualify for a full-service license pay dearly for this 'privilege' ", said Leahy.

"Beside the obvious investment in the alcoholic service paraphernalia such as beverage inventory, physical plant and association licenses, we are also obliged to invest in other corresponding and complementary areas.

"Food, refrigeration, embellished full-time staff are but a few areas of involvement that are mandatory in order to service our public legally and professionally.

"Now I don't dismiss the so-called 'need' for a one-day license, but I do concern myself with the abuse of said permit," said Leahy.

"For the occasional, charitable event, the dispensing of beer, wine or other controlled substance probably does, on occasion, enhance the requesting organization's ability to secury success.

"It is when the definition of the occasional and charitable begin to diffuse, that the investment of your fill-time licensees is held in disregard."

Designated brush chipping days

The chipping program provided by Tree and Park Dept. personnel will continue at the Cedar Street landfill through the month of September.

Residents who have brush to be disposed can bring it to the landfill on the following days designated for chipping: Saturday, Sept. 10 and Monday, Sept. 12, Saturday, Sept. 24 and Monday, Sept. 26. Brush cannot be accepted at any other time because of restrictions placed by the DEQE.

Only residential brush is accepted; no contractors/landscapers may dispose materials for chipping.

Disposal hours are 8 a.m. to noon on only those days designated.

Teaching won over business

back into college, and went to get my teaching certificate," she explained.

White's parents are both teachers in Worcester, and their daughter figured, "I just got the bug. I guess teaching was always in the back of my mind.

"It wasn't just one thing that changed my mind about careers," she recalled. "Probably it was the tutoring at college that did it. I tutored students in business courses and I really loved it. Probably that's what made the sparks fly."

White enrolled in Westfield State College and received her teaching certification in December, 1987. Although she"s still young, White figures she's at least had some time to think seriously about her career since graduation.

"I can't see doing something you don't really love, no matter how much they pay you. Money isn't an issue, as long as you make enough to get by, and you really like the job," she added.

As she prepared herself and the classroom for her new students, White admitted she was a "little nervous - but confident."

She noted, "I've been out of school for a little while. I didn't just graduate a few weeks ago. I'm just excited to get into this. I have a good rapport with kids - I'm young enough to really want to get involved with them."

White figured she fit right into the Cohasset High School scene. "I love sports," she said, "so I'm sure I'll be going to a lot of games around here.

"I'm not going to be a teacher who leaves the school at 2 p.m. and goes right home. I'd like to stick around here if the kids need me, or if there's some sort of activity to attend."

Home for the new teacher is now Scituate. She and another new Cohasset High School teacher will be a housemates in a "terrific" place they've rented along the seashore. "It's going to work out just great," White predicted.

Her interview for this job was the first time White had travelled to Cohasset. "I can't believe how beautiful this town is," she said. "My family always rented a cottage on the Cape in the summer. But this place is just as beautiful as anywhere on the Cape."

She didn't want to begin her teaching career in an inner city school. White's parents teach in the Worcester public school system, where half their energies are spent disciplining rather than teaching the students. "I really didn't want that type of experience, particularly in my first job," she noted.

But she was intent on obtaining a teaching job in a high school. "I love this age. They're so eager and always fired up with new ideas and things they've learned. But they want to be cool and they don't always want to show you how they feel. Teenagers are interesting to watch. I think I'm old enough to understand them, and young enough to really like them."

The young teacher is also counting on experience from others to guide her through the first days in the classrom. "I learned my teaching skills at Westfield State, but Doris Laharg has been the head of the business department for years and I'm sure she'll be a great help to me. She has already," White explained.

Her goals for the first year in the classroom are simple but straightforward.

"I know I'm going to make some mistakes along the way. But I intend to learn from those mistakes," she said. "I'm a perfectionist, but I've got to learn not to let everything get to me. I expect with every mistake I make, I'll learn something new and grow from it.

"The more I learn, the better teacher I will be. I can't expect to be the perfect teacher my first year."

Although she once set her career goals more toward Wall Street than along Pond Street, Cohasset, White said she wouldn't trade places with any of her corporate friends. She said with confidence, "I love what I'm doing."

Trask Tackle sponsored bluefish tournament

By Bill Bowers
Mariner staff

Robert Fisk and Frank Loring, both of Scituate, won first prize in the boat and shore divisions at the third annual Bigfish Bluefish Tournament sponsored by Trask Tackle of Country Way in North Scituate. The tournament, which began July 1, ended Monday at 4 pm.

Fisk, fishing aboard his friend Dave Lynch's boat Sea Ya Later, caught an enormous bluefish that tipped the scales at 17 pounds, 14 ounces to win the boat division first prize, which included a trophy, a boat rod and reel combination and a $200 Trask Tackle gift certificate.

The fish fell for a four-ounce blue-and-white Atom popping plug near Flat Ledge off Minot, said Fisk, who attributed his success to simple luck.

"I have to admit catching the biggest fish was just lucky," said Fisk, as he examined the array of fishing tackle at the shop to decide which items to buy with his gift certificate. "We've been out fishing all weekend, but I got the winning fish on Saturday," he added.

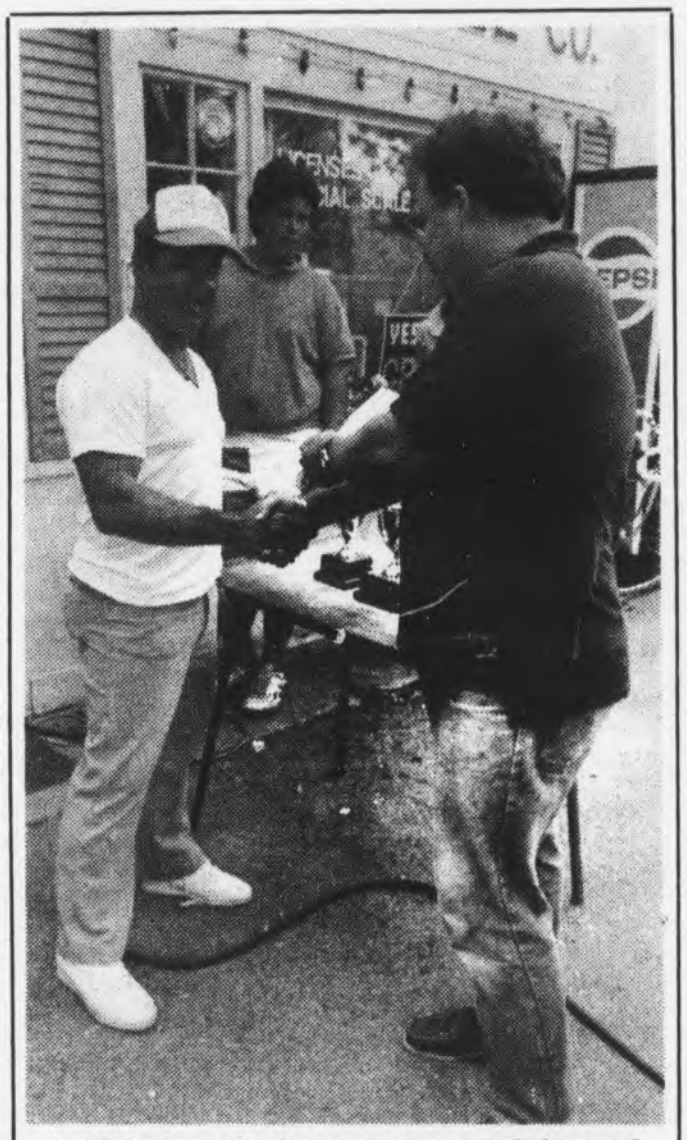
Loring won first prize in the shore division, capturing a 17-pound, 5-ounce bluefish from the beach at Minot on Saturday. Like Fisk, Loring won a trophy and a $200 gift certificate, but he received a surf-casting rod and reel rather than a boat combo. And, like Fisk, Loring used a blue-and-white Atom plug to fool the wily bluefish.

"The Atoms are what the blues are hitting right now. It's the hot lure for this whole area," Loring said.

Interestingly enough, first-prize winner Loring also caught the smallest bluefish weighed in during the entire tournament. That young fish, weighing 5 pounds, 8 ounces, was caught several weeks ago.

Ted Abbadessa of Cohasset took second prize in the boat division, winning a trophy and a $100 gift certificate with a bluefish of 16 pounds, 15 ounces. Scott Lyons of Scituate caught a blue just one ounce smaller than Abbadessa's to win third place, a trophy and a $50 gift certificate.

Second prize in the shore division went to Bob McKay of Scituate, who caught a 16-pound, 1/2-ounce fish. Ken Hennebury of Hull took third prize, with a blue of 15 pounds, 4 ounces.



Ted Abbadessa (l) of Cohasset was awarded second place in the boat division of the Trask Tackle bluefish tournament. Mark Trask (r), sponsor of the tourney, congratulates the local fisherman.
(J. Paul MacDonald)

There was also a weekly prize of a $25 gift certificate for the largest bluefish in each division. Cohasset residents who won weekly prizes are:

Sheldon Sladen, July 15, 13 pounds, 4 ounces; Tom Lagrotteria, Aug. 5, 16 pounds, 6 ounces; Ted Abbadessa, Aug. 12, 15 pounds, 12 ounces; Bernie Hamill, Aug. 19, 15 pounds, 9 ounces; and Lynda Hamill, Aug. 26, 16 pounds, 2 1/2 ounces.

The tournament was a smashing success, with more contestants, more entries and more fun than ever before, according to Mark and Janet Trask, who organized the event.

"We had a hundred people who entered their fish this year, and we expect even more for next year," said Mark Trask, adding that he and his wife are very pleased with the way their business has been going in the two years since they moved from Cohasset to Scituate. "Thanks to the loyalty of our good customers, we've been very successful here in Scituate," he said.

"It's been a great time. The fishermen have been really enthusiastic," said Janet Trask, pointing out that she and her husband named their bluefish tournament after a children's book by Dr. Seuss called One Fish, Two Fish, Red Fish, Blue Fish.

"We just thought it was kind of catchy, and the name stuck," she said.

Sheila Casey, manager of the art center gift shop, displays a Phillipine mother of pearl necklace to an interested customer. (Kym Marcella photo)

Art center gift shop expands

In just one year, the quality has not diminished, but the quantity of items in the art center gift shop has tripled.

The South Shore Art Center, just outside Cohasset Village, opened its small but impressive gift shop about a year ago. At that time there were eight artists who created items for the shop which is nestled in a corner by the front entrance at 119 Ripley Road.

But under Sheila Casey's perceptive eye for fashion and artistry, along with a keen notion for marketing, that small shop now attracts the art of more than 28 craftsmen.

Casey was a student at the art center and accepted an invitation to work as a volunteer for the nonprofit organization. "Marion Bush later asked me to run the gift shop, and I took it over last January," she recalled.

At that time, eight local artists were consigning their work to the gift shop. It was a quiet, attractive shop within the center, filled with unusual and unique products.

Remembering that the gift shop was a source of needed income for the center, as well as an income-producer and centerpiece for the artists, Casey set out to locate more artists and additional pieces of affordable and attractive products.

Her task was not always easy, she noted. "I wanted to make sure our items were affordable for everyone. Sometimes, I saw things that were very beautiful, but I knew there would be no way

Curtis committee receives more support

Curtis home will be refurbished and used as a residential facility for eight handicapped or eight retarded persons. resident facilities for a caretaker/custodian, a family life advocate and other personnel will be provided in the Curtis barn which will be fully renovated. Additional buildings on the property will provide transitional shelter for affordable needy and/or units of housing for others with EOCD guidelines.

The balance of the real estate, which is about 42 acres, will be labeled conservation land and no development will be allowed. The Cohasset Conservation Trust had the property appraised and has considered purchasing the open space at fair market value (about $5,000 an acre). The trust would develop walking paths and limited picnicking facilities on the land for the benefit of the Curtis estate residents, according to the action committee proposal.

The endorsement of the CEAC proposal was called "significant" by CEAC spokesman McElroy. "Now we have one last opportunity to show the attorney we have this consensus and momentum behind our plan," he noted. "This endorsement by EOCD carries tremendous weight with the attorney general's office. They (EOCD) are the state experts on affordable housing."

Prior to EOCD's statement of support, Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt approved the plan, along with Human Services Secretary Philip Johnston. In his letter to the attorney general, Atty. Delahunt stated, "I respectfully urge the attorney general to oppose the trustees' present complaint for Cy Pres because it unncessarily defeats the main purpose of the will. I urge the attorney general to support a proposal to use the Cohasset Housing Authority as the agency for carrying out the main charitable purpose of the will: the creation and maintenance of housing in Cohasset for low income, disabled people."

The Curtis Estate trustees are attempting to break George Curtis' will by stating it is impossible and impractical to carry out the precepts of the document. Their arguments are contained in a court document called a Cy Pres, which includes their reasons for selling the property and dispersing the proceeds to charitable organizations.

The assistant attroney general will formulate reasons for rejecting or approving the Cy Pres based on arguments made by the trustees and the citizens action committee.

The citizens' action committee, formed in 1987 by concerned abutters and neighbors, opposed the Cy Pres and eventually created an alternative proposal which has been submitted to the attorney general.

"Look what this property offers this town as far as affordable housing is concerned," McElroy stated, recalling the town's latest attempt to establish a state-mandated housing agreement with EOCD. "This is what the town has been looking for."

Their opposition to the trustees' plan is multi-leveled, he explained. Included in the trustees most recent opposition to an extension in the court hearing date is the statement that a delay in court action "may cause significant adverse consequence to the trust. First, as long as the plaintiffs (trustees) are prohibited from distributing trust funds, there are income tax issues which can not be addressed. Because of this delay the trust may face potential adverse tax consequences."

McElroy noted that during the past three years, income produced from the property has dropped 155 percent, while fees paid to the two trustees have increased by 90 percent and expenses have been hiked by 221 percent.

Are You Caught in a Generation Trap?
If you are caring for aging parents or relatives, you may be caught in a generation trap.
More and more families have taken on the care of aging parents or relatives. Many of these families are headed by parents still caring for their own children. Often, these situations can become significant sources of emotional, physical, marital, or financial stress.
If you're caught in a generation trap, you're not alone.
The next 10-week group counseling program for individuals seeking support in their care for aging parents or relatives begins September 20. The sessions will be held on Tuesday evenings in Norwell.

Tour of station by members

He also said that the plexiglass used over the bars in the cells to prevent any suicide attempts by hanging can cause the temperature in the area to rise as high as 110 degrees in the summer.

The station has three cells for men, one for a woman, and one for a juvenile, he said.

It has no separate bathroom facilities for the department's woman officer or a secretary, Barrow said.

A walk around the outside of the building showed such things as parts of some bricks worn away and paint chipped on some doors.

"It's a disgrace," said committee member Gerard Buckley, a former Cohasset police officer who is now with the Norwell Police.

"It's a dump," he said.

Later at the town hall discussion, Collins said that the fire department recreational room is inadequate.

He suggested knocking down a wall and combining the room with that of the police department.

"Traditionally, the departments have been kept separate," said Moore.

Moore also said that she spoke to the police chief, Joseph Kealey, and he offered no "wish list" of renovations.

"Just that it be brought up to standard," she said.

Member David Chase said that no money has been spent on the station.

"There appears to have been very little maintenance," he said.

Collins suggested a common secretarial area.

"That would be extremely difficult," responded Moore. "You'd have the boss trying to give work to the secretary, the secretary trying to get the work and the files somewhere else."

"I wonder if we have a big enough fire station?" asked Collins.

"I wonder if we spent a lot of money for improvements to the plant we might learn that we need a bigger one.

"You know damn well the town is going to get bigger."

Moore added that the needs of the police department will also grow.

She said that among the needs now are rooms for the detectives and for evidence.

Chase said he didn't have the "slightest confidence" that voters would go for a new station.

Moore read to members the committee's charter which she said calls for development of plans for the renovation of the station inside and out, for it to be brought up to standard and deterioration halted.

In response to a question, Brock said that he receives $3,000 a year for maintenance of the fire station.

"Selectmen said not to do anything major," said Brock, "but to use it for absolute necessities."

He said the money goes for such things as repairing the roof, doors or windows.

"The town has never funded for contingencies," said Collins. "It waits for everything to fall apart. Things like painting windows should go on every year."

William Higgins said that the town's building inspector is awaiting from the state a set of regulations for handicapped access to buildings.

"The whole place has to be opened up for the handicapped," said Moore.

Newman Club reunion

A reunion of Newman Club alumni will take place Saturday, Sept. 17, at 4 p.m., at the parish center of St. Francis Xavier Cabrini Church, Hood Road, Scituate.

All former Newmanites, members of the Newman Alumni Club and their families are invited to bring memories, memorabilia, and especially Newman friends who may have lost touch with the group through the years.

The reunion will mark the 56th anniversary of the beginning of the Newman Alumni Club in Boston. The agenda includes 4:30 p.m. Mass followed by a social hour and catered dinner in the parish center, followed by an evening of reminiscing and renewing old friendships. The cost is $20.

For reservations call: Mary and Lew Ward, 545-1780; Ruth and George Kelly, 545-1444; Mary Jeanne and Charlie Hickey, 337-4992; M. Alice Harrington, 337-2142; Dorothy and Joseph Casey, 826-4606.

□ Three Cohasset High students were a busy bunch this summer! Christine Rooney, Kim Dwyer and Katie Horn all took part in a mentor program to interest young people in the health-care professions at the Massachusetts General Hospital. It was a seven week program, coordinated by the MGH Volunteer Department, to match high school students with MGH employees working in a variety of areas. There were 25 students in the program, and they worked for their mentors for twelve hours each week and attended weekly educational presentations covering radiation medicine, information about AIDS, surgery, the use of lasers in medicine, health tips for teens, emergency medicine, and introduction to the Med Flight system, an airborne trauma and transport system which employs helicopters and fixed wing aircraft to get patients to the hospital. Katie and Kim both chose Surgical Nursing as their area of service, and Christine chose Clinical Administration.

□ Happy Birthday to Jeannine Pompeo.

□ In the Jordan Hospital Bluefish Tournament held on Aug. 20 and 21. Sally Hamill placed fifth in the Junior Division and Lydia Hamill placed second in the Adult Division and won the Largest Bluefish Women's Award.

□ All right "Mucker" . . . Michael J. McNeill that is! Mike, the son of Jim and Kay McNeill and a 1984 graduate of CHS, was named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Norwich University. Mike had to earn a grade point average of 3.0 or higher to earn this honor.

Kindergarten teacher Sharon Moody gets some help cutting out stickers from her sons, Will, 5, and Rob, 8, in preparation for another year at Osgood.

□ We also take our hats off to Nancy M. Leary, who made the Dean's List at Bentley College.

□ The next Cohasset Community Red Cross Triannual Bloodmobile will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 27 from 2:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Unitarian First Parish House on 23 No. Main St. Previous participants will receive a notice by mail and be contacted by their group promoter, and new donors are urgently needed! Chairman Al Odermatt thanks the 100 donors who participated in the last Bloodmobile, and urges those of you who make an appointment for this one to keep it. All healthy persons age 17 and over, weighing more than 110 pounds should consider being a part of this most worthy community service, and give the gift of life.

□ Congratulations to Elsa and Mike Libby at the birth of their son, Benjamin Charles Libby. Benjamin was born on Aug. 4 and is sure to be surrounded by love with the Vanderlught and the Libby family surrounding him.

□ Burk Ketchum, AICP, of Cohasset, has established a Burk Ketchum and Associates, providing planning, housing, zoning and environmental consulting services to municipalities and land developers. Mr. Ketchum has over 25 years of experience in New England and throughout the U.S. Prior to forming his own firm, he was a V.P. in charge of planning at Anderson-Nichols in Boston, and the Director of Planning for firms in Massachusetts and California.

Army Cpl. David D. Cuddahy, son of Ann M. Cuddahy of 15 Oake St., has arrived for duty at Fort Knox, Ky. David is an armor crew member with the 12th Cavalry.

A good idea

The showdown on the town's proposal to take over the Curtis Estate property will take place next week.

In the Plymouth County probate court, a judge will likely side with whatever decision the state's assistant attorney general has made. It will truly be in the hands of Assistant Attorney General Gwen O'Sullivan, whether or not that 55-acre property will be used to house low and middle income families, the retarded, and the elderly—or whether the property will be sold for private development.

If the assistant attorney general sides with the town, then the judge will likely take that same course.

But if O'Sullivan, after hearing all the arguments from the town, remains in favor of the trustees' plans to sell the property, then the judge will likely rule in that direction.

It is a complicated case, and the outcome rests mainly on the opinion of one woman. It is up to O'Sullivan to decide whether the trustees should be allowed to break the intent of the will established by the late George E. Curtis. If she decides that the trustees have abided by this will in good faith but can no longer adhere to the terms of that document, then very likely the judge will end the case in favor of the Curtis Estate board of trustees.

The town, and primarily the Curtis Estate Action Committee, is anxious to obtain the Jerusalem Road property. Indeed, there are some abutters who are clearly skeptical about the prospect of privately-owned condominium development adjacent to their homes, and that is why they oppose the trustees' plan. Their concerns about increased flooding along Rattlesnake Run, and their questions about building an adequate septic system to accommodate an increased population there, have been well documented.

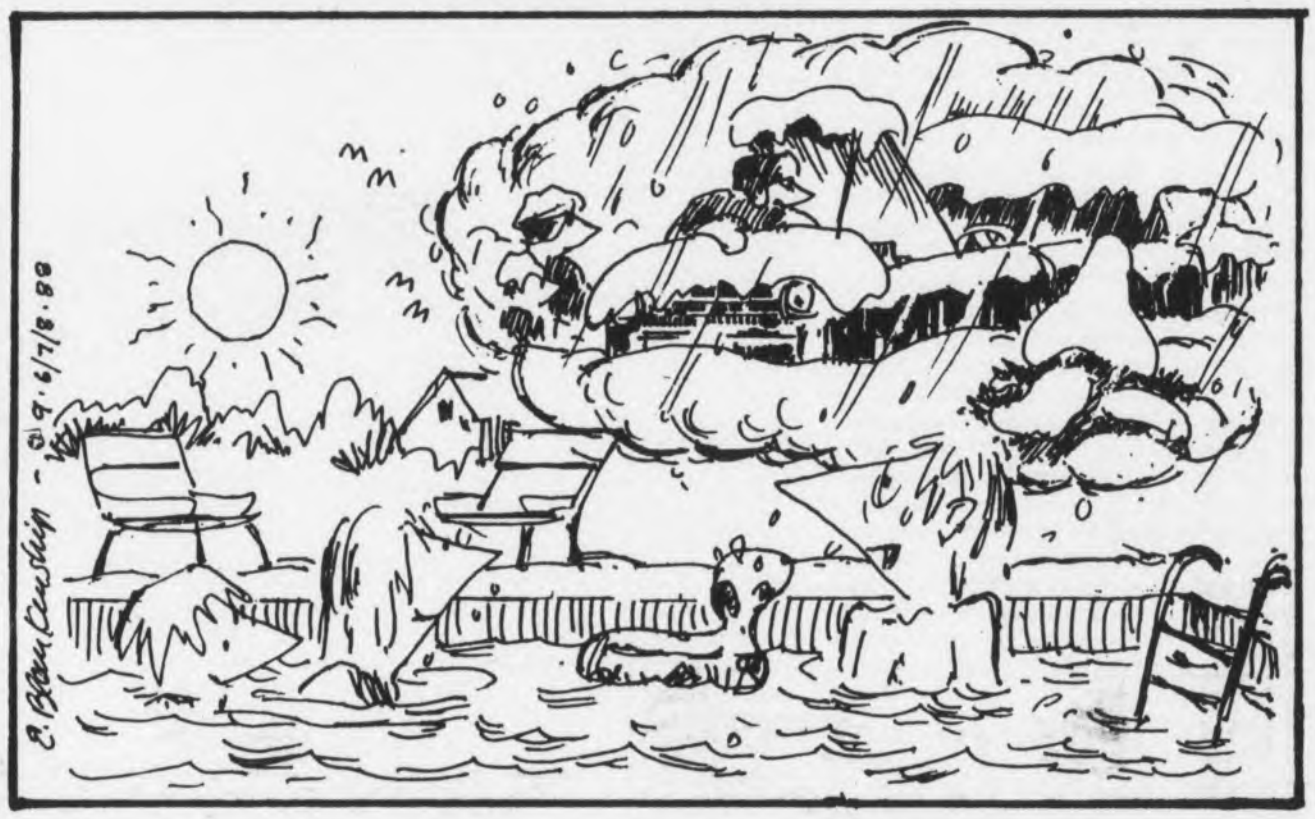
But they, and the other members of the action committee have devised a plan that will not only soothe abutters, it will assist the town in its long search for affordable and handicapped housing. In one proposal, the Curtis Estate could help solve many of the town's housing needs. It will satisfy our desire to help residents remain in Cohasset, while appeasing the state's mandate that we provide such housing.

We applaud the determination and steadfastness of the action committee members. They have been persistant in their efforts to establish a worthy proposal. For months, they have worked diligently to create a proposal which has received the full endorsement of selectmen, the housing authority, its housing consultant, the fair housing committee, the Cohasset Housing Partnership Committee, and finally, the state Executive Office of Communities and Development.

After months of reviewing the proposal and attempting to gather the facts in this complicated issue, we agree it is the most worthy plan in accordance with the will established by the late property owner.

Unlike the trustees who contend it is virtually impossible to abide by the strict guidelines of the will, we believe this proposal by the action committee befits the legacy Curtis intended to leave to this community.

NEWS ITEM — The summer of '88 winds down...vacation end...back to school marks end of memorable summer...the hottest, stickiest longest-lasting steam bath in memory. Fortunately the predicted power blackout prompted by unprecedented power-drain caused by record use of air-conditioners didn't happen. On the 100th anniversary, is Son of Blizzard of '88 in offing?



"...I'll say this is one summer I'm not sorry to see come to an end ...but then, on the other hand..."

COA congratulates driver Martin

Letters

To the Editor:

(This letter was written to Carol Martin, a volunteer driver for the senior shuttle. Ed.)

The Council on Aging wishes to acknowledge with sincere thanks and appreciation the professional manner in which you reacted during the emergency which developed while you were driving the Senior Shuttle on August 30.

The reports shows that a fire developed in the van as you approached your first stop at 60 Elm St., where several riders had assembled to board the van. You calmly drove the van away from the riders to a point near the Fire Station, alerted the fire fighters of the problem and returned to the Seniors who had gathered for a ride and reassured them that the fire department had the situation under control.

Both Capt. Roger Lincoln of the Fire Dept. and a member of the Police Department said you should be commended for your actions during this emergency, which gutted the interior of the vehicle.

The Council on Aging is grateful to you for this display of courage and calmness which could have developed into a more serious situation, had it not been for your quick reaction.

T. Gerard Keating,
Vice Chairman;
Council on Aging

Republicans in Congressional race

To the Editor:

As an active Republican, I would like to inform the Republican and Independent voters that there are two Republican candidates for U.S. Congress from the Tenth District. They will have an opportunity to choose the candidate in the primary Thursday, Sept. 15.

The two candidates are Jon L. Bryan of Marstons Mills and Martha P. Keyes of Centerville.

Bryan is an assistant professor in the department of management science and aviation science at Bridgewater State with considerable business experience.

Keyes has extensive experience in international and Far East business and marketing. She also lectured while at Sophia University in Tokyo, Japan.

It is hoped, with this brief outline of the candidates, voters will focus on this contest as well as the Presidential.

Town falls into the same trap

To the Editor:

The humor of the situation just overwhelmed me! I promised everyone a year ago I would not write any more letters but I get such a belly laugh out of the current activities of the "Staszko-Humphreys Team" that I couldn't resist.

Why does the Town bother resisting these people every time they decide to develop some piece of land? Even a child in the Osgood Kindergarten knows they are going to get their way. It costs tax money to go to court, money we can ill afford.

The situation reminds me of the spoiled brat, who, when told he can't do something rolls on the floor in a temper tantrum until his parents give in. It's the same story with Staszko. Tell him he can't have something and he throws a fit. Why fight it. Money always talks.

Unless anyone is totally naive it is a forgone conclusion that he will get his way. It just amuses me that the Town falls into the trap every time.

Administrators object to differences in pay

South Shore Vo-Tech regional school administrators objected to receiving a six-percent pay increase while teachers receive a six-and-a-half percent increase, according to Warren Anderson, assistant superintendent of the Regional Vocational Technical High School.

"We put in unlimited hours and unlimited effort, but the teachers receive six-and-a-half percent, and we receive six percent," he said.

"It doesn't show a feeling of confidence by the school committee for all the hats we wear and all the extra things we do."

A large percentage of teachers will receive a ten percent raise, because they also are given a step increase at the same time they are given raises, according to Superintendent Clifford Easton.

"Whether this is a tight year or not, this gives a message to teachers that the administrators are not valued," he said.

Committee members held firm to their six percent vote for administrator pay raises last Wednesday.

"In all fairness to our administrators, I understand but this committee has to set the tone for the year to come," said Lloyd Patriquin, a committee member from Whitman.

"I do not want to send any indication to anybody that we have no confidence in the administrators."

Teacher salaries are set by negotiations, according to David Chittim, a committee member from Cohasset. He said the school committee is giving a message to their districts that the coming year is going to be a tight year budget-wise.

In other business, committee members voted to add $1,000 to the $2,600 salary of Robert Thayer, director of continuing education at South Shore. Thayer has added courses to the night school, purchased equipment and supplies and scheduled programs, as well as purchased texts and done bookkeeping. The program is self-supporting.

Art center gift shop . . .

we could sell them. People just wouldn't purchase outrageously-priced items," she explained.

She contacted area art and museum schools and told them about the gift shop. "I thought students' works would be good for the gift shop. They would be creative and unusual, and yet they would be affordable," Casey stated. She visited arts and crafts fairs, and selected the best works for display at the gift shop.

The result is an eclectic mixture of ceramic pottery, shell jewelry, hand-woven shawls, glittering masks, and handpainted sweatshirts. "there really is something for everyone," Casey noted.

The jewelry in particular, she explained, is popular among all ages. "We're trying to get more and more in because all the jewelry we have is quite successful," she said. There are small porcelain shell earrings that are inexpensive and make exquisite presents for teenagers.

Another popular item of jewelry is the picture frames and jewelry made in the Phillipines. Casey explained that a friend's parents live in the Phillipines and buy the unusual artwork from craftsmen there. Her friend owns an import business, and her parents send these articles to Massachusetts for that purpose. "I just loved them, so now we get them, too," she noted.

They are made from abalone shell and coral and mother-of-pearl and are pieced together by hand to create a jagged, jewel-like appearance. The gift shop also carries small, narrow bracelets and matching rings (made from the same materials) which are popular with teenagers.

The bracelets are sold for $3 and the rings cost $2. "They sell as fast as we get them," according to the store manager.

"I think a lot of people are surprised to find that one-of-a-kind artwork is priced so inexpensively. But we have many, many things that make great presents for kids," Casey said, including small shell earrings and a matching shell on a ribbon. "If you don't want to spend a lot of money, but you still want something nice, that's a really nice present."

There are also more expensive items, she added, including handwoven crafts by two local craftsmen. Multi-colored shawls are created by local artist Cliff Roberts, who actually exhibits his fiber work at the art center galleries.

Doris Krueger creates handwoven table runners which have been a popular item at the gift shop, Casey stated. She will take individual orders for special colors and design and can also create matching placemats. Special orders will be taken at the gift shop.

"We're trying to promote the gift shop," the manager explained. "But at the same time, we're also trying to promote the talented artists who create items for the gift shop."

Among the upcoming events which will highlight the shop and its cratftspeople is a fashion show featuring the clothing designed specifically for the art center store. Casey is also considering a "men's night" before Christmas. "This is a perfect place for a man to find something beautiful and unique for his wife or girlfriend," she said. "He'll find something exquisite, and it won't be something she'll see mass-produced at another store."

The store is open every day during the art center hours. Weekdays, it is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. ,and weekends from noon to 2 p.m.

Minister: Gary A. Ritts, Secretary: Muriel Wheelwright. Office Phone: 383-0345; Parsonage Phone: 383-1422; Office Hours: Monday through Friday, 9 to noon.

Church School: The teachers are looking forward to seeing all the Sunday School children on Rally Sunday, Sept.11. Children,attend church school with your parents first and from there we'll have goodies and do a fun craft in Bates Hall.

Thank you very much, Lara Martin and Amy Silva, for doing a fine job handling the babysitting over the summer.

Church Fair Workshops — are up and running once again — each Monday evening (except Holidays), beginning at 7:45. A time for creativity and sharing with a wonderful bunch of women. Likewise a much needed service for God's work through the proceeds from the annual Church Fair (first Saturday in December).

All Church Chicken Bar-B-Que — Sunday, Sept. 18 at 4 p.m. If shine — at the Sailing Club on Government Island. If rain — at the church in Bates Hall. Details to follow in the next issue of the "Beacon."

Pictorial Church Directory arrival date has been set. The printers have been running several months behind. They are due back to us sometime around Oct. 14. We'll update as we hear more.

Another special belated congratulations to Michael and Elsa Libby at the birth of their son, Benjamin Charles, August 4, and to proud grandparents, Hubert and Wilma Vanderlugt.

Donations needed for local scouting council

Scouting is alive and well on the South Shore, thanks to the many family and corporate contributors to the 1988 Friends of Scouting Campaign.

"Direct giving accounts for over 33% of the budget for area-wide Scouting programs," says John Clarkson, district chairman for the Old Mills District, Boy Scouts of America.

Though individual packs and troops do have their own budgets, the district raises the funds necessary to sponsor inter-unit activities such as Camporees, combined Webelos father/son 'overnights, Tiger Family Day and the Annual Boy Scout Swim Meet. At events such as these, scouts from across the ten town Old Mills District gather for fun and fellowship — even a little competition — all directed toward the development of the many skills scouting teaches.

This year's campaign is currently underway. "Special appreciation must be expressed to Jack Conway Real Estate Company and the Prudential-Bache Securities Company for their help with our fund drive. John Reardon, President of Jack Conway Real estate and Jeffrey Wetherbee of Prudential-Bache in Hingham have been there at every step of this campaign with advice and support we have needed to reach our goal," says Clarkeson.

"We are about halfway toward the completion of our goal, and gearing up for a very important season when training becomes a high priority — not only for new people stepping into leadership positions, but also for ongoing training for existing leaders as well," he says.

As Old Mills District Friends of Scouting Campaign passes the halfway mark, volunteers will continue to contact local businesses and parents of active scouts throughout the Fall to ensure the budgetary needs are met.

Anyone wishing to donate directly to the fund may do so by sending their tax-deductible donation to: Old Mills District — Boy Scouts of America, 2438 Washington Street, Canton, MA 02021. Checks should be made payable to the Old Colony Council.

Imagine

this was once how you turned on a light

Think about it.

A candle-light dinner may be romantic, but no one wants to return to the days when it was also a necessity. A lot has happened to the way we live since then. And electricity has been responsible for many of the changes that have made our lives healthier, safer, and more prosperous. In fact, it's hard to imagine life without electricity.

No easy answers

But the days of easy answers to our energy needs are over. We face difficult times ahead, and the choices we make now will affect not only ourselves, but future generations as well.

That's why we need to take the time to investigate and examine our energy options, so that we can make the most-informed and intelligent choices possible.

We need more electricity

And here are some things you should be aware of when making those choices: New England's energy supply is in a vulnerable position. The region's demand for electricity has steadily increased — last winter, records were set for electrical use — and there is every indication that the need for electrical energy will continue to grow.

New England's electric-load growth is more than twice that of the nation as a whole, and forecasts predict energy shortages by the early 1990's. That's right around the corner. At Eastern Edison Company, we're working hard to keep that prediction from coming true.

Using all our options

We're importing hydro-power from Canada, and encouraging and developing substantial increases in cogeneration and small power projects. We're promoting our "Teaming-up" conservation and load-management programs — programs designed to save you money while saving energy for all of us. And we're continuing our efforts to augment supply by extending the life of existing plants, and by bringing new facilities, such as Ocean State and Seabrook, on line.

Together — we can do it

But that still may not be enough. That's why we've got to keep working on comprehensive and innovative solutions to our present, and future, energy needs. Together. Because we're all in this together — and together we can make a difference.

After all, candle-light dinners should happen only when you want them to, not because they have to.

Electricity...imagine life without it.

Girl Scout registration

The Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council will hold registration for Daisy, Brownie, and Girl Scout troops Tuesday, Sept. 13, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church Hall.

All Cohasset school age girls are eligible for membership.

Cohasset bloodmobile Sept. 27

The next Cohasset Community Triannual Red Cross Bloodmobile will be held Tuesday, June 28 from 2:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Unitarian First Parish House, 23 North Main St.

Corinne Cahill, R.N. will again be the Coordinator on the day of the Bloodmobile.

Groups that will participate, as in the past, are Seavey Engineering, Webb Norfolk, Rotary, Masons, Legion, Unitarian First Parish, Second Congregational, St. Stephens, St. Anthonys, Beechwood Congregational, School Teachers and Students, Firefighters, Glastonbury Abbey and Independents. Additional groups are welcome to participate.

One hundred participated in our last Bloodmobile held June 28.

People are urged to make every effort to keep their appointments because of the urgent need for blood and the many volunteer hours that go into planning the Bloodmobile.

Baby-sitting will be provided at the center. Transportation will be provided on request.

All persons in good health, age 17 or older, and weighing more than 110 pounds are urged to enjoy the satisfying experience that one receives when giving this Gift of Life. Age 17 will need parental permission.

Walk-ins are welcome after 4 p.m.

For further information contact Al Odermatt, Chairman at 383-1283 or Corinne Cahill at 383-9265.

Cohasset Scout registration

Cohasset Scout registration will be held on Friday Sept. 9, for Pack 38 Cub Scouts and Troop 28 Boy Scouts.

It will be held at the Unitarian Parish House, 23 North Main Street in Cohasset from 7 to 8 p.m.

Dove shelter has aided local women in need

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

It was over Labor Day weekend in 1978 that DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) opened its shelter in Quincy to the first residents, a woman and her three daughters.

Since then, the not-for-profit organization has helped countless women and their children in Norfolk County with its shelter and hotline, including a number from Cohasset.

From December, 1986, to November, 1987, 40 Cohasset women and their children were assisted by DOVE, according to Rose Mary Kirwin, community programs director.

"Domestic violence cuts across all social, educational and economic stratas," said Kirwin.

"It doesn't matter if you have a Cape Cod house, 2.5 kids and a white picket fence.

"Abusers can be doctors, lawyers, ministers, PH.Ds. . .It cuts through all walks of life."

Women who are abused, either mentally or physically, can call DOVE's hotline, 471-1234, and speak confidentially with trained counselors.

"The phone calls are hard to make, no matter where you are from, because you are saying,"I've got a problem'," she said.

"In the beginning, women just want to vent (their emotions)," said Kirwin.

"They say, 'I'm hurt - can you help me?' ".

"We give a sympathetic ear. Then when trust begins to build up, then we begin to explore avenues.

"Sometimes help could be as simple as talking to us," she said.

"It gets it in the open."

Or the counselor may suggest legal advice, counseling, or make arrangements for the woman to come to the shelter, which is at an undisclosed site.

The woman learns about the cycle of violence, and that she has options, according to Kirwin.

"She can stay in the relationship with no changes, stay in the relationship with changes, stay but have him removed, or leave the relationship all together,' she explained.

The decision is never an easy one, whether a woman is well off or not, according to Kirwin.

"If it's a two-family income, it would become a one-family income, and she would become a single parent," she said.

"Her sense of self would be cut in half. It's difficult to weigh.

"Whether the woman has a lot or nothing, they both go through the same emotions and stresses.

"It's no easier decision because one has a better job."

Domestic violence touches all age groups, as well as all economic levels, she said.

Kirwin told of an 84-year old woman who had been married for 53 years.

When her 81-year-old husband became too old to abuse her, he called his 30-year-old son and asked him to "put her in her place."

"The son beat her up," said Kirwin. "He put her in her place.

She stayed at Dove for a while, but then she went home.

Rose Mary Kirwin

"She blamed herself for the fights. And she believed she was married for better or worse."

"Many women believe they can't exist without their husband," noted Kirwin, "until they step back from the situation because they aren't thinking, they are feeling."

Kirwin believes some problems can be nipped in the bud through education.

"I talk to kids in school," said Kirwin.

"With fourth and fifth graders, I discuss the cycle of violence within the family structure," she said.

Phase I is tension building and includes poor communication, a series of minor incidents and decreased control.

In Phase II, the actual battering takes place and there is increased stress and injury and loss of control.

By Phase III, kindness and loving behavior return, tension drops.

Many times, children feel responsible for their parent's fights, according to Kirwin.

They think they cause daddy to beat mommy because they spilled their milk, or they cried when they fell and this woke daddy.

"They are learning how to be abusers and abused," said Kirwin.

She switches gears for her talks to ninth and 10th graders.

"Thirty percent of all teenage dating is violent or controlling," she said.

"Some kids think it is ok," Kirwin said. "It gives them a sense of belonging, that he or she really cares.

"If a young girl is being screamed at, she may blame herself because she talked to Bobby yesterday, but she's Tommy's girlfriend. She feels she should be yelled at.

"We try to get into why it's not acceptable to take responsibility for someone else's actions.

"We try to talk about relaxation modalities - such as yoga or a walk on the beach.

"Or if it's so tense — walk away.

"We're putting power back in their hands."

In May, DOVE established a 24-hour a day, seven day a week, confidential hotline for children and teens, 773-HURT.

"Probably the biggest help we can offer is to be there to let children get their feelings off their chest," Kirwin said.

DOVE's shelter for battered women and their children first opened at the Gordon House at Quincy City Hospital.

"We never would have gotten started without Quincy City Hospital and the City of Quincy," she said.

"I call them our fairy godparents."

In 1982, the shelter moved to another location in Quincy.

It serves some 500 women and children a year. The average stay is two weeks and there are 18 beds.

Since then it has added counseling and support groups, children's counseling and play therapy, advocacy to cut through red tape with housing, legal and benefit issues, and community programs.

DOVE received funding from the state, is a United Way agency, and also receives grass roots support.

"Donations of money as well as cans of soup, clothes and other items are always welcome," she said.

Kirwin has been with DOVE for 10 years in one capacity or another.

"A friend asked me if I had a few hours to give," remembered Kirwin of her first association with DOVE.

"I said sure," she smiled.

As community programs director, she is available to talk to schools, churches, businesses, women's groups, children and adults, at no charge.

"I love to go out and talk to people," said Kirwin.

"You can see when people are hurting.

"Hopefully, they will take down our telephone number and call.

"No one deserves to be hurt or in pain."

Kirwin will also be among those celebrating DOVE's 10th anniversary at a gala Thursday, Sept. 29, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Codex Corp., Canton. It is by invitation only.

"We'll have speakers, like the mayor of Quincy, Frank McCauley, music, hors d'oeuvres," said Kirwin.

"It will be a thank-you for support given to us," she said.

It will also be a time to remember some of DOVE's success stories, like the first woman who came to DOVE's shelter with her three daughters because she had no where else to go.

Ten years later, she is working and struggling, but she's ok, according to Kirwin.

"She divorced her husband," she said. "He hasn't changed, but she has.

"She feels better about herself.

"The scars are still there, but she knows she made the right choice."

For more information about DOVE, or to arrange for a speaker, call 471-5087.

Cohasset worship . . .

St. Stephen's Church

The Rev. E. Clifford Butler, Rector.

SUPPORT GROUP FOR CAREGIVERS — An organizational meeting for a support group to give care for caregivers will take place Tuesday, Sept. 20 at 8 p.m. Are you a caregiver? Are you caring for an older parent, an adult child, an ill neighbor, an older friend? We sometimes forget that we need care too. It's easy to get depleted. There are times we are not sure of what to do. This group will support us in our caregiving.

The meeting times and length of commitment are open and will be discussed Tuesday, Sept. 20. If you are giving care and would like the support of others doing the same, come on Tuesday at 8 p.m. and find out how we can help each other.

WORSHIP NOTES — Congratulations to Susan Elizabeth Curry, daughter of Mary Beth and David Curry, who was baptized on Sunday, Sept. 4.

Bishop Otis Charles will preach on Sunday, Sept. 11. Bishop Charles is Dean of the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge and will speak on theological education and report on the national church's General Convention held this summer in Detroit.

REGISTER FOR KERYGMA BIBLE STUDY — Names are now being taken for the Kerygma Bible Study class, a 35 session in depth introduction to Scripture. Register at the church office or with the Rector so that enough materials will be on hand. There is an $18 charge for the workbook. The purpose of the class is not to teach you everything there is to know, but to give the necessary tools to use the Bible intelligently, with feeling, and with spiritual depth. The first class begins on Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 8 p.m.

RALLY DAY ON SEPTEMBER 18

Church School begins Sunday, Sept. 18 for all ages. There will be an introduction of teachers, picture taking of children, and a party to mark the beginning of a new church school year.

Susan Pile has agreed to coordinate the church school this year. The teachers for Kindergarten are Wendy Lanoue and Sarah Pease. The Primary Class, grades one through three, will be led by Judy Simons, Helen Hooper, Julia Drybanski, Elaine Smoot, and Betty Madden. The teachers for the Intermediate Class, grades four through six, are Mary Margaret Senechal and Wallace and Nancy St. John.

YOUTH GROUP NEW YEAR

The youth group at St. Stephen's, which includes grades seven and up, will hold its first meeting Tueday, Sept. 20 from 7 to 8 p.m. Leaders of the youth group include the Rector and Wallace and Nancy St. John Activities such as ping-pong, badminton, picnics, potlucks, and more combine with faith-sharing at each session.

CAN WE DISAGREE?

Don't miss the September course on Creative Dialogue. You may choose one of three workshops: Saturday, Sept. 17, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; Wednesday, Sept. 21 & 28, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; Sunday, Sept. 25 & Oct. 2, from 3 to 5 p.m.

SAVE PICNIC DATE AND PRAY FOR SUN

The St. Stephen's Picnic will take place Sunday, September 25 after the 10 a.m. service. It will again be at Fran Wakeman's, 257 Atlantic Avenue. Sunny skies predicted. Temperatures in the mid-70's.

ORGAN RECITAL WITH RECEPTION

Friday, September 23, at 8 p.m. Robert Barney will offer an organ recital here at St. Stephen's. The recital will include works by Bach, Buxtehude, Mendelssohn, Franck, and W. Eugene Thayer, an organist and composer from 19th century Boston, and Robert will speak briefly about each piece.

The Aeolian-Skinner organ in the church is an unusual one and received considerable attention after its installation in 1964. One of the last instruments to be built by this noted Boston firm, it was designed by Joseph Whiteford with consultation by Ned Gammons. It has 3,108 pipes in 52 ranks in 6 divisions playable from 3 manuals and pedalboard. The organ is really two instruments; one in front and one in back combining to fill the church with sound to play a variety of organ literature and inspire the congregation to song.

CHOIRS TO BEGIN

The Adult Choir will begin rehearsing Thursday, Sept. 15 at 8 p.m. There is room in every section for new singers, although I would encourage men especially to consider joining us. We are planning a special Cantata presentation for Christ the King Sunday, so this should be an exciting time to join.

The Junior Choir (grades 2 and older) will begin rehearsals Sept. 15 at 4:30 p.m. The Junior Choir experience is a fun way to learn about music and its place in worship, as well as working with other children as a group to share with the congregation.

The Young Children's Choir will begin rehearsing on October 6 at 4:00 p.m. under the skilled leadership of Ann Whiteley.

If you have any questions about the choirs please feel free to talk to me on Sundays or at the church on Tuesdays or Thursdays, or call me at home, 267-1424.

BARNEY TO OFFER LESSONS — Robert Barney is available to teach private lessons in organ, voice and piano on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the church for $8.00 per half-hour lesson.

He has been teaching privately for 10 years and performs in and around Boston on organ and harpsichord. He holds degrees in Music Education from Concordia College, Bronxville, NY and Organ Performance from New England Conservatory in Boston.

TOUR OF THE CARILLON — There will be an "Open Tower" tour of the carillon on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 18 from 4 to 6 p.m. You may enter the church from the Highland Ave. side, climb to the playing room to watch the carillonneur play, and perhaps even try a tune on it yourself! All visitors are invited to sign our guest book. We would like no more than six persons upstairs at one time, and no bare feet, smoking, food, drinks or pets will be allowed in the tower. Children under 12 must be accompanied by an older person.

FREE CARILLON INSTRUCTION — Sally Slade Warner will be available in the carillon practice room for lessons or classes on the following Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.: Oct. 1, 19; Nov. 12, 26; Dec. 3, 10, 17. Interested persons of all ages are welcome to sign up. A background of at least three years of piano study is recommended.

NEW BANKING LAW IN MASS: Effective Sept. 1, new check-clearing rules for banks. First $100.00 of deposits, local or out of town, must be cleared in one day. Over $100.00 funds from local checks have to be credited wtihin three days, out of town checks in a week. One day for money orders, cashier checks or government checks. Many banks will put on local checks for now. Their usual practice was to credit checks, same day if they knew the customers. But new rules require to treat everyone the same.

SOCIAL SECURITY "NOTCH BABIES" Senator Ted Kennedy, recently stated in Taunton that to rescue those who were born between 1917 and 1921 for Social Security Benefits, it would take $70 billion dollars out of the Social Security Fund. This would put the social security fund in danger again of being depleted. There have been several proposals in Congress which have failed to pass, and the current "Notch Act" now in Congress is not given much chance of passage because of this cost factor. The social security trust fund was eroded by the double digit inflation during the administration of President Carter. The resulting 10 to 15 percent cost of living increase every year left the fund exhausted.

To correct this, this act effected those born between 1917 & 1921. When the act was passed in 1977, it should have reduced social security benefits for all recipients, not just those so called "Notch Babies." Even the greatest advocate in Congress for the Senior Citizen, Congressman Claude Pepper, is opposed to this legislation to correct this error. Information from the SHINE Program.

A special money saving electric rate for you...

If you receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI), you may qualify for a special lower electric rate from Eastern Edison Company.

It's called RATE 5 — and it provides you with substantial savings on your electric bills!

For example, if you use 200 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month, you would usually pay $21.69. On the RATE 5 plan, you would only pay $18.09 — a 17% savings!

To participate in RATE 5, you must be:

- ☐ The customer of record for Eastern Edison.
- ☐ Currently receiving SSI.
- ☐ The head of household or principal wage earner.

For more information, contact the Customer Service Department at 675-2100 in the Fall River area. In the Brockton area call, 583-3700 or 1-800-242-5810.

Conservation commission to review pier plan

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

The conservation commission will hold the first public hearing on the proposal by The Oaks owners to add 109 private boat slips, and 48 public slips in Cohasset Harbor.

The commission will begin its hearing at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20 at town hall.

In addition to the commission's review, the developers are seeking approval of the plan by the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering and the federal Army Corps of Engineers.

The owners of the former Cox Estate property, Oaks Realty Trust, have presented preliminary plans that include a realignment of the moorings now held by lobster fishermen in Cohasset Harbor.

That realignment is necessary to accomodate a series of privately-owned finger slips along the perimeter of The Oaks property, and to place 30 public floats along an acre of land the developers will donate to the town. The developers believe that property can be converted into a parking area to accomodate up to 40 vehicles.

The owners of the former home of the late Jessie Cox include Michael and Paul Palmer, Steve Green and Joseph Dempsey. They purchased the 58-room brick mansion in December from Yankee Oil which used the Margin Street residence as its corporate offices.

For the past ten months, the developers have studied various plans for the property and have solicited opinions and concerns from a number of town officials and board members.

According to the proposal presented last week to the harbor committee, the owners would donate to the town 48 new boat slips, including four spider docks situated near Cohasset yacht Club, 30 slips off Lawrence Wharf and six slips from the public access point off Margin Street.

The private boat slips will be positioned around the perimeter of The Oaks property. The developers expect to dredge a considerable amount of the waterfront land, including the area where tennis courts and garages are now located. Owner Michael Palmer told the harbor committee last week that the dredging would revert the property back to its original dimensions before it was filled in and developed in the 1940's.

In addition, the owners have said they would be willing to assist with the cost of dredging the harbor channel. The town was awarded money to dredge the busy channel area, but harbor committee members have acknowledged it is not sufficient to complete the project.

The property owners have stated that plans have not been completed as to the future use of the mansion and surrounding waterfront property.

Some town officials, including planning board chairman Robert Sturdy, have indicated a willingness to explore municipal use of the property. Sturdy obtained a grant to study that possibility, and a committee has been appointed to assist in the research.

Sturdy, who would not comment on the pier proposal because he had not personally viewed it, said the study committee has yet to "get off the

Housing tests for Route 3A land

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

Twelve units of affordable housing could eventually be located on five to seven acres of land between Evergreen Lane and Route 3A.

The Cohasset School Committee voted Sept. 7, to allow the housing authority to test the town-owned land for its suitability for the building project.

Housing authority consultant Bernard C. Stewart, Jr., told the committee that geo-technical tests would be conducted on the land which is part of 70 acres under the jurisdiction of the school committee.

The land was set aside for possible expansion of the Deer Hill School or its facilities.

Though it may be used in the future, there are currently no plans to use the land, according to School Supt. Stephen Hart.

Housing Authority executive director Barbara Clain attended the meeting, as did members Ralph Peroncello and Steve Wigmore.

"The housing authority is under the gun," said Stewart, "and would like your consideration and authorization to test."

Stewart was referring to $1.14 million in state grants awarded to Cohasset earlier this year to provide affordable housing within the town. It was the largest grant ever awarded to the Cohasset Housing Authority.

Stewart said that the housing authority started inventoring sites in June that were mostly town-owned.

"We have narrowed down the sites worthy of further

It could go either way for high school fall sports

Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

With the new school year already in session, it is time to take a glimpse at the 1988 fall sports season. According to coaches and players, the upcoming season can be described as being optimistic to skepticism for Cohasset High.

FOOTBALL

The appropriate acronym for the 1988 Cohasset football squad is B.I.G. (big interior guys).

The leader in the massive front line is captain Mike Meers (6'1", 242 pounds). The three-year two-way starter, whose positions are defensive tackle and center, is the most effective blocker on the club. Playing along side Meers at guard is captain Chirs Froio (5'11', 190 lbs.) On defense, Froio plays middle linebacker. Rounding out the other frontline personnel include Matt Deveney (6'1", 235 lbs), Sean Bishop (6'5", 270 lbs), Eric Theriault (6'0", 200 lbs) and Greg Thomas (6'1", 251 lbs).

"Most definitely, our strength is the interior line. However, we have some big shoes to fill in the offensive backfield," said head coach Phil Pisano, who was named coach-of-the-year in 1986 when Cohasset posted a 9-1 record.

Captain Paul Froio is the person for whom Pisano is counting upon heavily. The returning halfback will try to replace Cohasset's best running backs in succession, 1988 grad Peter Sundblom (1,000-yards last year), 1987 grad Bob Durkin (the state's leading scorer in the fall of 1986), and 1986 grad Floyd Hartwich (another 1,000-yard rusher.)

Vying for the fullback position are Matt Buckley and Mike Coleman. "Both will see a lot of action there," said Pisano. First year varsity member Jim Donohue will be Froio's back-up at halfback.

Quarterback Mark Corkery will direct the offense. He became a starter midway through last season when Pisano decided to move Sandblom at halfback. "Mark did a fine job for us last season. He is trying to follow in his older brother's footsteps, Sean, who was the quarterback several years ago. Mark gives a lot of opposing teams trouble because he is a double-threat QB. He can either run with the ball or pass it. He provides us with a lot of experience back there." said Pisano.

Even though Corkery does not have the dependability of departed Craig Mulcahy to throw to anymore, he will look to potential receivers in Noah Hill, Noah's older brother, Adam and John MacDonald.

At defense, LB Joel Whitman and CB Pete Crowley will try to improve on this area.

"Our defensive secondary is coming. Overall, I am still not pleased with the team's defense. We are not aggressive because of our youth and inexperience," said Pisano.

Another concern for Pisano is that Cohasset has only 24 players on the squad. "We are definitely weak at the skill positions if someone suffers an injury. We lost a lot of valuable experience due to graduation. Overall, I think our running game is good and the front line is solid. We just have to gain some experience and to avoid the injury situation." echoed Pisano.

Pisano predicts that Norwell and East Bridgewater are the two school to watch out for in the South Shore Small Schools Division.

Cohasset's week . . .

Interviews begin

Selectmen will begin interviewing applicants for the position of executive secretary to the board of selectmen Monday, Sept. 19, at 7 p.m.

Selectmen chairman Burt Pratt said that members will interview six to eight candidates for about 30 minutes each.

The person who is hired will replace Donald Andrew, 37, who resigned in August to become Everett's city auditor.

Andrew, 37, had been executive secretary in Cohasset since June 1985.

License transfer

Selectmen have scheduled a meeting for Monday, Oct. 17, to consider transferring Cohasset Central Market's all alcoholic-retail license from James Finucane to J. Kevin McManus of Scituate.

Atty. Warren Baker, who represented Finucane, said that his client has a purchase and sale agreement with McManus.

According to Baker, McManus runs a catering business, the Borrowed Butler, and has been in the restaurant business all of his life.

"He doesn't intend to change the character of the market, but to upgrade and continue its tradition," said Baker.

"He doesn't intend to change anything inparticular, but to salvage and upgrade the market. It needs a little work."

The purchase and sale agreement is contingent upon approval of the transfer by selectmen, and continuation of the store's lease, according to Baker.

The market at 60 South Main St. has been closed since June 29 when Finucane informed selectmen that renovations and restocking would take place over seven days.

He later requested extensions because he said he was involved with negotiations for the sale of the business.

"We'd like information on Mr. McManus' background before the transfer hearing," said selectmen Rocco Laugelle.

"We want to see it on paper and signed."

Selectmen Martha Gjesteby asked acting executive secretary Janet Chalke if anyone is on a waiting list for an all alcoholic-retail license.

"Not that I know of," said Chalke.

"Is this the limit on package store licenses we can give out?" asked Gjesteby.

"Yes," answered Laugelle.

Selectmen James Gallagher said there is a Central Market shopping cart behind Curtis Compact and asked Finucane to remove it.

Liquor license debate

Selectmen Martha Gjesteby said Monday night, Sept. 12, that a letter from the general manager of Kimball's-by-the-Sea, 124 Elm St., Cohasset, regarding one day alcoholic beverage licenses was "very well thought out."

"He brought up many points," said Gjesteby about the letter from Daniel C. Leahy who made suggestions to prevent "back-door competition" for full-time licensees.

The letter was printed in last week's Cohasset Mariner.

He suggested, among other things, that organizations be imited to four serving events a year, the event be for debt reduction or other such goal, and that a certificate of insurance be presented to the town deomonstrating adequate coverage in the event of an alcohol related accident.

"These one day licensees should not become 'back-door competition' for your full-time licensees, remembering that they have no way near the mandatory overhead and thereby can reflect that in their 'retail' price," said Leahy.

"I agree with Martha's assessment of the letter," said selectman chairman Burt Pratt.

"It's quite pertinent."

Selectmen action

Cohasset Selectmen took the following action at their meeting Monday night, Sept. 12, at Town Hall:

Referred to the Cohasset Historical Society information from a coin supplier regarding the 375th anniversary of the discovery of the town.

"We'll see if they are interested," said selectman chairman Burt Pratt.

The town's 375th anniversary will be in 1989, he said.

Agreed to sell the abandoned bicycles the police department has picked up during an event to be held by the Cohasset Community Center Oct. 1, on Cohasset Common.

Pratt said the bikes have been picked up all over town, and are filling up the cellar at the police station and town hall.

Members agreed to give to charity any bikes that are left over after the sale.

Noted that the town's amount of available funds, or "free cash" as of July 1, 1988, is $254,110.

"The free cash is a very small amount of," said selectman Martha Gjesteby.

"Perhaps we should ask the electorate for a possible override again."

Town office moves

Selectman chairman Burt Pratt said Monday night, Sept. 12, that he expects the new town offices to move into the new annex within 10 days.

Pratt said that he visited the annex and is pleased with the selectman's office.

However, he said that it will take 60 days for the new telephone system to be ordered and installed.

"We contacted the current supplier to see how much the temporary lines would cost," said Pratt.

"We are between a rock and a hard place.

"We must occupy the new offices immediately so that they can start working on the old building.

"I'm a little disconcerted that the architect didn't speak about the phone situation sooner," said Pratt.

"Conduits are in the walls," he noted, "and there is a working pay phone in the new addition."

Borrowing for taxes

Elizabeth B. Ripley, Cohasset's treasurer-collector, has notified the Board of Assessors that it will be necessary to borrow at least $1 million in anticipation of tax revenue for fiscal 1989.

"I have been working on a cash flow statement and if the tax bills are mailed in early October, I will need to borrow $1 million for two months in order to meet the town's obligations," stated Ripley in her Sept. 1, letter.

She said that the borrowing is necessary because of the depletion of the town's free cash over the past three years, and another summer of heavy spending when very little revenue is coming in.

Ripley also said, "We are operating with a new fiscal budget that includes overrides and debt exclusions but will not realize the additional funding until the tax bills are mailed out and the fall taxes are paid."

She noted that the state changed the date of the September distribution, which brings in $300,000 from the first of the month to the 13th.

"I plan to borrow within the next two weeks," said Ripley.

"I urge your continued cooperation in getting in getting the tax rate set as soon as possible so that the tax bills can be mailed close to the projected date of Oct. 6."

Duck pond repairs

The duck pond at Cohasset Common will be empty for about a month while repairs are made to its sides and bottom, according to Peter Laugelle, Tree and Park Superintendent.

Work will start in about a week, he said.

The money for the project will come from $25,000 given by Warner Brothers to the town as a "thank you" for its cooperation in filming "The Witches of Eastwick" two years ago.

The rest of the money was voted at Town Meeting in April, 1987.

New tax rate soon

The town expects to set the tax rate within the next two weeks, according to assessor James LaGrotteria.

LaGrotteria and Thomas Duggan, chairman of the board of assessors, appeared at the selectman meeting Monday night, Sept. 12, to discuss tax classification for residential and commercial properties for fiscal 1989.

Duggan said that the board of assessors recommended that a factor of one be used. It was accepted by selectmen.

"That means that all property, residential, commercial, industrial and personal property (CIPP) is taxed at the same rate," explained Duggan.

He said that 90 percent of the property in Cohasset is residential, 10 percent, CIPP.

The town has always used a factor of one, according to Duggan.

Fall programming

The fall lineup of "Cohasset Talks: Pierson-to-Person" wil feature a live discussion on drugs with representatives of the New England Drug Enforcement Administration and studio audience Sept. 22, at 8 p.m. on Ch. 3 and 53.

"I have a feeling this could be very exciting, stimulating and albeit explosive show," said Wigmore Pierson, host of the show which will celebrate its first anniversary Oct. 6.

Guests on the show will include DEA New England director John Coleman and DEA demand reduction coordinator Steve Morreale, he said.

"It should be very emotional, and of concern to young people, parents and the rest of society," said Pierson, a Cohasset resident whose background includes advance setup agent for The White House.

His current business is New Options Group-Career Counseling.

Also scheduled are:

•Joe Malone, U.S. Senate candidate, Sept. 29, 8 p.m., Ch. 3, 53.

•Polly Logan, Republican National Committeewoman, Sept. 15, 8 p.m., Ch. 3, 53.

•Cohasset Fire Chief Daniel Brock, Oct. 6, 8:30 p.m., Ch. 3.

•Edward M. Kennedy, Jr., Oct. 6, 8 p.m., Ch. 3, 53.

•John Bryan, Republican candidate for Congress, House of Representatives, Oct. 20, 8 p.m., Ch. 3, 53.

•Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray and John Silva in a live debate, Oct. 13, 8 p.m., Ch. 3, 53.

•David B. Wilson, political columnist for The Boston Globe, Nov. 3, 8 p.m., Ch. 3, 53.

•Sen. William Golden and William Robinson in a live debate, Oct. 27, 8 p.m., Ch. 3, 53.

•Cohasset School Committee, live, Nov. 10, 8 p.m., Ch. 3.

Part-time program director Robert Belliveau of Weymouth noted that an open house will be held at the new studios of Cohasset and Scituate Community Television, 359 Gannet Rd., Scituate, Wednesday, Oct. 19, 7 to 10 p.m.

In addition, spaces are still available in community television workshops which start Monday, Oct. 2, he said.

For more information, call 545-0643.

School Committee action

Cohasset High School biology teacher Bob Thompson, who will retire Aug. 31 1989 after 31 years was praised by the School Committee Sept. 7 as it accepted his resignation with regret.

"He was exactly what a teacher should be," said School Supt. Stephen Hart.

"He was always very dedicated, and expected a lot of his students.

"He also gave a lot of himself."

School Committee chairman Diana Kornet said that Thompson was one of her son's favorite teachers.

"We will miss him, and hope he has a great last year," she said.

The action came during a rare afternoon meeting of the school committee.

Hart explained that the afternoon meeting is held once a year after the school committee hosts a luncheon for teachers prior to the start of the school year.

In other action, the school committee:

• Scheduled an orientation session Sept.19, at 7 p.m. for the student school committee representatives.

They are seniors Jack Beddows, Kim Dwyer, and juniors Laura Smart, Carrie Ripley, Greg Nourie.

• Accepted the resignation of lab aide Kevin Godfrey.

• Appointed Rose Anne Boyle as a special needs teacher at the junior/senior high school.

• Appointed Mrs. Kathleen Woodbury as part-time special needs instructional aide at the Joseph Osgood School.

• Appointed Mrs. Miriam Aronson to the lunchroom staff at the Deer Hill School.

• Appointed Mrs. Barbara Carlson to the lunchroom staff at the junior/senior high school.

• Appointed Jean P. Webb as secretary to the principal, Cohasset Junior/Senior High School.

After three years of planning, surviving the regulatory review process, and renovating a home with scarce finances, Esther Sanger, the staff and the students of the Mary-Martha Learning Center celebrated their success.

Sunday marked the ten-month anniversary of the Main Street shelter which has provided comfortable surroundings and educational programs for 95 persons who have been welcomed into the white-shingled Cape-style home.

The dedication was celebrated by members of the Quincy Crisis Center board of directors who oversee the Hingham center, neighbors, supporters from local churches, and present and former residents of the Mary-Martha center.

There were laughter and smiles and a few tears, as administrators of the Hingham center recalled some of the people who have graduated from the program and are now leading active, successful lives. One such person, according to administrator Heather Rideout, came to Sanger's house as a desperate teenager. Now, years later, she is enrolled at Eastern Nazarene College, Rideout tearfully told the dedication participants.

Perhaps numbers best tell the story, Rideout continued. Forty-four families have been residents at the Mary-Martha Learning Center during its first ten months of operation. Twenty-seven of those families are now in permanent housing, "paying bills and feeling like real families," she said.

There are eight families, mostly young women from the South Shore and their small children, currently residing at the center.

Secretary of Human Services Philip Johnston praised Sanger for her efforts, comparing her to other social service advocates including Kip Tiernan, the founder of Boston's "Rosie's Place". He called Sanger an "extraordinary woman" and praised the dedication of the staff and the supportive community who recognized "there are many homeless people throughout the South Shore.

"There is homelessness in Marshfield, where I live," he noted, saying that was one of the toughest issues he dealt with during his years as state representative. "There is homelessness in Hingham, Cohasset and Norwell, as well as in Boston and New York and Chicago."

He called it a scandal that families are without shelter in the richest society in the world, "in perhaps the richest state in that society.

"But because of Esther Sanger, there is a remedy. Families in Southeastern Massachusetts have a place to come."

Gov. Dukakis, in his inaugural address in 1982, named homelessness the number one social issue of his new administration. Today, Johnston noted, there are 96 state-supported shelters in the state. In 1983, there was a total budget of $10 million to assist the 10,000 homless families in the state. Today, "with the support of a progressive state legisture," Johnston said there is an annual budget of $210 million to support those homeless families.

"This state," he continued, "was the first in the nation to say if you are homeless, we have a shelter for you because of the number of shelters and beds we have, and the network of emergency assistance we can provide throughout the state."

The support for such services, Johnston said, comes from the people in communities such as Hingham, who have understood the mission and efforts of "extraordinary" people like Sanger. "Most of all I thank the good people of the South Shore and in Hingham for being so supportive and reaching out to some of the most needy people in this area."

John Seavey of Cohasset, president of the Quincy Crisis Center, stated that in order for such a program to succeed, there must be a need, a vision, a response to that vision, and a caring community. He noted that members of the Hingham community, as well as surrounding towns, have joined to make this program succeed - people such as the Randolph Congregational Church sewing circle who created quilts for the beds, the New England Telephone Pioneers who volunteered their time to landscape the property, the Junior League of Boston who helped cook the food for the dedication, and the town of Hingham "for its cooperation in establishing the center."

After officially receiving the keys to the home, Sanger talked about the effort it took to establish the learning center. Crisis, she said, should be viewed as turning point in life - as an opportunity for growth and change.

She talked about the educational classes provided to the residents of the shelter, noting that 16 have already received certificates signifying course completion. Several graduates of the center are preparing to enter college this fall "with an attitude of hope for the future," she said.

Sanger thanked her husband, Lee, who persevered throughout her ordeal to open a shelter in Hingham.

She remembered the first knock upon the front door of the Main Street home. "It was a lady who called to welcome us to Hingham. She told us that Hingham needed a place like this," Sanger said, recalling that the woman described how she could have used such a facility when she was younger. There was another Hingham couple, Sanger remembered, who sold their car and gave the proceeds to her for a month's rent. A local doctor and his wife gave Sanger money to provide rent for yet another month.

Sanger recalled her mentor and mother, Esther Williamson, a dean at Eastern Nazarene College, who instilled in her the need to care for others. The music room at the Mary-Martha Center was dedicated in Williamson's memory.

She concluded the dedication by noting, "I hope you all find a way to become involved here, to give time and money to continue what we have set out to do."

around town

□ When school opened last week, there were a lot of happy students at Deer Hill. Deer Hill is a special school for our youngsters, it makes them all feel happy, they are all known by name and they learn so much from the wonderful teachers that are there. They also learn from the other adults that are up there. Take for example Bobby Barrows. Bobby marked a day on his calendar this September, this begins his 36th year as custodian at the school. He takes a great deal of pride in his work, and the kiddos love him. He knows each of them, and always has a kind word or a word of encouragement for them. Bob is a legend in our town, and our hats go off to him.

□ Congratulations to Abigail Adams and "Waltzing Wave", who won the junior hunter championship in last month's Greater New Haven Hunter Jumper Classic Horse Show.

□ The George H. Mealey Post held a clam bake last weekend on Sandy Beach, and it was a grand success. They wish to extend their special thanks to Fran Coffey who lent them a tent; Hap Pompeo, who lent them a tent; Carmon, from Strawberry Parfait who gave them 1200 lbs of ice; Burt Pratt and Frank Anderson, who donated tickets and posters; Charles Stover who did the tables and chairs; and Dan Leahy of Kimballs by the Sea, Reflections, Ron Goodwin, Hugo's and Hingham Lumber who all donated prizes for the raffle that was held.

□ Arthur and Jeannette Somerville of 484 Beechwood Street, just returned from a Scandinavian Trip. The highlight of the trip was a visit to Jeannette's mother's birthplace in Sweden, a place called Skruv. Her mother was Mrs. Elijah (Ellen) Lincoln. They also visited a beautiful Lutheran Church in the town of Ljuder, as well as seeing London.

□ Joanne Egan is leaving our fair town, for all of the comforts of a condo. She will still be on the South Shore, and will still be working in the area, so we are sure to see her "around town". As a neighbor, she will be missed, she has been a wonderful one.

□ Spotted Gert Young around town recently, she is amazing. Everyone remembers her as a second grade teacher that the children adored, she hasn't changed one bit! Looks wonderful!

□ Congratulations to Ted Abbadessa, who won a trophy and a $100 gift certificate for coming in second in the Trask Tackle sponsored bluefish tournament. Ted was the only "Cohassetite" to "place" in the event, he caught a 16 lb blue!

□ Don't forget to make your plans to "give the gift of life" on Tuesday, Sept. 27th from 2:30-7:30 p.m. at the First Parish House, 23 North Main Street, Cohasset. For further information call Al Odermatt, Chairman, at 383-1283.

□ The Cohasset Community Center is planning to hold a Tag Sale on the Common on Saturday, Oct. 1st from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. They do have some space available, call 383-0088 to reserve your spot. The price is $15.00 for each sale area. Sure is a perfect location to "sell your wares".

□ If you are looking for that special gift, check out the South Shore Art Center's Gift Shop. Sheila Casey runs the shop and it provides needed income for the Center. There are some wonderful gifts available there, with 28 craftsman's art available. The shop is open weekdays from 10-4 and on weekends from noon to 2:00.

□ Happy birthday to Karen Pompeo.

□ Saw the brand new couple, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Salerno last weekend. . . .they are certainly a happy pair of newlyweds, here's to a long and happy life together.

That's the news from here, be sure to call with your newsworthy happenings!

Republicans to meet

The South Shore Republican Club will open its fall season Monday, Sept. 19, at the Norwell Grange hall on Rte. 123, corner of Main and South Streets.

At 1 p.m., there will be a slide presentation entitled "To Russia with Love," narrated by Barbara McSwan.

A light luncheon will be served at noon with members from Duxbury, Marshfield, and Norwell serving as hostesses.

For reservations or information call Pat Buckley (383-0303) or Ruth Hall (545-3777).

Kenny Rogers changes date

Because of a television commitment, singer Kenny Rogers has moved his concert dates at South Shore Music Circus, originally scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 17 and 18 to Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 24 and 25.

Showtimes remain the same and patrons holding tickets for the original dates will use them for the re-scheduled dates.

Rogers will have singer B. J. Thomas as his special guest for his Cohasset concerts.

For further information, patrons may call the theatre at 383-1400.

Awards to local organizations

The Massachusetts Council on The Arts and Humanities recently awarded the South Shore Art Center $2,330, and the South Shore Conservatory of Music $15,245, Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray reported.

The Merit Program is for ongoing, eligible, cultural programs and services in Massachusetts. Merit Aid funds cannot be used for fundraising activities or scholarships. The Merit program provides operating support for cultural organizations which are engaged in public programming.

Hull Lifesaving Museum also received $4,170 for Curriculum Development. To be used for local history skits, written by high school students and performed by elementary students, as an aid to learning American History. The Curriculum Development program supports projects developed between cultural institutions and schools and/or community organizations served.

The total allocation to Representative Murray's Third Plymouth District is 4 Awards totalling $30,715.00

Thank you again to the commonwealth's Council of the Arts and Humanities investment in culture. These funds enrich the lives of all citizens of Massachusetts," stated Mary Jeanette.

What now ?

And now, for the who-knows-how many-times, we are presented with a plan to redesign little Cohasset Harbor.

This inlet has been beseiged by well-meaning and not-so-well meaning planners who, for various reasons, have devised methods that would change the scope and appearance of the harbor.

Each time, at least in our vague remembrance, their plans have been met with much vocal resistance by the men who live by the sea. These are the men who know from memory every nook and cranny within our harbor. They could steer a boat blindfolded, and tell how how high the tide is and where the next mooring is located.

Change does not come easily to generations of fishermen.

The new owners of the Cox Estate have presented preliminary plans to the harbor committee which include some major changes to Cohasset Harbor. They never expected the lobstermen of Cohasset would take this sitting down.

What they want to do at this early stage of a long, complicated game, is to present the facts to the townspeople, get their reaction, adjust their plans if necessary, and proceed to apply for a plethora of local, state and federal permits.

The process of obtaining all these permits will take The Oaks owners about a year.

No one knows for sure, and the owners aren't saying at this point, what the former Cox Estate will be used for in the future. The brick mansion could be used for office or residential condominiums in the future, perhaps with harborside boat slips as an enticement.

The owners are being very careful, and deliberately slow in developing plans for their property. They certainly want to get the most for their substnatial investment, yet they realize many townspeople are carefully studying each step as they proceed.

Yankee Oil was a quiet neighbor, because that's the way the town wanted it. They allowed the conversion from residential to business, but restrictions were added to the approval in order to keep the tranquility we treasure in our neighborhood.

The new owners have already learned the people of Cohasset are not anxious for another change on Margin Street. And a change in the harbor is not something many people will accept without resistance.

The owners are undoubtedly learning a new lesson about the fishermen of Cohasset. Many of their ancestors fished from the same spot in Cohasset Harbor, and they simply feel there is no need to fix something that works.

The owners would like more floats in the harbor - some for them and some for us. Perhaps there is some logic to their argument, but we tend to agree with the statement made last week by Harbormaster Steve Osborne.

The harbor is already too congested. Recreational boaters on a summer weekend in Cohasset Harbor is a catastrophe waiting to happen.

What we don't need in this small inlet is more boats, bigger boats and more floats. - let's deal with the mess we have down there now before we add to the confusion.

Landfill crisis no longer something of future concern. 'Full up' looms perilously close on the horizon. Trash/waste volume grows. Where to put it all shrinks. Voluntary recycling of newspapers, bottles, cans takes off some pressure. Incinerators, 'garbarges' not answer yet. Mandatory recycling is, as one forward-looking South Shore town mandate shows

"...There it all is...the old home town...By the time they adopted mandatory re-cycling, it was too late..."

Coalition disappointed with DWPC

Letters

To the editor:

(This letter was written to the director of the Division of Water Pollution Control, Thomas C. McMahon. Ed.)

At the last meeting of the South Shore Coalition (a voluntary organization of local officials from the ten towns listed below) we were told of the recent decision made by your agency not to fund the Cohasset, Hingham, Hull wastewater treatment project. Members of the Coalition were keenly disappointed by this action and asked me to write to let you know of our concern and the reasons for it.

For the past three years the SSC has been working to build a publicly recognized forum for regional problem solving. We have been actively supported in this effort by the state's political leaders and we are grateful for that support. We depend upon it — as do all communities who seek to cooperate on a regional basis.

The concept of local control and independent community action is very strong in Massachusetts — as we are all so acutely aware. The goal of getting towns to think and act on a broader basis, to share resources and responsibilities on a multi-town level, is a goal not easily achieved. To do this, one needs to develop a climate of trust and mutual understanding. This requires additional effort on the part of local officials, officials who already commit major portions of their time to public activities.

Because many of my colleagues and I have come to understand the truly interdependent nature of environmental and social problems, we have been willing to make the extra commitment necessary to build a cooperative regional approach to problem solving. The continued existence of such voluntary efforts depend on having some demonstrable successes.

Agreements reached through voluntary processes are frequently fragile and often require greater support than those achieved through more traditional methods. We believe this is the case with the wastewater project.

Local citizens are genuinely concerned with water quality issues and town officials have worked hard to build strong consensus for an environmentally viable, financially feasible and politically acceptable regional solution to this wastewater disposal project. These same officials find it especially upsetting to realize that after all their own efforts have produced positive results, the final critical part of the solution if being withheld by the state. To be turned down at this point is a crucial blow.

I am sure that you can appreciate the sense of frustration felt and I hope that your agency will make every effort to find the financial resources needed to support this cooperative project. We believe that both the process of mutual problem solving and the product of an environmentally sound wastewater treatment program will be heavily impacted by your ultimate action.

We realize that funds are very limited and that the state has had to move in to assume responsibility previously held by the federal government. We appreciate the fact that you have pledged to work on behalf of projects such as the Cohasset, Hingham, Hull one. We want to again emphasize how important we believe your support is for such a cooperative effort. Local officials look to the state to assist them in developing the facilities needed to keep their communities good places to live.

We look forward to being kept informed of your progress on our behalf. Thank you for your continuing consideration.

Sincerely,
John M. Silva
Chairman

Important water flushing notice

The Cohasset Water Department will be conducting its system flushing program beginning on or about September 19 and continuing through early October.

This will require the opening of hydrants throughout the system during the evening. All flushing will be conducted after 9 p.m. Consumers may experience temporary discoloration and pressure drop during these hours.

There will be no adverse health effects on the water supply during the course of this program. The department intends to accomplish this project by area as follows:

1. Beechwood Street from 3-A to Flintlock/Aaron River Road. Brewster Road.
2. 3-A to North Main Street & Cedar Street
3. South Main Street and North Main Street
4. Village & Harbor areas
5. Atlantic Avenue, Beach Street and Nichols Road
6. Jerusalem Road, North Main Street to Forest Avenue

Thank you for your cooperation.

Benjamin F. Curley, Superintendent for the Water Commissioners.

ground."

Because of conflicting summer schedules, Sturdy said members from various town boards have not met on any regular basis. He expects the committee to resume regular meetings this fall.

But Selectman Chairman Burt Pratt said he would be opposed to town ownership of the former Cox estate. "It's water over the dam," Pratt said, referring to the opportunity the town had in 1982 to purchase the property after the death of Mrs. Cox.

"It's an investment too great for the town," he said. "The opportunity for the town was way back. We could have had a fine civic center, but we lost it back then."

Pratt noted that the town recently lost another oppportunity to gain public waterfront access through the purchase of the Old Salt House, but it was lost because of the high price tag. "That was $400,000," he noted. "I don't know how the town could come up with more than $2 million for the Cox estate."

Owners of the property have said at several public meetings with town officials they would be willing to explore a joint private/public venture at The Oaks. They have not yet received an answer to that offer.

At the Sept. 20 meeting, Oaks Realty Trust will bring environmental engineering studies which indicate the harbor traffic will not be negatively affected by the increased floats. The federally-maintained channel should be dredged and it will be able to accomodate the number of boats in the harbor, they said.

The owners will donate the 48 slips to the town, along with an acre of waterfront property for access to six floats. That land was part of a $1 a year lease Yankee Oil negotiated with the town in return for a variance to use the property as corporate headquarters.

The harbor committee reviewed the proposal at its Sept. 8 meeting.. Chairman John Pfaffmann figured the committee could make its recommendation on the proposed reconfiguration of the harbor moorings to selectmen by next month.

Michael Palmer, an owner of The Oaks, said that no moorings other than those held by the lobster fishermen in Cohasset Cove will be realigned. Environmental studies will show that the realignment will provide a wider turning radius for the commercial fishermen and the recreational boaters moored along the proposed piers.

At this time, the owners have not decided whether the 109 private slips will be rented or leased. A possibility would be to offer the slips for 99-year leases, known as "dockominiums."

School land to be tested ...

analysis," he said.

In the Evergreen-Route 3A site's favor are the facts that it abuts Route 3A and has access to the nearby Super Stop & Shop, according to Stewart.

When asked whether the land was the top choice so far, Clain responded, "This is looking very good, but there are a few other sites."

Stewart noted that the area was tested about 20 years ago, and proved suitable for building.

He said he wanted to test the land to see if building is viable today.

"The housing authority would like to keep the acreage as minimal as possible," said Stewart.

"We'll only receive as much as we need for housing."

Committee chairman Diana Kornet noted that they have had many requests to use the land.

"This is probably the most pressing problem," said member Chris Ford.

"I would be inclined to let you go and do it. To me, this is worthy.

"We don't want to be perceived as stonewalling this," said Kornet.

"It's a good idea to investigate this further."

The school committee gave its unanimous consent to the testing.

The housing authority is to inform the school superintendent when the testing takes place.

After the hearing, Hart explained that if the land was shown to be a good site for affordable housing, the school committee could declare the land no longer needed and the selectmen would place the action on the town meeting warrant.

"Town meeting would make the final decision," said Hart.

Cohasset Library story hours

The fall story hour series for children 3 and a half to 5 years, will begin Thursday, Oct. 13 and Friday, Oct. 14 at 10 a.m. in the children's room of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Each of the programs will consist of several picture book stories, a simple finger play, song or craft, and will last approximately 45 minutes.

Children may register for either the Thursday or Friday session, both of which will run for six weeks, ending Nov. 17 and 18.

Children must be three and a half.

For more information contact the children's librarian at 383-1348.

Fall sports...

Soccer

Cohasset has been knocking at the door for two years, having lost to Bromfield in the last two state title games. (In fact, both of those contests ended in over-time).

This fall, coach Dan Magner's team will be led by senior forward Jim Reidy. Could Cohasset's third straight visit to the title game finally turn into a lucky charm this year?

"I hope so, but for now, we have to concentrate on replacing seven out of 11 starters from last year's squad," said Magner.

Besides Reidy (a captain), Magner will count on Ned Chase (a captain who plays stopper) and Jimmy Gallagher (fullback captain) to pick up the slack.

"Reidy will be a big factor for us in scoring. Chase brings outstanding athletic ability, while Gallagher provides speed on the field. All of these players were named to the SSL all-star squad last year. Also, they are three-year varsity starters," Magner said, whose club is the two-time defending EMass champion.

Another returning starter is senior Jay Staunton. The all-star midfielder is considered the best playmaker on the field.

The goaltending situation appears solid with junior Joel Reidy in net. The SSL and Eastern Mass. all-star goalie has posted 20 career shutouts at Cohasset.

Dan Bliss (halfback) and Matt Beggan (halfback) are the other seniors on the club.

"Passing and team defense will be our strengths this year. Weakness, a lack of varsity experience for most players. It is going to take some time to find the right lineup. With seven slots open, we have some young kids who can fill those spots immediately. We need to develop some cohesion in order to work as a unit. Overall, we have the soccer skills, but no varsity experience," said Magner, who has compiled a 34-6-6 in two seasons.

"Our objectives are to win the league, to have fun and to play our best. The first priority is to capture the league title. If you win the league title and then get eliminated in the playoffs, you feel like you have accomplished something. If you finish in second place and then get eliminated in the playoffs, you have gained nothing during the season. We want to win the crown so that we have something to fall back on."

"I am very optimistic about the upcoming season. With a lot of hard work, we could have another successful campaign. Anything can happen in a one-game elimination tournament," said Magner, who predicts that Norwell and Abington will battle Cohasset for the league crown.

"I really believe that we were the best team in Division Three last year. Our quality of soccer was high."

Council determinded to find transportation for seniors

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

Although the popular senior shuttle van was destroyed in a fire two weeks ago, plans are already underway to provide alternative transportation for the elderly.

At the annual meeting of the Council on Aging this week, vice chairman Gerard Keating said selectmen and council members are attempting to work out an arrangement with the state Department of Transportation to provide a handicapped-access shuttle van at no cost to the town.

Keating explained that the van could accomodate as many as ten persons, and is equipped with two chairlifts. If a contract is negotiated between the town and the state, "it will cost the town nothing, the way we have it planned now." The vice chairman said if negotiations are successful, "the seniors will have demonstrated their ability to take the lead to get things done at a minimal expense to the town."

His comments were made during the Council on Aging's annual meeting held Monday morning.

Tony Finegan, a member of the council, reported that prior to its demise, the senior shuttle serviced 140 individual seniors in Cohasset and had travelled more than 17,000 miles throughout Cohasset and surrounding towns during the past two years.

Senior Center Director Kathy Bryanton said since the van was destroyed, volunteers from throughout the community have offered assistance. A van has temporarily been supplied by South Shore Elder Services for trips to local physicians and stores, which will service basic transportation needs until the shuttle is permanently replaced.

During her review of the past year's services, Bryanton said many things have changed since the senior center was opened three years ago. The council is averaging 100 one-way trips on the shuttle each month.

One of the greatest assets to the senior center this year has been the addition of office aide Marguerite Ridderhouse. With her help, the center is now capable of offering more programs to more elders, Bryanton said.

The senior Vista newsletter is mailed to 450 residents each month. And a weekly column of senior center news is published weekly in the Cohasset Mariner newspaper in large type to accomodate elderly readers.

There are now five leaders of the popular walking club, which is participating in the October Governor's Cup walk in Boston.

Another highlight of the past year, Bryanton said, is the Executive Office of Elder Affairs grant to provide transportation to the handicapped to residents of Cohasset, Norwell and Scituate. An offspring of that program, she explained, is the state-funded therapeutic exercise program in Cohasset for handicapped and impaired adults from throughout the South Shore.

That popular program, held at the community center, began last January and now includes about 50 participants each week.

The center has also logged 3,625 volunteer hours for its various program. "That's how we accomplish as many programs as we do," the director explained.

The annual meeting featured keynote speaker Chet Jakubiak of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs.

In the past few years, he noted, the emphasis of senior centers throughout the state has shifted from providing service to healthy, well senior residents, to establishing needed services to "the hundreds of seniors who are not having such a wonderful time.

"The councils on aging's focal point must be to concern themselves with providing assistance and opportunities for those with the ability to do for themselves, and for those who are impaired and can's continue without assistance."

Jakubiak said he has remained as impressed with the Cohasset senior center as he was when he first viisted the new center three years ago. But since that time, he noted, the focus of senior centers has shifted "to offer social and health services to other seniors who may not be having" what Jakubiak called "the second prime of your life."

Cohasset has establihed an outreach program to help those isolated seniors, along with the nutrition program, the chore program, the Keep Moving walking program and the SHINE program where trained seniors offer help and guidance to other seniors about medical billings and information.

"To accomplish what Cohasset has, it is evident that in addition to a tremendous director, you must have an incredible board of directors with lots of ideas and commitment," he said.

Local councils of aging must continue to coordinate activities and program with local government officials. He cited a council in Marlboro where elders who have knowledge of a second langauage work one-on-one in the school system with high school students majoring in foreign languages. In that same community, retired teachers are asked to participate in the grand teacher program. They will work alongside a young student on specific subjects, and will sponsor workshops for teachers on that particular topic.

"There is a need to look at the younger people and to offer ourselves to them," Jakubiak told the council members. As the number of senior citizens expands in each community, it is important for the councils on aging to widen their constiuency.

In other business, the Cohasset council elected a slate of officers for 1988-1989: Chairman, Rev. John Keohane; Vice Chairman, Gerard Keating; Treasurer, Margaret Casey; Recording Secretary, Dorothea Bjorkgren; Corresponding Secretary, Mary Donovan.

New theatre debut

That New Theatre's debut production of "Chicago!" will open Thursday, Sept. 15, at 8 p.m. and run through Sunday, Sept. 18, at the Cushing Center, the old town hall, in Norwell Center.

All performances are at 8 p.m. except Sunday's which is at 7 p.m.

"Chicago" is the classic Bob Fosse musical revolving around two murderesses, Roxie Hart and Velma Kelly, and their quest for acquittal through the use of the shyster lawyer Billy Flynn.

However, the media hype is so overwhelming on the trial that eventually Roxie and Velma become vaudeville stars of the 1920's. The work is a commentary on the justice system and media power in America.

In the rousing score are the famous "All That Jazz" and "Razzle Dazzle," which have become somewhat standards in the music world.

Playing the leading ladies are Donna Milani Luther of Norwell as Velma, Sharon Petti of Hanson as Roxie, Jodi Capeless of Easton as Matron Mama, and D. Trueberg as Mary Sunshine.

Leading males are Bill White of Scituate as Amos, Roxie's husband, and Tim Fitzgerald as Billy Flynn.

The music is under the direction of Margo Euler of Hingham, known for her Unicorn singers and for her musical direction of Hingham Civic's productions of "Evita and "Edwin Drood." Directing and choreographing the show is Donald S. Capen of Pembroke, who has directed throughout the South Shore area for many years.

Capen said the show would appeal to a variety of different people. "The score is very jazzy and catchy," he said, " and the storyline has real grit to it — a lot of thought ahd substance.

"And the whole show is a real "theatre" piece, meaning it's set up in a vaudeville style and is very entertaining."

The show is being presented at the Cushing Center, and tickets are $7.50, which can be purchased at the door or reserved by calling 826-7983 or 878-2127.

That New Theatre will be presenting two other productions this season, an evening of one-acts in January and the musical "Peter Pan" in early May.

From the garden...

By Joan Pinkham
Mariner staff

As the world slowly turns to gold, fall is waiting in the wings. Days are decked with marsh grasses turning yellow before mellowing to fall's russet tones.

Bordering the river banks and dotting the fields are splashes of goldenrod, tansy and black-eyed susans. Stop along the way to gather grasses and "weeds" to hang dry in an attic or furnace room.

Joe pie-weed is that soft lavendar weed found in wet spots; goldenrod, dry fields; hydrangeas, perhaps in your own garden; bayberry, often found by the shore —all make handsome dried floral arrangements.

Keep your eyes open for bittersweet, sea lavendar and pampas grass, keeping in mind that it's best to pick on a clear, dry day without disturbing the plant's roots.

Even at night when the Harvest Moon appears, the earth is basking in a golden glow. Rolf Egon takes a keen interest in the skies and would like everyone to share his enthusiasm for astronomy, especially this month when there are some magnificent sights overhead.

The planet Mars will be closer to earth than it has been in the last 17 years, and with the help of good binoculars or telescopes, you can see its polar icecaps if you look toward the southeast shortly after 9 p.m.

Better yet, visit the Science Center on Jacob's Lane in Norwell to learn about Saturn and Jupiter as well. They will hold an open house at 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 9 or Saturday, Sept. 10 if it rains.

September is also the time when hay fever is at its peak. Cranberries are being harvested, and the first frost is about to strike.

Before that happens, cut back straggly annuals to encourage side shoots and bushy plants.

Lois Hines is a part-time career woman and lectures on gardening. She finds that spending an hour a day in her own one-acre yard keeps the gardens weeded and attractive.

"You accomplish a lot in an hour when you decide in advance what to work on and your tools are organized," she writes.

Typically, her basket holds pruning shears, trowel, a hand cultivator, scissors, a ball of green twine, labels, lidded coffee cans of 5-10-50 and superphosphate, plus a pencil and pad for notes.

Some gardeners prefer toting their tools in a wagon, handy as a catchall for weeds.

There are those who look upon skunks as a gardener's best friend, saying the "wood pussy" is regarded as a destroyer of harmful garden insects. Biologists rank him highest in devouring the larvae of the white grub, the cutworm, the potato bug, the Japanese beetle and other crop-destroying insect life.

However, most forget the wood pussy's redeeming traits when he defends himself by delivering a charge of musk that can be smelled a mile away. Not only that, he can "shoot" you from 10 to 12 feet away when confronted by a menacing human or animal.

His diet also includes small game, and bird lovers view the skunk with hostile eyes because, on occasion, he builds up his strength with the eggs of ground-nesting birds and because he finds fledglings delightful eating.

There are things to do and places to go now that the children are back in school The annual plant sale of the Arnold Arboretum is top priority, as rare and unusual plants are offered at auction during the day on September 18. Coffee is served, lunch and refreshments available at the Case Estates in Weston from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Mass. Horticultural Society offers a variety of courses on wildflowers, native plants and perennial flowers designed for beginners to the more experienced gardener. Contact its education department at 617-536-9280 for a brochure and registration information, but hurry, the first course is offered this week.

Considering the fact that the shore birds only arrived in June, it's hard to believe that most of them have already taken off on their 2,000 mile migration to South America. In fact, one is hard put to find sandpipers, sanderlings, dowitchers, egrets, plovers or heron.

Birdlovers who live near the shore anticipate the return of the shore birds each June, as eagerly as those inland look for their first robin.

But there's still much going in the avian's world and should you care to join the nature walks offered by the South Shore Science Center and Audubon Society at 617-837-9400, a call to either will enable you to determine their scheduled walks.

* * *

Now, even the smells of the countryside are changing, with milkweed in full bloom and their feathery seed carriers floating across the fields, bearing the scents of summers to come. What better place to be than at the Daniel Webster Sanctuary in Marshfield bordering the Green Harbor River, where there are acres of fields to explore.

Spotted there recently were three osprey, two Northern Harlans, one Cooper's hawk and one red-shouldered hawk.

When the Cooper's loud "cucks" ring through the woods, everything hushes; cheerful thrushes and warblers become still, and John Richard May writes: "There is indeed death in the air."

Cooper's Hawk is so adroit that often this bird, with a wing spread of up to 30 inches, is not seen over the hen yard, while the Red-shouldered or Red-tailed Hawk has to pay the penalty because they are so conspicuous and may be seen soaring above the chickens below.

* * *

Goldenrod is unfairly condemned as allergy-inducing, perhaps because it flowers at the same time as ragweed, the true cause of hayfever. Goldenrod was used by housewives of old to heal wonds and this truly beautiful plant includes many different species.

George Alpert

A funeral service was held Sept. 14, at the Levine Chapel, 470 Harvard St., Brookline for George Alpert, 90, of Cohasset, who died at home Sept. 11.

Burial was in Adath Jeshurun Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Mr. Alpert was a Boston attorney who was a founder of Brandeis University.

He was also the university's first chairman from 1946 to 1954.

In addition, Mr. Alpert was president of the New Haven Railroad from 1956 to 1961 when the line went into bankruptcy.

Several months later, the Interstate Commerce Commission agreed with his view that primarily passenger railroads such as the New Haven must have federal subsidies to exist.

Born is Boston, Mr. Alpert was graduated from Boston University Law School in 1918.

He was first assistant district attorney for Suffolk County from 1924 to 1927.

During World War II, he was national chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, a group which resettled Jewish children left homeless in Europe.

Husband of the late Gertrude (Levin) Alpert and late Phyllis (Hersey) Alpert, he is survived by three sons, William Alpert of New York, Leonard Alpert of California and Richard Alpert of Cohasset; a sister, Thelma Price of Newton, and five grandchidren.

He was the brother of the late Ruth Segal, Mickey Alpert, Herbert Alpert and Phyllis Alpert.

Memorial week was observed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Price, Newton.

Donations may be made to the Seva Foundation, 108 Spring Lake Drive, Chelsea, Mi, 48118.

ENERGY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Teaming-up

This is simple.

If you participate, Eastern Edison Company will pay you money to use less electricity.

Why are we doing this?

Because our region is facing a continuing electric-capacity problem. The demand for electricity is very high — almost higher than our capacity to generate it.

So — it helps us if you use less. And it will also help you.

We want your participation — and we'll pay you for it. We've made these programs very attractive. They're flexible, efficient, common-sense ways to use less electricity.

So you'll save money right away. We'll pay you cash incentives and by using less electricity you'll lower your energy costs.

Here are the Teaming-up programs for 1988:

For our commercial and industrial customers

ELITE - Efficient Lighting Rebate Program
We'll pay you cash to replace lamps, ballasts and fixtures with new energy-efficient models. You can get from 50¢ to $2.50 per item.

CHOICE - Interruptible Contract Program
New for 1988! — We will pay you money if you agree to shut off banks of lights, equipment or processes when we request it. The rebates can vary widely — but if you agreed to shut off 100 kW, for example, you could make up to $1,800 per year!

AIRCON - Air Conditioner Incentive Program
Also new for 1988! — We'll give your contractor rebates for installing efficient central cooling equipment. You'll save money on efficient air-conditioner equipment and your electric bill.

And — we also have money-saving programs for our residential customers as well!

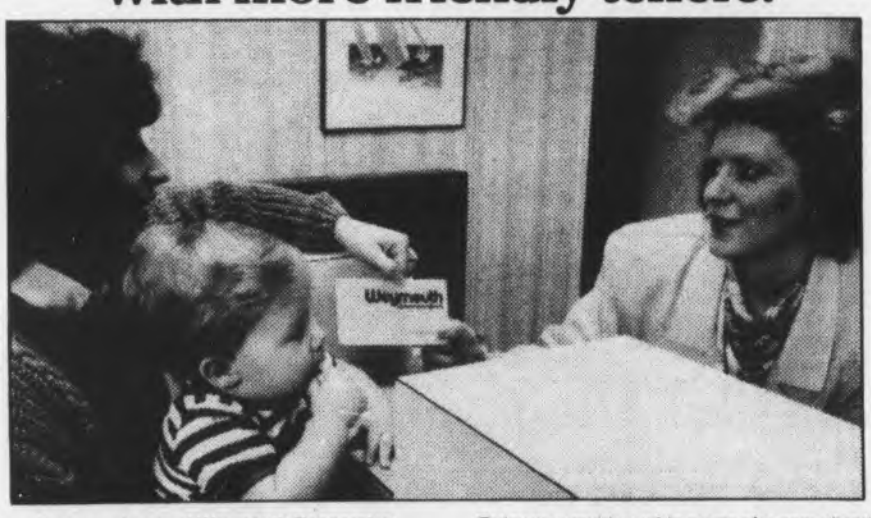
There are banks in Weymouth with more tellers but none with more friendly tellers.



Every customer at Weymouth Cooperative Bank gets treated with the same courtesy and respect—even our smallest depositor. No matter what type of account.

For our tellers, being helpful is a way of life. It's the way we've been doing business for the past 99 years. It's a tradition we've built with two, three ... even four generations of Weymouth families.

We're working hard to be, not the biggest bank, but the best. Not just good bankers, but good neighbors as well.

Today we provide a wide range of personalized banking services such as checking accounts, mortgage loans, NOW accounts, IRA accounts, CD's and others. But most importantly, we tailor our services to meet the needs of Weymouth families and businesses.

Why not drop by our office in South Weymouth, North Weymouth or East Weymouth. We'll show you that banking doesn't have to be a chore.

We make you feel like a million dollars.

Planners want to see more of the Oaks plans

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

The Cohasset Planning Board voted Sept. 7, to turn down a preliminary subdivision plan involving a driveway at The Oaks, formerly the Cox Estate, because of insufficient information.

The application was denied without prejudice.

"They can come back anytime they like," said board member Daniel Cotton.

James A. Miller, a planning and development consultant from Newton, represented Oaks Realty Trust.

Miller said he was requesting permission to increase a planned driveway from 14 feet to 20 feet, rather than the usually required 24 feet.

He noted that the board's action would "lock in" the zoning for seven months.

But board members were more curious about a proposal filed with the Army Corps of Engineers and Cohasset Conservation Commission proposing to build 109 new private boat slips.

The proposal also includes restructuring of existing public harbor mooring spaces that would add 48 public moorings to the current 350.

"The proposal is a wide open deal at this stage of the game," said Cotton.

"I'm fearful of approving anything until I know what the rules of the game are."

"All we are talking about is an entrance to what might become something else,' said member Al Moore.

"I don't know what end is up on the proposal so I have to assume the worst.

"When someone says we want relief, you've got to know what's involved."

"The moorings, etc., don't really relate to the preliminary plans," said Miller, who declined to give more information.

In response to a question, Michael Palmer, one of the new owners of the Oaks, said they are still exploring

Historical museums to close for the season

The Cohasset Historical Society's Maritime Museum and Capt. John Wilson House at Cohasset Center will complete their summer open season Friday, Sept. 30.

Through that date these two historic museum buildings will remain open each afternoon except Mondays from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The Maritime Museum, originally Samuel Bates' Ship Chandlery and Counting House, dating from the latter 1700's, today houses a large collection of artifacts, artworks and documents relating to Cohasset's long "Age of Sail" which saw the town turn its eyes on the oceans of the world for its livelihood and its economic well-being. Shipbuilding and fishing were among the earliest occupations in "Conahasset" shortly after the year 1700, and by the mid-19th century the town was a thriving mackerel fishing port and home of numerous "Deep Sea Captains" sailing the world's oceans in mercantile trade.

Generations of Cohasset's youth grew up sailing in the codfish and mackerel schooner fleets; many later became crew member on the large merchant vessels, including fast packet ships and clippers, sailing to and from the port of Boston. Some became ship masters of vessels which ranked among the world's finest. The Society's Maritime Museum recaptures the spirit of the age with its exhibits. Some of the subject covered in the museum's displays. Relics from the mackerel schooners, shipwreck items, models of 19th century sailing vessels, ship carvings by local woodworkers, artifacts and pictures from the volunteer lifesavers, and the story of the first and second Minot's Ledge Lighthouse are among the exhibits featured.

The secor d floor of the Society's Maritime Museum holds an extensive exhibit of general historical nature, from the early days of the town. Stone tools of the early Indians, some dating from nearly two millenia ago, are on veiw. Housewrights' and cordwainers' equipment, a collection of pharmaceutical supplies, desks from the town's first schoolhouses, maps of early Cohasset and a "Fisherman's Country Store" are among exhibits to be found in the old chandlery building.

This year a special exhibit of materials relating to the nation's Constitutional Bicentennial remains on view through September.

Adjacent to the Maritime Museum on Elm Street at the center, the Capt. John Wilson Historical House, itself once the home of a Cohasset "Deep See Captain" now holds a collection of artifacts, artworks, household furnishings, and childrens' toys from the early years of the town. Here historical exhibits are viewed in an 1810 house never modernized. The items in the Wilson House come from other old homes in the town, and are on view in a setting not unlike early and mid-19th century Cohasset homes.

Each of the Cohasset Historical Society's two buildings at Cohasset Village show a different facet of the unique history of this small New England seacoast community. Admission to the Society's Museum is $1.50 per building for adults, 25 cents for children from 6 to 12 years.

Driveway denied possibilities with the house.

Other owners of the 58-room mansion on nine acres bought in December are Paul Palmer, Steve Green and Joseph Dempsey.

"I don't feel I want to act on this tonight," said Cotton.

"This is piece-meal," agreed member Patrick Plante.

"It's unfair to ask us to consider this when it may not be adequate for what you are going to do there."

"I wouldn't want to decide on this tonight,"said member John O'Toole, acting chairman in the absence of Robert Sturdy. "He didn't say the purpose of the driveway."

"It would be irresponsible of us to grant approval of something when we don't know what it is going to be," said Moore.

In other action, the planning board made the following recommendations to the Zoning Board of Appeals:

- Approval of an application for a special permit for Jonathan Livingston Square.
- Disapproval of an application from Elizabeth Ripley, 20 Old Pasture Rd., for a special permit to establish a lodging house.
- Approval of an application for a special permit for construction of an addition from John Bridgeman, 14 Stockbridge St.

The board will vote on a recommendation regarding the Deck Point project at its next meeting.

Members requested time to read all the information supplied.

Cohasset recreation programs

The Cohasset Recreation Department's fall aerobic exercise classes will begin Tuesday, Sept. 13, at town hall auditorium. Margaret Watson and Karin Kirkendall will teach these classes.

Kirkendall's classes will meet from 5 to 6 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursday evenings, and Watson's classes will meet fr.m 6:15 to 7:15 p.m., the same evenings, as well as an optional third class which will be held Wednesday evenings.

All classes are based upon an eight week session. However, you may join in at any time, and the fee will be pro-rated based upon the number of classes remaining in a given session. Classes continue on a year-round basis.

Fees for aerobic exercise are as follows for an eight week session: $40 for 16, one-hour classes; $24 for eight, one-hour classes; $48 for 24. For those who wish to pay on a per-class basis the charge will be $4 per one-hour class.

Kirkendall's 5 p.m. class is low-impact aerobic exercise. Watson's 6:15 p.m. class offers a more vigorous program format.

To register, come to Cohasset Town Hall auditorium at the time of your selected class, on the appropriate evening. The aerobic exercise programs are open to both residents and non-residents, as well as men, women and students in junior high school and up.

Dog obedience classes

A new eight week session of dog obedience training classes will be offered by the Cohasset Recreation Department at the G.A.R. in Scituate, beginning Wednesday, Sept. 14.

A few openings remain in both the 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Beginner class, and the 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Intermediate/Advanced class.

Classes meet one hour per week, for a period of eight weeks. The fee for the program is $25. Dogs should be a minimum of three months of age for the beginner class. Non-residents will be accepted on a space-available basis. Laurie Cleveland is the recreation department's dog training instructor.

For further details, and registration, call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791.

Fall soccer program

Any Cohasset youngster in grades K through 9 who has not registered for either the Grades K through 2 soccer clinics or Grades 3 through 9 soccer league, may do so this week only.

Call the Recreation Department office at 383-6791 for details and registration.

Natural Science Center upcoming activities

The last few weeks of September are the perfect time to explore the outdoors with the South Shore Natural Science Center! Exciting fall programs offer something interesting and fun for everyone.

Nature Nursery

These programs are designed to create an enjoyable educational and social experience, individually catered to the children in each age group. Activities for the younger children emphasize individual sensory experiences, whereas older children are involved in more social experiences, including activities such as nature walks and crafts. Please call 659-2559 for further information.

Kindergarten

This series of programs allows your child to explore the natural world through a variety of mediums, including walks, crafts, and self-expression. Working with groups of 6 to 8 children, Science Center instructor Jini Foster introduces nature in a gentle, inquisitive manner. 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., Mondays, Sept. 19, 26, Oct. 3, 17, 24, 31. Members/$55; non-members/$70. Children should be 5 by Jan. 1, 1989 or in Kindergarten.

Development

Through walks, games, story-telling, and other nature related activities, your child's sense of appreciation for things natural is developed. Children must be 3 by August 31, 1988. 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., Tuesdays, Sept. 20, 27, Oct. 14, 11, 18, 25. Members/$55; non-members/$70.

Harvest Jam Kitchen

Harvest time is here and you don't know what to do with all those fruits and vegetables? How about hot pepper jelly? Tomato Jelly? In a lovely North River home, instructor Betty Duquet will demonstrate jam making methods using her ancient granite-wear utensils. Enjoy tasting her spreads and take home a delicious sample. Meet at the South Shore Natural Science Center, Monday, Sept. 19, 10 a.m. to noon. Members/$8; non-members/$10. Register early for this one! Please call 659-2559 for further details.

Flint-Knapping/Stone-Tool Making

Join members of the South Shore Chapter of the Massachusetts Archaeological Society in a fascinating demonstration of stone tool manufacture. For thousands of years native American Indians fashioned many of their tools from stone; today, crafts-people such as Peter Mills, the staff archaeologist at the Mass. Historical Commission, have kept this skill alive. Free. Monday, Sept. 19, 8 to 9:30 p.m. Please call 659-2559 for further details.

Trout Island

This beautiful privately-owned island in Marshfield is located at the mouth of the North and South Rivers. A haven for waterfowl and wading birds, the island affords lovely vistas and is a great spot to observe salt-marsh plants and animals nature. Car-pool from the South Shore Science Center, on Tuesday, Sept. 20, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Members/$4.50; non-members/$6. Call 659-2559 for further information.

Wednesday Nature Walk

Each week a naturalist from the South Shore Natural Science Center leads a natural history tour of a different South Shore site. On Wednesday, Sept. 21, the walk will be to Wompatuck State Park, in Hingham. Walkers will search the trail up to Woodpecker Pond for signs of autumn, including fall wildflowers and migratory birds. This leisurely, informal walk is ideal for all ages, on Wednesday, Sept. 21, 10 a.m. to noon. Members/free; non-members/$4. Please call 659-2559 for further information and to confirm destination.

Quilting Class

This course, designed for the advanced beginner, is for those of you with some sewing or quilting experience (perfect for members of last winter's quilting group.) Instructor Louisa Smith, an expert quilter and owner of "Quilts Ltd." in Walpole, has a great ability to communicate her vast knowledge of the world of quilting. In four short classes, you will create a 27" square wall hanging or a 24" pillow. All aspects of making and completing a quilt will be covered. Supply lists will be furnished at registration (total materials costs about $15.) Wednesdays, Session 1: 10 a.m. to noon; Session 2: 7 to 9 p.m.; Wednesdays, Sept. 21, 28, Oct. 12, 30. Members/$45; non-members/$60. Please call 659-2559 for further information.

Bonaire — Island Paradise

Between Aruba and Curacao lies the island of Bonaire, home to huge flamingo colonies and the world's second largest barrier reef. Only 30 miles off the coast of Venezuela, this island is a wildlife haven and is famous with wildlife photographers. Following an armchair tour of lovely terrestrial Bonaire, join an underwater bonanza of tropical fish and coral. Refreshments. Bonaire residents Helen and Al Fine will present this program at the South Shore Science Center on Friday, Sept. 23, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Members/$3; non-members/$4. Please call 659-2559 for further information.

The Red Planet

During the third week in September, Mars will be at its closet point to the earth in the last 17 years. Weather permitting, surface markings and even the Martian Polar ice caps will be visible. Prior to the viewing, enjoy some excellent slides of the Viking mission to Mars. Saturn and the Ring Nebula in Orion should be visible as well. Instructor Rolf Egan is past-president of the South Shore Astronomical Society and is an avid amateur star-gazer. Friday, Sept. 23, 8 to 10 p.m. Members/$3; non-members/$4. Please call 659-2559 for further details.

Ponkapoag Bog

Within just a few miles of Boston lies Ponkapoag Bog, a surprisingly natural sphagnum wetland. A 2,000 foot boardwalk, one of the longest in the northeast, cuts through a colorful Atlantic White Cedar Swamp. Along the way, sundews, pitcher plants, and other unusual bog plants are found. Moderate walking involved. Meet at the South Shore Natural Science Center and carpool, on Saturday, Sept. 24, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Members/$5 adult, $3 child; non-members/$7 adult, $5 child. Please call 659-2559 for further details.

Crystal Collecting

Why purchase beautiful crystals from a gem shop when you can find them on your own? Join a day of crystal hunting in Rhode Island (within a two-hour drive of the South Shore.) Quartz and calcite crystals are likely finds, with a possibility of other crystals, minerals, and even fossils! Wear sturdy shoes and bring a lunch, as well as a pail, a rock hammer, chisel, and safety glasses. Meet at the South Shore Natural Science Center, on Sunday, Sept. 25, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. (rain-date Oct. 2.) Members/$12 adult, $9 child; non-members/$15 adult, $12 child. Please call 659-2559 for further details.

Capriland's Herb Farm

Remember that Sept. 8 is the last day to sign up for the South Shore Natural Science Center's popular tour to Capriland's Herb Farm, in Conventry, Conn! This farm is famous throughout New England, tastefully displaying over 300 varities of cultivated herbs. Following a garden tour of the 31 different gardens, sit down for a lovely New England cuisine luncheon. A bookshop, greenhouses, boutiques, and an information center complete this herbal experience. Spaces are limited. Meet at the Science Center at 8 a.m. and travel in our van. (Members $38; non-members/$48.) Or drive yourself down (members/$20, non-members/$25.) Please call 659-2559 for further information.

South Shore Natural Science Center is in Norwell, on Jacob's Lane, just off Route 123 and less than a mile from the Route 3 and Route 53 interchange (Exit 13.) The Center is open Mondays to Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sundays 1 to 4 p.m. Trails, exhibits, library, gift shop.

Town & trustees try to resolve fight over estate

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

Although no decision was made inside the courtroom last week, movement has been made toward providing at least a temporary solution to the battle over the Curtis Estate.

Following a hearing last week in Plymouth County Probate Court regarding the future of the Jerusalem Road property, trustee James DeGiacomo offered the Curtis Estate Action Committee members an opportunity to use one of the homes on a temporary basis for a homeless family.

Plans between the trustees and the committee have not been finalized. But committee members are hopeful that the necessary permits will be obtained and that a home on the property can be made liveable for one homeless family. The trustees and members of the action committee are hoping to resolve the logistical problems so that one family can be moved in this month.

At the probate court hearing last week, Judge James Lawton listened to testimony from several people who supported or opposed the petition by the trustees to break the will of the late George E. Curtis.

Asst. Attorney General Gwen O'Sullivan petitioned the court for a 90-day extension. The attorney general's office must make a recommendation on the proposal by the trustees, but O'Sullivan said there was not enough time to consider additional information brought to her attention just days before the hearing.

According to O'Sullivan, the state Executive Office of Communities and Development recently informed her office that they support using the property for low and moderate income housing. They also noted that there is about $1.2 million in state grants available for this type of housing.

The South Shore Association of Retarded Citizens also indicated their support of the plan filed by the action committee which would provide housing for eight retarded adults. The association also noted there would be financing available to establish the housing.

Atty. O'Sullivan requested the additional 60 days to further explore the proposals and available financing. The extension was granted by Judge Lawton, who took the time last Thursday to listen to everyone who came to speak at the hearing. He requested that Atty. O'Sullivan attempt to reach a

Technical hearing turns away boaters

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

More than 100 interested boaters and fishermen attended the conservation commission's first public hearing regarding the proposal to add 157 new boat slips in Cohasset Harbor.

Most of the discussion throughout Tuesday night's session was technical, however, and by the end only half the audience remained in town hall.

The owners of The Oaks, the former estate of the late Jessie Cox, are seeking permission to construct 109 private boat slips around the perimeter of the waterfront property. In exchange, they intend to build 48 additional public slips in Cohasset Harbor, along with a public parking lot on the Margin Street property.

At this point, there are no definitive plans by the four new owners for the future use of the 58-room mansion.

Tuesday night's presentation was made by Joseph Forns, an environmental consultant for the owners, and project engineer John DeRugeris.

Forns assured the commission that a full environmental impact report would be required by the owners from the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering. In addition to the commission's approval, the owners must seek permits from DEQE and the Army Corps of Engineers.

The consultants acknowledged that about eight and a-half acres of new "fiberglass cover" would result in the harbor because of the additional piers and boats circling the waterfront property. A section of the perimeter would be dredged to accomodate the finger slips and spider piers, and

The new director of the South Shore Art Center, Lanci Valentine.

Director aims for regional approach

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

The South Shore Art Center may be located in Cohasset, but its new executive director hopes to make it a regional art center.

"My real goal is to get people from as many communities as possible involved in the art center," said Lanci Valentine of Duxbury, who began her new position last week.

She replaces Joel Conrad who left to take a position in Boston.

"Our membership serves the whole South Shore," she said. "It would be nice to bring things into other towns as well."

"I believe in art and what art can do for people — it can add a dimension to anyone's life."

Art has had an influence on Valentine for most of her life.

"I'm not artistic myself, but I'm an appreciator," she said.

"My father was an artist."

Ture Bengtz, who died in 1973, was head of the drawing and graphic arts at the Boston Museum School for about 38 years, Valentine said.

"I spent a lot of time at museums, and I loved it," she said.

"But I never thought then that I would be working in an art center as well."

Valentine, who grew up in Melrose, was graduated from Tufts University with a degree in geology, but took a number of art history classes as well.

She worked as a scientific illustrator in the geology department of the University of California and at the US Geological Survey, Woods Hole.

In that capacity, she would draw illustrations of such things as fossils, maps and charts.

"Illustrating is more of a technical skill," she said.

"I enjoyed the people I worked with and I learned about science."

It is an interest she shares with her husband, Page, a geologist. They have two sons, Thomas, 11, and Eric, 7. Her mother, Lillian Bengtz, often helps with babysitting.

In 1976, Valentine switched to public relations at the Art Complex Museum, Duxbury, where she eventually became assistant to the director.

"I wanted to be closer to home," she explained.

She initiated exhibitions, concerts, educational programs and lectures.

Valentine also helped increase the number of volunteers at the art center from one to 50, over four years.

"We couldn't have done the programs without them," she said.

The largest project with which she was involved was an eight-week exhibit of paintings by Rufus Hathaway, a Duxbury artist who lived from 1770-1822.

"He was a self-taught artist and quite a colorful character," she said.

"We had virtually every painting possible. There are only 29 existing paintings and we had about 22."

Valentine said that the exhibition was mounted for the 350th anniversary of the incorporaton of Duxbury.

"It took almost two years," she said. "It was the biggest thing I was involved in.

"It was very well received — we had national coverage, a lot of good publicity.

"It was very well attended."

The museum who loaned their paintings for the

Cohasset's week

EOCD Support

The Executive Office of Communities and Development stands ready to help Cohasset in its efforts to use the Curtis Estate property for affordable housing, according to a letter from the EOCD assistant secretary.

The letter, from Joseph Flatley, was sent to Richard C. Allen, Director, Division of Public Charities, Dept. of the Attorney General, Boston.

A copy was also sent to the Cohasset Selectmen and Curtis Estate Action Committee.

"We understand that the will left by Mr. Curtis contains language that allows for this use," stated Flatley in the Sept. 9 letter.

"Further, EOCD's Bureau of Housing Development has inspected the site and determined that it may be appropriate for state-assisted housing.

"Towards this goal, EOCD can provide pre-development support to communities like Cohasset for planning and technical assistance.

"In addition, as you know, EOCD can also provide access to a broad range of housing that may be appropriate for the use of this site.

"We look forward to working with your office and Cohasset in support of providing balanced range of housing in the community."

Town begins recycling program

At the spring 1988 Town Meeting the citizens of Cohasset voted to make recycling of certain materials mandatory at the municipal landfill.

In an effort to make this process as simple and effective as possible, the town's Recycling Committee has been meeting to formulate a set of guidelines.

As of Oct. 1, 1988 the following materials will be required to be recycled at the landfill and will not be permitted to be disposed in the landfill:

PAPER

This includes newspapers, magazines, telephone books.

GLASS

Clear, green or brown glass should be separated and rinsed with tops and rings removed.

ALUMINUM

Cans, folding chair frames, window frames, etc.

FERROUS METALS

Scrap metals, appliances, pipes and other iron or steel items.

YARD WASTES

Grass clippings, leaves and any easily compostable yard waste.

Separate areas have been established at the landfill to allow for the easy and safe unloading and storage of these materials until sufficient quantities accumulate to be sold or recycled.

According to David Bigley of the recycling committee, "We are doing our best to make this program as simple as possible. This is just the beginning of what will hopefully become a model program for other municipalities to follow." Bigley continued. "The town does have the authority to issue citations to any citizen found dumping easily recyclable materials into the landfill. It is not the intent, however, to use this as an opportunity to issue tickets. It is our intent to deal with our solid waste problem in a positive way as a community."

Anyone wishing to know more about the Cohasset Recycling Program should contact the Cohasset Board of Health at 383-1664.

Mooring movement

Harbormaster Steven E. Osborne has forwarded to selectmen a list of 227 applicants for moorings in Cohasset Harbor.

The applications date back as far as 1972.

Number one on the list is Peter Lawrence who applied Oct. 20, 1972 for a mooring for a 50-foot boat.

Osborne also forwarded a list of 44 applications on the commercial mooring waiting list.

Number one on that list is Glenn Salvador who applied for a mooring for a 35-foot boat May 4, 1977.

New committee chairman

Jean Cotton of 27 King St. was elected chairman pro-tem of the Town Government Structure Committee during a recent reorganization.

Wilson Pile of 65 Elm St. was elected secretary.

Interviews begin

Selectman began interviewing applicants for executive secretary during an open session Monday, Sept. 19, at Town Hall.

Selectman chairman Burt Pratt had suggested that the interviews be conducted in executive session, but member Martha Gjesteby objected.

"I thought some of the people being interviewed might feel more comfortable," Pratt explained.

"I talked to the attorney general's office, and we can't do that," said Gjesteby, who noted the open meeting law.

"If there is any doubt, we should go to open meeting," said selectman Rocco Laugelle.

"So let's get on with the show."

Interviewed Monday night were Sarah Saccone, Joseph Nugent, and David Blanchette.

James Somerville and Greg Doyon were scheduled to be interviewed last night, Wednesday, Sept. 21.

The applicant who is selected will fill the position vacated by Don Andrew who left to become city auditor of Everett.

Asbestos removal

To comply with a new EPA law, Cohasset will have to have its schools inspected for asbestos at a cost of about $15,600.

"We have applied for an extension," said School Supt. Stephen Hart. "We'll do the inspection during the school year."

Hart noted that a similar inspection was conducted in June, 1983, on all the schools.

"We got positive feedback," he said.

Two other inspections have also been conducted, Hart noted.

The superintendent explained that asbestos is normally found in such areas as boiler rooms.

"We've done a lot of encapsulating and enclosing pipes," he said.

"It doesn't require removal."

Introducing: the Mariner Merchant

Beginning this week, area merchants begin offering valuable discount coupons to Mariner readers as part of a new program to bring special values to South Shore consumers.

The special coupon flyer is inserted inside this issue.

"Mariner Merchant" is the Mariner's own newspaper coupon insert, designed to respond to reader requests for coupons.

During our recent reader survey, many readers asked that we carry coupons to stretch their shopping dollars.

"Mariner Merchant" coupons will appear every other week, with special offers from a wide variety of area businesses.

This week, for example The Body Firm toning salon on the Driftway in Scituate offers coupon discounts on all of its services, including a free first visit.

Dependable Cleaners, with 13 locations, including Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham and Hanover, will take $2 off alterations.

Need a plumber? Master plumber Todd Amelang of Bound Brook, Inc. will take $10 off your first plumbing, heating or gas fitting job over $50.

As part of its pre-holiday Seiko event, Scituate Jewelers is offering a full 30 percent discount on any of the more than 100 Seiko watches they have in stock, if you bring in your coupon.

How about a movie rental for 49¢? Hennessy's News in Scituate and Hingham has a special get-acquainted offer to introduce their wide variety of movie titles -- and they're open from 5:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

At Hingham Galleries Ltd., you can save $10 on any custom framing order over $50, a 20 percent discount.

And in Cohasset, this edition of Mariner Merchant coupons offers two outstanding values. Kimball's by the Sea restaurant will honor your Kimball's Krazy Cash coupon and deduct $10 from your dinner order.

And the Window Fashions Division of ATC, Inc. will give you a 25 percent discount on drapes and top treatments, 35 percent on Graber vertical blinds and 40 percent on Graber pleated shades.

We hope you like our Mariner Merchant coupon feature. But please watch those expiration dates.

A NOTE TO OUR ADVERTISERS

If you would like to participate in our Mariner Merchant coupon program, just call our advertising department at 837-3500 (toll free 1-800-874-6969).

We will print, perforate and insert your coupon into the Marshfield, Norwell, Scituate, Cohasset and Hingham Mariners on a bi-weekly schedule. Advertisers can choose one date, or several, to fit their needs.

The cost is only 2¢ per household ($20 per 1,000 households), and you can reach 44,200 readers of our popular paid-subscription newspapers, circulating in the heart of the South Shore.

Deck Point Hearing

The Zoning Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing Wednesday, Oct. 6, at 8 p.m. at Town Hall on an application from Deck Point, Inc., for a comprehensive permit.

The applicants are seeking to construct a 128-unit residential condominium at 81-119 King St.

Town hall move

The new addition to Town Hall is expected to open Tuesday, Sept. 27, according to selectman chairman Burt Pratt.

Pratt said the move, by McKee Movers of Norwell, will start Friday and is expected to continue Monday.

"The mover said it will take more than Friday," he said.

It will not continue Saturday and Sunday.

Town Hall will be closed while the move takes place, according to Pratt.

Because of the moving disruption, the selectman's meeting originally scheduled for Sept. 26 has been rescheduled to Oct. 3, he added.

exhibit were very cooperative, she said.

"Everyone, we dealt with couldn't have been nicer and more accomodating," said Valentine.

She left the art center in July, 1987, and had a graphic design business in Duxbury with a friend.

"I'll continue that on a limited basis," she said. "We do brochures, logos, letter-heads."

Valentine had been frequenting the South Shore Art Center since she and her husband returned to the area in 1974.

"I reviewed a couple of shows for The Patriot Ledger," she said.

Valentine also recently completed a color and design class with Louise Kalish.

"The class was about how color can be used as a design form," she said. "It was very interesting.

"I enjoy dabbling, but please don't ever say I'm an artist," she said with a laugh.

When she heard about the opening for executive director of the center, she applied and was hired.

"I'm glad to be here," said Valentine.

"The potential is unlimited for absolutely everything."

She plans to solidify the art center's position in its new building at 119 Ripley Road, a location it has enjoyed for a little over a year, according to Valentine.

She also wants to expand people's awareness of the non-profit organization and its services.

"I want to get the word out about what a wonderful place it is," she said.

"We have classes for all levels," Valetine said.

"There are wonderful programs for children, pre-school through high school, as well as for senior citizens.

"And people can work toward certificates from the Mass. College of Art."

Valentine would also like to build up the number of art center volunteers who do anything from hanging exhibits to hostessing to working at the gift shop.

She is interested in working on an art leasing program with individuals or businesses, and bringing handicapped students and people into the center.

"Outreach is an important aspect," she said.

Advancing satellite programs is also on her agenda. There are currently art center classes offered in Scituate, Norwell, Hingham, Hull, Weymouth and Quincy as well as Cohasset, according to Valentine.

She said she will depend on staff for part of the outreach program, but will also be available to talk to groups.

"I enjoy telling people about something I'm interested in."

Upcoming events at the center will include the New England Sculptors Assoc., in October, a blue ribbon show in November and a fibre art show in December, she said.

"This is a very vibrant, alive place, with a fabulous teaching staff," said Valentine.

"We want people to come and see how nice it is here, to become a member and see all the benefits they get. To become involved.

"Some people feel they need a lot of education to look at art.

"But at any level they can look at art and enjoy it without all the background."

Police committee discusses repairs

The Police and Fire Station Renovation Committee hopes to talk to selectmen Monday, Oct. 3, about proposed work on the stations which could cost more than $500,000.

"I suspect it will be well over $500,000 to $800,000," said chairman Barbara Moore of Old Coach Rd. during the committee's Sept. 19 meeting.

"We'll have to find out how much they think the town is willing to spend," said Moore.

The committee will also ask for money to pay an architect to put together preliminary plans for the stations.

"We'd also like to make the town aware that five or 10 years from now, it should consider relocating one or the other stations," she said.

An earlier committee recommended a $1.1 million renovation in 1987 by Putnam and Associates, Architects, Boston. The proposal was accepted and then rescinded at town meetings.

The current committee was appointed by selectmen July 25.

At the last meeting, Sept. 6, members toured the stations, led by Fire Chief Daniel Brock who pointed out deficiencies.

During this week's hour and a half meeting, members discussed recommendations.

Moore relayed requests from Police Chief Joseph Kealey which included:

- Addition of equal but separate locker and shower facilities
- Replacing all lighting
- Air conditioning the entire building
- Providing access for the handicapped
- Replacing all floor, tile or carpets, and ceiling tiles
- Designing space for the storage of records and property
- Replacing the toilet facilities in cells with stainless steel
- Relocating the men's locker room and replacing all lockers

One-day license discussion

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

The selectmen chairman and the director of the community center clashed Monday night, Sept. 12, over a request for a one-day liquor license.

The license, for a Democratic Town Committee function Saturday, Sept. 17, 7:30 p.m. to midnight, was eventually granted 3 to 1.

Selectman Burt Pratt was opposed.

"We would like to sell liquor (at the event) to make money for the community center," said Judy Volungis, center director.

"You can't continue to sell liquor for your own profit when you rent the hall to someone," said Pratt.

He suggested that the center apply for a club license.

"Churches and yacht clubs request the licenses, what's the difference?" asked Volungis.

"You lease the hall to someone else," answered Pratt. "You cannot continue on this way."

"Our lawyer and the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission said we can continue," Volungis said.

Acting executive secretary Janet Chalke said the town has written to the ABCC requesting an opinion on the matter.

"The chairman of the ABCC said our letter has been turned over to their attorney," said Chalke. "We're still waiting to hear."

"In 1977 and 1978, the community center was going downhill," explained Volungis.

"We have very high operating costs.

"If we are not allowed fundraisers, we are going out of business."

She said the community center has received two liquor licenses over this past year.

"We had a professional bartender and control over who drank and how much," said Volungis, who noted that the center will request another license for a function in October.

"We support your programs," said Pratt," but don't think selling liquor is appropriate.

"It's not an appropriate way to bail the situation out."

Selectman James Gallagher said, "They're not serving liquor to children; it's a Democratic Town Committee function. It will be supervised.

'I don't see anything wrong with it."

Pratt responded, "These people want to operate like the American Legion.

"If you want to do that, you have to apply for a club license."

Volungis said the center couldn't afford a club license for just six functions a year.

"We have no intention of selling liquor every weekend," she said.

The cost for a liquor license is $25, according to board members, and $600 for a club license.

"This is a liquor license and a very sensitive situation," said Pratt.

"We haven't got a ruling from the ABCC."

Voting in favor of the license request were selectmen Martha Gjesteby, Rocco Laugelle and Gallagher.

Selectman Cliff Mitman was not at the meeting.

Trustees try to resolve differences ...

compromise plan with the trustees and interested town residents.

With only two exceptions, each of the speakers supported the action committee's plan to provide housing for the retarded, the handicapped, the homeless, and a shelter for battered women.

Since January, the town has been embroiled with the Curtis Estate trustees in an attempt to take ownership of the 53-acre property.

Atty. Judy Wyman, representing trustees DeGiacomo and Evan Crosby, explained the history of the former summer estate of the late George Curtis of Brockton. Although Curtis specified that the trustees were to establish a home for infirmed women, the money that was left aside for that purpose was never enough to abide by the will.

Currently there are $2 million in the estate's liquid assets. But the delapidated conditions of the remaining buildings and the failed septic systems that require rebuilding, preclude the trustees from complying with the will, Atty. Lyman stated.

In the meantime, she noted, the trustees are the owners of a large tract of land that is "almost uninsurable," she said. They have spent $22,000 over the past year in fire and casualty insurance along with $9,000 in real estate taxes. "The trustees feel it is not feasible to establish the home that George Curtis envisioned," she stated. "We are asking for permission to sell the property to someone who can use it."

The trustees intend to sell the property for private development, with assets from the sale diverted toward a variety of public charities, including the Visting Nurse Association.

Trustee DeGiacomo told the court that the property is now vacant and is in a "disgraceful" condition. He asked for a speedy verdict, noting "we are approaching our second year (since the trustees filed the Cy Pres to break the terms of the will) and we find ourselves with substantial income subject to taxes and the inability to distribute those taxes."

The attorney general's office must make a recommendation to the court about the petition to break the will. Atty. O'Sullivan said it would be "premature" to make a recommendation because of the new information received from EOCD and the South Shore Association of Retarded Citizens.

She noted that letters of support for the citizens action committee have been received from selectmen, the Cohasset Housing Authority, the Cohasset Housing Partnership Committee, Human Services Secretary Philip Johnston, Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, and local senators and state representatives.

Preliminary examinations of the property's three main buildings indicate that are repairable, although initial estimates indicate it may cost $250,000 per building. "That amount of money available (from EOCD and SSARC) is quite substantial," she told the court.

"Our view is that since we serve the public, we need more time to look into these proposals with more depth - to make sure the funds are there," she stated.

Although the judge granted the 90-day extension, he offered the opportunity to everyone within the courtroom to state their views about the trustees' petition.

Several town officials and residents registered their opposition to the trustees' sale of the estate. Only one resident, Mary Klein, a homeless woman from Cohasset, expressed her opposition to the citizens action committee's plan to stop the sale and to provide public housing on the site.

Klein talked about the "purgatory" it would create by placing the retarded, the homeless and the handicapped into one isolated section of the town. "I can't imagine children there going to school and becoming integrated into society. It will do dangerous, psychological damage to them," she said. Klein praised the individual members of the action committee, but criticized the plan they adopted as lacking imagination. She asked the court to appoint an immediate successor to the board of trustees and that the 90-day extension be granted.

A polarized view was expressed by Rev. E. Clifford Cutler, chairman of the town's fair housing committee. Rather than a purgatory, Rev. Cutler viewed the action committee's proposal as "a hope - a real possibility that will bring a sense of enrichment and diversity that this town desires."

The only other supporter of the trustees' petition was George Laban, executive director of the Visiting Nurse Association of the South Shore. He noted that contributions to the agency, such as those suggested by the Curtis Estate trustees, are the VNA's primary financial support.

Supporters of the action committee's plan included Burt Pratt, chairman of the board of selectmen, Charles DeSantis, chairman of the sewer commission, Atty. Charles Humphreys, representing the housing authority, Maria Plante, vice president of SSARC, and Dorothy Newell, vice president of the Hingham Interfaith Shelter.

Neighbors protest pier plan

John and Katharine Howe of 20 Hobart Lane, have registered their opposition to "major changes in the harbor perimeter as proposed by the purchase of the Cox estate."

In their Sept. 13 letter to selectmen, which was also sent to the harbor committee and conservation commission, they pointed out the difference between maximizing and optimizing the use of the harbor.

"Maximizing could imply that the most boats that could be moored in and around the perimeter is making use of the harbor to its fullest," stated the Howes.

"Optimizing implies the best use of the harbor. The best use involves balance, not maximum numbers of craft and people.

"Optimizing means ease and convenience for use; whereas, maximizing points to congestion, delay, confusion, frustration — all the negative factors that overcrowding causes in any situation.

"The potential of any port is not in the number of slips that can be sandwiched into its periphery, but in the use of its waterway, the protection it offers, and the number of activities that it can comfortably support without damage to the interests of interested parties and activities of various groups — and without damage to its own natural health, its ecology.

"As one who has visited Cohasset since the 1920s and who has been a resident for 23 years, it's obvious that the beauty and general atmosphere of the town have attracted population and commercial interests that serve to put pressure on the services and the natural limitations of the area.

"The harbor is a major attraction — a major strength, if you will — of the area. For its size it presently serves a remarkable number of interests.

"A core group, of course, is composed of those who make their living from lobstering and fishing — a $3 million business that has been the most consistent user of the harbor overtime.

"It requires not only access in and out and mooring space for the lobstering fleet, but also for the car buoys that hold lobster catch, to keep the catch alive and healthy for market.

"That's not just a matter of space, but in a harbor already congested, a vital flow of tidal water without pollution or stagnation.

"The position — in the harbor — for the car buoys is critical to the health of that long-established business.

"Surrounding fishing and lobstering are the fuel docks, the boat yard, the public landings and the active sailing club and yacht clubs, as well as the arrivals, dockings and departures from Hugo's Lighthouse.

"A very full menu for a small harbor.

"If optimizing is a matter of balancing interests to allow safe, comfortable use of the harbor, we are already at a critical point of balance.

"A massive outside intrusion will not lead to health but suffocation — not to mention destruction of salt marsh, increased traffic in an already traffic-congested town, intrusion of seawall into an already limited water area through fattening the perimeter of the Cox estate.

"Dockominiums may look like a profitable opportunity to outside interests. From this vantage point — from whence I write — it looks like a heavy investment that will result in destroying the very site that is attractive before the change. Some might say 'fouling your own nest.'

"This could be others 'fouling our nest while trying to feather their own.

"...A great strength overused becomes a weakness. Please think about it — in zoning, in conservation, in planning, in terms of the town, itself."

Police station . . .

• Securing the front desk with a glass or plexiglass-type material.

Committee member Francis Collins asked Brock, who attended this week's meeting as well, if he has received any applications from female firefighters.

"We had two women on the civil service list, but the list has expired," said Brock.

"We have to comply with the law and provide facilities for female firefighters," noted committee member David Chase.

The fire chief suggested using attic space for the dormitories, but getting away from the dormitory aspect with two person rooms.

"We could reduce it to a home-type concept," he said. "Then we would not have to label it male or female."

Committee members will talk to architects to ascertain the cost for preparing preliminary documents containing the different suggestions.

The committee will meet Tuesday, Sept. 27, at 7 p.m., at Town Hall to "dot the I's and cross the t's" before appearing before selectmen.

around town

□ Here's hoping that there is no need to write this, and that would mean that the mystery is solved. Last weekend Kim Ferreira of 297 Beechwood Street heard a dog barking in her garage and went to investigate. She couldn't get the dog to leave and finally had to call the dog officer in Hingham to come and get it out for her. He took it to the pound. If you are missing a blonde lab, male, with a leather collar, that's where he is!

□ This week's football game will be held at 10:30 a.m. instead of the usual 1:30 p.m. Our boys are playing Carver, and it will be a special event. This is the first time Carver High will ever play a football game! As you know, Plymouth and Carver separated. There will be a ceremony at Milliken to honor the occasion, so plan to be there. Remember, 10:30.

□ Speaking of the High School, we certainly were lucky to get Jack DeLorenzo as our vice principal! He makes such a difference up there, and the kids adore him! One of his most recent notable accomplishments is the work he did with the Student Council. He met with them during the summer, and they came up with their slogan for the year, "We make a difference." And they certainly did the opening day of school, when they were all there to greet the students as they arrived. You can bet that all of the students appreciated it, especially the new members of CHS. There were 40 new students to see the year begin, that's a lot for our little town. We too extend our welcome and will be happy to do anything we can to help them get acquainted.

□ One of the teachers, Ted MacDermott, was absent on the opening day, due to recent surgery. Everyone is hopeful that he will be back at CHS real soon...knowing Ted, he'll be up and around long before he is supposed to be! Get well fast, Ted.

□ One person who is getting well fast is Jean Fink. She had hip replacement surgery recently, and was already doing exercises as this was being written. Bet she'd love some cards (especially from her former students, she was a teacher in the elementary schools in Cohasset), she's at Mass General.

□ For those of you who have missed Hope Seeley since her little shop closed, "she's back." Everyone knows how friendly Hope is, and how she loves people, well she missed that and is now a member of the work force at Fleuri. Pop in and say hi, she would love to see you.

□ Happy belated birthday to Erica Ford. Erica came home from the University of Mass at Amherst (she loves it) to celebrate the occasion with her family, and we hear a great time was had by all.

Staff Sergeant Valerie Mallers of Cohasset recently completed a nine-day exercise in Canada. Mallers is a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 26th Yankee Infantry Division of the National Guard.

□ Happy Anniversary to Ruth and Carlton Pratt! You are an inspiration to us all!

□ Wah Lum Academy will host three intensive workshops at its Rte. 3A location on Sept. 24th and 25th. The guest instructor will be internationally acclaimed Taoist Master/author Mantak Chia. The workshops will be open to the public, and are geared to anyone seeking to enhance their own energy level or better manage stress energy. If you want more information, or to reserve your space, call 383-6822.

□ Happy anniversary to Helen and Al Livingston.

□ It does look strange to see the Duck Pond empty, but Peter Laugelle reports its for a good reason! The sides and the bottom have to be repaired, with a good portion of the funding coming from the Warner Brothers who gave the town money as a thank you for letting them use our town for their movie. If you can't wait until its through, what about the ducks?!! Superintendent Laugelle thinks it will take about a month, so that's not long to have it good again.

□ Speaking of "good" and "hew," how about more huffing and puffing to get up the stairs to pay your taxes, hurray.

□ Don't forget to attend the PSO General meeting tonight, it promises to be informative. For those of you that are new parents to the school system, you can have the chance to meet school administrators and learn the school progams. It will be held at the high school, and the time is 7:30.

□ Jo-Ann Rossi of Cohasset has been appointed Laboratory Director of New England Sinai Hospital and Rehabilitation Center, a 212 bed rehabilitation and chronic disease hospital.

Rossi earned a degree in medical technology from Westbrook College in Maine. Prior to joining the staff at New England Sinai Hospital and Rehabilitation Center, she was the Client Service Supervisor at South Shore Hospital and held a post as Associate Professor at Northeastern Universtiy for six years.

□ That's the news for this week, call with yours!

Homestead Act explained

State Senator Bill Golden chats with senior Diana Barke.

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

Forty-five to 50 senior citizens filled a room at the Cohasset Community Center, Sept. 14, to hear Sen. William Golden discuss the Homestead Protection Act for elderly and disabled persons.

The Massachusetts law protects a person's principal home up to $150,000 from court-ordered seizure by certain creditors. The limit is $300,000 for a married couple.

It does not cover debts like loans, taxes and mortgage debts existing before the declaration.

"It's a fear we all have that the fruits of our lifetime won't be passed on to our children," said Golden.

He said the law dates back to the 1800s when it was drafted to protect widows.

"Until the 1930s, it was only up to $3,000," he said.

Golden said he would like to try to increase the limit.

"Maybe we can inch it up," said Golden. "I'd like to try to do that."

Golden took the occasion to premiere a video tape on the homestead act produced by Continental Cablevision.

"When it is refined, it will be shown throughout the state," he said.

"It's kind of a revolutionary approach — to take a law that was recently passed and explain it in a video.

"It's a pioneering effort," said Golden of the tape which runs about 10 minutes long.

"People can visualize how easy it (the form) is to fill out."

Golden passed out copies of the Declaration of Homestead which can be purchased in legal stationery stores for $2.

"You don't have to have a lawyer," he said. "But you do need a notary public.

"It's simple to fill out."

Golden said the form requires such basic information as a person's name and address, and the book and page number on the deed.

"This has to be on record to protect you against future debts," he said.

The form must be registered with the Registry of Deeds at the probate court in Dedham, he said. Cost is $10.

"It won't affect your eligibility for Medicare and Medicaid," he added.

In response to a question, Golden said that if the property is owned jointly by one person who is 65 years old and one who is not, the protection act would cover only the 65 year old.

"If you are disabled, it does not matter what age you are," Golden added.

Come on down

On Friday, Sept. 23, from 3 to 6 p.m., our readers will have a chance to see for themselves how and where their newspaper is put together.

On that day, The Cohasset Mariner will join its 16 sister papers, under the aegis of Mariner Newspapers, in sponsoring an open house at the new facility in Marshfield, off Route 139.

We moved last spring to the sparkling new building where production of your weekly newspaper has become a breeze compared to former cramped quarters.

We're proud of our building and we are very proud of the quality, accuracy and integrity of our product. We want our readers to share with us as we celebrate a new building and a continued tradition of serving the community.

We are located in Enterprise Drive, an office park across from the Ming Dynasty on Route 139. We are just a little way down Enterprise Drive from the new offices of WATD radio, for those of you who know where that is.

So, come on down and meet the editors, reporters and our management personnel, and see how your weekly newspapers are organized, written, typeset, proof read, laid out and printed. Be our guests. Bring a friend. Everyone is invited and refreshments will be served.

You might find parking a little tight but don't get discouraged. Just find a spot along the road and come on in. We look forward to meeting our many faithful readers.

A good turnout

It was heartening to see so many Cohasset residents express their interest in the town's proposal to take the Curtis Estate property.

The court hearing was held last week in Brockton Probate Court. Many local residents took time from the schedule, and time off from work, to attend the hearing. Judge James Lawton acknowledged them and graciously allowed all interested residents to speak before he closed the hearing.

As the attorneys noted at the outset, this was not an adversarial hearing. The trustees, on the one hand, feel it would be best for all concerned if the property was sold and proceeds scattered among several area charities.

The town, and members of the Curtis Estate Action Committee, feel the will of the late George Curtis would be better served if the land was used for helping people desperately in need of housing.

It's a complex issue, one that will not be resolved for at least another 90 days. But all those who cared enough to express their support in the courtroom last week deserve our special gratitude.

LWV congratulates supermarkets

To the Editor:

Shaw's and Star Markets are two of the first retail business in our area to acknowledge the solid waste disposal problem. Their biodegradable plastic bags are a good initial step in addressing this critical issue and increasing public awareness of it.

Anything large or small that can be done must be done to focus attention on the problems we face in dumping unnecessary amounts of trash in landfills and incinerators not just on the South Shore but throughout the country. Nonbiodegradable plastics pose a particular problem since they take hundreds of years to decompose in landfills and are dangerous when burned.

We hope that, like Shaw's and Star Markets, other businesses will take the initiative and get involved in finding solutions. It is time to become aware of the over-packaging of so many products. The grocery and drug stores are good places for customers' suggestions to be passed on to merchants and then to producers. We need less packaging, fewer plastics, and no more styrofoam.

Letter

Innovative merchants might give discounts to customers who bring their own bags. Stores could have special displays of products that are sold in minimal, biodegradable packaging, or set up their own recycling bins nearby for disposal. What a wonderful public service!

Have we really made progress? Perhaps we need to go "Back to the Future" - to re-think our "wasteful" ways of doing things.

Thank you, Shaw's and Star Markets, for your environmentally-sound decision to switch to biodegradable plastic bags and bring this issue to public attention. We challenge area businesses to "top" this. Let's not leave a legacy of trash for our children.

On the Virtues of Prudence and Modesty

When Ahab, master, warped Pequod away
From 'neath the shadows of the old Ship Church
In Hingham town: a legend was secured.
A legend of stout seamen brave.

Harpooners who were yeomen yesterday,
And bosuns who well knew the plow and rake,
The road to Conahasset pasturage,
Drawn to the sea and wild adventure's path.

I will not sing of them, their glories great,
But of another voyage, known to a few:
From Hingham harbor, North against the sea
To where the rock ribbed coast is swept by gales.

None but the brave would set their course that way,
None but the true would challenge chop and swell,
None but the pure a fragile boat would drive
Northward as Galahad had sought the grail.

Their names incised on marble smooth should be;
But modesty is what the one prefers
And prudence, claims the other, should prevail.
So we must know them only by their choice.

Two ordinary men, not yeomen quite
Nor of the cloth but missionaries, yet,
To those poor creatures, wretched in the wastes
Of that far Northland. They would bring succor.

Their cutter well provisioned for the trial,
Good medicine in bottles neatly stowed
Within the transom locker. Gas tanks topped,
Well oiled the engine and all else aboard.

"Ahoy, land ho," from fore deck Prudence cried.
"Oh, Hull," said Modest, " 'tis a mighty tide."
"Hull no," warned Prudence, " 'tis the coast of Maine."
And 'twere and 'twas a passage mighty fine.

Naught since aught-seven had so quickly flown
From Hingham town au Haut, seafaring men.
And there the natives gathered on the shore
To watch that cutter weave its way to dock.

A chieftain, 'Goodin,' soon was hauled aboard
And baptized rightly; dosed with medicine
That lit his eyes like bonfires on a beach
And made his step both sure and sprightly, too.

Cured was he of the winter's discontent,
Of wardens' breath that seared the neck and soul.
"To Brandy Ledge and seek this vial upturned;
Aye, empty too, but mind the revenues."

Next morning with the sun and running tide
The cutter slipped away through shifting fog.
"Back full!" in quiet whispers Prudence yelled,
"A tad to port, that's well, the coast is clear."

There, bobbing in the swell, a soldier dead,
Of Gordon's column he had been last night.
Tied round his neck a little hank of twine
Caught to, by gum, a gunny sack of chicks.

"Full speed ahead," and Modest at the helm
The throttle kicked while spinning helm to port.
Penobscot Bay lay open, wide and clear;
Castine, they knew, was ripe to proselytize.

One gross per quart of four star bathtub gin,
Fair trading 'twixt good honest Yankee men.
Three at a time the chicks learned that a pot
Was not a trap; 'twas just a mite too late.

To Castine harbor, trailing lobster shells;
One at the helm, one at the bubbling pot,
Both checked the transom often in between:
It would not do to have the cargo spoil.

By even' tide the hood was dropped off wharf
Where perched the pride of Castine: cannery
Of sardines and of sermons they would give.
A cock-a-hoop chautauqua it would be.

The two brave seamen, Prudence, Modesty;
Parleyers with the local sachem were.
The lobster they would bring, with spirituals,
The guests and fiddle were in his command.

Conversion hour would start at seven sharp,
The feast prepared by local residents;
Fair maidens all, and chaste, it's understood.
The pick of all Castine were gathered round.

It was some feed, remembered yet it is,
Except by those whose thirst did overcome
Good sense. Oh, those were very few, indeed,
No more than all of them did slip so far.

Now, Prudence did a level head maintain.
He spied an apple, polished it with care
And might have walked down Adam's winding path had not her husband been town constable.

Next morning ere the sun, hungover, woke,
The Hingham cutter sought a cove unnamed
To rest the crew from labors they had done
And paid for now with every throbbing nerve.

That voyage went on 'til transom locker gaped.
Adventures more had drained it dry, forlorn.
'Twas prudent then to sail for southern shores,
'Twas modest to forget what happened north.

O heroes of the ocean's swell and tide,
O missionaries of the heathen shores,
Torch bearers of the old Hingham's history,
Ishmael would share his grog with thou and thee.

Let anthems swell along each road and lane,
From Bare Cove to the Conahasset fields,
Salute you who have braved the shore unknown
With prudent modesty.

FALL ECUMENICAL SERVICE

The fall ecumenical service is well under way. Planning meetings with volunteers from Cohasset, Norwell, and Scituate were held at the Senior Center to organize for the big event to be held Wednesday, October 12 at Saint Anthony's Church, 129 So. Main St., Cohasset.

Luncheon will be served in the large hall of the Community Center following the service. We have the menu planned, volunteers to serve, flowers for the tables, SSCOOT to transport special needs adults and we hope to have a bright and sunny day as we had last year.

If you know of a person who should receive a special invitation: or if you would like to help out that day by volunteering, please call Kathy at 383-9112. We need extra hands to help.

TAG & BAKE SALE

Mark your calendar for Saturday, October 1st, for a tag and bake sale. On October 1, the Community Center will sponsor a Tag Sale on the Cohasset Commons. The Senior Center is hosting a TAG & BAKE TABLE. Donations are needed and will be gratefully accepted and may be dropped off at the Senior Center beginning Friday morning, Sept. 30th. (We need good bakers.) Call 383-9112.

RECYCLING MONITOR

Recycling is the wave of the future. The Board of Health needs someone to work at the Cedar St. Landfill as a monitor. This is a ten hour position on weekends only...five on Saturday's and five on Sunday. Is ideal for a retired person or someone who wishes to supplement his or her income. Healthy outdoor activity with loads of people contact in a friendly atmosphere. Some physical strength required.

Starting pay is $6.21 per hour.

For more information, call Joe or Carol at the office of the Board of Health, 383-1664.

GOVERNOR'S WALK

The Cohasset Walking Club Members who wish to participate in the Governor's Walk on Sunday, October 2, must notify the Council Office or one of the walking leaders. Your completed application is your bus reservation and must be filled out and returned to the Center. The bus will leave Cohasset Senior Center at 9 a.m. prompt.

HINGHAM COUNCIL ON AGING

Hingham Council on Aging offers a regional meeting for stroke clubs on the South Shore. The program is designed to aid persons who have had a stroke and their families by developing a system of support, information, share concerns and social interaction. The Stroke Club meets at the Hingham Council on Aging, Hersey House, 229 North St., on Tuesday mornings. Speakers are often invited. For more information, call Karen at 749-0582 between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Meeting, Tues., 10 to 11:30 a.m.

EXERCISE AND FUN TOGETHER

It is quickly approaching 10:30 a.m. in Cohasset Community Center and senior citizens are disembarking from the SSCOOT van and arriving in their cars, some with canes and wheelchairs. They are coming for an hour of exercise and fun. The animated instructor, Clare Gurnett, a professional movement therapist who comes to the Center on Thursdays from 10:30-11:30 a.m. to teach the clients who come from ten different South Shore towns, from nursing homes, stroke programs and the community. There are currently twenty-eight members signed-up with a weekly attendance average of nineteen. The class concentrates on maintaining and increasing muscle strength, flexibility, range of motion, and improving fine and gross motor coordination. The exercises are therapeutic for stroke patients, cardiac care patients, and persons disabled by age or injury. The classes have been held since January and clients have already noticed improvements in their health. One client stated, "I love the people and we laught a lot." Exercising can be fun!!!!!!!!!

Council on Arts grants announced

Eight grants totalling $42,265 have been awarded to South Shore organizations to promote excellence for artistic and humanitarian ventures, Sen. William Golden announced. The grants are made available through the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities and reflect a $7.4 million commitment in merit aid to support cultural organizations engaged in public programming. They are:

- The Talking Information Center of Marshfield received a grant of $5,280 to continue its non-profit reading service for the print handicapped throughout Massachusetts.
- Candlelight Concerts, Inc. of Duxbury received $2,240 to continue its annual, non-profit concert series of four chamber music programs.
- The Chorale Art Society, Inc. of Scituate also received $2,240 in merit aid to promote its semi-annual concerts of classical and modern music sung by a 60 to 70 voice chorus with orchestra.
- In addition, the Prelude Concert Series Inc. of Scituate received $1,790 to provide its large South Shore audience with four professional chamber music concerts in the next season.
- The South Shore Art Center of Cohasset received $2,330 in merit aid to assist in its mission of introducing the visual arts and artists to the public through classes, workshops, and lectures.
- The South Shore Conservatory of Hingham was chosen for a merit aid grant of $15,245 to support its school of music, dance, and drama.

The South Shore Conservatory of Hingham provides a wide range of education programs to respond to the cultural enrichment of all economic, ethnic, and racial groups for 40 communities in the Commonwealth.

- Rounding out the list of grants are two additional awards for the Hull Lifesaving Museum. A first award grants the museum $8,970 toward protecting and preserving the maritime heritage of the town of Hull and its environs.
- The second merit aid grant of $4,170 will be used for curriculum development as an aid to learning American history — providing for the use of local history skits written by high school students and performed by elementary students.

Deer Hill celebrates Primary Day

While their parents were voting their preference in the primary election Sept. 15, about 260 Deerhill School students were proclaiming their concerns during a rally around the flagpole.

Students carried American flags as well as colorful posters and banners stating such things as "Arms are for Hugging" and "Thumbs Down on Pollution," as they marched on the area in front of the school.

The marjority of the students, teachers and invited guests wore red, white and blue.

"This is a celebration of citizenship, democracy and our greatest hope," said school principal Ken Ekberg.

"We want to bring a message to the community," he said.

"Students don't have the right to vote, but adults do."

He reminded students that the National Anthem was written Sept. 18, 1814, and that the 201st birthday of the constitution was Sept. 17.

Former Cohasset school committee member Gerard Keating spoke to students about patriotism and the freedom to vote.

He also noted that the Boston Red Sox are in first place and could make the playoffs.

"Primary day is a very important day," said Keating, "because it too is the beginning of the playoffs."

Eleven sixth grade students under the direction of Suzanne Parker, instrumental music teacher, played "America the Beautiful" as students sang along. Choral director Jack McGinnis led the students.

Invited guests included School Committee members Nancy Sandell and Barbara Bliss, Selectman Martha Gjesteby, School Supt. Stephen Hart and former superintendent William E. Ripley.

Bobby Nealon and Matt Belson entice voters to participate in the Primary Day election.

Teachers who helped organize the event were Joanne Magoun, sixth grade; Joan Cassaini, fourth grade; and Frank Deakin, fifth grade.

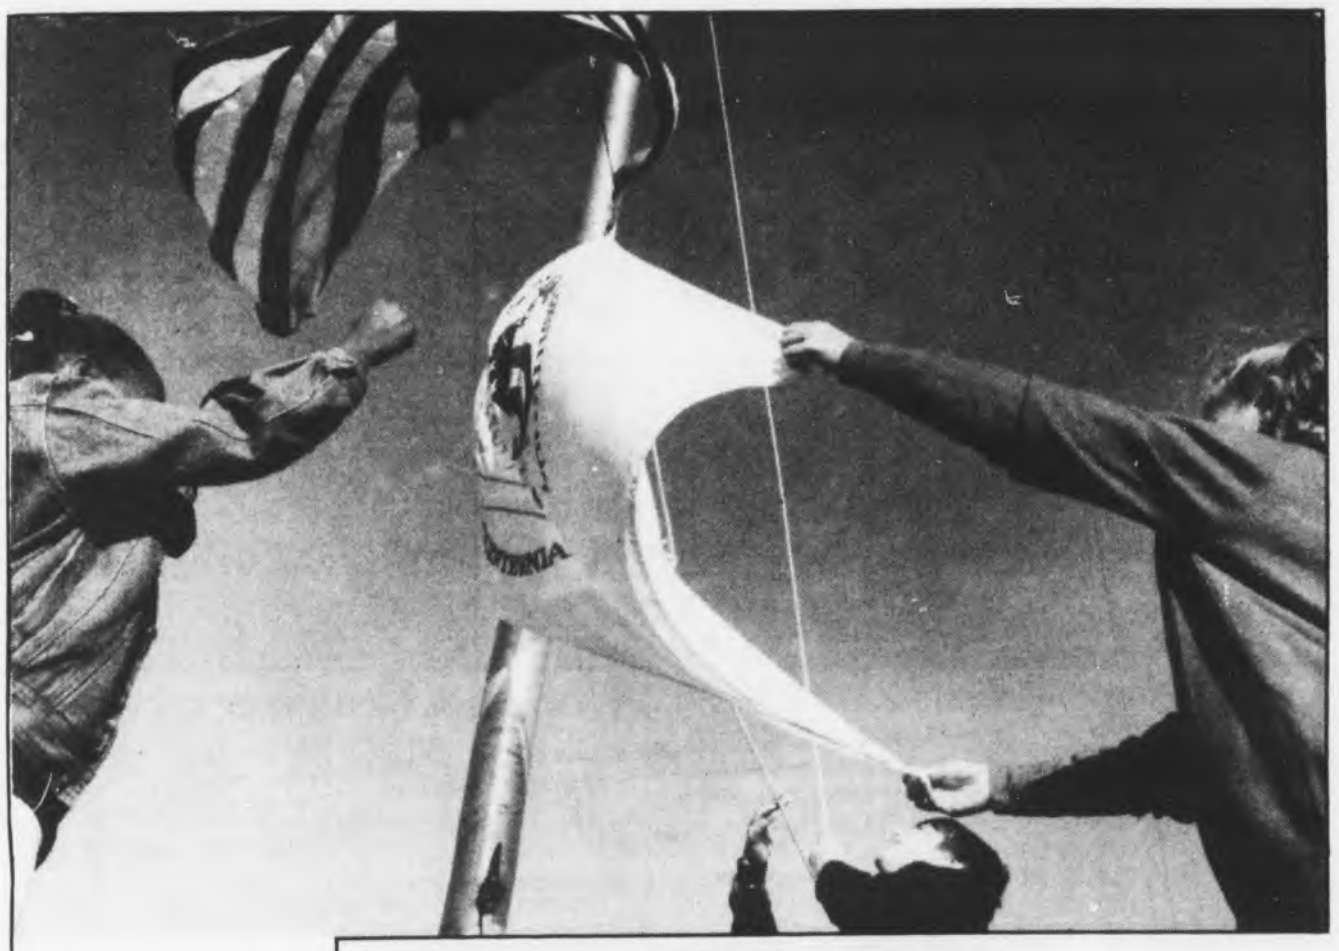
Librarian Marge Murphy videotaped the event.

After the students had returned to their classrooms, Ekberg said that they had been working on their banners and posters for a few days.

He said the rally was an outgrowth of the Constitution's Bicentennial celebration last year.

"This seemed like an appropriate time to get the kids all together," he said.

"We'll probably have a follow-up prior to the Nov. 8 election."



Frank Deakin's class observed last week's Primary Day with special activities. Here, (l to r) Sybil Johnson, Tom Lavoie and Kathy Burns raise the flag in celebration.

Presidential campaign

Wednesday, Sept. 14, the afternoon sections of the tenth grade American Studies had presentation on the current national presidential campaign.

Ron Goodwin represented the Democratic Party and Julia Gould and Nancy O'Toole represented the Republicans.

This included a question and answer period regarding the history and philosophy of both parties as well as discussion of specific issues such as Star Wars, Central America, environment and abortion.

The program is part of a unit where students are becoming familiar with the Presidency and this specific national election.

Merit scholarship semi-finalists

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation has released the names of those seniors who have been named semifinalists in the National Merit Program.

The following students are Semifinalists in the competition for Merit Scholarships to be offered in 1989: Arthur Meacham, Celia Mullen, Melissa Nothnagle.

Over one million students entered the 1988 Merit Program by taking the PSAT/NMSQT in 1987.

Approximately 15,000 students, or the top half of one percent of the state's high school senior class, have qualified as Semifinalists.

To be considered for Merit Scholarships, Semifinalists will qualify as Finalists by meeting additional requirements. In April, the names of Merit Scholarship winners will be announced.

Members of Mrs. Atkinson's third grade class celebrated the signing of the Constitution with their own caligraphy version. The students signed the seven articles promising to be good citizens throughout the year at Deer Hill.

Technical talk at conservation hearing

a new ecological configuration would be created for the property's shoreline.

They assured the residents that additional boats were not an environmental concern because of stringent federal regulations relating to bottom paints on boats.

Lobstermen, such as Herb Jason of Cushing Road, wanted to know where their lobster storage cars would be relocated. Lobster cars are underwater incubation cages used by the lobster fishermen which are located underwater in an area where the water flows from the Gulf River.

The two project engineers disagreed on whether they would be moved. Forns noted that the storage cars, located near the tip of the Cove area where 48 public boat slips are proposed, may not need to be moved. DeRugeris, however, acknowledged that they could be shifted "30 or 40 feet."

"Read my lips," Jason angrily replied. "Do not move those lobster cars."

Commissioner Jeff Waal asked the project consultant if adding 109 new boats into Cohasset Harbor would add to the pollutants in the water. Forns noted that in other areas of intense waterfront development, such as in Florida, the quality of the water has improved because of technical advances in waterfront facilities. The Oaks proposal would include a central pump vacuum system for the wastewater reception well.

The 109 private boaters would be subject to a lease convenant which would prohibit any dumping into the harbor. Also, conditions attached by the conservation commission to the permit would serve to protect the harbor water from pollution by the additional boats.

Forns assured the commission that people will not be living on their boats because there will be no commercial marina or shipyard along with the piers. He acknowledged that some recreational boaters may spend weekends on their boats if they are docked far from home.

Commission chairman Merle Brown wondered if the effect of 109 new boat motors would add pollutants to the water. But the environmental conultant noted that the increased boat traffic into the harbor would result in a greater volume of water and a greater dillusion of any contaminants dumped into the water.

"If no project was here, you would still have an an increase of harbor pollutants," Forns answered. "They're coming in now."

Several fishermen complained about the congestion caused by additional boats in the 90-feet wide channel. Jason noted that on summer weekends, there are up to 100 boats trying to pass through the narrow channel. In addition, there are boats moored along the sandbar that reaches out into that channel, he said.

Forns noted that docking boats along that sandbar "is something the town should address," but added that studies indicate similar-sized channels in other towns accomodate about 1,000 boats. Cohasset currently has 327 boats moored in the harbor.

He explained that about 140 actual moorings will be added to the harbor with this proposal, increasing the harbor density by eight and a-half acres which equals about one and a-half boats per acre.

The Oaks owner Michael Palmer was questioned by the commission about the minimum number of boat slips the project would actually need to be profitable.

"That's difficult to say," he answered. "This is our initial proposal to the town. We're going to be dealing with a lot of different agencies and I anticipate this will get scaled down in number. But it's not fair to say what the minimum scale would be.

"Our projects focused on the development of the waterfront. Depending on what happens here will allow us to decide what to do with the (remaining) property," he added.

The commission adjourned the meeting at 11 p.m. and continued the hearing to a future date.

September at Science Center

The last few weeks of September are the perfect time to explore the outdoors with the South Shore Natural Science Center! Exciting fall programs offer something interesting and fun for everyone.

NATURE NURSERY

These programs are designed to create an enjoyable educational and social experience, individually catered to the children in each age group. Activities for the younger children emphasize individual sensory experiences, whereas older children are involved in more social experiences, including activities such as nature walks and crafts. Please call 659-2559 for further information.

KINDERGARTEN

This series of programs allows your child to explore the natural world through a variety of mediums, including walks, crafts, and self-expression. Working with groups of 6 to 8 children, Science Center instructor Jini Foster introduces nature in a gentle, inquisitive manner, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., Mondays, Sept. 19, 26, Oct. 3, 17, 24, 31. Members/$55; non-members/$70. Children should be 5 by Jan. 1, 1989 or in Kindergarten.

DEVELOPMENT

Through walks, games, story-telling, and other nature related activities, your child's sense of appreciation for things natural is develcped. Children must be 3 by August 31, 1988. 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., Tuesdays, Sept. 20, 27, Oct. 4, 11, 18, 25. Members/$55; non-members/$70.

HARVEST JAM KITCHEN

Harvest time is here and you don't know what to do with all those fruits and vegetables? How about hot pepper jelly? Tomato Jelly? In a lovely North River home, instructor Betty Duquet will demonstrate jam making methods using her ancient granite-wear utensils. Enjoy tasting her spreads and take home a delicious sample. Meet at the South Shore Natural Science Center, Monday, Sept. 19, 10 a.m. to noon. Members/$8; non-members/$10. Register early for this one! Please call 659-2559 for further details.

FLINT-KNAPPING/STONE-TOOL MAKING

Join members of the South Shore Chapter of the Massachusetts Archaeological Society in a fascinating demonstration of stone tool manufacture. For thousands of years native American Indians fashioned many of their tools from stone; today, crafts-people such as Peter Mills, the staff archaeologist at the Mass. Historical Commission, have kept this skill alive. Free. Monday, Sept. 19, 8 to 9:30 p.m. Please call 659-2559 for further details.

TROUANT'S ISLAND

This beautifully privately-owned island in Marshfield is located at the mouth of the North and South Rivers. A haven for waterfowl and wading birds, the island affords lovely vistas and is a great spot to observe salt-marsh plants and animals nature. Car-pool from the South Shore Science Center, on Tuesday, Sept. 20, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Members/$4.50; non-members/$6. Call 659-2559 for further information.

WEDNESDAY NATURE WALK

Each week a naturalist from the South Shore Natural Science Center leads a natural history tour of a different South Shore site. On Wednesday, Sept. 21, the walk will be to Wompatuck State Park, in Hingham. Walkers will search the trail up to Woodpecker Pond for signs of autumn, including fall wildflowers and migratory birds. This leisurely, informal walk is ideal for all ages, on Wednesday, Sept. 21, 10 a.m. to noon. Members/free; non-members/$4. Please call 659-2559 for further information and to confirm destination.

QUILTING CLASS

This course, designed for the advanced beginner, is for those of you with some sewing or quilting experience (perfect for members of last winter's quilting group.) Instructor Louisa Smith, an expert quilter and owner of "Quilts Ltd." in Walpole, has a great ability to communicate her vast knowledge of the world of quilting. In four short classes, you will create a 27" square wall hanging or a 24" pillow. All aspects of making and completing a quilt will be covered. Supply lists will be furnished at registration (total materials costs about $15.) Wednesdays, Session 1: 10 a.m. to noon; Session 2: 7 to 9 p.m.; Wednesdays, Sept. 21, 28, Oct. 12, 30. Members/$45; non-members/$60. Please call 659-2559 for further information.

BONAIRE — ISLAND PARADISE

Between Aruba and Curacao lies the island of Bonaire, home to huge flamingo colonies and the world's second largest barrier reef. Only 30 miles off the coast of Venezuela, this island is a wildlife haven and is famous with wildlife photographers. Following an armchair tour of lovely terrestrial Bonaire, join an underwater bonanza of tropical fish and coral. Refreshments. Bonaire residents Helen and Al Fine will present this program at the South Shore Science Center on Friday, Sept. 23, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Members/$3; non-members/$4. Please call 659-2559 for further information.

THE RED PLANET

During the third week in September, Mars will be at its closet point to the earth in the last 17 years. Weather permitting, surface markings and even the Martian Polar ice caps will be visible. Prior to the viewing, enjoy some excellent slides of the Viking mission to Mars. Saturn and the Ring Nebula in Orion should be visible as well. Instructor Rolf Egan is past-president of the South Shore Astronomical Society and is an avid amateur star-gazer. Friday, Sept. 23, 8 to 10 p.m. Members/$3; non-members/$4. Please call 659-2559 for further details.

PONKAPOAG BOG

Within just a few miles of Boston lies Ponkapoag Bog, a surprisingly natural sphagnum wetland. A 2,000 foot boardwalk, one of the longest in the northeast, cuts through a colorful Atlantic White Cedar Swamp. Along the way, sundews, pitcher plants, and other unusual bog plants are found. Moderate walking involved. Meet at the South Shore Natural Science Center and carpool, on Saturday, Sept. 24, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Members/$5 adult, $3 child; non-members/$7 adult, $5 child. Please call 659-2559 for further details.

CRYSTAL COLLECTING

Why purchase beautiful crystals from a gem shop when you can find them on your own? Join a day of crystal hunting in Rhode Island (within a two-hour drive of the South Shore.) Quartz and calcite crystals are likely finds, with a possibility of other crystals, minerals, and even fossils! Wear sturdy shoes and bring a lunch, as well as a pail, a rock hammer, chisel, and safety glases. Meet at the South Shore Natural Science Center, on Sunday, Sept. 25, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

It could have been so different ...

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

If you negate the two big plays by East Boston, it might have been a different scenario for the Cohasset varsity football team. Instead, the visiting Skippers suffered a 14-6 season-opening defeat last Friday night.

"The kids played their hearts out, but we were victimized by their two touchdowns," head coach Phil Pisano said. "It was one of those could have, should have and would have won games. Those two big plays really broke our backs."

The two crucial plays that Pisano refers to was a 78-yard gallop and a 40 yard bomb for East Boston. In fact, all of the scoring damage occurred in the first half.

In the beginning, it appeared that Cohasset would not have any trouble against East Boston. On their first possession, they managed to push East Boston around at the line of scrimmage. After a fumble recovery at midfield, Cohasset drove deep in Eastie's territory. However, they were forced to give up the ball when the drive stalled on four downs at the EB 12-yard line.

From there, East Boston lit up the scoreboard and the home crowd with a nifty 78-yard sprint. The touchdown came on Eastie's second play from scrimmage. They did fail on the extra-point conversion attempt.

Cohasset once again moved the ball fairly well into EB's territory, but gave it right back to the opposition. East Boston was unable to do anything with the ball themselves.

In the second quarter, Cohasset finally collected their first touchdown of the season. Running back Matt Buckley carried the ball into the end zone from two yards out, knotting the game at six. The Skippers attempted a two-point conversion on a quarterback keeper by Mark Corkery, but the lanky senior ran into a wall of defensive linemen.

On the ensuing kickoff, East Boston found themselves in terrific field position (Cohasset's 45-yard line) when the Skippers were slapped with a 15-yard misconduct penalty. Two plays later, EB went deep and beat the Cohasset's secondary with less than a minute left in the half. The scoring drive ended when East Boston converted on the two-point play, thus making the score, 14-6.

Both teams were unable to punch it in again in the second half, although they had their chances.

"Our defense played great despite those two long gainers. We moved the ball on offense consistently. We just simply beat ourselves. East Boston was not the better team. We controlled three-quarters of the contest, but couldn't capitalize on our scoring opportunities. Mental mistakes and untimely penalties also played a factor," added Pisano.

In all, Cohasset gained 231 total offensive yards. Tri-captain Paul Froio led the ground attack with 97 yards. Buckley followed with 51, while Corkey threw for 59 yards on seven completions. The Hill brothers, Adam and Noah, each caught two passes in the losing effort.

Defensively tri-captain Mike Meers sparkled with seven tackles, while tri-captain Chris Froio totalled four.

"Overall, I'm pleased with the effort, especially our line blocking (Meers, Froio, Matt Deveney, Joel Whitman, Pat Conroy and Eric Theriault). Adam Hill played an outstanding game at tight end. It was one of those unfortunate defeats. We learned alot as a team. We got to rebound from this loss. The kids realize what they have to do to win," surmised Pisano, whose club must now prepare for their home-opener versus Carver on Saturday, Sept. 24. "Even though this is their first year as a varsity Club, Carver is a formidable opponent. Our

New classes at the art center

New young artist classes

Creativity abounds in a new series of Young Artist classes beginning the week of Sept. 19 at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset and in satellite locations in Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate, Quincy and Weymouth.

The Center offers classes for young people of all ages from MOMS/DADS & TOTS, for preschoolers, to PORTFOLIO PREPARATION, for high school students. Create comic strips and three-dimensional monsters, paint a masterpiece, design a t-shirt, learn to develop film, create & fire sculpture in clay, learn printmaking techniques, or take a guided tour of the Museum of Fine Arts!

NEW COURSES this fall include: PRIMARY SKILLS/-PRIMARY COLORS, especially designed for Kindergarten and first grade children; MONSTER MANIA, PRINTMAKING, CARTOONING, MIXED MEDIA/COLLAGE & ASSEMBLAGE, CLAY SCULPTURE, T-SHIRT & SNEAKER PAINTING, and WRITING WITH PICTURES/-PAINTING WITH WORDS all for grades 1 to 6.

For grades 7 to 9, a new, BASIC PHOTOGRAPHY course will teach students to work with a 35 mm camera and to develop black and white film in the Art Center's own darkroom.

For Junior High and High School students, the Center is offering SATURDAY MUSEUM TOURS, A TASTE OF ART SCHOOL DRAWING, ELEMENTS OF DESIGN, and PORTFOLIO PREPARATION. These courses are designed to enrich the existing school curriculum, to offer an alternative for students unable to fit art into their schedules at school, and to offer a creative opportunity for students in schools where budget cuts have limited or eliminated art curriculum.

For registration information, call 383-9548 Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Adult art courses delayed

The South Shore Art Center has delayed by one week the start of several adult art courses, namely Basic Portrait, Handbuilding and Clay in Wheel, Portraiture, The Art of Illustration, Oil and Acrylic Painting, Intermediate Photography and Clay on the Wheel.

These courses will now begin the week of Sept. 26 and registrations will continue through the new starting date. The Center at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset began a new semester Sept. 19.

The courses which will begin Monday, Sept. 26 are Katherine Smit's Basic Portrait, from 12:30 to 3 p.m. and John Kilroy's The Art of Illustration, from 7 to 9:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Albert Abany's Oil and Acrylic Painting, from 1:30 to 4 p.m. and Judy Rossman and George Dalton's Handbuilding and Wheel in Clay from 7 to 9:30 p.m.; Wednesday, Paul Fortin's Intermediate Photography from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; Thursdays, Clement Micarelli's Portraiture from intermediate and advanced artists, from 7:30 to 10 p.m.; and Saturday, Dalton's Clay on the Wheel, from 10 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

The Center's program of study designed to meet the varying artistic abilities of its students covers all the visual arts mediums. The faculty members bring to the courses their expertise in a particular field of study and their talents as exhibiting professional artists.

For complete information on all courses and workshops call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548.

T-shirt workshop

Artist and decorator Janet Amiri, whose brightly painted T-shirts and sweatshirts are seen all over the South Shore, comes to the Center for a one-day workshop for young artists in grades two-six Saturday, Sept. 24 from 1 to 4 p.m. Advanced registration is required for the workshop.

She will teach students how to decorate T-shirts and sneakers with "Tulip" paints and their own creative designs. Students should bring their own T-shirt or sneakers to the workshop. Once the design is applied and the paints have dried, the garments are completely waterproof and resistant to being dried in a clothes dryer.

For further information or to register, please call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. Programs of the Center are supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Mormon service

Mrs. Kathy Woodbury of Cohasset, a member of the Hingham congregation and mother of five, has been invited to speak on the subject: The Role of LDS Women in Honoring and Sustaining the Priesthood in the Home. When this authority is gently and righteously exerted, home can become a "little bit of Heaven".

Guest speaker, Tom LeCorchick of the Stake High Council will tell of the Prophet Joseph Smith who when persecuted and imprisoned in 1839 taught of the awesome responsibility for using the power of the Priesthood properly. Bro. LeCorchick's message is for Latter-day Saints of today to listen to a living prophet, Ezra Taft Benson, as the Saints of old listened to the Prophet Joseph.

The family worship hour at the Hingham chapel will begin at 9 a.m. All are welcome.

Mormon Service Sept. 25

At the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, all worthy adult males can hold the Priesthood. Nowhere is this Priesthood more important than within the walls of the home.

CREATIVE DIALOGUE

Have you ever found it hard to tell a loved one something? How can we work together creatively and helpfully at church or in the work place? These are all ways we will be helped by the course on "Creative Dialogue" which will be held three times — you only go to one. Pick the session that is most convenient to you: Saturday, Sept. 17 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; or Wednesdays, Sept. 21 & 28 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; or Sundays, Sept. 25 and Oct. 2 from 3 to 5 p.m. Child care will be available for the Sunday sessions.

CARILLON OPEN TOWER

This Sunday, Sept. 18, from 4 to 6 p.m. Sally Slade Warner will open the Carillon Tower for all to visit. She will show you the bells and the playing mechanism and maybe even get you to play a tune! Don't miss an interesting tour of this most remarkable 51-bell instrument. Children under 12 must be accompanied by an older person.

PARISH PICNIC AT WAKEMAN'S

Our annual parish picnic to which all are invited will be held at Fran Wakeman's, 257 Atlantic Avenue, Sunday, Sept. 25 after church. You may wear picnic clothes to church that day, and bring to the picnic blankets, chairs, and tennis rackets. There will be lots of games. It's a great chance to relax with one another. The food and beverages are provided and will be served at 12:30 p.m.

ORGAN RECITAL

Friday, Sept. 23, at 8 p.m. our organist, Robert Barney, will offer a recital of works by Bach, Buxtehude, Mendelssohn, Franck, and Thayer, in the church. He will speak briefly about each piece. It looks to be an enjoyable and informative evening. The fellowship committee is sponsoring a reception in the Bartow Room to follow the recital.

KERYGMA BIBLE STUDY CLASS

An in-depth 35 session Bible Study Class will begin on Tuesday, September 27 at 8 p.m. The class will meet in the choir room. The purpose of the class is to provide a fundamental understanding of Scripture and ability to use Scripture appropriately in your life. The cost of materials for the course is $18.

ACOLYTES TO BE COMMISSIONED

Acolytes from all over the diocese will join in a celebration at the Cathedral Church of Saint Paul, 138 Tremont Street, Sunday, Oct. 2 at 4 p.m. The service will last an hour and refreshments will be served.

VESTRY APPROVES GRANTS

At its meeting Sept. 12, the Vestry approved grants recommended by the Outreach Committee to Wellspring and to St. Nicholas' Church in Hull.

Wellspring is a community thrift shop, outreach and advocacy center in Hull directed by Mrs. Joan Cellini. Its services include the thrift shop, food pantry, social service referrals and counseling services, a play corner for children, a drop-in center, and educational activities which include an adult literacy program. St. Nicholas' Church in Hull is a new congregation which St. Stephen's has supported from its beginning. The church is led by the Rev. Diane Edson.

GIVE THE GIFT OF LIFE

The Cohasset Bloodmobile will be at First Parish, 23 N. Main Street, Tuesday, Sept. 27 from 2:30 to 7:30 p.m. Please help in this life-giving way.

ALTAR GUILD NOTES

There will be a Captains Meeting Wednesday, Sept. 28 at 11:30 a.m. The Altar Guild Annual Dinner Meeting will be on Thursday, Oct. 6. We will meet at 6 p.m. in the Bartow Room. Dinner is at 7 p.m.

Women's discussion

The Social Committee of Congregation Sha'aray Shalom is offering a series of discussions for women called Women's Issues and Answers. Aspects of being a woman in the 1980's will be explored.

The first program, on Wed., Oct. 5, is called What's Bugging You? This dialogue with Dr. Herbert Greenwald will enable participants to share concerns and problems. Dr. Greenwald will attempt to put feelings into the proper perspective.

The second program, on Wed., Nov. 2, will be a panel discussion of temple women in business, called How Did They Do It? Time will be allotted for questions and answers.

The third program, on Wed., Dec. 7, is called Who Are Feminists and Why Are They Saying Those Terrible Things About Us? The speaker will be Rabbi Elyse Goldstein of Temple Beth David in Canton.

The cost of the series is $5 per person for each evening paid in advance or $7.50 at the door. Each program will be at 7:45 p.m. at Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, 1112 Main St. Hingham. For information and reservations call Phyllis Morse, 740-1696.

Village Fair:

We are looking for people (male and female) to help prepare for the Village Fair. We, thankfully, have all of our charipeople. We now need Church Reps and workers!! Some of the activities require very little time. Some require several evenings between Oct. to December. If you are uncertain about something, at least talk to me. The job just may not be as bad as it sounds.

Specifically, we need the following: (1) A Baking Rep to contact people within our Church to bake items for the fair; (2) people to bake; (3) a Boutique Rep to keep an inventory of who is making what for the Boutique table; (4) people to make items for the Boutique table; (5) Secret Room Rep to work with the chairperson and other committee members to set up the room and work on items; (6) Dinner Rep to take care of selling some of the dinner tickets to members of our church; (7) Children's Table Rep to help get people to work on the items and also attend the workshops to make the items; (9) Grab Bag Rep to help the chairperson and committee to get people to work on items.

Madeline Olney (383-1492).

New at First Parish:

Visiting our service of worship last Sunday were Greg and Helene Thornton and their daughter Leslie. The Thorntons have recently moved to Cohasset from White Plains, New York. We extend a warm welcome to them.

Second Parish services

Minister: Gary A. Ritts, Secretary: Muriel Wheelwright, Office Phone: 383-0345; Parsonage Phone: 383-1422; Office Hours: Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to noon.

Village Fair workshops continue on Monday nights. If you can't attend, perhaps you can donate money toward our expenses? We also need: Boxes (party platters come in), Cinnamon Sticks, Cloves, Polyester Stuffing. Please see Linda Campbell if you can donate any of the above. Thank you.

Bloodmobile: Tuesday, Sept. 27, 2:30-7:30 at the Unitarian Parish House. For an appointment or information, please call Vi Tuthill, 383-1627.

Youth director to be sought. The Church Committee at its regular meeting formed a "research" committee to draw up a job program for our seventh through twelfth graders. On the committee are John Campbell, Brad Ketchum, Gail Whitehouse, Susi Coley, Mrs. Lee Jenkins, and Gary Ritts. Meetings have already started. They have also been authorized to hire someone should the opportunity present itself.

New Members Sunday will be October 2. If anyone is interested in joining the church, please contact the church office by Wednesday, Sept. 28.

Neighbors In Need Offering to be collected on World Wide Communion Sunday, Oct. 2. Details to follow.

A bike ride in the park. The Board of Deacons is sponsoring a church and family bicycle ride (not race!) through Wampatuck State Park Sunday, Oct. 2 at 2 p.m., beginning from the entrance on at the end of Doane Street (Cohasset, west end of Beechwood Street). For all ages and abilities! Rain activity — how about board games in Bates Hall!

Book discussion group to begin in October. For six Wednesday night sessions beginning Oct. 12, 8-9:30 p.m., we will be studying M. Scott Peck's book The Road Less Traveled.

Senior High Youth Group (Grades 9 through 12) Kick Off Supper Meeting — Thursday, Sept. 22. Bring friends, free food, fun, planning for the fall, officer elections, etc., etc!!! Be there or be square!?!

Growing Through It an eight week seminar/support group for persons who have had a relationship end (separated, divorced, widowed, and others), to be held at the Norwell United Church of Christ (Rt. 123), Monday evenings (7-9:45 p.m.) from Sept. 19 through November 7; sponsored by the New Beginnings Singles Group. Check the bulletin board in Bates Hall or with Gary R. for program listings and registration forms.

Decorator guild meeting

The Scituate Gormet-Decorator Guild will begin its 1988-89 season Tuesday, Oct. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the First Trinitarian Congregational Church on Country Way in Scituate.

The meeting is entitled "The Seasons' Best" and will feature noted cooking instructor Ronald Cardoos, owner of the Barnstable Grocery located in the Merchants Row in Hanover.

Cardoo's informative demonstration will emphasize the fine art of seasoning with herbs and spices.

Membership to the club, which meets once a month from October to May, is still open and the fee is $20 for one year.

Details of future meetings and activities are available at this meeting.

Dance party classes to begin

The Cohasset dancy party classes patronesses for 1988 are: General Chairman — Mrs. William J. Good; Sixth Grade Boys — Mrs. John S. Lennon; Sixth Grade Girls — Mrs. Paul J. O'Leary; Seventh Grade Boys — Mrs. Edward Lubitz; Seventh Grade Girls — Mrs. Richard E. Horn; Hingham Sixth Grade — Ms. Patricia MacLeod; Hingham Seventh Grade — Mrs. David Baker.

Dance classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 27 and will be held Oct. 4, Oct. 11, Oct. 18, Nov. 8, Nov. 15, Nov. 29, Dec. 6.

All classes will be held at Walton Rodgers Hall at St. Stephen's Church. The sixth grade class will be held from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. The seventh grade class will be held from 6:55 to 7:55 p.m.

Fall fashion show

A "Festival of Fashion" is being presented by the Cohasset Community Center in conjunction with Appleseeds of Cohasset and Evanas of Scituate.

The fashion show/luncheon will feature a collection of fall's brightest fashions, as well as glimpses into the holiday collection.

This event is planned for Wednesday, Oct. 26 at 12:30 p.m. in the McElwain Hall of the Cohasset Community Center.

Tickets may be purchased through the community center for $20 per ticket. Reservations may be made for tables of eight.

Call 383-0088 for further information.

Garden club tea

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will hold a President Tea, Sept. 22 at noon.

The tea will be held at the home of Polly Logan, 121 Nichols Road.

Claire Richards will talk about fall flower arrangements.

Carpooling is encouraged, and cars should be parked on Nichols Road facing the ocean.

Exercise classes

The Saturday morning 'power workout' is a high energy 90-minute workout for men and women which includes stretching, strenghtening, and cardiovascular work with extra emphasis on flexibility, coordination, and endurance. It is perfect for all athletes who need a total conditioning program, as well as individuals who wish a safe but challenging fitness class.

Instructed by Normandie Nigh, the class is held Saturday mornings 8:30 to 10 at the Cohasset Community Center. Drop-ins are welcome!

The 'keep fit' classes are held Monday through Friday mornings from 8:45 to 10 at the Cohasset Community Center.

This is a program designed to put you in top physical shape! The class is taught by Patricia Messing and Normandie Nigh and is aimed at achieving flexibility, toning, and aerobic efficiency. It is appropriate for people with less-than-perfect backs and knees, and places added emphasis on proper body alignment and correct technique.

This class is on-going and may be joined by the month or attended on a drop-in basis.

COHASSET'S BEST LUMBER YARD ISN'T IN COHASSET!!!
IT'S IN MARSHFIELD!!!

TAYLOR LUMBER CO.!!!

Just as there are different kinds of automobiles, or steaks ... so, too are there different kinds of lumber. Green lumber, (not dried) has it's place. It's usually cheaper, but its high moisture content can create problems that show up down the road. Kiln-dried lumber is lighter, stronger, and easier to handle ... and you don't have as many problems with twisting and warping later.

Look ... your time is valuable! If you're investing time in a project, start it right with quality kiln dried framing lumber from TAYLOR LUMBER.

Dramatic Club

This year marks the 68th season for the Cohasset Dramatic Club and exciting changes are taking place. For the first time in its history, the club has a "home."

The Club has rented space in Cohasset Center which once served as the upstairs lounge of the popular restaurant, "The Greenhouse."

"As a group, we're very excited to finally have a place which is exclusively ours," says Betty Meissner, club president for 1988-89.

"Although we will still use Town Hall for most major productions, we now have a central location for storing our records, costumes and props. We can use the clubhouse for rehearsals, parties, cabaret-style shows and many other functions."

Upcoming events already scheduled for their new clubhouse include a Kick-Off Party, an Open House and a November performance of Sugar Babies, now in production.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club produces three major performances each year. They also enjoy playreadings, parties, workshops and much more. Although some of the members have impressive credentials, most had no training or theatrical involvement before joining the club. Everyone learns performance, costuming, set design and lighting. Others help with publicity, play selection, hospitality, fundraising, etc.

If you would like to share in the fun and excitement of live theatre, join the Cohasset Dramatic Club for its 1988-89 season. For an application or more information, contact Bonnie Haley, Membership Chairman at 545-6485.

Fuel assistance reduced

For more information contact:
Sharon R. Fernandes, Program Manager
South Shore Community Action Council Inc.
17 Court Street (rear) — P.O. Box 3610
Plymouth, Massachusetts 02361

Richard Hinkley, executive director of South Shore community Action Council, Inc. (SSCAC), announced that the 1988-89 fuel assistance program will start Nov. 1, and will run through March 31, due to a major reduction in the annual federal fuel assistance appropriation.

Beginning in September, certain fuel assistance recipients with a fixed income such as social security, SSI and AFDC will be able to apply for assistance via as mail-in application procedure.

Households whose only income is Social Security and/or SSI, and did not receive fuel assistance last winter, should contact SSCAC about application procedures.

Benefit levels have been reduced this year to the following levels: $675, $450, $300. Eligibility based on gross income and family size. Maximum allowable income guidelines, (based on gross annual income of all members of the household), are as follows:

Household Size	Income Limit
1	10,098
2	13,528
3	14,535
4	17,475

For each additional household member, add $2,940.

Explorers meet

Explorer Post 28 of Cohasset will hold its first meeting of the new school year Sunday, Sept. 25.

The post will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Cohasset Town Hall.

All youth, male and female, between the ages of 14 and 21 are invited.

The Post specializes in Emergency Medical Service, Search and Rescue, as well as High Adventure activities such as snow skiing, camping, hiking, canoeing, repelling and much more.

The Post usually meets twice a month.

For more information call Matt Silvia at 383-0500 or John Pape at 545-7747.

Coastweeks '88

Massachusetts and dozens of other coastal states this week will kick off "Coastweeks 1988" — a national recognition of the resources and fragility of the American shoreline.

The seventh annual Coastweeks will run this year from September 17 to October 10. Congressman Gerry Studds (D-MA) recently introduced legislation to officially honor Coastweeks.

Commemorations in Massachusetts will include a "trash fish" banquet at the Provincetown Center for Coastal Studies, an aquaculture workshop at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy, a marsh clean-up canoe trip sponsored by the Lloyd Center for Environmental Studies in North Dartmouth, a shorebird carvers' workshop at the Cape Cod Museum of Natural History, a marine research display at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, a book exhibit at the Curtis Library in Hanover, a nature photography class at the Wellfleet Bay Audubon Sanctuary — as well as whale-watching and natural history cruises, canoe trips through marshes and inlets, beach and dune hikes, and educational programs on coastal geology.

Further information about the beach cleanup efforts, the photography contest, and all Coastweeks 1988 activities — as well as a full Coastweeks 1988 calendar — is available through the MIT Sea Grant program in Boston at (617) 253-7136, or through the Massachusetts League of Women Voters toll-free at (800) 882-1649.

objective is to get off to a quick start."

The game starts at 10:30 on Milliken Field.

In other sports action during the week.

Boys Soccor

Jim Reidy's three goals and two assists highlighted Cohasset's season-opening triumph over Carver, 7-0, at home Sept. 15.

Ned Chase scored two goals as Greg Nourie and Jay Staunton had one goal apiece. Despite the loss, Carver goalie Brian Millian made several spectacular saves in the school's first ever soccor contest.

Girls Soccer

Kara Mannion scored two goals leading Cohasset to a 4-0 shutout victory over Carver Sept. 15.

Katy Lord and Katy Beggan also scored for the Skippers, who outshot Carver, 20-2.

Nancy Riley recorded the shutout for Cohasset.

Field Hockey

Sue Lean collected two goals to lift Cohasset to a 2-1 victory over Hull Sept. 15.

Jackie Lydon assisted on Lean's second goal while Barbara Lagrotteria played well at wing.

Earlier in the week, Cohasset's goalie Candie Jones was kept active in net, making 16 saves in a 4-0 loss to Duxbury.

Soccer team looks to post season play

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

The Cohasset Varsity Girls' Soccer team missed the state tournament by one victory last year.

Entering this fall, the number-one objective on the minds of the Skippers will be to qualify for the post-season invitational.

Tri-captains Katie Lord (a SSL all-star midfielder), Cindy Dormer (sweeper) and Kristin Ellinger (midfielder) are among the seven returning starters for Cohasset. The aforementioned players are three-year varsity members, thus providing head coach Keenan Startszell a solid foundation to work with.

"We do have some experienced players returning at key positions, especially at midfield. We need to have steady performances from them all year long," added Startszell, whose 8-7-2 mark last year was the second-best record in the school's history (the best was four years ago when the Skippers went 12-4-2 and reached the quarterfinals).

Offensively, the Skippers will start three sophomores and an eighth grader up front.

"By far, we are going to be a little weak in scoring. The frontline personnel just need time to jell together. They will eventually come of age," said Startszell.

Katie Murphy and Katie Ryan will handle the fullback duties, while four-year starter Nancy Reilly will guard the net.

"Nancy had a great pre-season camp. She is showing all-star potential," added Startszell. "Our strengths are that we like to play a wide open game, move without ball accurately, pass the ball effectively and rely on total team speed. We still have trouble matching up against tougher schools."

Startszell believes that Norwell and Abington are the clubs to watch for in the South Shore Small Schools Division.

"This is a great group of kids to coach for. Once we get our first win, we should be all right thereafter," said Startszell.

Cohasset Field Hockey Preview

For the first time in six years, Cohasset was not in post-season competition last season. Third-year coach Claire Brady believes her club will be back in 1988.

Even though optimism is circulating around Cohasset, Brady must contend with the realism that she has only two returning starters back.

Co-captains Jackie Lydon (center halfback) and Sara Bishop (forward) are the two players who bring valuable varsity exposure to this year's team.

"Jackie is truly incredible. Opposing coaches keep on telling me if they can make a trade for her. Her biggest attribute is that she is such a strong hitter. She is capable of hitting the ball all the way down the field. She is also a terrific flyer when defending the corners. She is always the first player to rush out to the ball, breaking it up everytime. She is primarily a defensive performer, but she could see some action on offense," Brady said of the three-year varsity player.

"Sara was our leading goal scorer (12) last year. She is a real scoring threat. She is constantly being covered by the other team's best defender. She (also third-year varsity) will be counted upon heavily to score goals."

Senior Forward Sue Lean, who scored two goals in Cohasset's first victory of the year against Hull, will play alongside Bishop.

Sara Corbett (sweeper) and Missy Nothnagle (midfielder), both seniors, have looked strong on defense.

Meanwhile, goaltender Candi Jones, a returning lettermen, has caught the attention of Brady. A case in point occurred last week when Jones made 16 saves in a losing effort against Duxbury.

"We have two objectives for the following season. First, we want to win the South Shore Small Schools title. We certainly have the opportunity to do it with the league now split up (Last year, there was only one division. This year, the South Shore League has been broken into divisions, the Large Schools and the Small Schools conferences). Secondly, to make the tournament again.

There are a lot of seniors (14) on our squad, but most of them don't have any varsity experience. We are still trying to find the right combinations," said Brady, who predicts that Norwell and, possibly, East Bridgewater will fight it out with Cohasset for the league title.

The home opener for Cohasset is on September 27 (versus East Bridgewater). Currently, the Skippers are in the middle of a five-game road trip.

Safer sailing

President Ronald Reagan signed into law legislation Congressman Gerry Studds introduced to significantly upgrade commercial fishing vessel safety.

The legislation mandates safety standards for all commercial fishing vessels. The bill requires small inshore boats to carry fire extinguishers, life preservers and flares.

Documented vessels operating in federal waters or larger vessels with more than 16 people on board must now be equipped with life rafts, safety or immersion suits and medicine chests, as well as radio and navigation equipment.

Vessels with more than 16 crewmembers and built after Dec. 31, 1988, will be subject to the most stringent regulations. These vessels will be required to carry radar, lifesaving and firefighting equipment, ventilation and electrical systems, and bilge pumps and alarms.

The bill also contains new rules governing the operating stability of commercial fishing boats. These regulations, intended to help prevent needless sinkings of vessels outfitted or loaded unsafely, will be effective in 1990.

ENERGY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Teaming-up

This is simple.

If you Team up with Eastern Edison Company, then you'll save money.

How? By using less electricity. Eastern Edison will help you buy or install energy-efficient equipment and material.

Why are we doing this?

Because our region is facing a continuing electric-capacity problem. The demand for electricity is very high — almost higher than our capacity to generate it.

So — it helps us if you use less. And it will also help you.

We want your participation — and we've made these programs very attractive. They're flexible, efficient, common-sense ways to use electricity. And they'll save you money.

Here are the Teaming-up programs for 1988:

For our residential customers

WRAP - Electric Water Heating Conservation Program
At no cost to you, we will insulate your electric water heater and hot-water pipe and install water-saving showerheads. You'll still get all the hot water you need — but it will cost less!.

WAT41 - Electric Water Heater Conversion to Rate 41
If you let us rewire your water heater so that it doesn't run during the hours of peak demand for electricity, we will bill you at a lower rate. We'll do it all for free — and you will save money.

FILTER - Swimming Pool Energy Management Program
New for 1988! — We will pay you up to $40 during the summer months if you let us set the time-clock on your swimming pool filter so that the filter does not operate during the hours when the demand for electricity is greatest. There'll be no decrease in the quality of the water — and you'll save money!

AIRCON - Air Conditioner Incentive Program
Also new for 1988! — We'll give your contractor rebates for installing efficient central cooling equipment. You'll save money on efficient air-conditioner equipment and your electric bill.

And — we also have money-saving programs for our commercial and industrial customers as well!

Town hall asbestos may be problem for workers

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

A licensed asbestos inspector and the health agent agree that asbestos found in the basement of the town hall basement is a health hazard for the men who have worked near it the past few months.

Health Agent Joseph Godzik warned selectmen last week to "take care of the problem as soon as possible." He said this week, "if those men did not wear respirators while working down there, it is definitely a health hazard."

The asbestos, which was first found during an April inspection by the state, has not been removed.

Dr. Godzik, who was notified last week by a recreation commissioner about the loose asbestos fibers found in various floor and ceiling areas of the basement, warned the construction superintendent about the potential problem. "He told me all the work that had to be done near those areas was already done, now that the town hall construction is about finished. No one is working there anymore," Dr. Godzik was told.

Last April, two inspectors from the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries toured Cohasset's municipal buildings. Based on their tour and subsequent report, Building Inspector Donald Robbins estimated that a clean-up would cost the town about $400. They found asbestos within an old heating pipe lagging and in a damaged area of the basement ceiling near the town vault. They recommended the material be removed according to state standards.

In June, Robbins asked National Abatement Services to review the situation and estimate the cost of labor and materials to remove the loose materials.

Based on their review of the area, company officials detected additional asebestos which was not found during the state's inspection.

According to National's report, submitted to the building inspector June 23, there was a substantial amount of asbestos pipe lagging in a crawl space under the front foyer of the town hall, and approximately 10 feet of pipe insulation was visible in the crawl space beneath the town hall stage.

"One plumbing worker was working in the area under the stage, in proximity to the asbestos pipe," the company stated in its letter to Robbins.

"It is suggested," National reported, "that work be stopped in this area until the asbestos is either enclosed, encapsulated or removed."

Moody estimated it may cost as much as $8,000 to remove the entire amount of asbestos in the basement. National Abatement Services never received a reply to the June 23 letter.

'Nightmare' over in housing battle

After three years and thousands of dollars in legal fees, Beverly Livingstone proved she was right all along.

The two-family home she and her husband, Donald, constructed on Mordecai Lincoln Road in Scituate, will remain afterall.

After fighting neighbors and the town of Scituate for two years, the Livingstone's won a decisive court battle that will end the nightmare that began the day they decided to build their "retirement home" on the banks of the Gulf River.

The Livingstone's lived in Cohasset for 20 years, raising their four boys and a daughter in a Summer Street antique. The Colonial style home contained 16 rooms, far too many for the family as grown-up sons left to find their own homes.

"We didn't need anything so big," Beverly recalled. Her husband, a former mortgage banker, thought it "would be fun" to finally build their own home - something comfortable for the couple - something they could own "free and clear" as they headed into retirement.

Donald recalled looking for land in the Cohasset-Scituate area - a scarce commodity these days. "We bought this," he explained, "as a two-family parcel, with three acres of upland and three acres of marsh."

In December, 1987, the Livingstone's applied for a building permit to construct a side-by-side two-family, architecturally-designed two family home. "The building inspector (Bob Rosemere) didn't question our plans," Donald stated, noting that the lot was "grandfathered" because it was deeded prior to current zoning bylaw amendments.

New store opens in former Bildner's site

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

Cohasset Meat and Produce Center will open in about three weeks at the former site of Bildner's at Cushing Plaza, and will include Montillo's Bakery.

"It will be like an upscale Lambert's Fruit Center but with more meat," said owner and manager Jim Hoban, a resident of Cohasset for four years.

Hoban operated the Cohasset Winter Gardens skating rink as well as a market in Roslindale about 10 years ago.

"We'll offer meats such as Black Angus beef, fresh produce daily and regular groceries," he said.

"We'll go into the markets in Boston every day at 4 in the morning," said Hoban who has purchased two, 18-foot trucks for that purpose.

"We want to have a reputation for serving quality beef, meat and produce."

Hours for the store, whose opening date has not yet been set, will be 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday to Saturday, and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

According to Hoban, Montillo's will occupy 1,500 square feet of the 10,000 square feet property.

"They offer quality bakery goods and good breads," he said.

His store will occupy 8,500 square feet, Hoban said.

All of the store's equipment is state of the art, according to Hoban, and was purchased from Bildner's.

"It will look like Bildner's to customers," he said. "But they will realize it's not Bildner's when they see the prices."

Bildner's was an upscale grocery store which offered gourmet foods, catering and delivery services. It closed in June when the chain went bankrupt and several stores were shut down.

The new store will offer free delivery service to Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell, Hingham and Hull with a minimum order of $50.

Town ready to implement affordable housing plan

"This is a positive thing for the town," said selectman chairman Burt Pratt following the final signing last week of an affordable housing agreement between the town and the state.

"It was a long time coming and we're all very happy," said Pratt.

The agreement was signed by members of the housing authority, planning board and selectmen about four weeks ago and sent into Boston.

It was then signed by Amy Anthony, secretary of the Executive Office of Communities and Development, who forwarded a copy to the selectman's office last week.

The signing followed more than a year of disagreement over wording of the document. It frees state monies which were being withheld.

According to the agreement, "the selectmen, along with the housing authority and planning board will formulate an overall housing policy, working through the Cohasset Fair Housing Committee, which will prepare a draft report for submission to the above boards for review, comment and possible amendment, which will lead to a final policy for the town.

"This policy will establish specific goals for the town in defining and meeting the housing needs of its citizens."

Pratt explained, "This means that the town will now no longer be termed 'unreasonably restrictive of housing.

"It means we will be going ahead with a comprehensive housing plan to provide low and moderate income housing in Cohasset.

"We're leaving it up to the housing authority to come up with a plan.

"They already have some things on the drawing board.

"Now we can start applying for grants.

"It will also allow the town to again buy supplies at a discount through a 10-town coalition," he noted.

John Muncey, Housing Authority chairman, said that signing of the EOCD agreement won't mean "a heck of a lot" to his agency.

"We just got a grant for $1.4 million (from EOCD) a few months ago and we are pursuing land to build 12 units of affordable housing.

"The agreement is really with the town. It means more to the town."

Muncey said the housing authority will not be "under the gun" because of the agreement.

Cohasset's week . . .

Concerned citizens meet

Cohasset citizens concerned with the Pilgrim nuclear power plant met Tuesday, Sept. 27 to build support to pass Question #4, a citizen's initiative on the November ballot to keep Pilgrim shut.

The local campaign was part of the Massachusetts Citizens for Safe Energy, a coalition of state and local environmental and citizens groups working to pass the binding initiative question on November's ballot. If passed, the initiative would keep Pilgrim closed and close the Yankee Rowe nuclear power plant in Western Massachusetts.

Senior citizen MBTA cards

An MBTA Registration team will be at the Hingham Senior Center, 229 North Street, Tuesday, Oct. 4, to issue identification cards permitting senior citizens and eligible disabled persons to ride MBTA rapid transit lines and local buses for reduced rates.

With the cards, passengers may ride rapid transit lines and local buses for 10 cents at all times.

Eligible citizens from Hingham and surrounding towns will be able to register between 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

To be eligible for a senior citizen reduced fare identification card, which contains the name and address of the holder and a color photograph for positive identification, senior citizens must bring proof of age — 65 years or older — such as a birth certificate, baptismal record, or driver's license, proof of residency such as a driver's license, utility bill, library card, or charge plate, and a 50 cent cash fee.

Medicare cards will not be accepted as proof of age.

National merit honors

Cohasset high school has been notified by National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) that: Jack L. Beddows, Alison M. Crehan, Matthew Drinkwater, Scott F. Flaherty, Letitia C. Linsley, Kathleen A. Murphy, Andrew D. Rossi, and John P. Staunton have been designated Commended Students in the 1989 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Principal Mary Ellen Gallagher, noted that these seniors placed in the top fifty thousand (50,000) of more than one million participants in the 34th annual Merit Program and will receive a Letter of Commendation in recognition of outstanding academic promise.

Landfill closed Oct. 10

The Cedar Street Landfill will be closed Monday, Oct. 10, for the Columbus Day holiday. The regular days of closure of the municipal landfill are Tuesdays and Thursdays. Cohasset residents are advised to plan accordingly.

Landfill recycling guide

The citizens of Cohasset have been recycling many materials at the Cedar Street Disposal Area on a voluntary basis for many years.

At the 1988 spring Town Meeting you voted to make recycling at the disposal area mandatory, a wise move, considering the rate at which the disposal area is reaching capacity and the escalating expense of alternative means of disposal.

The success of this recycling program depends on active participation by everyone using the Cedar Street facility. The town Recycling Committee has prepared this handy guide to assist you in making the process of recycling as simple and convenient as possible.

Below you will find a list of materials and items that, as of Oct. 1, 1988, will no longer be accepted for disposal if they are mixed in with your trash. They must be separated and placed in the designated recycling areas.

SOME HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS

Separate your recyclable materials in your home. This will make your trip to the disposal area quicker and easier.

Think about recycling as you do your shopping; the landfill is rapidly filling up, and we must all become a little more trash conscious.

Remember that someone must handle your recycled materials to prepare them for market. Sharp edges and broken glass can be dangerous.

Recycling is now MANDATORY. This means that citations can be issued to anyone who continues to dispose of recyclable materials in with the rest of their trash.

The Recycling Committee is a volunteer committee of Cohasset Board of Health, and we welcome your questions, comments, suggestions and, of course, your support. As our recycling program becomes more effective with the high rate of participation and stable markets for more materials, these guidelines may be modified. Pleae consider these guidelines in effect until further notice.

For further information please contact the Cohasset Board of Health at 383-1664.

Registration hours

The town clerk's office will hold special voter registration hours specifically for the November 8 national election.

Residents may register to vote for the November 8 election any weekday at the town clerk's office in the town hall, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and from 5:30 to 8 p.m.; and Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Special hours have been added specifically to register voters for the national election. They are: Saturday, Oct. 1 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Tuesday, Oct. 4 from 7 to 9 p.m., and Tuesday, Oct. 11 from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 11 is the last day for voters to register for the national election, according to Town Clerk Frances Marks.

Local couple wins housing battle . . .

"Our engineer, Neil Murphy, a local resident, knew the zoning laws and assured us everything was in order," he added. "So we drew all the permits we needed to build the two-family."

But from the start of construction, Beverly recalled, the neighbors harassed them. The first time she walked the land, one neighbor looked at her and shouted, "You better be building just one house." She ignored the taunts and shouts and turned her head when a neighbor hung dirty laundry on an abutting fence for months at a stretch. They eventually erected an expensive stockade fence around the perimeter of their property - a result of continual stares and glares by neighbors who resented the "new kids" on the block, they said.

But they could ignore it no longer when one neighbor, Donald Ladd, requested in February, 1986, that the building permit be revoked. The inspector refused, and Ladd appealed the decision to the zoning board of appeals. His reason for the opposition - Ladd charged that the lot was in violation of the zoning bylaw which requires 100 feet of frontage. The Livingstone's two houses would be located 75 feet from the street, although they own twice as much land as required by the bylaw to construct a two-family.

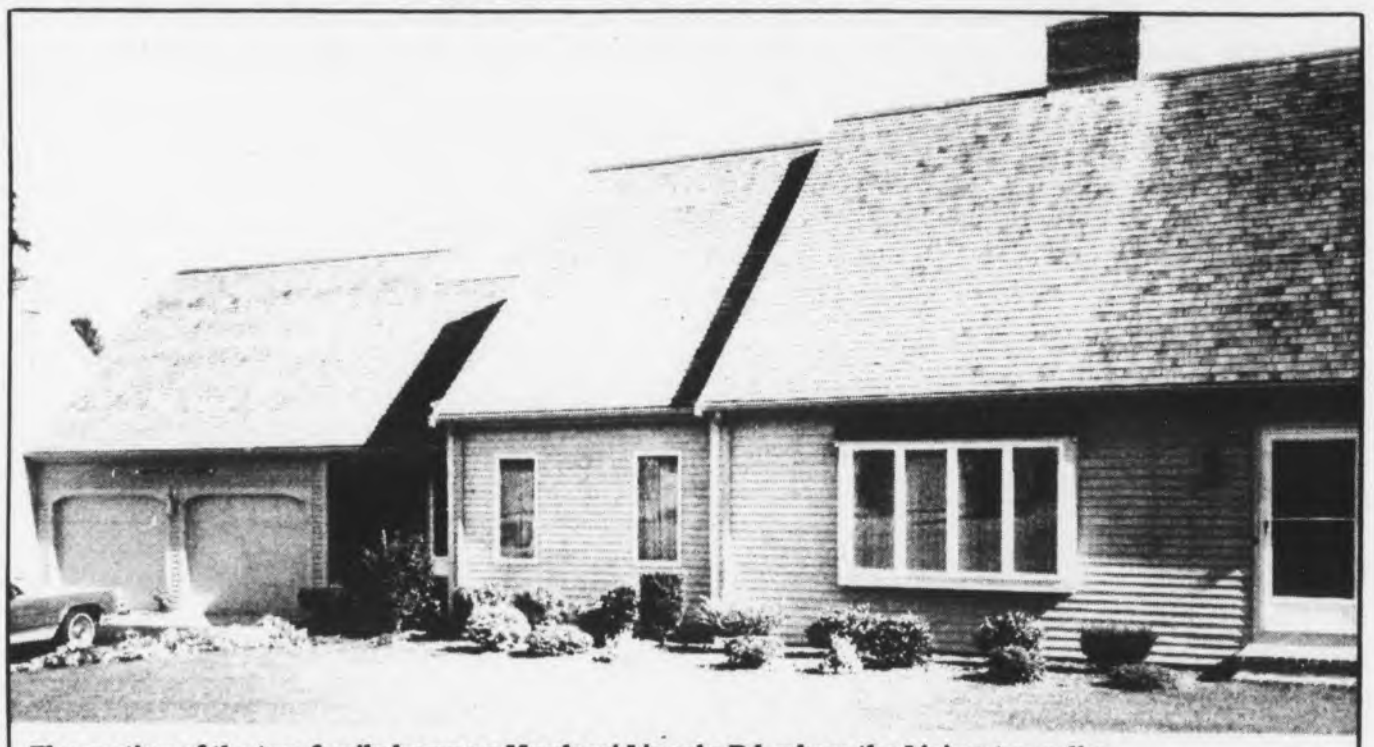
Although the zoning board originally refused to hear the case, saying Ladd did not file his appeal in the required amount of time, the neighbor appealed that decision to superior court. The court remanded the case back to the zoning board.

And then came the hearing the Livingstone's won't soon forget.

In August, 1987, they attended a hearing in front of the zoning board. About 50 concerned residents also attended the session. They were unanimous in their oposition to the Livingstone's proposal. "I thought we were going to be lynched," Donald recalled.

Fifty men and women spent the time screaming their objections to the board, Beverly said. "They all said the same thing - the building inspector was wrong, and the permit should be withdrawn."

Up until this time, construction was proceeding "at their own risk" on one unit of the two-family home. The Livingstone's said it was urgent that construction continue, because they planned to live in that unit, while they attempted to sell the second.



The portion of the two-family home on Mordecai Lincoln Rd. where the Livingstones live.

"The idea at the time was to live in this house free and clear. That's a laugh now - with the money we've had to spend to defend ourselves," said Donald.

In the meantime, they had sold their Cohasset home, moved for a time to their son Jack's apartment in Cohasset, and later rented a winter home in Scituate. "We moved three times in one year," Beverly said. "And during that time, our son was married, and Don was hospitalized and missed the wedding.

"It was a terrible time," she said. "We had everything in storage. We only had the clothes we wore."

As a result of that zoning hearing, the appeals board withdrew the building permit. All construction ceased on the second unit. And although some neighbors, including Ladd, wanted the town to order the home torn down, the second unit was allowed to remain - incomplete.

"It was a real hardship for us because we needed to finish it and sell it," Donald explained.

With a new attorney at their side in October, 1987, the Livingstone's applied for a zoning variance to the zoning board of appeals. Atty. Charles Humphreys represented the couple.

The board granted the frontage variance, and just as construction was set to begin again, neighbor Ladd appealed the variance and the Livingstone's were once again prevented from completing the second unit.

Housing battle over in Scituate . . .

"He said it was nothing personal -that he was just trying to protect the zoning bylaws. But let me tell you, this is personal," Donald said.

In April, 1988, Humphreys represented the Livingstone's in a lawsuit that combined three separate cases, Donald Ladd versus the Livingstone's, Beverly Livingstone versus the zoning board of appeals, and Donald Ladd versus the Livingstone's.

The Livingstone's were notified Sept. 8 that Superior Court Judge Christopher Byron ruled that the August, 1987 decision of the zoning board should be nullified and that a building permit should be reissued to the couple.

"We won on everything," Donald explained. "So this proved that the building inspector, the engineer and we were right afterall."

Beverly said they feel vindicated, but bitter that they've been forced to spend thousands to defend themselves against charges the judge

"I hope this case serves to help others who may learn from what happened," she said. "This man was wrong, that's what the judge said. Yet he was so persistant about keeping us from doing what the town and the courts have said is legal and allowable. It's been a nightmare."

They both decry the number of "frivolous" lawsuits allowed to clutter the local court systems. In Suffolk County and in most states, a person initiating a lawsuit must first post a bond. That usually sorts out the serious lawsuits from the more frivolous cases, he explained.

"When we started this, we thought we'd own our retirement home free and clear. That's just a dream now," Donald noted.

"I never thought neighbors could bother you like this," his wife added. "I just wanted to live here peacefully."

summarily dismissed as "moot."

Humphreys said the decision vindicated Rosemere. "There's absolutely no question that he was right. He was properly reading the zoning by-law," he said.

Although Ladd could not be reached for comment, Humphreys has received a copy of a one line notice of appeal, filed in Plymouth Superior Court. This preserves Ladd's right to appeal, Humphreys explained.

Humphreys did not rule out a suit by the Livingstone's against Ladd.

"They've suffered substantial damage by these appeals and are very carefully reviewing their rights," he said.

Housing plan set to begin . . .

"We're on a time schedule to find land and start construction.

"We did percolation tests last week on some land," he said.

The land is located between Evergreen Lane and Route 3A.

The Cohasset School Committee voted September 7 to allow the housing authority to test the town-owned land for its suitability for the building project.

"Signing of the agreement puts no pressure on us other than the timetable," said Muncey.

"We'll move along as we have so far."

Charles DeSantis Jr., chairman of the Sewer Commissioners, said he is glad that the EOCD agreement has been signed.

"It's a fair agreement," said DeSantis.

"But I'm very concerned with the possibility that privately owned wastewater treatment plants (POWTPs) may be instituted in Cohasset.

"They are somewhat complex and often difficult to operate," he said.

DeSantis explained that to work towards an acceptable number of affordable housing in Cohasset, POWTPs would be needed.

They have up until now been prohibited in Cohasset, he said, although a permit for one such device was granted a few years ago.

There are about 2,100 homes using a septic system and 200 using the sewer system, according to DeSantis.

"Until two years ago, Cohasset's wastewater treatment plant was not operated properly," he said.

"It did not meet the discharge permit granted by the EPA from 1975 to 1986," he said.

"They are not that easy to run," said DeSantis. "It takes money and commitment."

"When not run properly, the POWTPs can cause public health problems," he said.

"This is a very small town, with a fragile, fragile environment," said DeSantis.

"It could have terrible consequences.

"In trying to add to the available homes, we have to be careful we don't affect public health," he said.

"Large tract developments could cause more problems than they solve," he said.

"I'm glad we'll be making additional housing stock available," said DeSantis.

"But how we proceed is of critical importance.

"It has to be done very deliberately."

There is also the problem of sludge, the product of the POWTPs, he noted.

"It's expensive to get rid of sludge," he said.

DeSantis added that though signing of the agreement does free state grants, it does not affect sewer rehabilitation since the state announced in July that no such funds are available.

Asbestos could pose health problem . . .

However, Building Inspector Robbins commented Monday, "why is there a sudden concern this week? That stuff has been there for the last 55 years.."

Robbins said it was his intention to complete the asbestos removal once the construction work for the new addition is completed. When asked if he thought the asbestos posed a health problem for the workers, he replied, "I doubt it. I've been down there as much as anyone. No one is working directly around the asbestos."

When asked if the workers have been warned about the problem, he said, "They are aware. I told them. But it's such a little problem. There were no orders from the state to remove it immediately.

"I'll have it taken care of when I feel it's safe," he added. "No one is breathing it down there. I feel it is more prudent to wait until the workmen are out of there"

The recreation commission feels differently, however, and Director Jack Worley has posted a warning to all persons participating in recreation programs in the town hall. At the urging of commissioners Richard Barrows and Donald Staszko, Worley posted a sign last week explaining that asbestos was found directly beneath the auditorium floor.

The first I heard of it was last week when I talked with Don," Worley said. "The selectmen knew about it, but nothing has been done. Most of it's right under my office. But I've been here for 12 years and it hasn't bothered me."

Worley said the commissioners decided to leave it up to the individual participants if they wanted to continue attending aerobic classes in the auditorium. But until the problem is alleviated, the commission has decided to cancel all special events in the auditorium.There are five aerobic classes held in the town hall auditorium each week.

"I don't know if there is a health hazard from this stuff, but we wanted everyone to be aware of the situation. I'll pass along any new information I learn about it as soon as I receive it," Worley added. "The selectmen don't feel it's a problem, and they said the asebestos would be removed in the near future."

Robbins said the asbestos poses no danger to anyone in the town hall auditorium. "The asbestos is only a problem when it has been damaged and is loose. The asbestos they found in the basement won't rise up - it's not lighter than air. It falls to the ground. There is no danger in the auditorium," he explained.

"Asbestos is found in floor tiles, in roof tiles, in many things. It doesn't become a problem until it breaks up and it becomes airborn." he said.

"I am not concerned," he noted. "It's been there for more than 50 years. Why is there concern all of a sudden? No one is breathing it"

The licensed asbestos contractor who surveyed the basement area disagreed with that assessment.

Robert Moody, co-owner of National Abatement Services, said there were electrical workers in the area of exposed asbestos in the town hall basement. "There was a high concentration of asbestos on the floor where they were working on a conduit. There were also fibers on the stage scenery used by the Cohasset Dramatic Club," he stated.

"When I was down there, I mentioned the asbestos to the electrican who was there," Moody said.

"It is serious. I think it's very unfortunate for the workers. They shouldn't have been around there," he added.

In addition to the pipe lagging containing asbestos, Moody detected loose fibers in two crawl spaces beneath the auditorium. Those areas, he said, should be sealed off and posted with warning signs.

"You can see the asbestos on top of the stage equipment. Asbestos can't be seen unless there is a large mass of the fibers, so there is quite a bit down there," Moody said."I think my concern is that there's a question of liability," he continued. "If the town knows this exists, why do they wait to get rid of it? It's unfortunate, but the town doesn't seem to be making a concerted effort to get rid of it."

Moody said the town should spend the money to clean the asbestos and debris that has accumulated in the basement for many years.

"Nothing could be done for $400," he said, referring to Building Inspector Robbins' original estimate. "I think we're looking at an initial clean-up cost of $1,500 and if the crawl spaces are cleaned out, including soil removal, we're looking at somewhere between $6,000 and $8,000 for the entire thing."

The asbestos, he said, is contained in the insulation surrounding the old pipes underneath the auditorium. The heating system was replaced several years ago, and some old pipe laggings have been broken off and the asbestos has been released.

"The potential liability for the town is not worth it," he explained. "But in order to assure the town that all the asbestos is removed, it's goning to cost a lot more than $400."

Health Agent Godzik advised selectmen to remove the asbestos "as soon as possible.

"My recommendation to them is that it needs to be cleaned by a licensed professional - whatever is appropriate to fix the pipe lagging," he noted.

Selectmen Chairman Burt Pratt said the asbestos was not discovered until the construction workers were already inside the basement area. "I assume they have been warned about it," he said this week.

"We have a contractor waiting to do the work for $400, I've been told," Pratt said. "We're just waiting for the contractor to do it."

Science Center volunteers

An orientation center for prospective volunteers is being planned for Tuesday, Oct. 4 at 9:30 a.m.

All persons interested are cordially invited to attend the meeting to learn about the variety of volunteer opportunities offered by the center. From nature interpreting to trail clearing, clerking in the gift shop to working on the reception desk, mailings and public relations, there is a job to fit everyone's skills, interests and time available. Training and benefits are offered for volunteer positions, as well as work in a congenial environment.

Call the South Shore Natural Science Center at 659-2559 for details about the meeting or information on the volunteer program.

Cohasset Savings quarterly report

The board of Directors of the Cohasset Savings Bank (NASDAQ-CHTB) have declared a third quarterly cash dividend payable October 1, 1988 to stockholders of record, Sept. 15, 1988, and have increased the rate to five cents per share from the former four cents per share rate. The bank has 1,002,978 shares outstanding.

"We are maintaining a conservative dividend policy, but believe that the improved performance of the Bank this year thoroughly justifies the increase," Donald E. Bates, President, stated in announcing the decision.

Cohasset Savings, a 142-year-old community thrift institution serving the South Shore, converted to stock form in May, 1987, and initiated the quarterly cash dividend program beginning in the first quarter of 1988.

Total assets of the bank at June 30, 1988 were $64,457,000, and stockholders' equity at that date was $12,384,000.

around town

☐ Grandparents' Day was a special one for Bill and Mary O'Brien. They became grandparents for the eighth time! On Sept. 11, Aubree Joyce Flynn was born to Erin (O'Brien) and Joe Flynn. Aubree weighed in at 8 lbs. 14 oz. and was 21" long. Her paternal grandparents are Anne and Joe Flynn, who hail from Quincy.

☐ Grace Silvia is one excited gal these days! Her bowling league has started up again, and she's doing well . . . she has "knocked 'em down" with scores of 82, 73, and 67. Keep up the good work Grace.

☐ Talk about a score, what about Dave Palmerico? Since August 3 he has had three holes in one!! Aug. 3 was on a Par 4 hole, Sept. 12 was on a par three hole, and Sept. 22 was on a par 3 hole. Now that is some kind of golf, wouldn't you say?

☐ Happy belated anniversary to Arthur and Roberta Lehr. They recently celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary, we hope it was a fun time for all.

☐ Happy birthday to Dot Lincoln.

☐ The South Shore Music Circus is over for the season, and we all know what that means . . . soon there will be snow drifts where the cars were parked all summer!! Woe is us.

☐ Happy birthday to Rosilla Trott. We don't know how young she is, only how young she acts. Everyone should be as full of vim and vigor.

☐ The Welcome Mat is out for Lanci Valentine, the new director of the South Shore Art Center. The job of executive director is a challenging one, but we are sure that Lanci will fill Joel Conrad's shoes admirably. Best of luck to you, here's to all of your new ideas.

☐ Don't forget that the Tag Sale sponsored by the Community Center will be held this Saturday (Oct. 1) on the Common. They promise to have lots of good ies, so be sure to include it in your week end plans.

Ellen Winn, secretary/receptionist to the board of selectmen, gets down to work this week in her new office at the town hall addition.

(Jane Lane photo)

☐ Holly Pompeo was home for the first time since leaving to go to Bowdoin. She reports that she loves it and everything about it (and loves Mimi to send her home-baked cookies in the mail). All of the "Cohassetites" love it up there.

☐ If you see a lot of strange looking students around town this week, don't be alarmed. It's Spirit Week again this year and the kids all love it. Monday is funny hat day (where is Jason Marsac?); Tuesday is Pajama Day; Wednesday is Tie-dye and Hippy Day; Thursday is Clash Day and Friday is Blue and White Day. Saturday is homecoming, with a game against Scituate. Even if football isn't your favorite sport, you can't miss this day. CHS spirit is abounding, and there are always a lot of alumnae that make the voyage home for the event. One of the highlights is the crowning of the Queen and her court and the ride around the field in the convertibles.

☐ Happy Birthday to Matt Marks from Katie.

☐ It's that time of year again, soccer fans . . . Bowdoin vs. Babson, with the game taking place at Babson at 1:00. So, you can go to the high school game at 10 a.m., then head for Babson. We have three Cohasset starts to cheer, Bob Shultz, David Shultz and Todd Fitzpatrick. They are all playing for Bowdoin, and are especially looking forward to this game. They are playing against their former coach (Anderson), and cannot wait to soundly defeat him!

☐ Arthur Meacham, Celia Mullen and Melissa Nothnagle are semifinalists in the competition for Merit Finalists in 1989. They are looking forward to April, when the Scholarship will be announced.

☐ Happy birthday to Louise Wheelwright.

☐ Stephanie Endris of Cohasset is a member of the 1988 Woman's Cross Country team at Dickinson College.

☐ During August, Linda McVay negotiated the most sales, and Peter Breen listed the most property through the Cohasset office of the Jack Conway Co.

The names of achievement award winners are displayed on a plaque in the Cohasset office.

There must be tons of news out there that you are just waiting to report! Give me a call, then read all about it.

New store in Cushing plaza . . .

"Customers can place their orders by noon, and they will receive them before 4 p.m.," Hoban said.

He conceded that the delivery service by a small van will be expensive, but he feels it will be worth the expense in gaining a reputation for personal service.

Hoban also hopes to make up for it in volume of sales.

Another feature of the center will be prepared food.

"We plan to go heavy into prepared foods such as steak, fried chicken and lobster dinners," he said.

They will include potatoes and vegetables and will range in price from $3.95 to $11.95, according to Hoban.

"We'll have specials every day," said Hoban. "People can just call in their order by noon, pick them up and pop them in the microwave to heat them up."

Party platters will also be offered as will some gourmet foods.

A salad bar is planned as well.

Hoban said he intends to employ about 45 people.

The meat manager will be John Cogill, grocery manager, Jack Patterson, he said.

Workers began preparing the store last Friday, according to Hoban.

"They are cleaning the building up, sanitizing it and repairing the floor," he said.

A permit will be requested from the Cohasset Health Department, and final details will be worked out with the grocery companies before the store opens, Hoban explained.

Hoban feels there is a need for such a store in Cohasset.

He said his wife spends $250-$300 a week for groceries for his family which includes five children ages 2 to 10.

By shopping at his store, he said, his family and others can walk away with more money in their pockets and better quality food.

"We won't have the overhead of a Super Stop & Shop," he said.

Hoban also feels the smaller scale store will appeal to some people, such as the elderly.

A grand opening celebration will include a video on Black Angus beef and special sale items, according to Hoban.

He is optimistic about the venture as evidenced by the fact that he has a 20-year lease for the space.

"We want this to be a personalized place to go food shopping for quality food at low prices," he said.

Some questions

Not many of us understand the problems associated with exposure to asbestos fibers. It would take a licensed professional or a science teacher to correctly explain the dangers of this material.

What we know in very simple terms is that asbestos fibers are dangerous when they are inhaled into the lungs. They are not dangerous unless they are loosened from the material in which the fibers were encased. In other words, an asbestos roof shingle will not pose any health threat unless the asbestos is torn off from the shingle and loosened. Asbestos within an encapsulated pipe will not be dangerous unless that wrapping is ripped open and the asbestos is released.

The discovery of this carcinogenic material in a public building is disturbing because of the numbers of people who could be exposed to a possible danger. The problem should not be blown out of proportion, as health hazards are prone to be. But the public should be made aware of the situation, if one does exist.

And it seems that one does exist within the basement of the town hall - not the new addition, but the portion which contains the auditorium.

As the building inspector explained, asbestos, even when exposed, does not rise into the air above. Therefore, the asbestos found in the basement of the town hall would not find its way into the first or second floors of the building where there is a constant flow of people and employees.

But the asbestos must have been a problem for the men who worked down in that basement during construction. Electricians, plumbers and carpenters were down inside the basement, and according to some witnesses, they were working alongside some of the exposed asbestos.

Without proper protection, these workers were exposed to a harmful material. And everyone admits these men never wore protective gear or masks while working down there.

Why were they allowed to work down there when the town had been warned about the asbestos exposure? And why hasn't this problem been solved since it first was reported several months ago?

The building inspector felt that the amount of asbestos, as reported by the state last April, was of an insignificant amount. The town could wait, he determined, to clean up the small amount of material which was located in remote crawl spaces under the old town hall.

But in a subsequent report issued by a local licensed inspector, it was determined that more asbestos was located there. And it was his recommendation that all work in that area be stopped until the asbestos was enclosed, encapsulated or removed.

Nothing was done, because the building inspector felt it would be prudent to let the construction continue, and to deal with the asbestos once the workmen cleared out.

There are some holes in this story - such as why the contractor's report was not forwarded to selectmen from the building inspector's office. And then there is the seeming lack of action on selectmen's part to deal with the problem, even after the health agent warned that something must be done immediately.

The potential liability here is immense. For that reason, we feel town officials were lax in their response to this situation. The removal will cost the town some money, no doubt about that. And it would have caused an expensive delay in the town hall construction project while it was cleaned and removed. But the larger problem, the potential serious health hazard caused by the asbestos, is still very real and has not been solved. And the amount of money it will cost this town if anything does occurr, will be astronomical.

Prisoner seeks pen pals

Letter

To the Editor:

I am writing in hope that you will help me. I would like to ask if you will publish my letter in your newspaper. I can't pay the cost of printing, because I am currently incarcerated here in Georgia.

I am a white male, early 30's, 6'2", dark brown hair and blue eyes. I was born here in a small town in Georgia. But I used to live in Cohasset years ago. And I like your town and the friendliness of the people there.

I look to be released from here in 12 or 14 months. I'm thinking stongly about moving back to Cohasset.

I've been here awhile, and its been pretty rough at times, not having anyone to lean on. My family has been gone for years now. I'd like my letter to be published in hopes that I can meet a few friends to write me, someone to talk to and share my thoughts with, maybe share a smile every now and then. I know you don't have to be in this place to feel lonely and lost at times. I'd really like to get to know someone from there.

So if there's anyway you can help me in this letter, it will be appreciated kindly. I know its asking alot, but believe me loneliness picks no certain age or color to fall upon.

Thank you for your time and hopefully I'll hear from some of the people there in your town.

Respectfully,

James C. Cole

CHS celebrates student spirit

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

If you've seen students going to Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School in crazy hats one day, pajamas the next, and hippie get-ups another time, don't worry — you're not in the twilight zone.

It's just spirit week at the school, and many of the 544 students are participating.

"This starts off the year with a nice spirit of things," said assistant principal Jack DeLorenzo."

"We're trying to spread the attitude that it's OK to show school spirit and get involved.

"And it's a lot of fun."

Monday was scheduled as hat day; Tuesday; pajama day; Wednesday, hippie/60s day; Thursday, clash day; and Friday, blue/white spirit day and a pep rally.

"I saw a lot of smiles today," said DeLorenzo, who sported an Al Capone-type hat Monday.

"The teachers have a lot of fun with it, too."

"I saw 1940s hats, baseball caps, animal hats, hats with fruit and old dress hats that their parents wore."

Each day, teachers tally the percentage of students who participate, and submit the amount to DeLorenzo.

"There was about 82 percent overall participation Monday," said DeLorenzo.

The percentages for each grade are posted each day and added at the end of the week. Also included are extra points for teacher participation, as well as the decorating of sections of the gymnasium and cheering by each grade at the pep rally Friday.

The grade with the highest number of points has its name engraved on a school spirit plaque in the main office. The seniors have won for the last two years.

In addition, members of the student council select the two best participants each day. The names of the winners are announced at the pep rally and they receive certificates, according to DeLorenzo.

The best overall student and teacher are also recognized.

"The pep rally is fantastic," he said.

"It's amazing how the kids get involved.

"Fifteen students from each grade decorate the bleachers, walls, and baskets."

Spirit week leads up to homecoming on Saturday, DeLorenzo said.

Soccer is scheduled in the morning and football in the afternoon, including crowning of the king and queen from among 10 finalists, he said.

A pizza party for seventh and eighth graders is held in the upper gym, and the homecoming dance for grades nine to 12 is held in the cafeteria, said DeLorenzo.

Spirit week is probably the most popular event all year, according to the assistant principal.

"The fun fair in May is also very popular," he said.

"We have a very large percentage of participation in extra curricular activities," noted DeLorenzo.

"The students also support each other in different sports."

The school year began with a "welcome back" picnic by the student council as well as a band to greet the students, he added.

But despite all the fun, academics come first, said DeLorenzo.

"Once they are into the classroom, it's business as usual," he said.

"Critic's Choice"

The North River Community Players are well into rehearsals for their fall production of "Critic's Choice," a comedy in three acts by Ira Levin to be presented Oct. 7, 8, 14, 15, 21 and 22 at the North River Community Club, 513 River Street, Norwell.

The story is of Parker Ballantine (John Kuhn of Norwell), a drama critic. His wife, Angela (Karole Boggs of Marshfield) writes a play, and a very bad play at that, and Parker, after telling her how dreadful it is, also tells her that he is going to review the play on opening night. This is where his problems begin...and he has plenty of them.

Things have a way of working themselves out, and the members of the Ballantine household eventually straighten out their lives and settle down into their old routines.

The production is being directed by John Senk of Weymouth assisted by Kerrie Boggs of Roslindale and produced by Peg Traniello of Plympton.

Tickets are $8 and are available in advance at The Deli, Norwell Center, telephone 659-4076. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Seating in cabaret style, and refreshments will be available.

Social Studies teacher Scott Newkirk looks as pretty as the picture behind him during Hat Day festivities at the high school's spirit week.

Hat Day at CHS produced a wide variety of millinery delights including these worn by (l to r) Meka-Mari Laugelle, Allison Ludlow and Jennifer Knowles.

Museums end season

The Capt. John Wilson Historical House and Maritime Museum, summer museums of the Cohasset Historical Society, will close Friday, Sept. 30.

Located at Cohasset village, the two historical buildings feature summer seasons traditionally beginning in June and running through September each year. This summer has marked the 60th anniversary of the Historical Society's efforts to preserve and present the history of this New England seacoast town. Hours in which the museums are open to the public are 1:30 to 4:30 each afternoon. Admission for adults is $1.50 per building.

Available at the Maritime Museum and at several other places at Cohasset center is the Historical Society's all-new 1989 wall calendar featuring reproductions of early photographs of the town. "Scenes Of Old Cohasset", the wall calendar, contains a dozen pictures, most from the Society's own archive collection, which together form an image of Cohasset's 19th and earliest 20th centuries.

For more information about "Scenes Of Old Cohasset" call the Society at 383-6930.

The two museums, closing this Friday, can be opened by arrangement, for special group tours during their closed season. Contact the Society to arrange a special tour at group rates this fall.

Constitution forum

The Hull Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution is inviting the people of Cohasset and Hingham to a public forum for discussion of Issues that stem from the U.S. Constitution.

The public forum will be held Thursday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, 440 Nantasket Avenue in Hull.

The Commission members consider this forum as an important opportunity to bring the Constitution to the attention of as many people as possible.

The Issues to be discussed include: 1. Freedom of Religion; separation of Church and State. Amendment I. 2. Freedom of Speech. Amendment I. 3. Freedom of the Press. Amendment I. 4. Freedom of Assembly. Amendment I. 5. Right of Privacy, Security and Protection against illegal Search and Seizure. Amendment IV. 6. Protection against Self Incrimination. Amendment V. 7. Protection from Excessive Bail and Unusual Punishment. Related Issues: 1. Dignity of the Individual. 2. All men (and women) are created equal. They are endowed with certain inalienable rights: Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness. Declaration of Independence.

The forum committee recognizes that the participants may wish to discuss other issues. Please feel free to offer suggestions. To do so, contact Rev. Demetrios Michaelides at 8 Meade Ave. in Hull or by phone at 925-1060.

Gurnet light lens in Hull

The Hull Lifesaving Museum received the Fresnel Lens which was used in the Gurnet Light in Plymouth.

The lens will become the centerpiece of the Edward Rowe Snow room at the museum where it will be an operational exhibit, allowing the visitor to see the kind of lens used in lighthouses before they became automated.

The rotating lens will be installed in the museum Tuesday, Oct. 4, at 11 a.m. by the United States Coast Guard under the direction of Senior Chief Randy Griffing, using the original equipment.

The Fresnel Lens was perfected in 1822 and revolutionized the lighting capability of lighthouses.

Center fundraiser

The South Shore Women's Center's board of directors will hold a major fund-raiser Thursday, Sept. 29, at the Plimoth Plantation.

Plymouth County District Attorney William C. O'Malley will be honored, and former Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti will take part in the ceremonies.

The evening will include live jazz, hors d'oeuvres, a full course dinner and an awards presentation.

To attend the benefit, send your donation of $100 per person to Friends of the South Shore Women's Center, 14 Main St., Plymouth 02360 prior to Sept. 22.

Lou Witherite with a child at a UUSC-sponsored project in Burkina Faso, West Africa.

First Parish hosts special program

Lou Witherite, Director of International Programs at the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee, will address the congregation of the First Parish in Cohasset at their service of worship in the Meeting House at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 2.

Witherite will talk about the history of UUSC, its present work and its international programs. The title of her talk "The Justice of Eating" is drawn from a line in Pablo Neruda's poem, "The Great Tablecloth." "For now I ask no more than the justice of eating."

Witherite, who came to the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee in 1984, has worked for 19 years in social work and community development, with a particular emphasis on Africa. She is overseeing numerous projects in Africa, the Caribbean, Central America and India as UUSC's Director of International Programs.

The Service Committee works in partnership with local groups all over the world to provide primary health care, skills training, better water resources, agricultural improvement, education and other basic needs. Witherite has lived and worked in several countries and has traveled extensively in India, Africa, Central America and the Caribbean.

Prior to coming to the Service Committee, Witherite taught women's studies and international development at the School for International Training in Brattleboro, Vermont. She has worked as a Peace Corps staff member in Burkina Faso (formerly Upper Volta), a Piece Corps volunteer in Togo, a VISTA volunteer, and has extensive background in graphic arts.

Witherite has a master's degree in international administration from the School for International Training in Vermont, and a bachelor's degree in art from the University of Maryland.

South Shore Art Center upcoming programs

Photograph the early morning in Tom Hannon's Nature Photography Workshop, create a life mask in Syma's Get Plastered: Life Mask Workshop or paint a beautiful pattern on silk in Joan Hausrath's Silk Painting Workshop for beginners.

Registrations are being taken at the Center, 119 Ripley Road for these fall offerings.

Hannon's Nature Photography Workshop, Saturday, Sept. 24 from 7 a.m. to noon, is a field trip exploration to capture on film the essence of nature in the early morning hours. He will take the class to a nature preserve on the South Shore. Hannon is an aerial photographer doing work for businesses, land developers, private residential owners and attorneys.

Syma, whose own clay works are well-known on the South Shore, will give a two-day life maskmaking workshop on Thursday and Friday, October 13 and 14 from 7:00-9:30 p.m. Using plastic gauze bandages, students will create life masks on themselves or each other, finishing the masks with decorative objects. She will incorporte into the workshop a discussion of the magic and rituals associated with masks.

The course is suited for adults and teens and offers the opportunity for a parent and child to create together. Her pieces are included in the collections of Salem State College, the Duxbury Art Complex and in several private collections.

Using procion dyes, students in Hausrath's Silk Painting workshop will experiment with several processes which produce unusual patterned effects on silk garments or decorative panels.

The two-day workshop will meet Thursday, Sept. 29 and Oct. 6 from 7-9:30 p.m. Hausrath will have students complete the painting of a silk scarf during the workshop. Hausrath is currently a professor in the art department of Bridgewater State College where she has taught since 1971. Her work has been exhibited in numerous national exhibits and is included in the corporate collections of National Fire Prevention Agency, Teradyne Inc., Spaulding and Slye Inc., Iceland Air, Streeterville Inc., Sheraton Hotels Inc., Magner-Harris Co. and others.

Coming in November is a special three-day Watercolor Workshop, Nov. 15, 16 and 17, with Edward Minchin. Through his planned approach to watercolor, students will learn to focus on spontaneous, confident paintings. He will work with his students to break what he terms the "painter's block" and return to painting from inspirations. He has had work accepted into the American Watercolor Society's 119th national show as well as other national exhibits.

For complete information on these workshops and to register, call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. Programs of the Center are supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Gallery tour at Brandeis University

Join artist Louise Kalish and the South Shore Art Center on a tour of Friedel Dzuba's "Selected Paintings from Four Decades" at the Rose Art Museum, Brandeis University.

This gallery tour is the first of eight tours to be led by Kalish to various Boston and Cambridge museums and galleries on the third Thursday of each month, October through June, excluding December. Advanced registration for the gallery tours may be made through the South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road. October's tour is on the 20th and meets at the Rose Museum at 10:30 a.m.

During the year Kalish will give lecture-tours at Newbury Street Galleries, the Brockton Art Museum, both Harvard and MIT galleries and other Boston-area museums. The gallery talks will be given by either Kalish, gallery directors or museum docents.

Participants are asked to arrange their own transportation and to meet at a given location at the designated time.

For further information please call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. Programs of the Center are supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Primary Day at Deer Hill

Thursday, Sept. 15, Deer Hill students gathered around the flagpole to celebrate Primary Day. All the students made signs to show what they thought were the important issues in the presidential election.

Mr. Deakin, one of the fifth grade teachers, organized the ceremony. He gathered a committee including Mrs. Magoun, Mrs. Cassiani, Mrs. Murphy, and a group of fourth, fifth, and sixth graders. While Mr. Deakin, Mrs. Cassiani, and Mrs. Magoun were working with the children of the committee, Mrs. Murphy was on the telephone inviting important people, like the Superintendent of Schools, the selectmen, and the school committee to attend. Mr. Deakin thought that this was a good time to do something like this because it was Primary Day and the next Saturday was the birthday of the Constitution.

The flag raising was led by Tom Lavoie from the sixth grade. He was assisted by Sybil Johnston from the fifth grade, and Kathy Bruns from the fourth grade.

Mr. Keating, the former postmaster of Cohasset, spoke to the students about the importance of getting involved in the election.

The Deer Hill Advanced Band played "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "America the Beautiful" while the entire student body sang along.

Deer Hill to be on cable T.V.

The Cable TV (channel 3) will broadcast Primary Day activities that were reported in the Mariner last week. Air time will be Oct. 6 at 7 p.m. The following article was written by three Deer Hill students regarding the event:

Deer Hill Open House:

Come meet and hear from your child's teachers. At 7:30 to 8 p.m., parents of 4th and 5th graders are to go to their child's respective homerooms for a presentation of the varying curricula. At 8 p.m. the parents of 6th graders and the 5/6 open space students should go to their child's homeroom for a comparable discussion. At 8:30 p.m. the PSO representatives for the Deer Hill will be providing refreshments in the cafeteria and will have Deer Hill sweatshirts and T-shirts for sale.

Osgood School Open House

Teachers at the Osgood School will briefly describe their classroom programs as follows: 7:30 - Kindergarten and First Grade, 8:15 - Second and Third Grade.

Please join us as we introduce ourselves to you and share with you some of the specifics of our programs. It is always an informative and fun-filled evening as you explore your child's learning area. We look forward to seeing you on the 4th. PSO will be providing refreshments and will be raffling off a beautiful Cohasset watch.

School pictures

Deer Hill - Oct. 4 and Osgood - Oct. 6.

Basic skills testing

Oct. 4, 5, 6, and 7, all students in Grades 3 and 6 will be tested in reading, writing and mathematics. The tests are developed by the Massachusetts Dept. of Education. Student answer sheets will be corrected by the State Department of Education and we will receive individual and school results in January.

Volunteers needed at Deer Hill!

MORE HELP IS NEEDED! We have a fantastic staff at Deer Hill, however, they are not superhuman and we need your help to make our school work 100% for your children. Volunteers are again needed in the classrooms and in the following areas:

LIBRARY: Mrs. Murphy needs extra hands to help with simple jobs.

BULLETIN BOARDS: Extra hands are needed to arrange and change bulletin boards in order to display Deer Hill's works of art.

I.M.S. Additional correctors are always needed.

If you can lend a hand in any of these areas, please call the Deer Hill Office 383-6115.

Metco host families needed

The Cohasset Metco Host Family Committee wishes to extend its appreciation to all the families who were Metco Host Families last year, and say thanks for a great Metco Year.

Metco is a State funded program which arranges for nearly fifty students from Boston to attend Cohasset schools (and hundreds more to attend schools in other communities). Five exceptional students in the program graduated from Cohasset High School last June. Through the program, we learn about urban communities and the Boston Metco students and their families learn about ours.

This Fall, the Host Family Committee, part of the PSO, is recruiting families for new and returning students. We welcome four new first graders from Boston as well as students in third and seventh grade, but families in all grades may be needed. If you are interested in being a host family or wish to know more about the program, please call:

Joan Kovach, Chairman, 383-6358 or 383-6337; Nancy Connolly, 1st and 2nd grades, 383-9883; Carol Beggan, 3rd and 4th grades, 383-6473; Joanne Chittick, 5th and 6th grades, 383-9220; Susan DeMichele, 7th and 8th grades, 383-6192; Ellie Waal, 9th and 10th grades, 383-6882; Lucy Marsac, 11th and 12th grades, 383-9845.

Yearbook staff honored

Cohasset high school's yearbook staff members are leading the way in yearbook production technology.

Taylor Publishing has recognized the staff for participating in an innovative method of electronic copy preparation. The Tessahoc staff uses Taylor's Vision Electronic Publishing System to create their yearbook on a personal computer.

They are among nearly 2,000 secondary schools and colleges who are gaining marketable computer skills by using Vision Series software. This unique yearbook software allows students to produce all aspects of their yearbook on computer — write articles, design pages, compile indexes, and record income and expenses.

Libraries in full swing

As September draws to a close this week, the three school libraries are in full swing.

Orientation sessions are being presented by the library staff at Osgood and Deerhill along with suggestions for "Good Reads" the children might like. Over and above this Mrs. Murphy continues to labor on getting her new computer up and running. Several snags over the summer have slowed progress, but she is optimistic and determined that Deerhill's library collection will be automated in the not too distant future. . . .

On the Jr/Sr. High School level, orientation sessions and skills evaluation are ongoing this week and next for seventh graders. Book and supply ordering is now just about complete and we anticipate an exciting collection of materials to be added to our shelves as the weeks progress. From time to time we will include a column of "Favorite Reads" from the new (and existing) collection. The hope is that after reading these mini book reviews the children may find book selection easier and perhaps more fun .

At Osgood Mrs. Miller has been busy organizing all the VA materials which are now housed on a handsome new storage wall of shelves and cabinets built by John Jacabucci. We could still use help in processing this collection (or even doing some other library tasks there never seems to be time for). With volunteer help we could streamline operations which would enable the children and staff at Osgood to locate materials more easily. If you can spare a couple of hours a week, please give Karen Devine, PSO rep., a call or call the high school library (383-6100, ext. 33) and we'd be glad to set up a training session. No experience is necessary . . .

And finally, in closing, a reminder that this is Banned Books Week. You are invited to come see The Banned Books display (and read some) at the Jr/Sr High School Library.

Susan McFadd,
Cohasset Schools Librarian

ENERGY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Teaming-up

This is simple.

If you participate, Eastern Edison Company will pay you money to use less electricity.

Why are we doing this?

Because our region is facing a continuing electric-capacity problem. The demand for electricity is very high — almost higher than our capacity to generate it.

So — it helps us if you use less. And it will also help you.

We want your participation — and we'll pay you for it. We've made these programs very attractive. They're flexible, efficient, common-sense ways to use less electricity.

So you'll save money right away. We'll pay you cash incentives and by using less electricity you'll lower your energy costs.

Here are the Teaming-up programs for 1988:

For our commercial and industrial customers

ELITE - Efficient Lighting Rebate Program
We'll pay you cash to replace lamps, ballasts and fixtures with new energy-efficient models. You can get from 50¢ to $2.50 per item.

CHOICE - Interruptible Contract Program
New for 1988! — We will pay you money if you agree to shut off banks of lights, equipment or processes when we request it. The rebates can vary widely — but if you agreed to shut off 100 kW, for example, you could make up to $1,800 per year!

AIRCON - Air Conditioner Incentive Program
Also new for 1988! — We'll give your contractor rebates for installing efficient central cooling equipment. You'll save money on efficient air-conditioner equipment and your electric bill.

And — we also have money-saving programs for our residential customers as well!

For more information on Eastern Edison's Teaming-up Program, simply fill out the form below and mail it to:

Community center to host tag sale

The Cohasset Community Center, a non-profit organization, will have a giant flea market-yard sale Saturday, Oct. 1 on the Common from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Center will be selling coffee and donuts, hot dogs and drinks along with furniture, curtains, wallpaper, baby items, toys, bikes and much more.

To make a donation or to reserve a space, call 383-0088 any day between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Other events sponsored by the Community Center this month include a teen dance Saturday, Oct. 8 from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Admission is $4 per person.

The Call Firemen are having a dance for adults on Saturday evening, Oct. 22 from 8 to 12 p.m. Call Joe Migliaccio for tickets and information.

Wednesday, Oct. 26, from 12 to 2:30 p.m., the Community Center will sponsor a luncheon and fashion show at the Center. Fashions will be Appleseed's of Cohasset and Evana's of Scituate. Tickets must be purchased in advance. They may be purchased at the Community Center weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. or by calling 383-0088. You may reserve tables of eight. Tickets are $20 per person.

The annual Halloween Fair for children will be held on the Common Sunday, Oct. 30, from 1 to 4 p.m. Children should come dressed in their Halloween costumes. The parade around the Common will begin at 1:30 p.m. There will be games and activities for children as well as a pumpkin decorating contest. Pumpkins are decorated at home and must be at the Center by 1 p.m. to be judged.

Call 383-0088 for any information.

The Cohasset Community Center, now in its forty-sixth year, is a non-profit organization serving the residents of the South Shore area. It is not subsidized by the town or any public source. It relies on memberships, program fees, space rentals, fundraising activities.

Mormons fall conference

Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 1 and 2, Mormons from the South Shore area will gather at the Hingham LDS chapter at 379 Gardner Street for the 158th semi-annual General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The conference, which originates from Temple Square in Salt Lake City, will be beamed into the Hingham meetinghouse via satellite.

The conference is under the direction of Prophet and President, Ezra Taft Benson. Pres. Benson and General Authorities will address the members of this world-wide church with a membership now of over 6.5 million.

The Saturday sessions will begin at noon and until 2 p.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m.

Sunday, the Tabernacle Choir will sing from 11:30 a.m. to noon, with conference talks from 12 to 2 p.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m.

The public is welcome to attend any of these sessions. If interested call Polly Doggett at 383-1847.

First Parish

Rev. Edward T. Atkinson, Minister, Parish House (617)383-1100, 23 North Main Street.

Village Fair:

We are looking for people (male and female) to help prepare for the Village Fair. We, thankfully, have all of our chairpeople. We now need Church Reps and workers! Some of the activities require very little time. Some require several evenings between October to December. If you are uncertain about something, at least talk to me. The job just may not be as bad as it sounds.

Specifically, we need the following: (1) A Baking Rep to contact people within our Church to bake items for the fair; (2) people to bake; (3) a Boutique Rep to keep an inventory of who is making what for the Boutique table; (4) people to make items for the Boutique table; (5) Secret Room Rep to work with the chairperson and other committee members to set up the room and work on items; (6) Dinner Rep to take care of selling some of the dinner tickets to members of our Church (7) Children's Table Rep to help get people to work on the items and also attend the workshops to make the items; (9) Grab Bag Rep to help the chairperson and committee to get people and to work on items.

I hope to hear from you soon. Thank you for any time you can spare.

Madeline Olney (383-1492)

YOUTH DIRECTOR TO BE SOUGHT — Our "research" committee met last Thursday (9/15) to draw up a job description for the position of a part time (10+ hours) youth director to program for our seventh through twelfth graders. On the committee are John Campbell, Brad Ketchum, Craig Muir, Judy Ritts, Susi Coley, Lee Jenkins, and Gary Ritts. "Position Available" letters have gone out to four seminaries and two UCC area offices. The committee, along with two additinal teenage members has also been authorized to hire someone should the opportunity present itself.

SERVE A MEAL FOR SENIOR CITIZENS — Our church is responsible for serving a luncheon to area senior citizens on the third Tuesday of every month at the First Parish House. The food is brought from the high school and we serve it to an average of 25 senior citizens. We need a couple more volunteers to help pitch in when someone falls ill or is away. Please contact the church office if you would like to join us in this rewarding outreach.

Obituary

Alan N. Anderson

A memorial service was conducted Sept. 23 at St. John the Evangelist Church for Alan N. Anderson, 79, of Cohasset, who died Sept. 19 at home.

Mr. Anderson was a retired vice president and sales manager of Little, Brown & Co. where he worked for 30 years.

Since his retirement in 1975, he worked as sales manager for de Wolfe and Fiske Co. book distributors.

A volunteer for the Hingham Library, he also drove elderly patients for the American Red Cross.

Mr. Anderson was as member of the Cohasset Golf Club.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y., he lived in Garrison, N.Y., before he moved to Hingham where he lived for 30 years.

He had lived in Cohasset for six years.

A graduate of Morristown High School, N.J., he was an Army veteran of World War II and served in the 10th Mountain Division in Italy.

He is survived by his wife, Sarah (Benjamin) Anderson; three sons, Douglas K. Anderson of Charlotte, N.C., Alan N. Anderson Jr. of Groveland and Martin B. Anderson of Santa Monica, Calif.; two sisters, Marie Romine of Pembroke and Ruth Gordon of Ottowa and three grandchildren.

The Rev. Robert Edson conducted the memorial service.

Funeral arrangements were by Downing Funeral Home, Hingham.

Donations may be made to the Hospice of the South Shore, P.O. Box 334, Braintree, MA, 02184.

Cohasset holds off upstart Carver team

Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

Even though Cohasset's tri-captain halfback Paul Froio rushed for a career-high 202 yards on 26 carries, it was the dominating offensive line that head coach Phil Pisano handed out the accolades to. As a result, the two combined for a 22-16 victory over Carver High last Saturday at Milliken Field.

"Offensively, our kids really put it to the grind stone in the second half," Pisano said. "Our offensive line is our strength this year and they took it to them. We switched from a split-T to a double tight end, and the offensive line really helped us out."

Carver (0-1), playing its first varsity football game, was very competitive the whole way, but its defense was worn down by a Cohasset offense that ran for more than 200 yards in the second half alone.

"In the second half, we answered the wake-up call. It was the best half we've played this year. Our blocking was picture perfect; the backs were a lot quicker too," said Pisano as the underdog Crusaders raced to a 8-7 halftime lead. "Our line has been consistent so far. The opened big holes for our backs, especially for Froio who turn it up a notch in the second half."

It appeared early on that Cohasset would cause Carver to have some trepidations about initiating a varsity program.

Starting from their own 12-yard line, Cohasset (1-1) marched down the field in 18 plays. The 88-yard scoring drive killed eight minutes and 13 seconds off the clock, culminating in a two-yard plunge by Froio. Froio added the extra point to give the home team a 7-0 advantage.

"I was real thrilled that we were able to pull off a long ball-control drive onour opening possession. Against East Boston last week, we couldn't do that," said Pisano.

Carver bounced back when Mark Lopes, who started for Plymouth-Carver Regional High School last year as a junior, scored the first touchdown in school history on a three-yard run with 5:03 left in the first half.

Senior quarterback Bobby Payzant found tight end Keith Lyons alone at the back line of the end zone for the two-point conversion, 8-7.

After an offensive pass interference call (a 15-yard penalty) that brought the back to the Cohasset 36, the Skippers elecged to run out the final seconds of the half with a nine-yard carry by Froio.

In the third, Froio became the work horse for Cohasset. On the first play from scrimmage int he second half, Froio remabled for 13 yards. Then, he ripped off two consecutive 15-yard runs, bringing the ball to the Carver 21.

On a crucial fourth-and-2 at the 18, senior fullback Matt Buckley (12-66 yards rushing) followed his blockers up the middle for a three yard pickup and a first down. Two plays later, Froio collected his second touchdown of the game with a two-yard plunge. Cohasset successfully converted the tow-point rush as Froio bounced into the end zone, 15-7.

On their next series, Cohasset wasted little time, 26 seconds into the fourth to be exact, as senior halfback Jim Donohue extended the Skippers lead to 22-8 on a seven-yard dash, which turned out to be the winning touchdown.

Payzant and receiver Todd Mosher, neither of whom had played high school football before displayed what good things may be in store for the future. They hitched up on a pretty, 72-yard touchdown pass with two minutes left, 22-16.

"I was real concerned. I had brought in my reserves so that the starters could get a rest and they hit us with the big play. I sent the starters back in there immediately. I was expecting an onside kick," explained Pisano.

Instead, Carver dediced to kick it downfield where junior reserve Rick McLaughlin seized the knuckling football.

"Rich was the hero in that situation," Pisano said. "Overall, Carver looked very poised out there as a first year club. They are a well-coached, well-disciplined team. They are going to present some problems this year. The passing game is good. They will win some games."

After the recovery by McLaughlin, the Cohasset starters ran out the final 2:18 of the clock with a ball-control drive that resulted in four first downs.

It is homecoming weekend for the Skippers this Saturday afternoon. Their opponent will be crosstown rival Scituate (2-0). The festivities will begin at 1:30. The October 15 contest versus Abington has been moved to a 10 a.m. starting time, instead of the original 1:30 starting time.

Saturday's prediction: If it is raining, Skippers will win 7-6. If not, Skippers will suffer, 18-7.

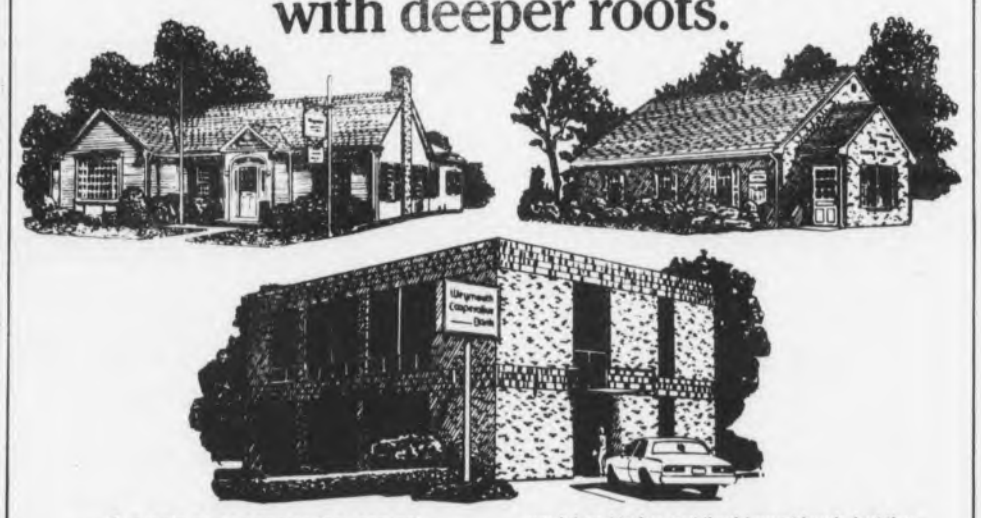
There are banks in Weymouth with more branches but none with deeper roots.



Our roots go as deep as they can get in 99 years. Since 1889 we've been serving Weymouth and the surrounding communities. Over those years we've built a strong tradition for friendly, helpful service with two, three, even four generations of local families.

Today we provide a wide range of personalized banking services. We're continuing to work hard to be, not the biggest bank, but the best. Not just good bankers, but good neighbors as well.

Why not drop by our office in South Weymouth, North Weymouth or East Weymouth. We'll show you that deep roots mean a deep, lasting commitment to your banking service.

We make you feel like a million dollars.

Cohasset Community Center October offerings

The Cohasset Community Center has a few new class offerings starting in October.

Tai Chi is an ancient Chinese form of martial art and exercise used to promote relaxation, health, and a better understanding of body mechanics. It consists of a series of 150 slow moving postures. This meditative exercise helps to calm the mind and exercise the body. Each week will be a progression and a review of the postures until the entire Yang style form is learned.

This ten-week course is open to both men and women. Students should wear comfortable clothing and shoes for ease of movement. The instructor, Jimmy Morris, has studied with masters of the form in both Boston and New York City over the past ten years. Classes are held Wednesday evenings from 7 to 8 p.m. starting October 5.

Writing for the Marketplace, is a ten-week creative writing workshop which will involve fun writing exercises in different genre, feedback on each student's work, and discussion of how to market various types of writing. All levels of interest and experience welcomed. Class meets Tuesdays from 8 to 10 p.m. starting October 4.

Take Charge of Your Life: Assertiveness Training, is a six-week program led by Dr. Helene Lieb. The focus of this group will be on helping participants learn how to stand up for themselves without undue anxiety. Members will be encouraged to participate in group exercises designed to promote the learning of assertiveness skills. This class meets on Monday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. starting October 3.

Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope: Stress Management, also taught by Dr. Helene Lieb is a six-session group which will focus on helping participants develop strategies for managing stress more effectively in their daily lives. Group members will be taught various stress-reducing strategies including time management, challenging negative thinking and the systematic relaxation technique. This class starts on Wednesday, October 5.

For Women Only: Taking Financial Control is a four-week course taught by Sandra Manzella starting Thursday, October 13. This course offers women a thorough overview of money management and financial planning. Topics include professional portfolio management, investment philosophies, tax strategies and estate planning principles. Sandra is a certified financial planner with Paine Webber.

Getting Smart About Investing is an eight-week course taught by Dr. Michael McNamara on Monday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. starting October 3. Both beginning and intermediate investors should find this course helpful and informative. Topics covered are basic financial principles, stocks and bonds, mutual funds, real estate investments, single premium annuities and life insurance products, elements of portfolio analysis and design, actual portfolio design from student suggestions and financial planning.

Revolutionize your sweater knitting with Jacqueline Fee's sweater sampler workshop. This intensive four week workshop offers the experienced knitter freedom from pattern reading. This class takes you through design possibilities and the basic construction for seamfree raglan sweaters that may be knit of any yarn, in any style, to your own guage. It will meet Wednesday mornings from 9:00 to 12:00 starting October 19.

Five Quick Minutes to a Better Back is a one evening workshop designed to get your back in good shape. This highly personalized session includes the latest information on injury prevention and how we are affected by our daily activities, exercise practices, posture and stress levels. Preventive techniques and proper lifting methods will be presented. This workshop will take place on Tuesday, October 18, from 8 to 9:30 p.m.

A Sweet Annie Wreath Making workshop will be taught on Tuesday, October 25 from 12 to 2:30 p.m. Sweet Annie, a fragrant herb makes the golden framework for a wreath of autumn colors. This wreath is a combination of aromatic herbs mixed with pods, grasses, and colorful dried flowers such as statice, safflower, and winged everlasting. Participants will complete a wreath in one session. All materials are supplied.

Town questions legality of harbor proposal

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

The town's attorney has questioned the legality of plans being presented by the owners of The Oaks.

According to a court document drafted by Atty. Richard Henderson in 1983, no changes can take place on that property. The Cohasset Harbor property was sold last December to four developers, but according to Atty. Henderson, they are subject to the same court agreement signed by the previous owners.

The agreement for judgment, signed by the town's planning and zoning boards and an abutter, stipulates that "the grounds of the premises shall be maintained in their current condition."

Under the proposal presented by the new owners to the conservation commission, 27,820 yards of filled land will be dredged to make room for additional 109 boat slips around the property. A tennis court and two garages are now situated upon that land.

One hundred and nine private boat slips will encircle the property, with 48 public finger slips added to an area of the harbor near Cohasset Yacht Club, according to the plans presented last month by the new owners.

"According to the court agreement," Henderson explained at Tuesday night's conservation commission meeting, "you can't do anything to the grounds. How did you get to this point?

"That means the grass, the driveway . . . everything stays the way it is."

Commission chairman Merle Brown added, "you're asking us to change the area around. If it can't be, then what's the point of this hearing? You're wasting our time and the town's money. This is costing the town thousands of dollars for the time involved in this."

Jay Miller, the planning consultant for The Oaks owners, said this was the first time the court agreement issue was raised. The chairman

School officials review cemetery plan

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

The Cemetery Study Committee would like to develop a cemetery with 5,000 graves on about 14 acres of land under the control of the School Committee.

Cemetery Committee chairman Glenn Pratt told the school committee Oct. 3 that the land is the group's recommended site from among eight evaluated.

It is part of a 70-acre parcel which runs from the Osgood School to Deer Hill School bounded by Pleasant St. and Old Pasture Road, with frontage on Sohier St. and Route 3A, he said.

"We found the school department land to meet many of our criteria," said Pratt.

He noted that if all approvals were received, it would be the spring of 1992 before the first burial in the new cemetery.

"It would be 1991 before construction started," said Pratt, "and into 1992 before it opened."

"I don't see any reason we can't have a response at the next meeting," said chairman Diana Kornet.

Pratt gave the committee a copy of the cemetery report and explained that the group had been appointed by selectmen in 1986 to look into the situation of the dwindling cemetery space in Cohasset.

"The committee began its work with a review of the 1977 report prepared by the Planning Board," said Pratt.

"The report warned that the life expectancy of available graves for sale in the town cemeteries was approximately 10 years."

The committee evaluated every available town-owned property with more than 15 acres, according to Pratt.

Eight sites were selected for site evaluation by the

Reidy sets soccer record with two assists

Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

Junior forward Jim Reidy broke the school's career scoring record with two assists in Cohasset's 5-1 soccer victory over Rockland October 3.

The two points gave Reidy a total of 69 in his scholastic career, surpassing the previous mark (68) held by 1988 graduate Todd Fitzpatrick.

"A lot of pressure is finally over. I am just glad I did it in early in the year, so that we can now concentrate on the remaining games," said Reidy, who collected all five goals (extending his seasonal output to 14) in a 5-0 shoutout over Scituate October 1. "I'm happy it's over, but I couldn't have done it without my teammates."

Reidy, a team captain, eclipsed the record with 14 minutes left in the contest. From 40 yards facing from the net, Reidy lofted a soft, centering pass to teammate Ned Chase, who deflected it off his right foot to the far corner past the sprawling Rockland goalie. It was the third goal of the game for the senior forward.

"I saw Ned at the far corner of the net, and I knew I had plenty of time to get the ball to him," explained Reidy. "We practiced that play often. The number of times we do it, it is bound to go in; half of my assists have gone to Ned."

Reidy's first assist which clinched the record came at 18:12 of the second half. With Reidy streaking down the left side, he sent a nifty pass in front to Chase, who re-directed it past the helpless goalie.

"We wanted to beat Rockland this year. They were the only team who beat us in the regular season last year. We were definitely ready to play. Everyone worked hard and passed the ball well. If everyone plays their game, I think it is going to work to our benefit," said Reidy, who begins to set his sights on the magic number 100.

"That would be nice, but I want to beat Norwell and Duxbury this year."

Being an attainable figure, Reidy could reach that milestone this year (11 regular-season contests left plus the playoffs). If not, the blond-haired athlete has one

Landfill brush schedule

The October brush chipping schedule at the Cedar Street Municipal Landfill has been set by the Board of Health.

With the cooperation of the Tree and Park personnel chipping on site at the landfill, residents can bring their brush from 8 a.m. to noon ONLY, Saturday, Oct. 15; Monday, Oct. 17; Saturday, Oct. 29; and Monday, Oct. 31.

No brush from landscapers is allowed. Brush is not accepted from residents at any other time than those designated above.

The Board of Health extends its thanks to the Tree and Park Department for its help.

ZBA public hearings

Cohasset's Zoning Board of Appeals will hold pubic hearings on applications for variances and a special permit Thursday, Oct. 6, at 7 p.m. at town hall.

The applicants are:

- Barbara Arnold, 81 Hull St., Cohasset, seeking to construct an "in law" apartment at 81 Hull St.
- John and Mary Hartshorne, 7 Summit Ave., Bronxville, N.Y., seeking to construct an addition to the garage at 115 Border St.
- Kenneth Thayer, Jr., 19 King St., Cohasset, seeking to erect a radio tower at 391 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, Route 3A.

Library receives gift

The trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library have received a gift of nearly $150,000 from the will of Miss Mercie Vinal Nichols, 88, who died Nov. 30, 1987.

The trustee of Miss Nichols' estate, Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co., notified the library trustees of the Gift in August. The trustees voted to accept the gift with gratitude. The Trustees have adopted the advice of their financial advisors on updating the library's endowment policy and on the management of this new gift.

Miss Nichols was a graduate of LaSalle Junior College, and studied at the Museum School under MacIvor Reddie, whose murals grace the rotunda of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. Miss Nichols was a painter and taught art in area public schools. She was a founder and benefactor of the South Shore Art Center. She was the daughter of Steven and Clarissa (Brown) Nichols.

Miss Nichols directed in her will that her gift "be held and invested and the income therefrom to be used in the discretion of the board for its general purposes."

The library's endowment funds are used to improve the book collection and information services of the Library.

Bleachers okay

The Milliken Field Bleachers are fit for use, according to Cohasset Building Inspector Donald Robbins.

Robbins inspected the bleachers Sept. 19, after work was done by the Tree, Park and Cemetery Department.

The work was recommended by Robbins after a meeting with Tree, Park and Cemetery superintendent Peter Laugelle at the field following complaints that the bleachers were unsafe.

The work included replacing some of the planking, replacing some of the planking on the steps of the bleachers and replacing the old nuts and bolts.

New executive secretary

Selectmen named their new executive secretary Tuesday night.

Greg Doyon, currently the executive secretary in Hopkinton, was offered the job which includes a salary of about $41,000. A contract with the 38 year-old Hopkinton resident will be finalized next week.

Doyon has been employed in Hopkinton for the past three years. Prior to that, he was executive secretary for the Hanover Board of Selectmen for three years.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby opposed the appointment because, she said, Doyon received an hour-long interview with selectmen, while the other final candidates were interviewed for a half-hour each. "I thought we would be giving second interviews to the others," she said Tuesday night. "It is not that I am opposed to Doyon."

Democratic rally Oct. 12

South Shore Democrats and local Dukakis/Bentsen supporters invite you to a campaign 1988 Marathon Rally to be held at the Pembroke County Club, West Elm Street in Pembroke, Wednesday, Oct. 12.

There will be hor d'oeuvres and a cash bar. The donation is $15 per person, with dancing and listening music.

Everyone is welcome to attend. Make a check out to Democratic State Committee. Contact Ron Goodwin 383-6355 (week) or 383-0381 (home) for tickets.

Minutes approved

Despite Selectman Martha Gjesteby's objections that she was never advised of the meeting, selectmen approved the minutes of an emergency session held Sept. 27.

Gjesteby told Selectman Burt Pratt she was never informed about the meeting, and therefore was unable to attend. Pratt denied that charge, saying he left a message on her answering machine.

"I was dumbfounded when I heard it (the meeting) occurred," she said.

"I fulfilled the law as interpreted by town counsel. I can't help it if your answering machine is broken," Pratt replied.

The emergency meeting was held, he explained, so that selectmen could hold a public hearing on a North Main Street conduit that Eastern Electric planned to install. The conduit was needed immediately for the subdivision being constructed off North Main Street. Postponement of the meeting would have cost the developer $16,000, Pratt said. Selectmen postponed the original public hearing, so the delay was not the developer's fault, he added.

Questions over Oaks plan . . .

of the harbor committee disagreed, saying it was discussed at their meeting last month.

Owner Michael Palmer would not comment on whether he knew about the agreement for judgment prior to his purchase of The Oaks. He told the commission he would have the issue reviewed by his attorney.

Atty. Henderson said the document could only be nullified if it was agreed to and signed by the original signators, Richard Redfield, the zoning board of appeals, the planning board and the current owners of the property.

The court document was an agreement reached by the planning board and the previous property owners in return for a variance to use the property as the executive offices of Yankee Oil and Gas. The previous owners agreed to numerous provisions in exchange for a zoning variance that would allow them to use the residential land for their administrative offices.

Yankee Oil and Gas Co. purchased the 58-room mansion from newspaper heiress, the late Jessie Bancroft Cox.

At the commission's second hearing Tuesday night on the boat pier proposal, consulting engineer Robert Maki requested additional information from the property owners.

The hearing was continued again until the commission's first meeting in November.

Maki said he was concerned with the potential increased pollution in the harbor caused by 109 more boats. He called the proposal a threat to the nearby salt marsh because of potential gas and oil leaks from the boats. He is also concerned with the potential erosion of the salt marsh caused by the wave action in the wake of these boats pulling into and out of the piers. He asked the developers' engineer and environmental consultant to address those concerns.

Joseph Forns, the environmental consultant for the developers, said the pollution could be controlled through enforcement of a lease convenant, and denied the proposal would have a deleterious effect on the salt marsh.

Commission member John Bryant worried about inadequate maneuvering room for large boats assigned to piers adjacent to the Cohasset Yacht Club. Forns noted that anyone purchasing a 99-year "dockominium" lease would not select a slip too small for his boat.

Palmer noted there would be specific limitations on the size of boats to go into the slips.

Maki reiterated his concern about the wake from boats adjacent to the salt marsh, particularly where the land is proposed to be dredged, will cause erosion of that marsh. "You're talking about a 30,000 to 40,000-pound boat," Bryant added.

"I'm concerned with dredging that area at all," Maki noted.

In answer to a question, Forns noted that the state of Massachusetts has regulatory jurisdiction over Cohasset Harbor. Robert Davenport of Black Horse Road noted, "then what your proposal is asking is that the state give a large portion of Cohasset Harbor to you to sell to the highest bidder. I find that very disturbing."

Forns replied that the licensing procedure by the state is currently being rewritten, and that issue will be addressed "carefully," he said.

Keith Knowles of Border Street inquired about the increased number boats and the potential for additional pollution caused by gas and oil discharge.

"They will meet the same performance standards (as is currently enforced in the harbor)," Forns answered, noting that there will be tighter restrictions placed on any new work in the harbor, with "more restrictive pollution measures implemented."

"You are adding 109 new boats. How can you qualify what that additional 'normal pollution' will be, its effect on the salt marsh and those people who use the harbor for recreation?" Knowles asked.

Forns explained that in recent studies, it has been determined that increased traffic in a harbor will increase the "normal" surface pollution, but will not increase the pollution to organisms within the harbor.

The commission's engineers then suggested that the impact on marine fisheries in the proposed dredged area be addressed at the November hearing.

The commission allowed a request by the Oaks owners to have their attorneys and engineers meet with Maki to discuss the commission's concerns prior to the November public hearing.

Constitution forum

The Hull Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution is inviting the people of Cohasset, Scituate and Hingham to a public forum for discussion of issues regarding the U.S. Constitution.

The public forum will be held Thursday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, 440 Nantasket Avenue, Hull.

The Commission members consider this Forum an important opportunity to bring the Constitution to the attention, serious examination and appreciation of many people.

Articles will outlinc the issues to be discussed and give people some background in preparation for the forum.

The Forum Committee recognizes that the participants may wish to discuss other issues. Please feel free to offer suggestions. To do so, contact Rev. Demetrios Michaelides at 8 Meade Ave., Hull or by phone at 925-1060.

School officials review cemetery plan . . .

consultant engineer, Brewster Fuller Associates of East Bridgewater.

They are: area adjacent to North Cohasset Cemetery; portion of Cohasset Golf Club; portion of Richardson White land; portion of J. Hayes Land Route 3A; the Curtis Estate; Osborn Ingram Land, south side of Beechwood St.; portions of School Dept. land, Pleasant St., and portion of Barnes Land, North Main St.

Brewster Fuller made physical inspection of all sites with Peter Laugelle, park superintendent, Pratt said.

The sites were narrowed to the golf club, Ingram and school department, he said, quoting the report.

"After a layout of grave locations and roadways, it was determined that the parcel would be too costly to develop because of its shape and the fact that the land would have to be acquired," said Pratt.

"The golf club site was determined to be too small without taking developed parcels adjacent to the club."

Pratt gave an analysis of the school department land from the report.

"The site has easy access from Pleasant St. and Cushing Road with future access from Old Pasture and Sohier St.," he said.

"We identified a parcel of 14+ acres that has access from Pleasant St. via Pleasant Lane and is bounded by gentle sloping hillside to the west, two brooks (spring fed) to the north and east.

"The site is approximately 1,400 feet from the Deer Hill School Building. With various interesting ledge outcropping, the site lends itself to a peaceful setting.

"The 14+ acres lay out in sections that could be developed in phases with nearly 5,000 graves in phased development.

"Currently, there are about 75 burials per year in Cohasset (not all are newly purchased graves) giving this site a potential life of nearly 100 years.

"Estimates for development of the parcel appear reasonable because the land is town-owned.

"We estimate that engineering, survey, plans and specification will cost approximately $78,000 and the site development for the 5,000 graves will be approximately $1,100,000 in 1988 dollars.

"Currently, Cohasset sells single graves at the lowest prices in the area.

"We feel the price of a grave could be raised to nearly $600.

"The total sale price of all 5,000 graves in 1988 dollars is nearly $3,000,000."

Pratt noted expansion possibilities at Woodside, Beechwood and North Cohasset Cemeteries as spelled out in the report.

Beechwood "has a land area of slightly over 4 acres; one acre being wetlands and about two acres, currently developed and used for burials.

"A portion of the cemetery, about one acre on the lower side to the northeast, could be developed to provide about 300 new graves. This would add about 10 years to the life of the cemetery, which has about 150 graves for sale as of 1988.

"Graves do not sell well at the cemetery, and creation of expanded burial area may not be a wise expenditure.

"In any case, we believe the expansion should be a cemetery department expense and not a part of this committee's work."

Pratt said that the committee recommends that the school department land of 14+ acres be transferred to the control of the selectmen and that money be appropriated to begin the initial phase development of the site.

"The newly developed site would not be able to accept the first burials for two to three years after completion," stated the report.

"This would bring the town precariously close to not having graves for sale.

"We believe the selectmen should appoint a permanent cemetery commission, as provided by Chapter 114, to manage the cemeteries with regard to sales of lots, price and expansion."

School Superintendent Stephen Hart said that it would be impossible for the school committee to make a final decision.

"That (decision) has to be made by the town."

Hart explained that the school committee would have to say the land is not needed for school expansion.

"The vote will be taken to selectmen, and if they accept it, it will be placed on a warrant.

"It's a difficult position for the school committee to be in."

School committee members Nancy Sandell asked if the town votes down the proposal, if the land would revert back to the committee's jurisdiction.

"That's our understanding," said Hart, who added that he would check with town counsel to be sure.

"I think this should be taken under advisement," said Kornet, who noted that the next town meeting isn't scheduled until April.

"Two weeks won't hurt," she said.

Commission clashes with selectmen

There were fireworks Tuesday night in the selectmen's new meeting room, as recreation commissioners attempted to persuade selectmen to rid their office of a receptionist/switchboard operator.

The new position, which selectmen emphasized will not mean an additional town employee, is required because of a new central telephone system that is scheduled for installation.

Selectmen hired a consultant who advised them to purchase a central telephone system which will cost the town between $12,000 and $15,000. The system will be manned by an operator at a central switchboard. The contract for that system will go out to bid, Selectmen Chairman Burt Pratt said.

But in order for the receptionist/switchboard operator to screen "nuisance" calls, the employee must be located in the front of the town hall. The most logical office is the recreation department which is now located on the first floor in the new town hall addition, he said.

The recreation commissioners objected to the location. Director Jack Worley said a switchboard operator would interfere with the functions of his department. He repeatedly told them he never minded being the town hall "receptionist" during the 12 years his office was located in a tiny space at the entrance of the building.

When selectmen refused their request, the verbal exchange became heated between the town officials.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson explained that selectmen have the authority to make decisions in regard to the management of town property, and in regard to the use of space within that property.

While Worley explained the reasons he felt the central telephone system was not the best for town hall, he was repeatedly interrupted by selectmen Rocco Laugelle and Burt Pratt.

"Stop talking when Jack is talking," Selectman James Gallagher pleaded with the other two selectmen. "I apologize for my fellow selectmen."

That initiated an angry exchange between Laugelle and Gallagher.

Despite the commissioners' arguments against the switchboard operation, selectmen voted to accept bids for the new system. Selectman Pratt repeatedly told the commission that a decision to locate the receptionist in the recreation department had been made at a meeting of department heads in May. Worley refuted that statement, saying that no decision was made because no vote was taken by selectmen.

Daniel Leahy, co-owner of Kimball's By The Sea, explained that he recently looked into purchasing a new telephone system for the motel. He called the switchboard operation "a step back to the days of old."

Selectmen insisted on staying with that system, however, since the consultant they hired had recommended it.

Lighthouse replica shows appreciation of harbor

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

The Historical Commission's dream of a 25-foot replica of a portion of historic Minot's Light is coming to life on Government Island at Cohasset Harbor.

"I hope it will look just like Minot's Light," said Noel Ripley, historical commission chairman.

The three-year project, estimated to cost at least $25,000, will feature a replica of the upper portion of the 128-year old lighthouse about 25 feet high and 14 feet wide.

Phase one is underway with $7,500 donated by the South Shore Music Circus.

Quincy granite blocks taken from the top of the 114-foot tower last summer and the original rotating mechanism from the lantern are being installed.

The Coast Guard, which is repairing the lighthouse, agreed to donate the 40 blocks. It will replace them in the lighthouse with new blocks.

Using a backhoe, the old blocks, which can weigh 3,000 lbs., are being positioned on the foundation of a building, since demolished, that housed the drawings and tools of the stonecutters, the men who built Minot's Light.

In the next three weeks, cracks in the blocks will be filled in with chips, a steel door, one of four donated by the Coast Guard, will be installed, and a tarpolin put on top for the winter.

The second phase of the project next year will include the lantern room and the roof. The third phase will be finishing the dome and railings.

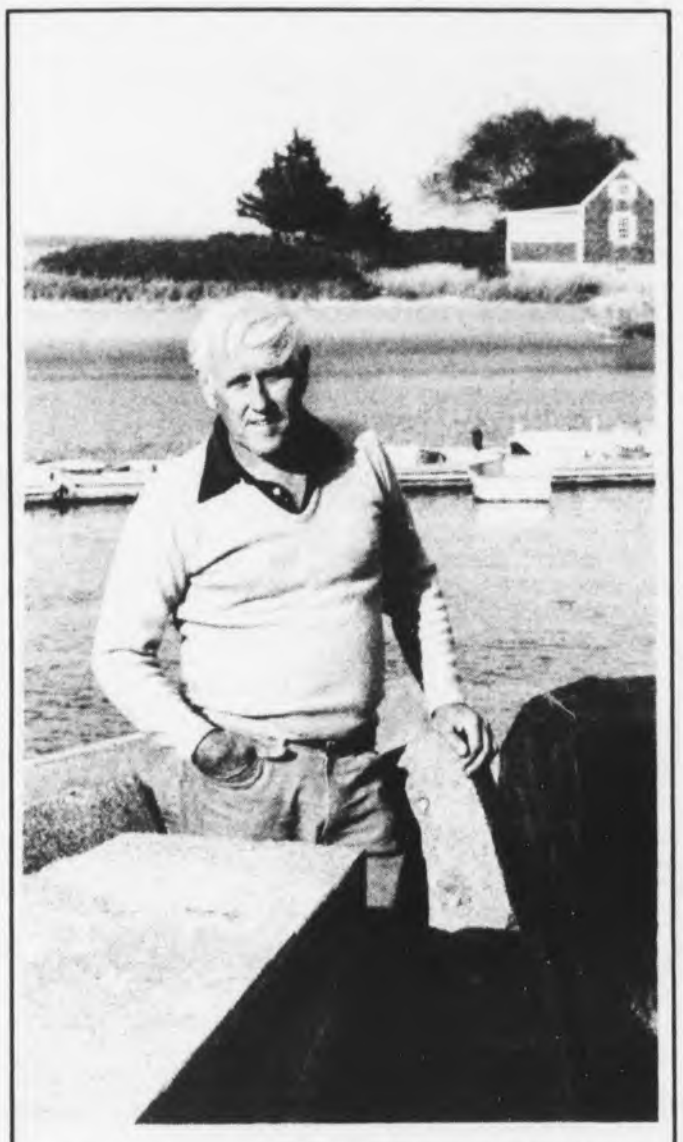
Ripley has enjoyed assembly work which began Sept. 24.

"I came down and saw the first course of stones and thought 'that's wonderful,' " said Ripley. "I was thrilled."

The work is being done by Harold Litchfield of Cohasset's Highway Department, Tony Sestito, Carl Sestito, Jim Curley, Dick Poland and Peter Laugelle.

"They've been doing a great job," said Ripley. "They've been working their hearts out every night from 4 p.m. until dark.

"They had to rent a backhoe and have a Norfolk County engineer lay it out," said Ripley.



Historical Commission Chairman Noel Ripley (Kym Marcella photo)

"They're doing it as a labor of love.

"They're not getting paid that much.

"We were lucky to get Harold.

"Now we have to get the same kind of carpenter to build the lantern room."

"It's got to be the right carpenter," he said.

"If we don't get the proper feeling, it will look very amateurish.

"The next phase will be harder than the first one. It will be difficult to get the right person to do it for not too much money."

The project will probably cost more than $25,000 according to Ripley.

"I dont't think that's going to be enough," he said.

"We are probably going to have to do some fundraising.

"Hopefully, we'll find someone interested in contributing."

David Wadsworth, historical commission secretary, noted the uniqueness of the project.

"It's the only case I know where part of a lighthouse is being built onshore, with a section of the original lighthouse," he said.

Wadsworth also spoke of the rotating mechanism from the lantern.

"It's an interesting piece of machinery, and was put in in 1859 or 1860. It was solar powered with a solar panel."

Ripley said that when the project is completed, the replica will probably be open for tours.

"It's going to be nifty," said Ripley. "We'd like to envision Government Island as the nautical focus of Cohasset."

According to Ripley, Cohasset had a rich maritime history and was the fourth largest fishing port in Massachusetts in the 1860s and 1880s.

"There was a ship's chandlery where the Maritime Museum is, and a custom's house at the legion hall location," he said.

"There were docks and wharfs all over here.

"The harbor came before the village. The center of Cohasset was the cove area.

"We feel that this kind of project will give the townspeople more appreciation for the harbor.

"They'll realize what a jewel they have here."

Cohasset Assistant Treasurer Tom Murphy on Horizon Passbook Savings.

"9%? AT THIS RATE, WE'LL HAVE TO HIRE EXTRA TELLERS."

"People are going for our new Horizon account in a big way. I think they like the security of having a passbook, and knowing what their balance is at any time.

"And they really like the special introductory rate: 9% annual interest on any amount over $1000. That's an effective annual yield of 9.55%. You just can't beat that one. Especially since there's no maturity date, and interest is compounded daily and posted monthly. Of course, accounts are F.D.I.C. insured.

"One person said he thought you had to be a big-time investor to get a deal like that. I told him that at Rockland Trust, all our customers are big-time investors."

☐ It hardly seems possible, but it's already "Nutcracker" audition time for the Boston Ballet! Making her debut this year in this special holiday ballet is Emily Henderson. Emily will join veterans Meredith Equi, Keeley Dwyer and Melissa Weier as toy soldiers fighting off the fierce mice under the enormous Christmas tree on the stage at the Wang Center. Alyssa Cross will appear as a polichenelle, dancing out from under Mother Ginger's oversized skirt. Courtney Schultz and Karla Kennedy will perform as chinese dancers in the exciting new Chinese Tea Dance in Act II.

All the girls live in Cohasset and attend ballet classes at least three times a week at the Boston Ballet and at The Children's Ballet Workshop in Hingham. They were chosen for these roles from among three hundred hopeful students. Performances run from Nov. 25 - Dec. 30.

This year, thanks to the hard work of PSO Enrichment Chairmen Barbara Meehan and Susan Reardon, the PSO has procured special student discount tickets for the Wang Center "Nutcracker" matinee performances. The entire Joseph Osgood School and the Deer Hill School will be able to attend "The Nutcracker" for a mere five dollars apiece, transportation included. The tickets are subsidized by the pass program of the Massachusetts Council on the Arts.

☐ Erica Ford of Cohasset recently completed a basic real estate course given by The Conway Company School of Real Estate, Inc.

☐ The Red Lion Inn held its "Red Lion Invitational" a few weeks ago, and it was a grand success. It took place at Halifax Country Club, a course that all of the local golfers love. Congratulations go to Tom Churchill, who claimed first prize, and Bernie Mulcahy, who came in second.

☐ Ran into Mary Davis recently, and she was full of news about a few of the Davis clan! Cathy has moved to Washington State (she still receives the Mariner, so a special "hello" to you and your family). Of course, Mary misses her a lot but she misses her granddaughter, Molly, even more! After all, Molly is only five months old, and you know how rapidly they change and grow at that age. At least she still has Tom and Anne locally, and they had a baby boy recently. His name is Christopher Edward Davis, and he joins Gregory and Katy. So, Mary still has plenty of hugs and kisses from her grandchildren and saves a lot for the next time she sees Molly.

☐ Last week we reported that Hope Seeley is back in the business world, this week we can tell you about Jane White. For those of you that are needlepoint fanatics, she is still very busy designing for you. Jane opened a shop within Phil Smith's new building, and is happily ensconced there. A real "people person," Jane is extremely talented. Whatever design you would like, she can create it. As many people will tell you, her custom designs are breath-taking. Be sure to go and say hello, Jane would love to see you.

☐ Everyone was sorry to see that Dom Campedelli's bid to become a Bruin didn't work out, it would have been such fun to see one of Cohasset's finest don the uniform. To watch him skate was like watching magic, we'll miss it. Happily for Dom though, he has no regrets. He gave hockey his all for three years and has made the decision to go into the building world, doing light construction. Best of luck to you in the business, Dom.

☐ Here's wishing Karen Goodman a speedy recovery from her recent surgery.

☐ Happy belated birthday to Ron Emmons. We won't tell how old he is, but it surely is a magic number.

☐ A deep bow (and or curtsy) to CHS's homecoming King and Queen, Paul Froio and Kristen Ellinger. They were crowned at the football game last Saturday and "reigned" at the dance Saturday night.

☐ Everyone is excited over the Cohasset Meat and Produce Center, scheduled to open in a few weeks. It sure will be nice to see that lovely building open again, and the thoughts of what manager and owner Jim Hoban have in mind for the store are exciting ones. Watch for the grand opening.

☐ Hats off to Jack Beddows, Alison Crehan, Matt Drinkwater, Scott Flaherty, Letitia Linsley, Kathleen Murphy, Andrew Rossi and Jay Staunton, all who were named Commended Students in the 1989 National Merit Scholarship program. It is an academic feat to accomplish this, especially when you consider that more than one million students take part. We are proud of you, gang!

☐ Any of you that are looking for an appointment to the U.S. service academies, time is running out! The deadline for submitting completed applications to Congressman Studds' office is Oct. 15, and that is right around the corner.

☐ Cohasset Community Center's tag sale that was held on the Common last Saturday certainly seemed to be a huge success. Loved all of the E-I-E-I-O clothing that was there. As you know, it is designed by Karen Golden, daughter of Jack and Doris Golden, and is a smashing success. After seeing the items she had, you are sure able to see why. It's wonderful, something all children would adore wearing!! Karen sure is one talented gal, that's for sure.

☐ St. Anthony's Parish is sponsoring a Columbus Day Dinner Dance on Oct. 14 at the Sons of Italy Hall from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. with tickets at $20 per person. Call Rose and Chris Kierce at 383-0578 or Anna Abbruzzese at 383-9539 for details. They do promise you this much . . . a fun evening with wonderful food.

☐ That's the news for this week. Please call me with your latest event, everyone loves to read about the latest happenings.

Silva supports Curtis plan

John M. Silva, Democratic candidate for the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Third Plymouth District, has come out in support of the plan by the Curtis Estate Action Committee (CEAC) to develop housing for the elderly and handicapped on the present site of the Curtis Estate.

"I am in full support of the committee's plan to bring these units of housing to this community. There is within reasonable grasp the prospect of building much-needed housing which will be accessible to and appropriate for elderly, handicapped and disabled individuals.

"The plan is all the more attractive in its keeping with the intent of the Curtis will, which established a means for assisting disadvantaged women in need of homes. The opportunity to meet a crucial housing need far outweighs all other concerns in this issue, and as a state legislator I will pledge my active support to CEAC's efforts and work with the Attorney General's office to bring the plan to fruition," he said.

Reception for candidate Silva

The Committee to Elect John M. Silva will hold a wine and cheese reception Friday, Oct. 14 at the Hingham Community Center, 70 South Street in Hingham Center.

The reception is scheduled from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. All friends andsupporters ofhe democratic candidate for state representative in the Third Plymouth District (Cohasset, Hingham, Hull) are urged to attend.

Tickets are $15 per person and are available at the door as well as by calling Silva Headquarters at 925- 1973 .

In Hull, tickets are also available by calling 925-3930 or 925-2176, in Hingham, call 749-4958 or 749-5237, in Cohasset call 383-6924.

Murray obtains handbook

Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray 3rd Plymouth District, Cohasset, Hingham, and Hull, has distributed to the three libraries in her district copies of the new 1988-89 edition of the Handbook on College Admissions and Financial Aid in Massachusetts that is published every year.

The handbook tells students and their parents how and when to apply for college financial aid. The handbook describes the state, federal and college-supported financial aid programs, and it contains college admissions information and application deadlines.

"I am distributing the handbook to the Cohasset, Hingham and Hull Libraries so that as many students as possible will know about the variety of financial aid programs that are available to help them pay for college. We hope this information will encourage financially needy Massachusetts students to consider college, particularly those students who might otherwise not have applied," stated Rep. Murray.

Ups and downs

For anyone who has not had the opportunity to tour your new town hall addition, it is now open for business.

This is the $1.1 million addition that you voted to have constructed, and are now paying for with your local tax dollars. It is not 100 percent complete, but our town employees are in there and working. We hope that everyone gets acquainted with the new building, and the employees who work there.

It is a much brighter place for our town employees to work. Are greatest hope is that this new building is maintained in the future. Without regular maintenance and care, this new addition will soon look very similar to the original building.

Speaking of which . . . that is currently receiving a much-needed facelift. In a matter of weeks, the town departments on Elm Street will be moved into their new headquarters on Highland Ave. It will be convenient for everyone to have 90 percent of our town employees and offices located under one expanded roof.

In a related matter, we were dismayed that signs warning of asbestos in the town hall basement were not posted this week.

A local asbestos inspector indicated to town officials several months ago that there is a potential health hazard in certain areas of the basement. The drilling of holes, smashing openings and moving obstructions in the basement by workmen may have contributed to the release of asbestos fibers in the old pipe lagging. National Abatement Services suggested in June that no renovation work be continued until workers are advised of the possible dangers and are instructed as to the proper protective measures they should take when working there.

As far as we know, this was never done. The workers continued their job without the protective gear, and no complaints have as yet been forthcoming. We hope for the town's sake it stays that way.

But it is certainly not the way for a municipal government to conduct itself. If there was a possibility of danger in the town hall, these men should have at least been properly warned.

This is likely not the end of this issue. Although selectmen believe the removal of loose asbestos will cost the town about $400, National Abatement Services Inc. has stated it will cost at least $1,500 to partially remove the fibers.

Whatever the cost, the town will be held liable until the materials are safely removed and the basement is cleaned. Right now, the more important matter is the timeliness of its removal, not the cost.

More construction costs

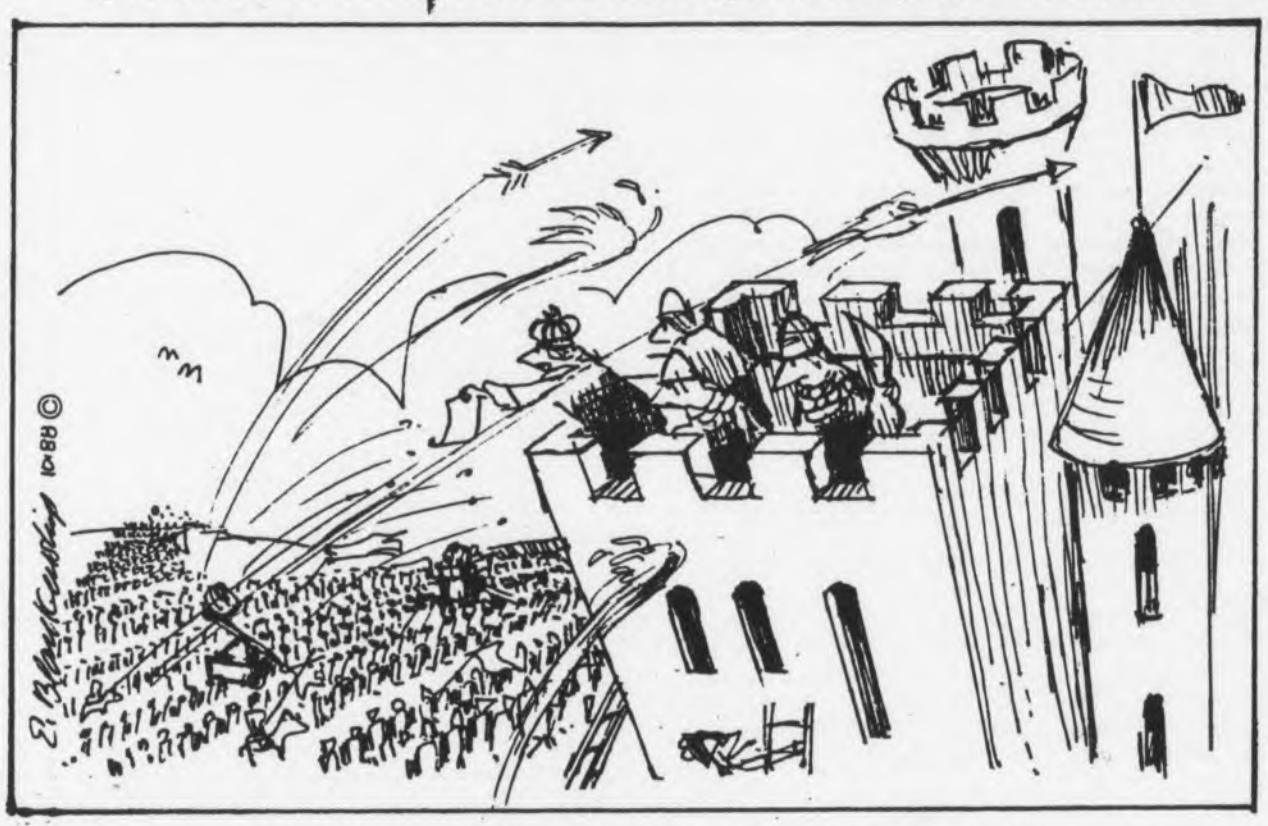
Selectman Burt Pratt announced Tuesday night that the new town hall addition is 99 percent complete. However, there are some details to be completed, including the carpeting and replacement of several windows.

Pratt reported that architectural supervision of the remaining construction will cost the town about $4,000. Architect Brett Donham informed selectmen that all construction in the new and older town hall buildings should be finished in two months. His fee for the supervision is $2,000 per month.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle objected to the extra cost, saying the contractor should pay because his contract stated the job would be completed by Sept. 21. "Why should we pay when it's not completed Sept. 21 as is stated in the contract," he said.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson said the town should not continue construction without professional supervision. He will look into the legality of requiring the contractor to pay for the extended supervision.

NEWS ITEM — The Homestead Protection Act benefiting elderly and disabled is explained by Sen. William Golden to area senior citizens. The 1987 bill sponsored by Golden and aided in passage by the South Shore's Silver Haired Legislature House Speaker Virginia Tierney and her group protects the homes of persons 65 and over, the disabled, from seizure up to $150,000, $300,000 for married couples. Triumph for all concerned



"...Hold it down you guys...this place is fully protected by the Homestead Act as amended by the legislature in 1987...!"

Clean Harbors a Cohasset issue too

Letter

To the Editor:

It appears that the commerical incinerator proposed by Clean Harbors, Inc. on the banks of the Fore River has stirred little interest or concern among the residents of Hingham, Scituate, Cohasset, Marshfield and Duxbury.

Most people do not understand the name and goal of Clean Harbors which most believed to be involved in the cleanup of Boston Harbor. While they may become involved in that project, the basic purpose and goal of this firm is to operate a commerical incinerator which will burn toxic and hazardous waste (including P.C.B.'s and hospital waste) in the amount of 90 million pounds in a continuous 24 hour per day, 365 days per year period.

Why should the residents of Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury be concerned since this incinerator will not be located in their "neighborhood?"

To feel they are safe from the problems created by this incinerator is a sad error of judgment since this firm will have a 216 foot stack and prevailing winds from the northeast will carry the residue from this stack past North Weymouth and into Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Duxbury and Marshfield since there are no hills or ranges of mountains to impede the winds from carrying this dangerous residue in a southeasterly direction.

And, what experience has Clean Harbors, Inc. have in operating a toxic and hazardous waste incinerator? None whatsoever. In fact, they have clearly shown their ineptness at even handling toxic materials as witnessed by the recent spillage of acids along the length of Braintree and Weymouth in the Weymouth Landing area.

The toxic residue and fumes will have a definite impact on the residents including possible long term health risks including cancer, skin ailments, respiratory problems and birth defects plus ecological damage to wildlife, recreational and watershed areas.

Also, what happens in the event of a fire or other catastrophe at this incinerator located next door to millions of gallons of petroleum products at the abutting Cities Service tank farm.

It just doesn't make sense to locate this dangerous incinerator in a congested residential area with some 30,000 residents located within a one mile radius of this facility.

So, residents of Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury, get your heads out of the sand and start getting involved, learn what the real risks are and consider the effects on your family and future generations and get involved in the fight (and bring your legislators along) to oppose the construction of this plant.

For additional information, please call Paul Shanahan, Weymouth Local Assessment Committee (331-0223).

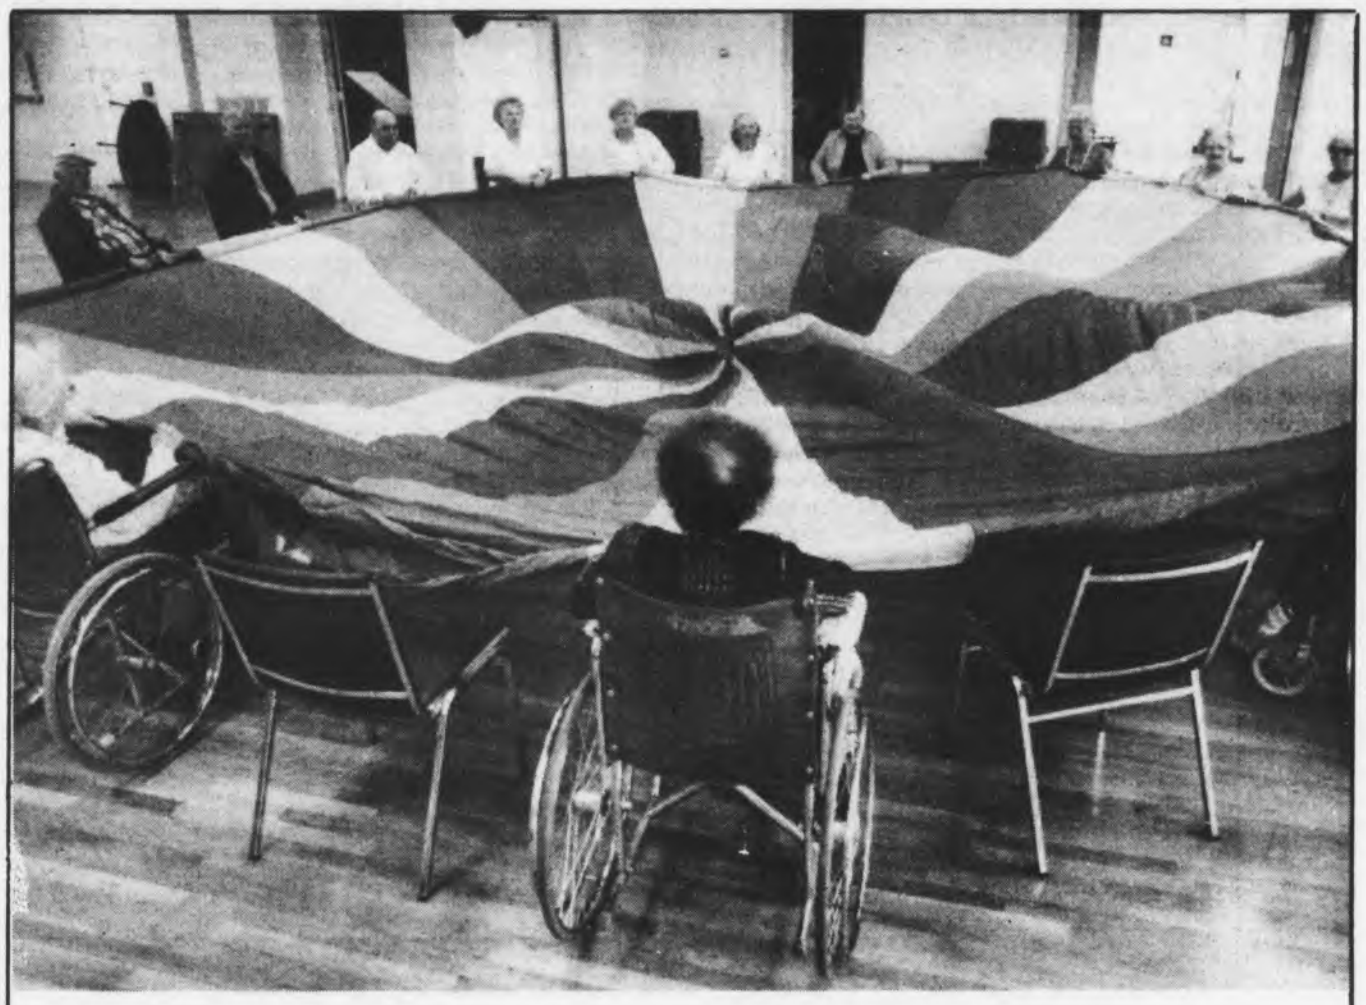
Good friends, great exercise for senior citizens

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff



Members of the Council on Aging's special needs exercise class perform one of their favorite activities — the parachute lift.

Their petite, smiling instructor stands in the middle of an increasingly large circle. She calls their names, she gently chides them, and she welcomes their comments in return.

It is another day of exercise for the members of the special needs exercise class in Cohasset's senior center. But it is also a weekly ritual, a social event for the growing number of senior citizens who look forward to being together.

They arrive each Thursday morning, filled with conversations about the past week. They leave an hour later, energized by the exercise, and assured they will talk again in another week.

Clare Gurnett is the 26 year-old bundle of energy who conducts the therapeutic exercise class for handicapped senior citizens. She began last December with a class of three. Several months later, that number is now up to 30.

It seems with each class, there are a few more "converts" to her way of life, according to senior center director Kathy Bryanton.

News about this class and its peppy instructor has reached the corners of the South Shore. And now its members include residents from Cohasset, Hingham, Scituate, Pembroke, Milton, Randolph, Abington and Braintree.

"They come, and they never complain. The companionship is wonderful. They come to class with such enthusiasm. They joke and kid each other. They love being together," Bryanton has observed.

Clare uses taped music from the big band era to coax her students into exercising. She limbers them up with easy, muscle-relaxing activities, taking note of those returning students and those who have entered the class for the first time.

"That's it Mary! Feel that, Matt?" she says to individual students. She pauses, and walks over to one woman who is intent on finishing her exercise routine. "Is that a new ring, Rita? You're so spoiled."

They may blush in reply, or give her a quick response to her remarks, but it is clear they are very fond of this instructor.

"It's nice to see you again," she says to one student. "How have you been?"

"Fine, darling," is the answer, and Clare rushes off to talk with another busy student. "Hi there Tom!" she shouts. He is grateful and embarrassed by the attention.

Each week, the popularity of the class grows. And as more students join, one class regular noted, "any more and they'll have to put some of the chairs outdoors."

The exercises are simple for some, difficult for others who have been handicapped through age or illness.

Anthony Colella of Quincy, is an exuberant member of the class. He joined because his wife needed the therapy. She suffered a stroke 11 years ago, and finds the exercising soothing and helpful.

"She always exercises," Anthony commented, noting that they both belong to the Hingham Stroke Club which is where they found out about Clare's class.

It is the only senior special needs exercise class in the state, according to Bryanton. It is funded with a federal Title 3B grant through South Shore Elder Services. The Cohasset Council on Aging will be working to continue that grant. It is unique, she explained, because it brings together nursing home patients with residents within the community.

Last week, three residents of the Ripley Road Nursing Home were encouraged by their families to attend a class. They were a bit anxious, according to Kathy Brennock, an LPN who escorted them to class. "Their families really wanted them to come to this. I've been encouraging them, and I took them in my own car," she said.

They were nervous on this first day of class. But by the end of the session, they were following along without problem.

Ordinarily, transportation for the class participants can be arranged by the senior center. A special handicapped-accessible SCOOT van is used to bring the students to their class.

Most participants do not have to be persuaded to attend the class. Doris Peterson, 68, found out about the class through the Braintree Stroke Club. She attends each week "because it's good exercise. It makes me feel good, and it's been very good for me to do this," she said.

A group of ladies from Abington attend the sessions faithfully. Martha Grabowski is 73 and suffered a slight stroke years ago. "Mostly I work with people who have had strokes. I belong to the Hingham Stroke Club. But I would recommend that anyone should come to this class. It helps everyone," she said.

Her friend, Mitzi Milman, agreed. The 70 year-old Abington resident has athritis and this once-a-week workout, "really helps," she said. Mitzi continues many of the same exercises at her home each morning.

There are several men in the class, and some of the students are confined but not limited to their wheelchairs. Together, they sing along with the music, they follow the exercises faithfully with their instructor, and they laugh and talk with their friends seated alongside.

"Are you having fun?" their instructor inquires.

"Yes," they answer. The music, the chatter and the giggles go on and on.

Mary Thomas enjoys her weekly exercise class at the Senior Center — along with about 30 other South Shore neighbors.

Ecumenical service planned

The councils on aging, in the towns of Cohasset, Norwell and Scituate realizing the need for handicapped transportation formed the tri-town consortium under the discretionary grant program of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs. Monies were awarded in the amount of $13,000. The outline of the grant proposed social, educational and recreational programs.

The directors of the councils in the three towns realized that many disabled persons were unable to attend church services because of the lack of transportation and this prompted their first ecumenical service. Plans got underway and this first service was held on Sept. 15, 1987 at St. Helen's Church, Norwell with Rev. Richard Smith officiating. Clergy from the three towns were also present.

This service was very uplifting and the response was overwhelming. All who attended were presented flowers and colorful programs as a memento of the day.

A second ecumenical service was held June 7, 1988 at the First Trinitarian Congregational Church, Scituate, with Alan C. Copithorne, Pastor, officiating. Clergy from all towns were present and the New Life Senior Center Orchestra from Massasoit College provided the entertainment.

And now, an invitation to the third ecumenical service to be held at St. Anthony's Church, 129 So. Main St., Cohasset on Oct. 12 at 11 a.m. There will be a luncheon and entertainment following at the Cohasset Senior Center — Community Center, 3 North Main St. from noon to 1:30 p.m.

All senior citizens and special needs adults are invited to attend. Transportation will be provided by SSCOOT.

Anyone interested in attending should call their local council office. Cohasset 383-9112; Norwell 659-7878; Scituate 545-6700.

Art Center programs...

Membership drive

The South Shore Art Center has launched its 1988-89 membership drive with an intense effort to reach residents on the South Shore.

Expanded membership privileges, continuing opportunities to exhibit art both at the Center and at outside locations, a more varied program of classes and workshops and the on-going enjoyment of the ambience at social functions and gallery openings are all part of the many-fold opportunities open to members.

A membership in the Center gives one advanced notice of all classes, workshops, lectures and critiques as well as a discount on fees. The Center offers four sessions of courses for children and adults and an on-going schedule of one- two- and three-day or one week intensive workshops. The young artist classes have been expanded to satellite locations in Hingham, Hull, Quincy, Scituate, Norwell and Weymouth giving parents easy access to professional art courses for their children.

The Center offers courses in painting, drawing, photography, children's art, pottery, design, decorative arts and art history. Selected courses carry college credit through the Massachusetts College of Art Continuing Education Program or students may elect to complete the Center's own certificate program. The faculty members are recognized artists in their own fields and they bring to their classes a working knowledge of what it takes to be a successful artist.

Exhibits in the Bancroft Invitational Gallery and the Margaret Marshall Dillon Members' Gallery rotate on a monthly basis and bring to the community works by successful New England artists. The formal receptions held with each new exhibit allow for art collectors, visitors and artists to come together.

The Dillon Members' Gallery showcases works by Center artists giving them the visual opportunities to bring their works to the public and to feel the inward satisfaction of seeing their work hang in a public gallery. Art memberships are granted on a jurying basis. Jurying for gallery artist memberships is usually done twice a year — December and May. The Crossen Student Gallery exhibits, on an on-going basis, works done by students in the various classes.

Members joining now will be in on the ground floor of new opportunities at the Center and will have a voice in the direction the Center takes as it continues to lead the growth of the visual arts on the South Shore.

A gift shop in the Center's lobby offers handcrafted items by South Shore artisans. To enjoy all the benefits of a Center membership including a discount in the gift shop, visitors are invited to come to the Center any time Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Sunday, noon to 4 p.m.

Sculptors exhibit

Works by members of New England Sculptors Assoc. (NESA) will be on exhibit in the Bancroft Invitational Gallery of the South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, October 9-28. An opening reception is planned for Sunday, Oct. 16, from 3 to 5 p.m.

NESA exhibits throughout New England in colleges, art associations, commercial galleries and other major exhibition spaces including the Sharon Arts Center in New Hampshire, DeCordova Museum, Boston Center for the Arts, Worcester Museum of Fine Arts and the Boston Museum of Science. The association also sponsors travelling sculpture exhibits to New England schools and colleges.

The group is composed of both patrons and active sculptors working together to increase the public's knowledge of and interest in contemporary sculpture.

The public is invited to view the exhibit, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Sunday, 12 to 4 p.m.

In the Margaret Marshall Dillon Gallery, during the month of October, will be an exhibits by artist members of the South Shore Art Center. Programs of the Center are supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

College Night

The thirteenth annual Coastline College Night will be held at Hingham High School, Thursday, Oct. 6, from 7 to 9 p.m. Students and parents from Cohasset, Hingham, Hull and Scituate will have the opportunity to meet with representatives from 2 and 4 year schools, colleges and universities from around the country.

This event is sponsored by the Guidance Departments of the four towns. Counselors encourage the participation of all juniors and seniors.

Children's book fair

The Carriage House Nursery School, 23 N. Main Street, is sponsoring a 3 Day Book Fair Oct. 18, 19 and 20. The hours are from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day and from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19.

The books are being supplied by the "Little Book Room" which is located in Milton and is favorably known for its "Distinctive Literature for Children." Available will be new publications as well as some old favorites that have been carefully selected for you.

Children are welcomed to accompany parents to choose a quality book from a wonderful selection that will be offered. And with the holidays just around the corner, this is the perfect opportunity to purchase some good quality gifts for those special little ones.

Trip to D. C. planned

A trip to Washington, D.C. is being planned for interested students in the 8th and 9th grades.

The trip is scheduled for Spring vacation, April 15, 16, and 17th. This tour will provide all participants a valuable insight into our nation's heritage and is coordinated by Lakeland Tours, Inc. of Charlottesville, Virginia.

Any parent who has not yet received a brochure or would like further information should call Joe Bouchard during the evening hours at 294-0864.

Vo-Tech starts year

South Shore Vocational Technical High School in Hanover began its twenty-seventh year in September with a Freshman Orientation Day followed by upperclassmen joining the new students.

Students from many South Shore communities including Abington, Brant Rock, Cohasset, Duxbury, Halifax, Hanover, Hanson, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Norwell, Ocean Bluff, Pembroke, Rockland, Scituate, Plymouth and Whitman are enrolled in 17 trade areas offered at South Shore. Shop programs include automotive, auto body, heating-ventilation and air conditioning, welding, percision metal fabrication, machine shop, carpentry, drafting, electronics, packaging machine maintenance, electrical, culinary arts, graphic arts, marine technology, painting and wall finishing, merchandising-marketing and management and cosmetology. The students also take a full academic program in addition to career training.

Art/Music course

A new course is being offered this fall at CHS. "Everything you wanted to know about Art and Music, but were afraid to ask!" It is a history of art and music course beginning with the Medieval period and covering all of history to the present. In addition to the academic study, hands on projects will be completed such as charting musical notation, building musical instruments and painting frescoes. The course meets for half a year and will be repeated in the Spring. The instructors are Ms. Colleen Foley and Ms. Colleen Lucas.

Writer of the Month

The following article was written by Jonathan Maciel, CHS student. The "Writer of the Month" program is sponsored by "Whispers and Shadows" Literary magazine.

Rear View Mirror

The back of the classroom — myth, reality, or just a place to practice hair dresssing and design? Is it a place to learn, or is it a hair salon? To Mace and Steve it is a little of both. While learning of distant times and people, we can also practice basic hair design. While I prefer the braided look on Kerry, Steve prefers the windblown look on Meg.

Directly, this has no bearing on social studies, but it helps the whole atmosphere of the class. When students look good, they feel good, and that was what Steve and I were trying to do. We felt if we made the girls' hair look good, they would feel good and would perform to their fullest ability. With their class participation the whole class, along with Steve and myself, would benefit from their creative insights.

Someday in the future Steve and I are going to team teach a combo social studies and basic hair design course. When we teach, we will reflect on this tender moment in our lives and share it with future generations of hairdresser/social studies students. What is now considered tomfoolery in the back of the classroom is actually training for the future. It ensures the survival of generations of hairdresser/social studies students to come, thanks to Mace, Steve, Meg, Kerrie, and last, but not least, the tower of power, man of the hour, the head cheese, the big ragu — Mr. Bouchard.

Murray visits third grade

The four third grade classes at Osgood School had a guest on Friday, September 30th. Mary Jeanette Murray presented new classroom flags to the students in Mrs. Alcott's, Mrs. Atkinson's, Mrs. Montuori's, and Mrs. Schadhauser's rooms. The 3rd graders are learning about the election as part of their Social Studies program. They are following our Presidential election and will culminate this unit of study with a trip to the State House in Boston where they will be guests of Mary Jeanette Murray, sometime in November.

Reidy sets new scoring record . . .

more year to contend with. He now has 23 points on the fall campaign.

The victory improves the Skippers' record to 6-1 overall. Jimmy Gallagher and Dan Bliss added the other goals for Cohasset. Goalie Joel Reidy lost his bid for a shoutout when Rockland capitalized on a penalty shot. The Rockland goalie delivered a successful kick with two seconds left in the game.

COHASSET JUNIOR HIGH SOCCER RESULTS

Joseph Andrade scored two goals, while Dan Baird and Eric Drysdale added one each as Cohasset defeated Rockland, 4-3, September 25.

Willie Adams and Scott Theriault contributed with an assist each.

Two days later, Andrade produced a goal and an assist in leading Cohasset (2-1-1) to a 3-1 triumph over Braintree. Baird and Mike Reynolds also chipped in with goals, while Chris Kondrat recorded an assist for head coach Larry Schultz.

FIELD HOCKEY

Sara Bishop's goal early in the first half was the difference as Cohasset (5-0 small schools league, 5-2 overall) held on to a 1-0 non-league victory at Scituate September 29.

Bishop deflected a pass from Kim Dwyer in front of the net past Scituate's goalie Betsy Beecher.

"We won by the skin of our teeth. We made a lot of sloppy mistakes out there. We weren't finishing off plays throughout the whole game," said Cohasset coach Claire Brady, "We are not playing up to our potential.

Brady, however, did praise the efforts of Jackie Lydon (halfback) and Candi Jones, who posted the shoutout in net.

Cohasset out shot Scituate (1-5-1 overall) for the entire game.

"It is certainly a confidence-builder for us because we have some tough teams coming up," added Brady.

FOOTBALL

The way Cohasset marched down the field on their initial possession, it seemed that the home-team was going to play the role of spoiler. But in the end, it was the fatigue factor that spoiled Cohasset's homecoming on Milliken Field last Saturday. The final score was a 20-6 non-league defeat to unbeaten Scituate (3-0).

Moreover, the victory gives Scituate the proverbial bragging rights among the two crosstown rivals for an entire year. Cohasset (1-2) had previously owned them since 1984 (a 21-0 win in 1984, and 28-0 victory in 1986).

A 25-yard kickoff return by tri-captain Paul Froio (95 yards, 27 carries), putting the ball at the Scituate 48, opened the game for Cohasset. Sixteen plays later, Froio finished off the 6:42 scoring drive when he burst up the middle from two yards out. Froio, however, missed the extra-point conversion as Scituate's Garrett Tardie blocked the kick, 6-0.

"Our defense got better," said Scituate coach Paul Johnson, whose first defense unit surrendered its first points. "I don't know if our heads were in the game that first quarter, but we weren't reacting to situations."

Offensively, Scituate was unable to pick up a first down on their initial possession.

Both teams then stalled on their remaining offensive series in the first quarter. On Cohasset's first play in the second, they committed a turnover when sophomore noseguard Brad Duffy (13 tackles) recovered a fumble at the Skippers' 21. After sophomore tailback Kirt Herry (80 yards, 15 carries) was stopped on a first-down carry, the Sailors selected to go deep via pass. Senior split end Casey Smith was unintentionally bumped by Cohasset's Terry O'Leary in the end zone, giving the Sailors a first down-and-goal at the Skippers' 7. From there, sophomore halfback Joey Hayes (135 yards, 13 carries) gave Scituate the lead on a seven-yard run. Hayes also kicked the extra point, 7-6.

During a scoreless third period that saw the Sailors clammed down on defense, taking over on series when Cohasset failed on a fourth-and-two at midfield, Scituate showed their muscle and turned the game wide open in the fourth.

Junior halfback Mike Lyons, who was playing on a sore ankle suffered against Hingham last week, followed the blocks of Mike Walsh and Brad Holmes and raced 33 yards for a touchdown at the eight-minute mark. It was Lyon's fourth TD of the season. Two minutes later, Hayes iced the contest with his second rushing TD, a 32-yard scamper down the left sidelines.

"We started out real slow. I told the kids to come out firing. They apparently didn't believe me. We were not as sharp as we have been in the first two games (victories over Marshfield, 18-0, and Hingham, 47-6.) Maybe it is a blessing in disguise that we struggled early in the season than later on. Hopefully, we will learn from this," Johnson said. "We have to tip our hats to Cohasset. They must outweigh us by 20 pounds up front. They have a good line. In the second half, though we were able to contain them."

Kristen Ellinger was crowned Homecoming Queen during Saturday's game which concluded the high school's Spirit Week.

Cohasset's Noah Hill (2) tries desperately to block Scituate's Darren Barnes.

Cornerback Howie North, a senior transfer from Myrtle Beach, S.C., led Scituate 15 unassisted tackles, while Tardie (linebacker) and Duffy also received praise from Johnson.

Two-way starter (guard and linebacker) Chris Froio, Paul's twin brother led the Cohasset defense with 12 tackles. Chris was also credited with a fumble recovery.

"I thought we played a great first half; or best brand of football this year," said Cohasset coach Phil Pisano, whose club gained 160 offensive total yards, compared to Scituate's 277 (200 of them in the second half).

The interior line of Mike Meers (captain), C. Froio (captain), Pat Conroy, Matt Deveney and Eric Theriault did an outstanding job on offense.

Cohasset (1-2) will entertain East Bridgewater (2-1) at Milliken Field (1:30 p.m.) this Saturday, October 8.

Prediction: Cohasset 22, E.B. 14.

During half time ceremonies against Scituate Kristin Ellinger and Paul Froio were chosen as Cohasset's homecoming queen and king respectively.

MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

It's hard to believe that the warm summer is almost over and beautiful fall is upon us. Fall brings a renewed revival to the Cohasset Senior Center after a quiet summer season and we have been very busy organizing our schedules, getting ready for all our programs to get underway again after a few less hectic months. We are looking forward to seeing all the people that have been away and we hope to see some new faces. We plan to offer new programs and activities that will be of interest to Seniors and your ideas are always welcome. Come in to the office the first week in October to sign up for your favorite classes. The Senior Center is a place where you can come and enjoy meeting new friends, try new projects and socialize in a friendly place and have a good time. The following programs will start the first week in October and run for 10 weeks unless noted otherwise.

UP-DATE ON THE VAN

By this time, I know you all must be aware of the recent fire to the Senior Shuttle. It takes a long time to complete the process of paperwork and to replacing such a wonderful minibus. At this time, the Council would like to extend a great big thank you to all you wonderful volunteer drivers who came forward to help during this very frustrating period. To our "GREAT COHASSET VOLUNTEERS" THANKS! We are pleased to report that through Scoot in Norwell and the exective office of transportation, Cohasset might be replacing the Senior Shuttle with a beautiful new "16-B-2" with a lift to take special need adults. As we work out the details, we will be passing on the information directly to you and thanks for all your patience!

COMMUNITY HEALTH NEWS SPONSORED BY THE SOCIAL SERVICE LEAGUE WILL BE HELD:

Wednesday, October 19th - Senior Center 11:00 a.m.

NEWS FROM SHINE

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts has instituted a new customer service program to better serve Medex subscribers. Medex is the Massachusetts Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage supplementing Medicare, the federal government health and medical insurance program. There is a new telephone number for Medex subscribers with questions, who call from Metropolitan Boston, or from outside Mass. It is (617) 956-3790.

For people calling from elsewhere in Massachusetts, the telephone number is 1-800-258-2226. When a Medex subscriber calls Blue Cross/Blue Shield, the person will speak with a customer service representative in a specialized unit, working side-by-side with claims experts. This will identify and resolve problems more quickly. Medex subscribers who need to write, should address their mail to: Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Mass. P.O. Box 330 - No. Quincy, Ma. 02171.

SCARCITY OF HELP AWAITS AGING BABY BOOMERS

Who will take care of the baby boomers when they've grown old and need help? Spouses and children are the traditional care givers for the very old, but, notes Rand Corp. demographer Peter Morrison, elderly boomers will almost certainly have fewer of these around to help than their parents have. The boomers' parents average more than three children per family: the baby boomers are averaging well under two and many will have only one or none. Says Mr. Morrison "Early next century, when baby boomers grow old, they will have few adult children to fill the role of care giver because they produced so few offspring." Moreover, the baby boomers' high divorce rates means that even with a substantial level of remarriage, many will enter old age wihout spouses - particularly women, who continue to outlive men. First Parish services

FROM THE MINISTER'S STUDY:

Regretably, Susan Jackson, our new Parish Secretary as announced two weeks ago, was unable to arrange her schedule to accommodate the hours of our office, and could not continue her work with us.

We were very fortunate, however, in quickly finding a superbly qualified person to assume this position. Our new secretary is Nina Steele Wellford, a native of Cohasset now residing in Hingham where she is an active and enthusiastic member of the Old Ship Church (Unitarian Universalist.) Nina brings experience with Macintosh computers along with a marvelous sunny disposition to our church office. She and her husband Bede are the parents of two children, Jan, age 7, and Katie, age 5 1/2. Jan attended the Carriage House School at our Parish House.

Beginning this week, one Sunday a month this year we would like to try a new format for our Sunday morning schedule. At the usual hour of 10:30 a.m. the children will begin their classes in the Parish House while the adult congregation attends the service of worship in the Meeting House. At 11:30 a.m. when the service concludes in the Meeting House, the congregation will be invited to come to the Parish House where they will join with the children for their "Sharing Circle," a brief informal service of worship in which our children, their parents and teachers, and other members of the adult congregation may join in sharing some of the experiences and lessons gleaned from our religious education program.

In this way we hope to embody the spirit of last week's sermon calling upon each of us to think of ourselves as teachers and students participating in the nurturing environment of our church community. On these Sundays, coffee hour will follow the "Sharing Circle" in Trueblood Hall.

Outreach Pot Luck Supper:

On the 1st Wednesday of every month, the Outreach Committee sponsors an informal pot luck supper. Everyone is welcome to attend; just bring whatever food you'd like to share. Following supper, the Outreach Committee offers a report of its activities. The first supper of this year will be held October 5 at 6:30 p.m. in the Parish House.

A Word from the Care Circle:

The Care Circle exists within First Parish so that members can reach out to other members during times of stress. When committee members know or are told of births, deaths or other losses, illness, accident, relocations, or any other kind of joyful or sad stress in a First Parish family, they arrange for help in the form of a hot meal, a few hours of child care, a trip to the supermarket, transportation to an appointment or some other form of support.

We encourage the entire community at First Parish to keep the Care Circle informed of stressful events in others lives so we can respond. Members wishing to volunteer their services are most welcome and need only call the coordinator of the month listed each week in the newsletter.

Circle Dinner:

Our first round of Circle Dinners will be held Saturday evening Oct. 22. These dinners of from 8 to 10 persons, including both singles and couples, are held in the homes of our members and friends three times a year. Those attending bring either a casserole, a salad or a dessert. If you'd like to participate, please call the church office at 383-1100.

St. Mary's CYO news

All high school students interested in social and athletic events are invited to the next meeting of St. Mary of the Assumption Parish's CYO at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 13, at St. Ann's Hall, Lewis and Samoset streets.

The CYO, or Catholic Youth Organization, program is different this year because it includes ninth grader and encompasses more activities than the previous CREDO youth group, according to Mary McGowan.

CYO will meet every second Thursday of each month to plan social and athletic programs such as basketball, baseball and soccer.

Future events planned are a Nov. 6 trip to a nearby YMCA pool and gym, a dance in November, a hayride and Christmas gift-giving program in conjunction with Wellspring in December and a one-day and weekend ski trip during the winter.

New members are being recruited during October. The yearly membership fee is $5. The fee gives members a reduced rate at social events, which are open to all students. Athletic events are limited to members only.

McGowan and her husband, Jim, have run the parish's previous youth organization for the past 12 years. Students who have not received the CYO's first newsletter and are interested in learning more about the program may call 925-3928 to sign up for the mailing list.

NEED SOME HELP RAKING LEAVES??

If you are elderly or in special need of help with ranking leaves this fall, our Junior High Youth Group will once again be offering that assistance on Sunday afternoon, October 23rd. Please call the church office if you could provide us with an opportunity to serve (i.e., a lawn to rake!).

SENIOR HIGH

(9th - 12th Grades) will be meeting each Thursday evening from 6 to 7:30 p.m. for fun, fellowship and discussions. Adult advisors are Mike and Julie Wasp, Craig and Jeanie Muir, Judy and Gary Ritts.

JUNIOR HIGH

Next event: A walk in the Park, on Sunday, October 9, 3 to 5 p.m., beginning at the Martins, 140 Doane Street. Adult coordinators are Liz Martin and Gay Dane.

MARRIAGE ENCOUNTER WEEKEND:

A Marriage Encounter Weekend is 44 hours for married couples. A weekend without children, meals to prepare, beds to make, cars to wash, leaves to rake, etc. Marriage Encounter is for couples who have a good relationship and want to make it even better.

There will be two Marriage Encounter Weekends in New England this Fall: October 14, in northern MA/ southern NH area (Sept. 16 registration deadline), November 18, near Springfield, MA (Oct. 21 registration deadline.) For further information or to schedule an information session for your group, please contact the following local couple: David and Ann Smith of Scituate, 545-5982.

OLD FASHIONED COUNTRY AUCTION:

Saturday, Oct. 15 at 11 a.m., Heritage United Methodist Church at 236 Grove Street, Braintree. Proceeds for the benefit of the Protestant Social Service Bureau. For further information, call 773-6203.

Special program at St. Paul's

"Crossroads," a program of inquiry into the Catholic faith sponsored by St. Paul's Parish in Hingham will begin Thursday evening, Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in St. Paul's Coffee Shop located at 147 North Street in Hingham.

The program is designed to help people discern a call to experience Christ within the community of the Church. Inactive Catholics who want to take a new look at the Catholic faith, or people from other churches interested in exploring and learning about today's Catholic Church in a warm and welcoming environment are invited to come and listen.

The program, also designed for anyone who has not been baptized or has not been fully initiated in the Catholic Church with Eucharist and Confirmation, is based on the ancient Church rite of Christian Initiation of Adults (RCIA). The meeting will be held at 7:30p.m. each Thursday evening at the Coffee Shop. The program is open to anyone residing on the South Shore.

No reservations are necessary, but if you have any questions you can reach Fr. John Reardon at 749-0587 or Edie Scott at 749-3995.

St. Stephen's

Young Children's Choir to Begin

Ann Whiteley, a parishioner and experienced teacher of music, will begin rehearsals for a young children's choir on Thursday, Oct. 13 at 4 p.m. The choir is open to all children aged four through first grade. This choir continues to delight the parish with musical offerings on special worship occasions. The children, in an atmosphere of fun, get a wonderful introduction to the fundamentals of music.

New Members Celebrated

New Members' Sunday will take place Oct. 16. In the place of a sermon on that day, the New Members' Committee has arranged for parishioners to share what their faith means to them. It is always moving and humbling to hear how God's love has touched each of us. After the service there will be a special reception at which new members will be recognized.

Youth Group Halloween Party

St. Stephen's Youth Group, which meets on Mondays at 7 p.m., is planning a Halloween Party for pre-school through primary age children. The party will be on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 30, at 3:30 p.m. and will include games, refreshments, and a mildly haunted house.

Obituaries

Katherine E. Igo

A funeral Mass was celebrated Sept. 30 at St. Anthony's Church for Katherine E. (Signorelli) Igo, 48, of Cohasset, who died of cancer Sept. 26 at University Hospital, Boston.

Burial was at Woodside Cemetery.

Mrs. Igo was a sales representative for Miller Studios, Quincy.

She also worked for several years at Signorelli's, a family-owned restaurant.

Mrs. Igo was born and educated in Cohasset.

She is survived by her husband, Paul F. Igo of Cohasset; two sons, Paul Igo and Gregory Igo, and a daughter, Donna M. Igo, all of Cohasset; her mother, Anne (Montisano) Signorelli of Cohasset; two brothers, William S. Signorelli of Cohasset and Vito J. Signorelli of Quincy; and three sisters, Mary R. Green, Ann Percy and Barbara Gunville, all of Cohasset.

She was the daughter of the late Salvatore Signorelli and sister of the late Theresa Signorelli.

Funeral arrangements were by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St.

Donations may be made to University Hospital, c/o Medical Oncology Department, 88 E. Newton St., Boston, Ma., 02118.

Louise N. Nason

A funeral service was conducted Oct. 1 at the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St., for Louise N. (Nichols) Nason, 74, of Cohasset, who died Sept. 27 at South Shore Hospital, South Weymouth.

Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Mrs. Nason was an x-ray technician who was in charge of the x-ray department at South Shore Hospital for 10 years during the 1940s and 1950s.

A Cohasset resident for many years, she was also a clerk Cohasset town accountant's office.

Mrs. Nason was born and educated in Scituate.

She was a medical secretary and x-ray technician for the late Dr. Myer Carp, an orthopedic surgeon formerly affiliated with Massachusetts General Hospital and Beth Israel Hospital.

She is survived by her husband, William W. Nason, Jr.; a daughter, Muriel Roy of Israel; three sisters, Lucille Litchfield and Beatrice Holland, both of Scituate, and Glayds McAnally of Minnesota, and a grandson, Michael Roy of California.

The Rev. Clifford Cutler conducted the funeral service.

Shirley F. Neer

A memorial service was held Oct. 3 at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church for Shirley F. (Ferguson) Neer, 70, of Cohasset, who died Sept. 30, at University Hospital, Boston.

Burial was at Cohasset Central Cemetery.

Mrs. Neer was active in the arts and area civic groups in Cohasset and Boston.

She was a past president of the South Short Art Center and worked on the capital campaign that raised $950,000 for a new headquarters.

Mrs. Neer was a trustee of the South Shore Playhouse, the Cohasset chapter of the Garden Club of America and the Cohasset Yacht Club, and a member of St. Stephen's Church.

A member of the board of directors of the USS Constitution Museum and the Douglas A. Thom Clinic, Boston, she was also past program director of the Boston Morning Musicals, the past president of the Greater Boston Parents League and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Mrs. Neer owned and operated a nursery school in Cohasset for two years in the early 1940s before she retired to raise her family.

Born in Belmont, she also lived in Newton before she moved to Cohasset 48 years ago.

She attended the Erskin School, Newton, and was graduated from Wheelock College.

Wife of the late N. Frank Neer, Jr., she is survived by a son, N. Frank Neer,III, of Boston; two daughters, Susan A. Neer of Cambridge and Elizabeth Neer of Boston; a sister, Betty Brice of Birmingham, Ala.; and her fiance, Dr. Edward C. Dyer of Weston.

Funeral arrangements were by McNamara Sparrell Funeral Home, Norwell.

Donations may be made to St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., Cohasset, or the South Shore Art Center, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset.

Art center programs

New art workshop for kids

A new two-day workshop at the South Shore Art Center, "Writing with Pictures/Painting with Words" for young artists in grades 2-6, will take a look at the interrelationships of the various visual, performing and written arts.

The director of education at the center developed this workshop to show young artists how the different art forms work together. Most often, Linda Keating explained, children go one place for art lessons, another for music and yet another for ballet classes and never see the different disciplines taught or performed under one roof.

"Writing with Pictures/Painting with Words," which will be taught by Mary Fernandez-Sierra and Keating, will meet Saturday, Oct. 15 and 22, from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at the Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset. Students will combine visual and verbal elements in a mix-up of creative writing and painting projects. Poems, stories and myths, popular with children, will be used to inspire student art work in the first class and famous paintings by the masters will set the mood for student poems and stories in the second session.

This workshop is the first in a series of programs for young artists designed to give them a clearer insight into the relationships of one art form to the others. The other workshops are in the developmental stage and will be announced as soon as details are specific.

Advanced registration is required for "Writing with Pictures/Painting with Words."

For additional information, please call the South Shore Art Center at 383-9548. Programs of the Center are funded in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council for the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Fired clay sculpture

For young artists wanting to learn to sculpt with terra cotta, the South Shore Art Center offers a new course, "Fired Clay Sculpture."

South Shore sculptor Susan Ruggiero will teach a six-week course for ages 9-14 at the Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, starting Saturday, Nov. 6. The course will meet from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Advanced registration is required.

Students will be given individual attention as the instructor teaches the techniques of handbuilding and hollowing terra cotta figures — animals, people and imaginary creatures — which will be fired in the kiln. Ruggiero encourages of her students both large and small scale work and emphasizes the 3-D aspects of sculpture by having students consider each work's progress from every possible angle.

Registrations may be made by calling the South Shore Art Center at 383-9548. Programs of the Center are funded in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Coalition's recycling efforts stalled by high cost

By Tom Fabian
Mariner staff

The high cost of recycled products has hampered the South Shore Coalition's efforts to get its 'reduce, replace, recycle' campaign off the ground, coalition members said last week.

"Between (state senator) Bill Golden and myself we have talked to many local chambers of commerce about recycling. The frustrating thing is that we have not been able to get going," coalition director Jean Christensen of Marshfield said.

"The whole business of buying recycled paper has been a very frustrating experience," she said. "One thing that we have ascertained is that it is not an easy thing to find."

As part of their campaign, the coalition is encouraging the use of recycled paper by South Shore town governments.

The coalition includes town officials from Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Marshfield, Rockland, Scituate and Weymouth.

The reduce, replace, recycle program is part of the group's overall plans to manage solid waste on the South Shore.

The coalition was awarded a $125,000 state grant in April to develop a comprehensive solid waste management pilot program.

When grant money was put on hold during the summer, the coalition began its recycling program to keep alive interest in their solid waste management program, Chirstensen said.

She explained that there are no mills that produce recycled paper on the east coast.

The nearest recycling plant is in Ohio, but the most feasible supplier is in Wisconsin, she said.

She added that most of the stationery manufacturers, and those with the least expensive paper, are located on the west coast.

Paper purchased from the least expensive supplier, California-based Conservatree, would cost $78.80 for 5,000 sheets, Christensen said.

However, she said that she was unsure of transportation costs.

"We can't discuss it without knowing the costs," Marshfield selectman Richard Levin said.

"That's what we're told by everybody. It's the shipping cost that will kill you," Christensen said.

"I talked to my board and they are receptive, but I need more than this to talk about the bottom line," coalition chairman and Hull selectman John Silva of Hull said.

Norwell selectman Connie Hughes said she was concerned about the current focus of the program.

"It's hard to tell people to be worried about our stationery when at the school they're serving hot cocoa in (polystyrene) cups," she said.

Polystyrene, a material often used in disposable cups and plates, contains fluorocarbon, a suspected carcinogen.

"The schools produce a lot more paper than we do," Levin added.

Christensen said that both she and state officials have been trying to get businesses and schools to conduct "waste audits" so that they can reduce their disposal of solid wastes.

She added that by the end of the year industry standards will eliminate fluorocarbons from polystyrene products.

"One of the things about recycled paper is that it is a statement about what we are trying to do," Christensen said.

"It's a small piece. but it's our piece," Silva added.

Christensen explained that part of the coalition's task was to open markets and create the demand for recycled products.

In that way more recycled products, at reduced cost, will be made available.

"The more things are recycled, the more markets you need," she said.

Levin added, "It's a chicken and egg situation. You won't get more recycled products until you create a demand for them."

"You may find out that you are already buying recycled materials," Christensen added, saying that people are often unaware that something is recycled.

"You should find out about it, so you can let people know about it," she said.

On another note, Christensen said that on a recent tour of the SEMASS incinerator in Rochester she was pleased to see the efforts made towards recycling.

She said SEMASS officials said they will provide special bags to residents of towns using the facility. The bright orange bags will be for recyclable products and will be separated from other waste on the plant's dumping floor.

"It sounds like a good idea," she said.

New Theatre season

That New Theatre, which recently presented the musical "Chicago" as its debut at the Cushing Center in Norwell, will present two more shows this season. Plans are already underway for a five-show season for 1989-90.

Double D Productions Inc., producers of the shows, said "Chicago" was an artistic success based on audience survey and response.

Don Capen and Donna Luther, artistic directors, said they would now proceed with organizing the remainder of this season and expand for the second season.

The next production is entitled "Tonite at 8!," under the direction of Dr. Stephen Levine, a professor of drama at Bridgewater State College. He recently directed the melodrama "Pure as the Driven Snow" in Norwell.

"Tonite at 8!" consists of two one-acts, the first entitled "Red Peppers," a 1930s English comedy by Noel Coward which originally starred Gertrude Lawrence and Coward.

The second show, entitled "Chinamen" by Michael Frayn of "Noises Off" fame, is an English farce which features two people playing five roles.

The show will be presented Jan. 12, 13 and 14 at 8 p.m. Reservations for this show can be made any time.

Public notice

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 88P2473E1

Estate of ARTHUR E. BJORKLUND late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK.

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that ARTHUR C. BJORKLUND of ROCKLAND in the County of PLYMOUTH be appointed executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on November 9, 1988.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand nine hundred and eighty eight.

Harbor committee delays its decision on piers

The harbor committee will wait until it receives more information on the proposal by the owners of The Oaks before it makes a recommendation to selectmen, according to its chairman.

"We voted last Thursday night (Oct. 6) not to make a recommendation yet," said Fritz Pfaffmann, committee chairman.

"Additional information is still coming forward.

"Our recommendation will depend on the information," he said.

One question involves the number of boat slips proposed, according to Pfaffmann.

"They applied for 109 slips," he said."But it's possible it could be smaller."

Pfaffmann said one application listed only 91 slips.

During the meeting, owner Michael Palmer was asked the smallest number of slips that would be possible.

"He said 50," Pfaffmann said.

Another question involves a variance granted by the town to the previous owners to use property as the executive offices of Yankee Oil and Gas, he said.

The variance was granted in return for a court document drafted by town counsel in 1983 that no changes take place on the property.

Under the new proposal, 27,820 yards of filled land would be dredged to make room for 109 boat slips around the property. A tennis court and two garages are now situated on that land.

Pfaffmann said his committee wants to know if the property will be converted to private residences.

"We asked Mr. Palmer to have a letter drafted from his lawyer (regarding the private residences)," he said.

Density of boats in the harbor was also discussed during the two-hour meeting, according to Pfaffmann.

He said he has no idea when the committee will be ready to make a recommendation.

"The sooner the better," he said.

"But we want to make sure we have all the pertinent information at our disposal."

Pfaffmann said his committee, which is an advisory committee to the board of selectmen, meets the first Thursday of the month at 7:30 p.m. at the Bates Building.

However, when the meetings are moved to the new town hall addition, they will begin at 8 p.m., he said.

Two candidates duel in the first state rep. debate

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

In the first of three debates between the candidates for state representative, incumbent Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray singled out her accomplishments for constituents over the past 12 years, while challenger John Silva lashed out at her lack of power and leadership at the state house.

Rep. Murray talked about the task of aiding constituents, while avoiding involvement with "local issues". Silva, currently chairman of the Hull Board of Selectmen, pledged his involvement in those issues, while emphasizing his commitment to regional concerns as chairman of the South Shore Coalition.

A panel of reporters from four local newspapers quizzed the candidates during a Tuesday night debate sponsored by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce.

Silva was asked, in light of his accusations that rep. Murray is an ineffective legislator, how he would command more respect on Beacon Hill as a freshman representative.

The candidate recalled his experience as a selectman in coordinating a regional fight against the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) to locate a sewerage outfall pipe three miles off the Point Allerton coast. Silva said he was pivotal in bringing MWRA director Paul Levy to a regional town meeting in Scituate where residents "spoke their piece" about the proposal.

"If I was able to do that as a selectman from Hull, and to work on the MWRA to move that pipe through coalition building and using regional power-building, then I think I'd make a very effective state representative," he answered.

Regarding that issue, Rep. Murray said when she first heard about the proposed outfall pipe location,

It took firefighters from Cohasset, Hull, Hingham and Scituate about an hour to get a Lothrop Street house fire under control Friday night. Chief Daniel Brock said the fire, which is still under investigation, destroyed more than half the two and a-half story wood-frame home. No one was home at the time of the fire. The summer cottage is owned by the Catlin family of Cohasset. There is no estimate of damage at this time, according to Chief Brock. (Photo by Kym Marcella)

Zoning board to decide on Deck Point condo permit

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

With experts in tow, Deck Point Inc. appeared before the Zoning Board of Appeals Thursday, Oct. 6, to request a comprehensive permit to construct a 128-unit residential condominium at 81-119 King St.

The presentation was met with questions from ZBA members and opposition by about seven of the 35 residents in the audience during the three-hour hearing.

It was continued to Tuesday, Oct. 18, at 8 p.m. at town hall.

ZBA chairman Myrna Putziger said that a decision will be made 40 days after the public hearing is closed.

The comprehensive permit allows the applicant to bypass local zoning in exchange for providing affordable housing.

The project would come under the Homeownership Opportunity Program and at least 25 percent of the units would be priced as affordable, an average of $78,500.

Qualified homebuyers under HOP may put down payments as low as five percent and borrow the balance at interest rates as low as 5 percent.

But residents voiced concerns about the project's proximity to the Cohasset Heights Landfill, lack of recreational space and steep slopes.

"We have to balance the need for open space against the need to secure low and moderate income housing."

Myrna Putziger
chairman, zoning board of appeals

Atty. Robert Devin of Hingham, who represented Deck Point, said the project, to be known as Cohasset Hill, would be built on 16 acres near King Street.

He said it would be comprised of two and three-bedroom residential town houses, the majority of which would be two-bedroom.

"The Cohasset Housing Authority expressed an interest in acquiring 12 units," said Devin. Nine of those would be three-bedroom and three would be two-bedroom," he said.

In addition, there would be 16 two-bedroom and 16 three-bedroom HOP units, according to Devin.

The other units would be priced at under $200,000, he said.

Development would be in four phases of six months each, according to Devin, and completion would be in two years.

If the project is not approved by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, then the applicant will apply for a rental program to be built in two phases, Devin said.

A total of 256 parking spaces, two for each unit, are planned, he said.

Impervious coverage would total 30.5 percent and open space, 69.5 percent, according to Devin.

Primary and emergency accesses would be located on Route 3A.

The development would have a private, on-site treatment plant, he said, and an open leaching field

Cohasset's week...

Stop and Shop decision

A settlement has been made with the Stop & Shop Companies, Inc. and the state attorney general that will return almost $5 million in coupons and other benefits to consumers.

The settlement, the result of a 1985 price-fixing case, is the largest ever secured by the attorney general's office in an antitrust action.

In addition to the refund coupons, Stop & Shop will donate $100,000 worth of food to the Western Massachusetts Food Bank.

The attorney general filed suit against three supermarkets in October, 1985—Stop & Shop, Waldbaum, Inc. and First National Supermarkets—charging them with conspiring to terminate double coupon offers between 1978 and 1982. The charges against Waldbaum were settled in April, 1987 and the case against First National Supermarkets is still pending.

Today's settlement and the agreement reached with Waldbaum has resulted in a total of $7.5 million in reimbursements to consumers.

Under the terms of the settlement, Stop & Shop will issue 1.6 million $1 coupons which will be redeemable on purchases of $10 or more at all eastern Massachusetts Stop & Shops. The dates of the $1 coupons will be announced at a later date..

"This settlement will return money to the wallets of shoppers who were deprived of the discounts they were entitled to in the first place," Shannon said. "I urge consumers to take full advantage of this settlement by cutting out the coupons and redeeming them.

The coupons will be included in newspaper inserts and mailers delivered to Massachusetts households and in advertising circulars available at Stop & Shop supermarkets.

Roof repairs

It would cost about $60,000 to replace the slate roof at Town Hall, according to a local businessman.

James Lydon of James Lydon & Sons in Scituate, wrote to selectmen with the estimate.

"I would recommend a heavy duty architectural grade shingle in a slate color as a practical alternative," stated Lydon.

"These come with a 35 year warranty which the actual lifetime of the roof will exceed."

Wheelwright changes

Wheelwright Farm condominiums was given permission by the planning board Oct. 5, to offer some units with three bedroom units in addition to the two bedroom units.

The change will allow the development to appeal to a wider range of buyers, according to owner John Rodolph.

Rodolph said that limiting the development to two bedroom units has hampered sales.

Of the 42 proposed units, 33 have been built and 27 have been sold, according to Rodolph.

He said adding the extra bedrooms would not change the exteriors, but would be accomplished by rearranging the floor plans of the two largest designs.

Board chairman Robert Sturdy favored the larger units to increase family housing in the town.

Sturdy noted that the local real estate market is becoming saturated with unsold condominiums.

Rodolph said he would submit to the planning board plans for each altered unit before it is built.

The health board has already given its permission for the extra bedrooms, he added.

The owners association was represented by Bruce Sebell who said his group was not opposed to the three-bedroom units.

However, he said he did not want to see drastic change in the design.

Resident opposes Oaks pier plan

Hamilton T. Tewksbury of Elm St. has written to selectmen of his concerns about dredging, pollution and other factors regarding proposed usage of the Oaks Estate by the new owners.

"I guess, in the first place, I don't understand how a private group can come into town and think they can dredge the harbor for their convenience," said Tewksbury, who attended the September 20 Conservation Commission meeting.

"This is what they're proposing.

"It may sound like they're giving us (the town) something (some boat slips) but basically, it's to make money for themselves—no other reason—at the very possible future expense to the town.

"Also along this line of thinking, it has always been my understanding that the only group that could dredge or would recommend a harbor dredging was the Army Corps of Engineers.

Tewksbury also said he was concerned about pollution.

"There can be no question that 109 more slips for power boats will add pollution to the harbor. Oil, gas, waste water, sewage, rubbish and other material.

"No one can convince me that this pollution will not occur. It's inevitable no matter how much control we attempt to invoke.

Tewksbury continued, "We need factual information from other sources: the local fisherman, fishermen in general, historical organizations familiar with the harbor and its evolution, marine specialists and oceanographers who can dispute what we were fed at that meeting.

Added Tewksbury, "I got the feeling that this group really didn't know the harbor—had no feeling for the harbor—perhaps knew something about marine life but were just out to exploit the facility and the harbor.

"This, like all other harbors, is a very fragile harbor.

"It needs to be cared for. It needs to be handled with 'kid gloves.'

"It needs the expertise of those individuals free from the ties of financial interest to evaluate its needs and do what is correct to enhance and maintain its beauty and usefulness."

Town clerk disagrees on meeting

Town Clerk Frances Marks belives an emergency meeting held by selectmen September 27 was not legal under the state's open meeting law.

Selectmen originally scheduled a public hearing with Eastern Edison Co. on September 26. That meeting was then postponed until Monday, Oct. 3. It was later changed to Tuesday, Oct. 4 because of the move to the new town hall addition.

At 4:15 p.m. Sept. 27, selectmen posted a notice of an emergency meeting to begin that night at the town hall. The purpose of the meeting was to hold the previously-scheduled Eastern Edision Co. public hearing.

The hearing was necessary so the developer of Rocky Hill Road, which is a new subdivision off North Main Street, would be able to install a conduit there.

When questioned last week why the hearing constituted an emergency meeting of the board, Chairman Burt Pratt said a delay in the selectmen's hearing would have cost the developer $16,000. It was their fault that the hearing had been previously postponed, Pratt explained.

But in a letter written to selectmen September 28, Town Clerk Marks said the hearing did not constitute an emergency meeting. "A public hearing is held so that the public is informed about the issue under discussion," she said this week. "No abutters - no one except for the selectmen - knew that the meeting was going to take place. "

In her letter to selectmen, Marks noted, "Be advised that I will not acept another posting under these conditions."

Pratt replied in writing to Marks' letter. "The law states that it is not necessary to post an emergency meeting. the meeting you refer to was posted against my wishes.

"Secondly, the subject matter of the meeting was of anemergency nature and was so ruled by town counsel," he stated.

"You well know that I have great respect for you personally, for your conduct of your office, and for your grasp of the laws pertaining to town government. However, in my position I have to rely on and be guided by the opinions of town counsel, and will continue to do so," Pratt wrote.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby also objected to the emergency session held Sept. 27. She told Chairman Pratt last week that she was never informed that the meeting was taking place. Pratt aruged that he had called her on her home answering phone, and that he was not obliged to notify her in writing.

Gjesteby said she never received any telephone message and therefore did not attend the meeting.

State representative candidate debate

she contacted Director Levy. "I didn't mince any words," she recalled. "About the fifth phone call, he assured me it wasn't going to go five miles off the coast of Hull, but asked me please not to say anything publicly so the other towns on the North Shore wouldn't be on his back. I take his word for it - it will not go five miles out. And the new destination is eight to nine miles off Hull."

The two candidates were asked their views on the proposed expansion of the Old Colony railroad into the South Shore.

"I haven't said too much about it because I'm waiting for the environmental impact report," the state representative said. "That's the key issue. Another big concern I have as far as the railroad is concerned is the fact that when my people leave Cohasset and Hingham on the train they're going to end up going to Braintree to take the Red Line. "

Challenger Silva said that as a regular commuter to Boston, he fully supports the restoration of the railroad. "The South Shore is the second fastest growing area of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. And yet we are the only suburb around greater Boston that does not have commuter rail. As a long term solution, we have to have commuter rail," he said.

"The debate," he continued, "should not be centered upon whether we need commuter rail, but on the public safety issues, and where the stations should be located. I think the entire process would move much faster."

Rep. Murray was asked if she holds regularly-scheduled office hours at the local town halls to meet constituents who want to meet her face-to-face yet can not travel into the state house for that opportunity.

The incumbent noted that she does not hold regularly-scheduled office hours like many other legislators, "because very few people come to see them. I make arrangements with my people when they call to meet them on Fridays when I'm in the district, on Saturdays, Sundays or evenings. I'm more than willing to meet anywhere, anytime," she answered.

As a selectman in Hull, Silva said he often meets with constituents on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. "As a state representative I would also institute regular office hours at each of the town halls. Even if only one person walks into town hall to ask one question, the accessibility is important. I would be available at each town hall on a regular basis, and also every evening and weekend," he replied.

Regarding the solid waste problems in each of the Third Plymouth District towns, the candidates were asked what the state's role should be in helping to solve this common crisis.

"The state should be promoting things that are environmentally responsive as well as economically responsive. The South Shore solid waste management plan with recycling, hazardous waste pick-up and a study of the potential waste-to-energy incineration is the first step," Silva stated. "One of the things I resent as a selectmen is the state mandating things to do and then forcing the town to undertake the cost of those mandates. In Hull in our landfill, we had to put in a leachate liner and yet the state ordered us to do it, yet refused to pick up the cost for it. One of the things I don't want to see is the state dictating to local communities what they should be doing, but rather offering resources to those communities to discuss regional solutions that all sides are comfortable with."

Rep. Murray noted that throughout her six terms as a state legislator, she has supported and continues to support environmentally-sound methods of solid waste disposal.

Candidate Silva was asked if he thought it would be feasible to continue as a Hull selectmen if he is elected to the state legislature. Silva said he saw the two reponsibilities as "mutually inclusive" and said if elected representative, he would give up his current job as executive director of the New England Mental Health Center Association. As a fulltime selectman and fulltime representative, Silva said he would be able to work at the state house on similar issues which affect Hull, Hingham and Cohasset.

Rep. Murray detailed how she was elected to the state house seat 12 years ago, while still serving as a Cohasset selectman. After a year and a-half Rep.

State representative debate

Murray realized she could not do both jobs "they way I always had." She waited until a regular election and announced her intention not to seek re-election. Rep. Murray warned that both are fulltime positions which can not be combined by one elected official.

And in answer to a question about the effectiveness of county government, Rep. Murray, who serves on the legislative committee on counties, said she does not advocate another form of government in its place. The power and money behind county government has been stripped by the state, she said. It could be a useful governmental tool for the towns if that power was returned.

Candidate Silva said county government needs an extensive overhaul. He noted that part-time county commissioners recently voted themselves a payraise, and are currently earning $18,000 a year which is paid by the taxpayers. He advocated regional solutions to common problems, but did feel the county can effectively solve those issues.

Health board approves gas tank

The health board gave its approval Tuesday night, Oct. 11, to increased underground storage of gasoline at Randy's Mobil Station, 190 King St., which is slated for a number of improvements, according to the owner.

"We're trying to redo the entire station," said owner Randall Parkinson of Cohasset who explained that a convenience store and a second island are planned.

The board granted a variance allowing the station to increase its underground storage of gasoline from 23,500 to 32,000 gallons in three tanks.

"If you leave what's there now, you'll need a (delivery) truck every other day," explained Parkinson, who said he has been associated with the station for 15 years and has owned it for three years.

"The tanks were functional for 1965, but now they are obsolete," he said.

In addition, a self-serve island will be constructed near the full serve island, and a canopy will be installed over both according to Parkinson.

"Mobil has a state-of-the-art canopy," Parkinson said.

"It's a good idea to have a canopy," said board chairman Sharon Becker.

There will be a fire suppression system for both islands, added Parkinson.

The convenience store will be the first in combination with a gas station in Cohasset, according to Parkinson.

"I think a convenience store with a gas station would be excellent for that corner," he said.

After the meeting, Parkinson said work on the station would take about 60 days.

However, approvals are first needed from selectmen, the zoning board of appeals and the planning board, he said.

The conservation commission has already given its approval, according to Parkinson.

School news . . .

Early release day Oct. 20

Thursday, Oct. 20 will be an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools.

There will be no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule: Junior/Senior High School - 12 noon; Deer Hill School - 12:40 p.m.; Joseph Osgood School - 12:50 p.m.

Lunch will be served in the Elementary schools and food service will be available at the Junior/Senior High School.

This early release day has been approved by the Cohasset School Committee to allow the staff to participate in FY '90 budget review and preparation.

Nursery school book fair

The Carriage House Nursery School, 23 N. Main Street, is sponsoring a 3 day book fair October 18, 19, 20. The hours are from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day and from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wed., Oct. 19.

The books are being supplied by the "Little Book Room" which is located in Milton and is favorably known for its "Distinctive Literature for Children." Available will be new publications as well as some old favorites that have been carefully selected for you.

Children are welcomed to accompany parents to choose a quality book from a wonderful selection that will be offered. And with the holidays just around the corner, this is the perfect opportunity to purchase some good quality gifts for those special little ones.

O'Donnell critics choice

Kevin O'Donnell, sixth grade student at the Deer Hill School is currently appearing in the North River Community Players' production of "Critic's Choice," a comedy in three acts by Ira Levin. Kevin has been studying acting since the second grade under the direction of Diane Purdy at the Children's Theatre Workshop in Quincy. This is his first appearance with the North River Community Players, a local theatre company which holds its plays cabaret style at the North River Community Club, 513 River Street in Norwell. "Critic's Choice" will be presented on Oct. 14, 15, 21 and 22, curtain at 8 p.m.

Whispers and Shadows, 1989

Work on the C.H.S. Literary and Arts magazine, Whispers and Shadows is underway. We are currently requesting and collecting poems, prose, short stories, drawings and photos from students in all grades. Please submit work to Mrs. Wood in Room 25, Ms. Lucas in the Art Room or in the box in the main office. The following is an article that appeared in the 1988 edition of Whispers and Shadows and was written by Jason Thayer, grade 8:

HALLOWEEN

On October thirty-first
When all the living souls are cursed,
Souls wander in the night.
One full glance gives you a fright —
Zombies, ghouls, witches, cats,
Ghosts and goblins, vampire bats,
Gypsies reading crystal balls,
The screaming shrill the banshee calls.
The dead are rising from their tombs, creeping forth beneath the moon.
On our journey in the night
the wicked witch ascends in flight,
Crying out a morbid scream
Because tonight is Halloween.
We're walking blindly on our way;
A creature rises from the bay.
Shadows waving in the dark
As we walk across Dead Man's Park.
Owls hooting make us scared,
fearing they'll be something there.
In the distance there's a glow
Showing us the way to go.
A graveyard in the field of clover
All the tombstones are knocked over
Straight ahead a haunted house.
So quiet you can hear a mouse.
Then suddenly. . .I hear a SCREAM
Ha.. ha..you fool, it's Halloween!

By Jason Thayer, Grade 8

"9%? AT THIS RATE, WE'LL HAVE TO HIRE EXTRA TELLERS."

"People are going for our new Horizon account in a big way. I think they like the security of having a passbook, and knowing what their balance is at any time.

"And they really like the special introductory rate: 9% annual interest on any amount over $1000. That's an effective annual yield of 9.55%. You just can't beat that one. Especially since there's no maturity date, and interest is compounded daily and posted monthly. Of course, accounts are F.D.I.C. insured.

□ Bob Magner, Rocco Laugelle, Bernie Mulcahy, Clark Chatterton, Ed Mulvey. Paul Fiori and Jack Lynch are a thrilled group this week. They have broken their record again! The annual Jimmy Fund Tournament was held at Hatherly Country Club last week, and $11,000 was raised. That brings the total to $60,000 that the tournament has contributed! There were 190 golfers, 230 people at the dinner held afterwards (the dinner was put on at cost by the Strawberry Parfait), and there were six trophies awarded: Mike Emmanuello's team won the John Carzis low gross trophy; Ralph Perroncello's team won the low net trophy; Marsh Litchfield trophy for being most persistent went to Brian O'Connell; Jack Twoigh won the Patricia Litchfield most enthusiastic golfer trophy; Richard Antoine (who travelled from Georgia to participate) won the Fred Troy most improved trophy; and Mark Gratta won the Ed Lynch Memorial trophy for getting the ball closest to the pin. Polly Litchfield, Martha Conley, Marge Ritter and Izzie Salvador collected the prizes for the raffle, which also smashed all existing records, while Ed Brennock raised over $1,000 by signing up sponsers for the holes. Great job, ladies and gents!!

□ The Community Center is on the lookout for parents who are willing to chaperone their teen dances. Do your part in helping something that all of the teens love, and call the center at 383-0088 today.

□ Judy Sestito will not be giving swimming lessons in Cohasset Harbor this fall, now that Bassing Beach is closed for the season. She will resume in the spring.

□ Congratulations to Ingrid (Gjesteby) and Dale James on the Sept. 23 birth of their son, Allen Scott James. Scott joins his brother, Adam who is 2. The happy grandparents are Bill and Jerry James from Longmeadow and Martha and Arne Gjesteby of Old Pasture Road in Cohasset.

□ Here's some great athletic news for Cohasset friends of two Cohasseters! The November 1988 issue of Yankee will carry a requested special article by Ellery Clark, Jr. on the athletic prowess of his world-reknown greatest track and field father, Ellery Clark Sr. Also, this past weekend Ellery Jr. (born in Cohasset and a summer resident) had his moment of track glory. As the old man in Maryland's 9th annual Senior Olympics (age group 74-79) last summer's hard training at Lincoln Hillside bore fruit. He won medals in four difficult and hard-to-combine track events and was thrilled to receive a standing ovation. The events were: 1,500 meter race walk; 100 meters dash, 200 meters dash, and 1,500 meters run. The meet was sponsored by Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Maryland and had over a thousand competitors from that state.

□ Speaking of fitness, all Cohasset Jr/Sr High School students have again been tested for levels of fitness using the Presidential Physical Fitness test. Areas of testing include situps, flexed arm hang for girls and pull-ups for boys, standing long jump, shuttle run, 50 yard dash and 600 yard run. Students achieving the 85th percentile or better received a Presidential Fitness patch and a certificate of achievement from President Reagan. Students achieving the 85th percentile or better on all but one area received a merit patch. Congratulations to the following winners: Seniors: Kristin Ellinger, merit winners were Chris Froio and Chris Flood, Jackie Lydon. Jay Staunton and Michelle Massa were winners also. Juniors were Veronica DeVos, Travis Coley and Alida Dean; merit winners were Madyn MacDonald. Sophomores were Barbara Lagroteria, Kara Manion, merit winner Josh Whitman. Freshman merit winner was Bridget Leung. Eighth graders were Willy Adams, Ben Chittick, Nathan Fiori, Steven Harrington, Nicole Haefour, Shona Hislop, Ray Jones, Bill Jordan, Maria Kierce, Jessica Pyfrom. Merit winners were Kate Delima, Doug Ellinger, Colleen Fitzsimmons, Tara Gallagher, Colby Lawrence, Allison Ludlow, John Maynard, Sheldon Morgan, Josh Muir, Katie O'Brien, and Mike Reynolds. Seventh graders were Tim Brister, Charles Endris, Becky Golden, Lindsye Tibbetts. Merit winners were Christa Ansberg, Priscilla Goff, Herb Jones, Chris Kondrat, Sherinne McCovery, Sean Milligan, Kate Norris, Diane Saldi and Emily Spencer. Other winners were Andrew Rossi, Laura Gagliano, and Alida Dean. Merit winners were Allison James, Pat Smith, Allegra Snyder, Amy Gallant, and Tonya Peterson.

That's all there is to write for this week.

Bad omen

There were some strong words uttered in town hall last week when the board of selectmen met with members of the recreation commission.

The commissioners had requested in writing time on the selectmen's agenda to discuss some concerns they had about a proposal to place a switchboard operator/receptionist in their new office space in the town hall addition. They were denied an official slot on the agenda schedule, although selectmen did recognize them and allow them to talk at last week's meeting.

That is not an issue of concern to many people. But to the recreation commission and its director, it was an important issue. They were finally, after 12 years, leaving the tiny cubicle on the first floor of the old town hall, and moving into more spacious accomodations in the new wing.

But rather than a cause for celebration, the move has turned into a logistical nightmare. Selectmen decided that a receptionist/switchboard operator would have to share the new recreation department office. Although selectmen said the recreation commissioners were part of this decision which was made in May, the commission members denied it.

Last week, they repeatedly recalled that no vote - no firm decision was every taken by selectmen to locate the receptionist in the recreation department office. Selectmen Burt Pratt and Rocco Laugelle firmly disagreed, saying it was stated in the minutes of that May town hall meeting that the move would be made.

No minutes were ever produced showing that vote, but selectmen insisted it had taken place.

When recreation director Jack Worley outlined his specific reasons why they did not want a receptionist on that office, selectmen Pratt and Laugelle repeatedly interrupted him. And when selectman James Gallagher attempted to aplogize for their rudeness, he was embarassingly rebuked.

The outburst between selectmen was repugnant. But more important was the lack of courtesy and respect selectmen Laugelle and Pratt showed to the recreation commission.

Personalities being what they are, it might be difficult for town officials to always proceed peacefully with other officials from other boards. But common courtesy and respect for everyone is the least we can expect from our elected officials.

The behavior of these selectmen toward the recreation commission was inexcusable. Selectman Pratt was obliged to allow the commission time on the agenda as the members had requested.

It was disheartening to see such a display of unfortunate behavior by our elected officials last week. The very least the recreation commission deserved was some honest attention by selectmen. What they received was a blatant disregard for their rights as town officials.

Selectmen Laugelle and Pratt were obviously against the commission's proposal. That is certainly within everyone's fundamental right to disagree.

But they had no right to ignore the commissioners' requests, to repeatedly interrupt their statements, as if their words held no meaning.

This may be a relatively small matter to some. But to the recreation commission, which was denied its fundamental right to disagree with selectmen, it could be an omen that such an unpleasant circumstance could occur again.

NEWS ITEM — Cohasset: 'Life expectancy of available graves for sale in town cemeteries is approximately 10-years,' warns report. School officials review cemetery plan. Cemetery Study Committee would like to develop 5000-grave cemetery on 14 acres of a 70-acre parcel which runs from the Osgood School to Deer Hill School. Best of sites

CLT says votes yes on Question 2

Letters

To the Editor:

Citizens for Limited Taxation feels left out. After being at the center of most major ballot controversy in the past, we are not even mentioned as proponents of Question Two by the opponents of prevailing wage repeal. Their television and radio ads give the distinct impression that our allies, the Mass. Association of Builders and Contractors, are in this campaign alone.

The fact is, CLT has been a member of the repeal coalition since 1983, when the state prevailing wage law was brought to our attention as a problem for Massachusetts communities who were adjusting to the requirements of Proposition 2 1/2. Under the 1914 law, cities and towns are forced by the state to pay the "prevailing union wage" for all contracted services, even if they can get those services for less in an open market.

Because of this, a community often pays more than necessary when it contracts for snow plowing, grass cutting and street sweeping, not to mention construction of schools, libraries, and senior centers. A private contractor who wants to compete with a lower bid is forced to pay his employees the state union wage for just the public project, even though they are doing private projects for less; his bid, of course, must be higher to cover this mandate. This means that the community has less to spend on other services, or, if the project is done as the result of a Prop 2 1/2 override, that the taxpayers must pay more.

The issue is a simple one to us. A yes vote on Question Two lets the free market operate, a no vote keeps the state mandate and the status quo. We urge a yes vote on Question Two; it's good for you.

Coleman helps out with Ted's tribute

The Jimmy Fund, the fundraising arm of the Dana Farber Cancer Research Institute, is sponsoring a "Tribute to No. 9" at the Wang Center in Boston Nov. 10.

Ted Williams, one of the busiest fundraisers throughout his career and in his retirement, will be honored by past and present baseball legends.

As is his custom, gentlemen need not wear ties to this reception.

Television personality David Hartman will host the gala event that begins at 8 p.m. Among the celebrities who will be paying tribute to Williams are: former teammates Dom DiMaggio, Johnny Pesky and Bobby Doerr.

Joe DiMaggio, Bob Feller, Tommy Lasorda, Reggie Jackson, author Stephen King, Bob Leavitt, sports editor for the Bangor Daily News, Curt Gowdy, Tip O'Neill and John Glenn also will attend.

There are 2,500 tickets available on a first come-first reserve basis for $35 each.

There also will be 750 tickets available at $100 apiece, and 750 available at $200 apiece, which will allow those ticket-holders to mingle with the headliners.

Cohasset's Ken Coleman, "the voice of the Red Sox," recalled a recent conversation with Reggie Jackson.

"I saw Reggie in Oakland last week," Coleman said, "and I told him how happy I was that he was coming to Ted's tribute. He commented how he travelled all year long even though he hates it 'But for Ted Williams and the Jimmy Fund I'd go any place.'"

Checks for the Nov. 10 tribute should be made payable to the Jimmy Fund and should be mailed to Ken Coleman care of the Ted Williams tribute, Fenway Park 02215. Include a self addressed, stamped envelope.

Unicorn Singers concert

The Unicorn Singers are celebrating a festive season as they mark the 10th anniversary of their debut production of Menotti's "The Unicorn, the Gorgon and the Manticore" with a special October 22 performance.

The Unicorn Singers and the all-female Broadcove Chorale are conducted by Margo Euler of Hingham. The vocal ensemble styles include choral, madrigals, operas, spirituals, jazz, barbershop, folksongs and music theatre.

The Fall Gala Concert as it is performed each year at the director's home, Broad Cove House in Hingham, is the primary fund-raising event of the season. This year, the town of Norwell is able to make the event available at popular prices by underwriting the production.

The Oct. 22 performance will be held at the Cushing Center, Route 123 in Norwell Center. Tickets are $3.00 each and can be purchased at the Cushing Center on Mondays and Thursdays. Or call Joanne Stella at 659-2674 for more information.

Lots of fun

There's nothing like a good slide, especially at the Cohasset Community Center Nursery School playground. Evidently, Amanda Turner agrees.

Gymnastics teacher Mary Foley holds on tight to an exuberant student, Andrew Daugherty.

experience at times and the need we all have for friendship and realized that because of age or for physical reasons, it is not always possible to get out to meet people. Therefore, the New Friends Program introduces people who are homebound to a New Friend. The primary purpose is to offer friendship through regular one-on-one visits. Visiting time is an opportunity for conversation — listening and sharing. Sometimes, New Friends offer assistance with shopping or errands, share a meal at a restaurant or take part in some other recreational activity. Charles Higginson. Jr.

A funeral service was conducted Oct. 12 at the First Parish Meeting House on Cohasset Harbor for Charles Higginson, Jr., 30, of Cohasset, who died of heart failure Oct. 8 at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, after a long battle with leukemia.

Burial was at Duxbury Cemetery.

He was an oil trader for the Catamount Petroleum Corp.

Mr. Higginson was graduated from the Potomac School, Virigina, in 1973 and Phillips Andover Academy in 1976, where he played football and lacrosse.

He was graduated from Colby College, Waterville, Maine, in 1981 and earned a diploma in economics from the London School of Economics in 1982.

Mr. Higginson worked as a financial analyst for Kidder & Peabody in New York.

He returned to Boston three years ago.

Well known in Cohasset for racing his International Class 110 sailboat, he also loved sailing catamarans and was a member of the Cohasset Yacht Club.

Mr. Higginson was also an avid skier,and was concerned with environmental issues. He was particularly interested in the study and research of birds.

He is survived by his wife, Susan (Garfield) Higginson; his parents, Charles and Genevra O. (Osborn) Higginson, and three brothers, Timothy Higginson, Stephen Higginson and Philip Higginson, all of Cohasset.

He was a descendant of the Rev. Francis Higginson of Salem, the first ordained minister in the American colonies and was a grandson of the founder of Scudder, Stevens and Clark.

Arrangements were by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home.

Donations may be made to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, Boston.

Mary A. King

A funeral Mass was celebrated Oct. 12 at St. Paul's Church, Hingham, for Mary A. "Mollye" (MacKenzie) King, 82, of Cohasset, who died Oct. 9.

Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery in Lynn.

Mrs. King was a retired business teacher at Somerville Junior High School.

Born in Waterbury, Conn., she was raised in Somerville.

She was graduated from Somerville High School, where she played basketball and field hockey.

Mrs. King took continuing education classes at Harvard University, Northeastern University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She worked as a secretary for A&P for several years.

A Cohasset resident for 41 years, she volunteered at the Consignment Shop in Cohasset and was a member of St. Paul's Church.

She is survived by her husband, Arthur C. King; a sister-in-law, Sr. Gladys E. King of the Sisters of St. Joseph at Fontbonne Academy, Milton; several nephews and a niece.

Funeral arrangements were by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St.

Holiday sampler art class

Create a unique gift for a friend in the South Shore Art Center's young artist course, Holiday Sampler, to be taught in Hingham at the South Shore Conservatory starting November 1.

Advanced registration is required for this course designed for students in grades two through six and may be made through the Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset.

The young artist courses taught in Hingham are part of the Center's satellite program funded by the Joseph Drown Foundation, a Los Angeles based philanthropic group.

The Holiday Sampler series will meet on Tuesdays from 3:30-5 p.m. for six weeks and each week students will be introduced to a different project and a different center instructor. Young artists will work on projects revolving around the December holidays and learn to create unique gifts for friends.

For further information on the Holiday Sampler series and other young artist classes, call the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. Programs of the Center are funded in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities.

Docket No. 88P2462E1

Estate of MARGARET ANN DILLON late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that WARREN DILLON of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK and THOMAS MARSHALL of KENTFIELD in the State of CALIFORNIA be appointed executors named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on November 9, 1988.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Rep. Murray back to work

Republican members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives succeeded in passing on a 25 to 9 vote, an order to get the House back to work.

"The House has technically been on vacation since July 16," said Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray. It is unreasonable and unfair for that vacation to continue while the Commonwealth and many cities and towns are faced with problems that need to be addressed."

"Our effort to force the House back into session today was blocked by a procedural move by the Democratic House leadership when it was ruled there were not enough members present for a quorum, stated Rep. Murray. If the percentage of Republicans present and ready to work was matched by an equal percentage of Democrats, then there would have been enough members to get back to work."

Rep. Murray pointed out that House members vacationed the last two weeks of July, all of August, all of September, and are now into October. She said, "There is no reasonable argument to defend this continuing vacation. Voters elected us to work in Beacon Hill, not to lounge through three or four months while major problems like auto insurance, budget imbalances, and vetoes that strip needed funds from cities and towns remain unaddressed."

"It's time to recognize that presidential politics is manipulating the agenda of state government," said Rep. Murray, and it's biggest impact is to keep the House on vacation and off the job.

"While I am in my office four days a week doing constituent work, we are not conducting any legislative work to ease the burden of the taxpayers of the Commonwealth."

Silva elected treasurer

John M. Silva, Chairman of the Hull Board of Selectmen and Democratic candidate for State Representative in the Third Plymouth District (Cohasset, Hingham and Hull), was unanimously elected Treasurer of the Plymouth County Selectman's Association at their Annual Meeting October 5. The Association represents the 26 cities and towns in Plymouth County.

Silva, currently the Chairman of the South Shore Coalition, has been a member of the Plymouth County Selectman's Association for four years. His term as Treasurer commenced immediately upon his election and will expire at the 1989 Annual Meeting of the Association. Mr. Silva's duties and responsibilities will include membership dues collection, coordination of all educational and membership functions, and management of the Association's financial accounts. As a result of his election, Mr. Silva will also serve on the Associations Executive Committee.

John resides at 73 Central Avenue, Hull with his wife Helena and their three sons. He is employed as the Executive Director of the New England Community Health Center Association in Boston.

Schedule of debates

The John M. Silva for State Representative campaign has announced the schedule for a series of debates between himself and Mary Jeannette Murray leading up to the November 8 election.

The date, time, site and sponsor are as follows:

October 11, at 6:30 p.m. at Hugo's, Cohasset, So. Shore Chamber of Commerce.

October 13, at 8 p.m., at Continental Cable, Scituate, Continental Cable.

October 20, at 7:30 p.m., at Hingham Central Junior High School, Hingham League of Women Voters.

October 24, at 6 p.m., at WATD Radio, Marshfield.

Studds fundraiser

Congressman Gerry Studds will attend a fundraiser at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Kasdon of 88 Beach Street in Cohasset.

The fundraiser to benefit the Congressman's reelection campaign, will be held at 4 p.m. October 16.

The minimum donation is $25. Tickets may be purchased at the door or through the Studds for Congress Committee, Standish Village Plaza on Route 139 in Pembroke.

For further information, the Studds Committee can be reached at 826-1988.

Republicans to meet Oct. 17

The South Shore Republican Club will hold "Candidates Day" at its next meeting, Monday, Oct. 17, at the Norwell Grange Hall on 123, corner of Main and South Streets.

Invited to speak at the 1 p.m. meeting are the following Republican candidates: Joe Malone running for U.S. Sentate: Mike Gilleran, candidate for U.S. Congress from the 11th Congressional District; Senator Ned Kirby, running for re-election from the Second Plymouth District; Bill Robinson, candidate for State Senate from the Norfolk and Plymouth District and Commissioner Matthew Striggles, running for re-election from Plymouth County.

A light luncheon will be served at noon with members from Cohasset, Hingham and Hull serving as hostesses.

The public is invited to attend. For more information call Pat Buckley at 383-0304 or Ruth Hall at 545-3777 .

Officials discuss courtroom education course

By Patricia Masterson
Mariner staff

An educational task force with representatives from six area towns met last week to hear officials from the judicial system discuss a joint venture between the school and the courts.

Hingham, Hanover, Hull, Norwell, Rockland, Scituate, Marshfield, Cohasset, Weymouth and Duxbury officials attended the meeting with Robert Clayman of the Massachusetts Supreme Court and District Court of Plymouth, and Joseph Condrick, probation officer of the Hingham District Court.

The justice officials introduced town and school officials to the Law-Related Education (LRE) program of the state Supreme district courts.

"What do you remember learning about your rights and responsibilities in Kindergarten through twelfth grade?" asked Clayman. "What did you learn about the justice system in junior high school and high school?

"Rights and responsibilities of the law are left out or glossed over in the school systems," he said. "They're not talked about in any great depth in high school text books, and many cases are incomplete, improperly cited or not cited at all, so if a student wants to look it up, it is difficult to do."

As part of LRE, students and teachers receive on-site education on the judicial system by visiting courtrooms and listening to justice officials in the classroom.

Clayman explained that teaching students about the law can be incorporated into the normal classroom curriculum. He said students would be reading, decoding new vocabulary and thinking.

"We provide a positive and constructive interaction of the judicial system," said Clayman. "We need to teach the students about the good, the bad and the ugly. They will see right through it if it is sugar-coated."

Massachusetts is one of five states to use the LRE programs as a model. Federal and state funds from such sources as the Department of Justice and the Department of Education are available to establish a program.

In addition to court visits, the LRE services include mock trials, pairing students with lawyers, judges and victim-witness advocates. The program also covers poster, essay and oratory competitions, conferences and curriculum development.

Many area schools, such as Hanover, are involved in the LRE. Social studies classes from Hanover visit actual trials each year.

Amateur gardeners meet

Members of the Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset will meet Tuesday, Oct. 18 at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Christine Flood with Mrs. Isabelle Wilson assisting as co-hostess.

The program, "Especially Yours — Hawaiian Flower Arranging," will be presented by Frank Tannasso of Canton.

Public notice

INVITATION TO BID CONSTRUCTION OF SOLID WASTE TRANSFER STATION TOWN OF COHASSET MASSACHUSETTS

Sealed bids for the Construction of the Cohasset Solid Waste Transfer Station will be received by the Cohasset Board of Health until 11:00 a.m. prevailing time on October 27, 1988 at the Office of the Board of Health, 43 Elm Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts 02025 at which place and time they will be opened publicly and read aloud.

The work includes construction of a solid waste transfer station including all appurtenant work. All work except permanent pavement must be completed within 150 calendar days. The permanent pavement shall be completed by May 15, 1989, after the base course pavement has weathered one winter season, or as otherwise determined by the Engineer.

The project will be officially advertised in the October 5, 1988 issue of the Central Register.

Contract Documents including plans, specifications, bid form, performance bond requirements and the form of contract are on file and may be examined at the office of the Engineer, S E A Consultants Inc., 485 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02139, or at the Office of the Board of Health, 41 Highland Avenue, Cohasset, Massachusetts 02025.

Plans and specifications may be obtained at the office of S E A Consultants Inc., 485 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02139, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. on every working day from October 5 to October 26, 1988.

Each set of Drawings and Specifications shall consist of one copy of each Drawing and one bound copy of the Specifications and shall be available for the deposit specified. To obtain a set of Drawings and Specifications, a potential bidder must deposit a certified check for $50.00 payable to S E A Consultants Inc. or deposit $50.00 in cash. Bidding documents will be mailed, if requested, upon receipt of an additional check in the amount of $15.00, payable to S E A Consultants Inc. as a nonrefundable postage and handling fee. Document deposits will be refunded upon return of the documents in good condition within fifteen (15) days after the opening of general bids. Plans and Specifications must be returned to the office of S E A Consultants Inc. for refunds of deposits; no Plans and Specifications will be accepted at the bid opening.

General Bids must be submitted on prescribed forms, enclosed in a sealed envelope bearing on the outside the bidder's name and address and titled, "Bid for Construction of the Cohasset Solid Waste Transfer Station", and addressed to Town of Cohasset, Office of the Board of Health, 43 Elm Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts 02025.

Each General Contractor must deposit with his bid, a bid security in the amount of 5 percent of the bid price and in a satisfactory form and as provided in the Instructions to Bidders. No proposal may be withdrawn for 60 days, Saturdays, Sundays, and legal Holidays excluded, after opening of bids. The successful bidder will be required to furnish in quintuplicate (i.e., five (5) copies) a Labor and Materials and a Performance Bond each equal to 100 percent of the contract price. Minimum wage rates for the project are established in the contract documents.

The Board of Health reserves the right to waive any informalities; to reject any or all proposals. A proposal which includes for any item a bid that is abnormally low or high may be rejected as unbalanced. The right is also reserved to accept any proposal deemed to be best for the Board of Health. In any event, general bids to be deemed acceptable shall conform in each and every way to all applicable Massachusetts General Laws.

A prebid conference will be held at the Cohasset Town Hall on Main Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts at 10:00 a.m. prevailing time on October 18, 1988. All interested Contractors are urged to attend.

Chapter 579 of the Acts of 1980 of the Massachusetts General Court shall apply to this contract.

General Contractors shall be required to comply with all applicable Massachusetts General Laws, and shall demonstrate current certification through the Massachusetts Division of Capital Planning and Operations for General Contracting, by submitting copies of Form 3 and Form 7. These forms must be submitted with the bid.

Materials and supplies used or incorporated in the performance of this contract are exempt from the sales and use tax.

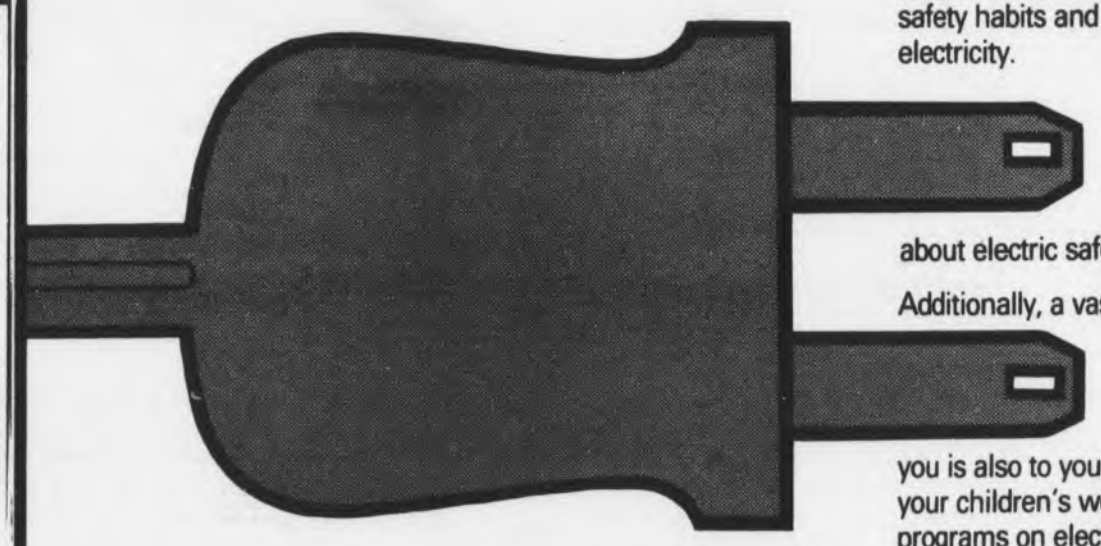
Plug in to Energy Education


At Eastern Edison Company, we take your children's safety seriously. And we want to provide your children with the information they need to protect themselves — so they stay safe.
That's why Eastern Edison works hard providing programs like "Electrical Safety — From A to ZAP" and "Stay Clear, Stay Alive." Such programs are designed to teach your children basic electric safety habits and answer their questions concerning electricity.
In the 1987-88 school year, nearly all third grade children, in the communities we serve, participated in "Electrical Safety —From A to ZAP". This program teaches about electric safety in and around the home.
Additionally, a vast majority of fifth graders took part in "Stay Clear, Stay Alive" which emphasizes electric safety outdoors.
At Eastern Edison, our commitment to you is also to your children. We're determined to contribute to your children's well-being by continuing to provide free programs on electric safety.
To participate, your children should ask their teacher to contact Eastern Edison. For further information on these and other programs, the person to contact is:

Zoning board to decide on Deck Point condo permit . . .

screened on all four sides.

He noted that Cohasset currently has only 2.5 percent of low and moderate income housing.

"We believe the application represents an opportunity and a responsibility to Cohasset," said Devin.

ZBA member Terrence Farrell asked whether more of the affordable units would be constructed at the end of the project.

"They will be distributed equally throughout the project," Devin said.

Architect Vcevold Strekalovsky of Hingham showed drawings of the project.

He pointed out the treatment plant by the emergency driveway and two passive recreation areas, one about 90 by 120 feet and the other 90 by 130 feet.

"I'd like to see more recreation space," said Farrell, who explained that the Deer Hill School has the closest recreational area.

"It's an asset to incorporate more recreational area for children," he said. "It makes it less a project and more of a pleasing environment for those who live there."

Strekalovsky said that all of the units are about 1,200 square feet, and that the developers will try to vary the architecture.

"There will be porches and balconies and a mix of color and materials," he said.

The grade of the access road will be a maximum of 10 percent and the last 25-30 feet will be flat, he said.

He explained that some of the townhouses will have garden flats underneath.

They will be in 19 clusters of 2 to 8 units, according to Strekalovsky.

Steven D. Gioiosa, P.E., director, site design division, GHR Engineering Associates, explained that a series of terracing would be created to slow the flow of draining water.

He said there would be catch basins and manholes as well as pipes to collect the drainage into a detention basin.

"It will surge and slowly release down Route 3A," said Gioiosa.

Paul D. Doran, Jr., P.E., president, C.A. Barry, Inc., engineering consultants, talked about the wastewater treatment plant and showed slides.

He explained that the process involves three levels of treatment more than that in septic tanks at people's homes.

"We're not proposing anything that has not been proven," said Doran.

In response to a question from Farrell, Doran replied that the plant would need an employee and a half to run it.

"What would be the cost to run it?" asked Putziger.

"It would cost $45,000 to $60,000 a year to operate a plant of this size," said Doran.

A model of the proposed 128-unit Deck Point condominium plan off King Street.

At the public comment portion of the hearing, no one spoke in favor of the project.

Wayne Sawchuk led off the opponents.

"Health and safety are the two most important issues the applicant faces," said Sawchuk.

"My concern is not to cause any detrimental affect to the residents who move in or are here now."

Sawchuk noted the location of the project in a watershed, the steepness of the road grades and the proximity to Webb-Norfolk Conveyor.

"Norfolk Conveyor will hopefully not be squeezed out by residential development," he said.

Michael Sullivan of the board of health questioned what potential health risks exist being that close to a landfill.

"I have read statements about greater increases of cancer," said Sullivan.

Putziger requested from Devin the distance between the nearest residence and the Cohasset Heights landfill.

Landfill owner Paul Barry noted that town meeting voted against changing the zoning of the property from industrial to residential.

He also expressed concern about constructing residential units so close to the landfill.

"I don't think you want to put 128 units there," he said.

Patricia Walsh of North Main Street said that the ZBA should make as conditions of the permit such things as moving the sewage treatment plant farther away from Sanctuary Pond, and constructing a "good" second access.

"The small recreation areas won't provide much for the children," she said, "and I'm not sure two parking spaces each are sufficient."

Robert Roth, general manager of Webb-Norfolk Conveyor, said he was concerned that the neighbors might be offensive to the residents of the development.

"The most obvious thing would be noise," said Roth. "I really think this would be a problem."

Chartis Langmaid of the Cohasset Housing Partnership said that the project doesn't provide amenities for any age group, and the roads will present a problem for snow removal because of the steep grade.

"I'm also concerned about the traffic flow," she said.

"Any project we support must accommodate families with children," Langmaid added.

The housing partnership has not supported the project.

"If the board feels it must issue a permit, I agree that restrictions should be put on," she said.

Presentations by Deck Point's huydrologist and traffic engineer were scheduled to the Oct. 18 hearing.

"We have to balance the need for open space against the need to secure low and moderate income housing," said Putziger.

Health officials discuss new disposal options

A representative of EAC Systems, Inc., talked to the health board Tuesday night, Oct. 11, about sending its trash to SEMASS earlier than 1991.

"If they could get down to $43 a ton, then it would be comparable to Maine," said board chairman Sharon Becker after the presentation by Thomas E. Julien, EAC director of wasteflow and control.

Becker explained that the town has been close to signing an agreement to have its trash transported to Penobscot, Maine, beginning next spring because there is no room at SEMASS, the trash-to-energy solid waste disposal firm in Rochester, until 1991.

"But now SEMASS has a new proposal," she said.

Julien explained that his company, with offices in Rochester and Albany, N.Y., provides all the waste for SEMASS.

He quoted a price of $45 a ton if the trash could be transported in the near future.

But health board members said that the transfer station at the landfill will not be completed until the spring, and the trash cannot be transported until then.

Julien had earlier quoted a price of $49.50 a ton.

Health board members also asked about the length of a contract with SEMASS.

"We're looking for a 10-year contract," said member Michael Sullivan.

Julien said he would contact the town early next week with his company's offer regarding price and longevity of contract.

Also attending the meeting were disposal area study committee members Priscilla Tebbetts, Jeff Power and Hap Pompeo.

Becker said the board will make a decision by mid-November.

The health board is scheduled to discuss amending the town by-law regarding testing of underground storage tanks at its Tuesday, Oct. 25, meeting.

"I don't understand why it (testing) has to cost $200, $300 and $400," said board member Michael Sullivan. "Is there anything we can do about it?"

The by-law, effective July 1, 1986, requires testing of underground storage tanks at 10 years, 15 years and yearly thereafter, according to board members.

Because of the expense involved, board members felt the matter should be discussed.

Any amendment would have to be approved at town meeting.

Health agent Dr. Joseph R. Godzik suggested that a part-time employee be hired by the town to do the testing.

"Or we could make a contract with a company (to do the testing)," said Godzik.

According to Godzik, the test is a simple one.

"The maximum actual testing time is one hour," he explained.

"You fill it (the tank) up so you can measure it with a ruler. If it doesn't go down in a half hour, it is considered tight.

"It's a very simple test."

Godzik said that the by-law was the result of a study done to develop a plan for the town to protect its water supply.

Health board chairman Sharon Becker suggested that another option would be to require testing of tanks in watershed areas.

Sullivan noted that the health board wrote to the state fire marshal's office last June on a related matter regarding permits for abandonment of underground tanks by homeowners.

The permits were being sought because the tanks are not accessible to heavy equipment without destroying patios, trees, driveways and ornamental shrubs, wrote the board.

"Because of the specificity of CMR 9.21 (1) & (2) regarding abandonment (and removal after two years), the Fire Chief and Board of Health cannot grant waivers," stated the letter.

The health board wrote that public health and safety would be served if small heating oil tanks could be abandoned in place with certain provisions.

It has not yet received an answer.

Fall fashion show and luncheon

A festive luncheon and fashion show is planned for Wednesday, Oct. 26, at 12 p.m. at the Cohasset Community Center.

Proceeds from this special event will benefit the Community Center Building Fund. Spectacular fashions from Appleseeds of Cohasset, and Evanas of Scituate, will be modeled by Karen Kirkendall, Joan Shockman, Shirley Tolan, Diane Costello, Claire Watts, Bernadette Stockinger, Ann Pratt, Claudia Story, Christine Whorisky, DeeDee Nicyski, Lisa Koed, and Patricia Lynes.

Tickets are $20 and may be purchased at the Community Center. Advance sales only, as there will be limited seating.

Call 383-0088 for further information or to reserve a table for eight.

School department releases land for cemetery

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

Seventy acres of land controlled by the school department has become a very popular commodity.

Currently, there are requests to use about 25 acres of that land which stretches from Rte. 3A and the Deer Hill School, to Pleasant Lane and Smith Place.

The school committee voted Monday to declare 14 acres of the land surplus so the town may develop plans for a 5,000-plot cemetery. According to plans proposed by the cemetery committee, that land which abuts the Deer Hill School, will have access from Smith Place and Pleasant Street.

The committee is taking under advisement a proposal by the housing authority to use a separate 8.6 acre parcel to develop 13 units of affordable family housing.

> "It is not a decision made in haste."

> School Committee Chairman

School committee members were careful to note several times Monday night that their decision to declare the land surplus does not constitute approval of any development plans. Once the land is declared surplus, it is transferred to the selectmen's jurisdiction, who must then present the specific proposals to town meeting.

The housing authority's proposal was presented by its site selectmen consultant Bernard Stewart. The housing authority had previously been given permission by the school committee to conduct percolation and test pits on the 8.6 acre site. Since

Officials support more money for another station plan

By Nancy McLaughlin
Mariner staff

Selectmen voted unanimously Monday night, Oct. 17, to ask the advisory committee to appropriate $10,000 to the Police/Fire Department Renovation Committee.

It also voted to add to the committee's charge to investigate a 911 system and any other alternative to the current communication system.

The $10,000 would be used to advertise for an architect and select and pay a firm to prepare a preliminary renovation plan for the police and fire department, according to Barbara J. Moore, committee chairman.

It would also include presentation of the plan to the town in the spring for consideration.

Moore noted that the committee has met with the police and fire chiefs, toured the stations and studied the previous Putnam & Associates proposed renovation plan.

The committee also received estimates from two architectural firms, $15,000 to $16,000 from Putnam Associates and $7,500 from Strekalovsky & Hoit, she said.

"This figure includes analysis of existing buildings, preliminary planning for proposed renovations and cost estimate for the designated work," stated Moore.

"A fee is calculated at 10 percent to 15 percent of the total fee for a project. They are using a project figure of $750,000.

"Ten to 15 percent of the total fee would be between $7,500 to $11,250.

"...the fee for the preliminary plan is part of the project fee," she added.

Moore said that additional room is needed by the police department for separate but equal locker and toilet facilities, evidence and records, sergeant's room, facilities for the handicapped and small kitchen space.

In addition, improvements are needed for such things as securing the communications area at the entry way, new ceiling, flooring, lighting, furniture, replacing the toilet facilities in cells with stainless steel security ware, installing air conditioning and replacing the heating system.

"In speaking extensively with Police Chief (Joseph) Kealey, we discovered that our policemen and women

A new home, new play for drama club

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

The history of the Cohasset Dramatic Club is rich with famous names and interesting anecdotes about their escapades on the Cohasset Town Hall stage.

But this amateur theatre group looks enthusiastically toward the future as it prepares a major musical production from a new stage.

For 68 years, the Cohasset Dramatic Club has been synonymous with the town hall auditorium - a comfortable setting for the three performances they stage each year. From that cavernous hall superstars were born, including Humphrey Bogart. Playwright Thornton Wilder first staged "Our Town" in the town hall theatre.

But in recent years, important town business - meetings and public hearings - prevented the club from using the auditorium as much as they desired. And last year, their season was cut short because of renovation and construction work to the new addition.

"It was time to look for another home," explained Ron Massa, vice president of the club.

As they traveled in search of a home, club members recalled the former Greenhouse Restaurant on Stagecoach Way. It had been vacant for several years, but it would make an ideal,

Silva again attacks Murray's leadership

By Jane Lane
Mariner staff

The challenger in the race for the Third Plymouth District representative seat was on the attack again during a second televised debate, describing the incumbent legislator's six terms as ineffective.

Last week, John Silva accused incumbent Mary Jeanette Murray of "additional evidence of ineffective leadership" at the state house.

In a debate hosted by Continental Cablevision last week, Silva admonished the representative for her lack of leadership during Cohasset's attempts to develop an approvable affordable housing plan.

When asked how she could justify support of affordable housing when her hometown was punished by the state for not having a mandated plan, Rep. Murray stated, "the state blackmails cities and towns all the time.

"The housing authority, the selectmen and the planning board have worked very hard for an agreement with the state. I became involved

Cohasset's week...

A bad walkway

The walkway in front of the new town hall addition will be done over if selectmen have their way.

The board voted 3 to 0 Monday night, Oct. 17, to have the brick walkway redone.

Selectman chairman Burt Pratt said that complaints have been made, particularly by women, who have caught the heels of their shoes in the spaces between the bricks and ruined their shoes.

"The walkway is a bad job and we shouldn't accept it," said Pratt.

He said the theory is that the stonedust between the bricks becomes like cement when it is wet, but it hasn't occurred.

"(Selectman) Rocky (Laugelle) is of the opinion that we should have it taken apart and done again," said Pratt.

Pratt and selectmen Martha Gjesteby and Cliff Mitman voted to contact the architect and have the subcontractor do the job again.

Laugelle and selectman James Gallagher were not at the meeting.

Center liquor licenses

Selectmen granted two, one-day liquor licenses to the Cohasset Community Center over the objections of chairman Burt Pratt.

"I don't believe the community center should be in the liquor business," said chairman Burt Pratt, Monday night.

"You haven't any right to store liquor in your building, in my opinion," he said.

The licenses were for a Call Firefighters dance Oct. 22, 8 p.m. to midnight, and a Frosty Frolic Jan. 28, 8 p.m. to midnight.

Voting in favor were selectmen Martha Gjesteby and Cliff Mitman. Members Rocco Laugelle and James Gallagher were not present.

Pratt and center director Judy Volungis have clashed before over the subject of one day licenses.

Volungis contended that fundraisers help pay the center's high operating costs.

Pratt has said that if the center wants to have such functions, it should apply for a club license.

He asked for a ruling from town counsel but said he was not satisfied with the response.

"To me, this is vague," said Pratt.

A representative of the community center said that the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission has left the matter in the hands of local selectmen.

He said that money from the fundraisers is used for reduction of the center's mortgage.

The center was also granted permission for its nursery school to hold a Halloween Fair Sunday, Oct. 30, on the Cohasset Common with pony rides.

Tree and park superintendent Peter Laugelle is to be consulted on the proper location for the ponies.

Selectmen's action

Selectmen took the following action at their meeting Monday night, Oct. 17, at Town Hall:

- Invited residents to apply for appointment to a five person liaison committee to work with the Hingham Animal Shelter Committee on planning an animal shelter to serve Cohasset, Hull and Hingham.

The shelter is to be built in Hingham for animals from these towns.

To apply, submit a resume to the selectmen's office, town hall.

- Appointed selectmen James Gallagher and Rocco Laugelle as liaisons to hearings involving the Cox Estate proposal.
- Appointed Anson Whealler, Max Pounder, Arthur Lehr and William Baird to a building committee to oversee construction of the transfer station at the Cedar St. Landfill.
- Abated ambulance bills from 1979 because of the statute of limitations.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby requested a list of ambulance bills from 1980 to 1987.

- Extended for five years Noel Collins' lease for the Independence Building, the old police station, with a cost of living increase.
- Discussed details of a possible contract with Greg Doyon, applicant for executive secretary, at a possible salary of $41,500.

Doyon is executive secretary in Hopkinton.

Arts lottery grants

The Cohasset Arts Lottery Council has given preliminary approval to seven applicants for grants under the lottery program. The recommended applications need endorsement from the state council.

Cohasset's Fall allotment of $1,386.50 will be divided among the following projects:

- Cohasset Council on Aging, for a performance by the South Shore Men of Harmony and the high school barbershop quartet, to an intergenerational audience.
- Cohasset Dramatic Club, to buy a used piano for the presentation of musical productions in their new clubhouse.
- Folio, a free regional arts newspaper, to offset some of its operating expenses.
- Resident Eleanor Gorman, for a photo documentary on "Big Sisters and Little Sisters," to be presented at the South Shore Art Center in April.
- Deer Hill School, to help defray the cost of a native American storyteller who will work with the school band to develop original music to accompany his stories for the Christmas concert.
- The South Shore Art Center, to help fund the vacation art drop-in program for children, and to help provide cash awards to artists for the All New England Shows.

In addition, two PASS (Performing Arts Student Series) applications were given preliminary approval. The program funds tickets to approved cultural events for students in kindergarten through grade 12.

"The projects represented by the 14 applications we received were all worthwhile," said chairman Karin Bartow. "Unfortunately, our funds are not great enough to cover them all, so we looked for new and high quality programs that will have the greatest impact on the most residents."

The next filing for arts lottery grants will be in January.

Brush chipping dates at dump

The final brush chipping dates have been set for the Cedar Street landfill.

Tree and Park personnel will be at the municipal landfill chipping brush Saturday, Oct. 29 and Monday, Oct. 31 between the hours of 8 a.m. and noon. Brush will not be accepted at the landfill at any other time.

No landscapers are allowed to dispose brush; only brush delivered by residents will be accepted. This is the last time this season that brush will be accepted or chipped.

The Board of Health would like to remind the townspeople that the landfill is closed on Tuesdays, Thursdays and holidays. The Cedar Street landfill is open all other days from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Stalled plans

Plans for the artificial island to be located about 30 miles off Cohasset Harbor, have been stalled, but are not dead, according to New Jersey developer Richard Gugel.

Although recently hospitalized, Gugel said he will continue to pursue the permit he needs from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to construct the island. Gugel's "Arabian Nights" will feature nightclubs, hotels, condominiums, sports arenas and health clubs. This is the first of several islands planned by the developer along the United States coast.

Gugel said he has received 217 letters in opposition to his proposal, all of which he must respond to as part of the permitting process by the Army Corps of Engineers. Three letters have been sent to the developer in favor of the project.

In addition, the developer has been ordered to submit an Environmental Impact Study, which he said could take up to five years to complete. Gugel has contacted agencies which have completed environmental studies of the same area which he intends to purchase.

In the meantime, Senator John Kerry has filed legislation which would close off 605 acres of coastal waters to future development. Gugel admitted that if the legislation is successful in Congress, it would prohibit him from building the island off Boston Harbor. He has also has a current proposal to build a similar island off the coast of Long Island, N.Y.

Hearing continued

A zoning board hearing on the comprehensive permit sought by Deck Point Inc. has been continued to November 16 at 8 p.m.

At that time, according to chairman Myrna Putzinger, the board will discuss concerns about pedestrian crossing from the proposed housing development on Rte. 3A near the Cohasset Heights landfill across the state highway.

Committee member Richard Farrell talked about his concerns regarding pedestrian access across the highway. He suggested that a walkway could be constructed from the housing development across Rte.3A.

Several residents who are in support of the project attended the public hearing. Deck Point plans to include 128 units of affordable family housing.

Deck Point Inc. presented two experts at the hearing, hydrologist Asaf Qaczilbash and traffic engineer Dermott Kelly from DJK Associates.

Cable politics

Continental Cablevision will present a full night of politics when they rerun the local candidate debates televised throughout the past month on Channel 53.

The night of local politics will take place Sunday, Nov. 6 beginning at 5 p.m. Among the candidates who will be featured in the marathon reruns are: John Silva and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, Congressman Gerry Studds and Jon Bryant; Joe Malone and Ted Kennedy Jr. as they appeared separately on the "Pierson to Person" show; William Robinson versus William Golden; and Boston Globe political columnist David Wilson on the "Pierson to Person" show.

Silva goes on the attack against Murray

when the local officials called me. I set up a meeting at the state house with EOCD (Executive Office of Communities and Development) and we came up with an agreement. They are working very hard now in Cohasset to find some land. But I'm sick of the state saying 'you're not doing this' but they're not helping us either," she said.

Her opponent noted, "as a 12-year incumbent to allow what dragged on in Cohasset over the last two years - leading Cohasset to the brink of being defunded by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts because they couldn't come up with an affordable housing plan is additional evidence of ineffectiveness.

"As a 12-year representative I would have been sitting at the state house and in every office at the state house developing and working actively to bring everybody to the table and to keep them at the table until a solution was arrived at much earlier than this."

The two candidates were asked how they would vote November 8 on referendum question two, a proposal to repeal the prevailing wage law.

"I am totally opposed to the repeal," Silva replied. "And I have not been convinced to change that view." Reading from a recent study, Silva noted "that the repeal of the prevailing wage will take place at the cost of increased instability in the construction market" with the fiercest competition for construction jobs coming from out of state companies.

Rep. Murray explained, "When people talk about prevailing wage, we are talking only for public buildings. This will not do away with private enterprise.

"The savings as far as eliminating the prevailing wage is to the taxpayer," she said. A recent example, she noted, was the recent $1.1 million addition to the Cohasset town hall. "If we had not had the prevailing wage law, we might have done that for far less money," she said.

"My feeling," according to Rep. Murray, "is that we ought to give the taxpayer a break. They're the ones who are always hit."

Silva was asked to specify ways in which he feels Rep. Murray has been ineffective for her district.

"It's one thing to talk about salt sheds," he noted, referring to an earlier statement by the representative that she sponsored legislation that resulted in salt sheds for the three communities. "But it's another thing to talk about environmental issues such as solid waste management, and developing a definitive approach to solving environmental problems on the South Shore.

"I'm not arguing that she played a hand in many of the items she outlined (in rep. Murray's opening statements), but in the most pressing issues - the affordable housing issues, the transportation issue and the landfill issues, I think she's been surprisingly conspicuous by her absence of a leadership role for the region."

Rep. Murray noted she has always attempted to co-sponsor legislation with the state senator from this district, and has called the senator each time to ask if he would co-sponsor as bill.

"As far as a leadership role in transporation, I have been to Washington, D.C. with the South Shore transportation group to try and get money for the three railroad lines. I recently wrote a letter to urge (the federal government) that we do receive the money. Regarding solid waste, I would like to see the county set up solid waste programs."

Silva repeated that she was absent from a meeting he set up in Scituate with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority regarding the proposed Boston Harbor sewer plant outfall pipe location.

Rep. Murray answered, "I had already talked with the past and present directors of the MWRA and the director assured me that we did not have the problem we thought we would have offshore. (At a previous debate, Rep. Murray explained that the MWRA director said the pipe would not be 2.3 miles off Hull as previously proposed, but the director asked Rep. Murray not to publicly say anything since the North Shore communities would become upset about the news.) He asked me to keep very quiet about that, so I could not go to the meeting because I knew something that I had given my word I would not say anything about. I had no intention of breaking my word."

The incumbent was asked what her misgivings are about the proposed restoration of the Old Colony railroad.

"I still have misgivings, partly because the Neponset Bridge is not rebuilt. I would rather see the bridge built first. I co-sponsored legislation the last five years to get it rebuilt. But it's my understanding that is the last part of this project to rebuild the railroad.

"I have environmental concerns, especially in the Weymouth, Hingham and Cohasset wetlands," she continued. "And they have not come out with the Environmental Impact Study. All they've done is to spend money but there are no definite answers."

Her opponent noted that the railroad restoration was supported overwhelmingly in a non binding referendum on the South Shore. Silva supports the commuter boat system, but noted there are limited docking facilities in Boston.

"There is no other reasonable answer," for this area, he stated. "But rather than waiting for an environmental impact statement on a line that was used up to 1960, I think a representative should be focusing on what is best for the region and focusing on the public safety issues and station location issues."

Rep. Murray noted that she had filed legislation for a monorail system along Rte. 3, which, she said, "is the most feasible way to go."

The two candidates also differed on the way they would serve the district at the state house.

"I only get involved in local issues when local officials contact me. I feel I am a liason for the towns with the state government agencies. I think I diminish my effectiveness as a state representative if I got involved in local issues," Rep. Murray said.

Silva argued with that philosphy, saying, "a state representative is a local politician, elected by the residents of three communities to represent them on local issues. That's what they are elected for."

Regarding Rep. Murray's charges that she was instrumental in helping to resolve Cohasset's fight with the state over its sewer project, Silva noted that he too crossed town boundaries when he helped negotiate a sewer intermunicipal agreement between Hingham, Hull and Cohasset.

Health board issues warning

The Cohasset Board of Health issued a warning to all parents and teachers regarding the recent distribution of a form of tattoo in the Manchester and Concord, NH, and surrounding Massachusetts area. These tattoos are laced with LSD, and others contain strychnine and LSD.

A form of tattoos called "Blue Star" consists of blue stars the size of a pencil eraser on a small sheet of white paper. Each star is soaked with LSD and can be removed and eaten or absorbs through the skin simply by handling the paper. Brightly colored tabs the size of postage stamps with pictures of Superman, butterflies, clowns, Mickey Mouse and other Disney characters packed in a red cardboard box wrapped in foil to appeal to children contain LSD. Three other foms have been identified to carry drugs and created to be attractive to our youngsters. They are: a red stamp called "Red Pyramid," "Micro Dot" in various colors, and another kind which has a grid that can be cut out is called "Window Pane."

Health Agent Joseph Godzik stated, "We can all help to stop drugs by being informed and knowing the symptoms and signs. These drugs are known to react very quickly."

Symptoms are: hallucinations, severe vomiting, uncontrolled laughter, mood changes, and change in body temperature. One must get to the hospital as quickly as possible. The police should be notified.

Dr. Godzik advised, "Please educate your children about these drugs and warn them about the enticingly created forms and shapes that have been devised to lure innocent youngsters into using drugs. If you or your child see any of the above, do not handle!"

are dedicated people and working in very poor conditions — but give the town the best they have," stated Moore.

"Chief Kealey has recommended the minimal needs and has eliminated plans of growth since it was not part of this committee's call. His recommendations have to do with safety, compliance with the law (handicap and separate but equal locker facilities) and more efficient working conditions," she said.

Because access to the police station needs to be secure and limited (due to prisoners, confidentiality and weapons), the committee found it inadvisable for the police and fire departments to share facilities, according to Moore.

"This in no way implies fire department employees are not to be trusted in the police area, but access from fire department into police department would also be accessible to the public," she stated.

Fire department needs include separate secretarial space, an apparatus maintenance room, classroom/day-room, filing storage space, mechanic and equipment storage, SCBA and medical storage, handicapped toilet facilities and additional dormitory space for men and women, according to Moore.

Other changes needed are air conditioning, new lighting, flooring, ceilings, paint and new furnishings, as well as upgrading or replacing the heating system, she said.

Overall renovations include such things as a new roof, replacement of most window sills and outside walls.

Possible additions to the building could be built over the fire department, making room for dormitory space, or over the police garage, for dormitory space for firemen and policemen's locker room with bathroom facilities.

"We are in the process of determining a practical renovation budget that can be passed by the voters," said Moore.

"Because of the serious need to renovate these facilities, we believe the preliminary plans should be presented to the voters in the spring.

"We've approached this from the aspect of trying to spend as little money as possible," said Moore.

"We realize the plan (last year) was not approved because of the cost," she said. "We don't believe $1 million has to be spent to do this."

Selectman chairman Burt Pratt disagreed that it was inadvisible to combine the facilities for police and fire.

"It's time we knocked a hole through the two facilities. They can live together and share the facilities."

Moore replied, "We have asked around, and traditionally, they are separate."

Moore added, "Something has to be done with the building because we are in violation of the codes, such as handicapped or separate but equal.

"In the event all this falls through, the town would have a lawsuit on its hands.

"The reason the building needs so much repair is that it has been let go so long."

Pratt said that there should be a consolidation of the town's five phone systems and a number for any emergency.

"The police phone system is very inadequate," said Moore, "but the fire department's is state of the art, brand new."

Robert Davenport, a member of the previous police/fire station renovation committee, suggested that selectmen go to committee meetings and give their input there.

"You people have to set the way from the start," said Davenport, "not half way in the middle."

After selectmen added the 911 charge, renovation committee member Fran Collins said, "That puts a whole different complexion on this.

"We've been trying to get the most for the least amount of money," he said.

"We're trying to keep within a reasonable, saleable package."

Selectman Martha Gjesteby commented, "Very few people know what the fire station number is.

"It isn't universal like 911."

Pratt suggested having just one dispatcher instead of two.

Police/Fire committee member David Chase asked when selectmen would like the information about the communication system.

As soon as possible, said Pratt.

"As of this week, we will be starting the budget process," he said.

Dramatic club finds a new home . . .

intimate theatre for their productions, they thought. "It was," Massa noted, "a good circumstance" that they discovered the unused area.

A deal was negotiated and for the past several weeks, members have been working frantically to transform the former restaurant and bar into a cabaret-style theatre.

Massa has worked nights and weekends, supervising reconstruction work in the second-floor, wood-beamed room. As performers rehearse for the upcoming fall production, Massa and crew are literally underfoot, constructing a bar from a torn-out partition wall, and supervising plumbers and electricians.

Massa is confident all will be ready when "Sugar Babies" - the first musical in many years staged by the Cohasset Dramatic Club - premieres Thursday, Nov. 10 at 8 p.m.

"It is intimate, cheerful and comfortable here," he said, surveying the wide-beamed wood floors, the wood ceiling beams and the large windows that fill the room at 8 Stagecoach Way.

There will be 20 tables surrounding the edge of the stage with seating for four persons at each table. The remaining seats will be symmetrically lined around the room.

In addition to all these "firsts" the club recently obtained a liquor license from the town and will sell beer, wine and champagne before and after each production, and during intermission.

Helen Ketcham, a member of the board of directors, noted that the club is now interested in inviting other musical and theatrical groups to perform on their stage. "We don't want to have this place just for ourselves," she said. "We'd like to host some event, be it chamber music, a choral group, a storyteller, or comedy, at least once a month."

"Sugar Babies" was just the production they were looking for - far different than anything the club has attempted in more than 25 years. "There are girls - lovely, young girls in this cast. We have lots of singers and lots of comedy. It's really a lot of fun," Ketcham explained.

Massa said obtaining rights to this popular musical was difficult, but the club ultimately was successful. "We're the first amateur theatre group on the South Shore to get the rights to this play," he noted. "In addition to our new home, we scored a real coupe with this play.

"It's a big change for us," he added. "We haven't put on a musical for 25 years. Our members have been involved in musicals in other towns, but now we can do this right here. It's exciting for us, and it has created a lot of enthusiasm around here." Massa noted that tickets for the November production are selling quickly.

The evening production, which will run Nov. 10, 11, 12, 17, 18, and 19 will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $8 each and are available from club members during evening rehearsals at the theatre, or by calling Barbara at 749-4800.

Cohasset Dramatic Club members Ron Massa and Helen Ketcham look over their checklist as they prepare their new home for their upcoming production of "Sugar Babies." (J. Paul MacDonald photo)

"Sugar Babies" is a recreation of the classic burlesque sketches. The fan dancer, the black light dancer, the baggy pants comedian and the "top banana" - performers reminiscent of Jack Benny, Phil Silvers and Jackie Gleason - are all part of this production. "It's a tribute to the classic burlesque," Massa said.

"It's a big departure for the dramatic club. But everyone feels very enthusiastic about it."

A lot remains in the planning stages following the November production, Massa explained. A murder mystery is scheduled in February, and the club is looking for new theatrical or musical groups to perform throughout the year.

"We don't just want to perform. We want to be hosts, too," he said. "Now that we have this great home, we want to share it."

School department land...

that time, the town and the state Executive Office of Communities and Development have negotiated on a memorandum of agreement which requires the town to pursue affordable housing. This is a commitment to fulfill that agreement, Stewart explained.

The soil tests indicated there is land west of Evergreen Lane which is suitable for housing. There is a large bog wetlands area which will remain undisturbed and act as a natural barrier between the housing authority proposed housing and the Evergreen Lane neighborhood.

Access to the 8.6 acres would either be from Rte. 3A or through the road constructed as the access to the new Delaney development. Stewart said such an agreement will have to be negotiated with the development owner.

An architect from Blanchard Associates, told the committee that six duplex, two-story, wood-framed units are planned for the 8.6 acres. Added to those 12 units may be a single-family home that may be donated to the housing authority and would have to be moved onto the site.

Stewart noted that as town meeting approaches, public meetings on the proposal will be held to acquaint residents with the type of housing planned for the site. All the units will contain three bedrooms, as required by the state for family housing.

The 8.6 acres of land is a little less than required by the town's zoning bylaws for cluster zoning, but noted that at this stage "everything is schematic."

The school committee decided to take the request under advisement. Meanwhile, the proposal will be reviewed by the school facilities committee.

The second proposal presented to the school committee was a request by the cemetery committee for 14 acres of land. According to the proposal by that committee, the land could accomodate about 5,000 graves which would give the town another enough plots for another 100 years.

It is estimated that engineering and site development costs will total about $1.1 million for the new cemetery. But if the cost of purchasing a grave is increased to $600 per plot, the town could bring in about $3 million in revenue.

Pratt explained that alternative sites were explored, but because the town owns this land and there would be no purchase price, this was the most affordable parcel.

That argument was opposed by Pleasant Street resident John Jerz, who said other sites may be less expensive to develop and may ultimately cost less than the Pleasant Street-Smith Place parcel. He suggested that money be spent to hire an engineer to conduct these cost analyses before the school department declares the property surplus. He argued that no cost data has been made available which would assist an engineer in deciding the most inexpensive alternative.

"It would be a mistake for the town to spend the money (on engineering), and then we could say no (to the request to declare the land surplus)," committee member Barbara Bliss said. "It's important that they know if we are going to say no beforehand. And then town meeting has the ultimate say."

The committee refused to delay its decision, noting that they have discussed this matter with the cemetery committee for several months. "It is not a decision made in haste," chairman Diana Kornet stated. Cemetery committee chairman Glenn Pratt also noted that an engineer had reviewed all alternate sites and declared the school land the most cost-efficient.

The school facilities committee reviewed the proposal and unanimously endorsed the request by the cemetery committee. "We're not looking at the pros and cons (of the proposal)," chairman Richard Silva stated. "We're just saying if we are willing to say the school does not need this land in the future. We're just making it available for consideration by town meeting."

"I happen to think it's a great place for a cemetery, but we should have some details in front of us," Jerz warned the committee. "In business, you would not go into a development like this without knowing the costs."

Kornet answered, "If this does proceed, this will enhance the edge of our school property (the Deer Hill School nature trails), so it is important what we release this land to. We would not release it for a liquor store. There are a number of things we wouldn't release it for."

The committee voted unanimously to declare the 14 acres surplus for school purposes.

Historical society calendar

The Cohasset Historical Society recently announced the sale of its 1989 Calendars — "Scenes of Old Cohasset."

For each of the twelve months, there is a picture of Cohasset as it appeared between 1850 and 1910. The scenes show the major focal attractions of the Town — the Harbor, the Common and the shore line. There are also pictures of buildings and street views of long ago which should revive memories of long-time residents. These pictures should also be of interest to newer residents who wish to see how Cohasset appeared in an even more tranquil era.

The twelve monthly pictures were found in the archives of the Cohasset Historical Society. The cover picture of Lothrop House was taken by Helen Pratt. The captions for each month consist of historical information provided by Senior Curator David Wadsworth.

The calendars are available for sale at Society headquarters — Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street as well as at Flemings, Kit & Kaboodle, Designer Creations, Nobles and Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy.

around town

□ Congratulations to the 124 people who went to the Cohasset Tri-annual Bloodmobile held at the First Parish House on September 27 to give the Gift of Life and donated 108 pints of blood. Special thanks are due to the Cohasset volunteers who promoted the Blood Drive for their churches, businesses, organizations and independents, the drop-ins. Thanks go to those who publicized the event also, as well as thanks to the volunteers who worked at the Bloodmobile: the receptionists, canteen workers, escorts, secretaries and the baby-sitters. Chairman Al Odermatt and Coordinator Corinne Cahill were more than pleased with the excellent turnout and the Red Cross staff, which resulted again in the best Community Bloodmobile in the South Shore District during the month of June. The next Bloodmobile will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 24, 1989.

□ Speaking of 1989, here is a great Christmas gift idea. The Historic Society has a calendar "Scenes of Old Cohasset" which has thirteen large, sepiatoned scenes of the town from around the turn of the century, and has plenty of room to keep track of all of those appointments. The calendars are available from many of the stores in town and can be picked up at the Lothrop House, well in advance of the Christmas giving season.

□ Everyone sure missed Doc Skinna a few weeks ago . . . he was too busy being treated like royalty to miss us though! He was having a grand time in West Virginia with Jerry Muse, and had a "blast" in the coal mines. Skinny reports that the people of Virginia are very friendly, and that you can be sure they will see him again next year.

□ Happy birthday to Carlton Pratt.

□ If you are thinking of sprucing up your yard, now is the time to do it. The dump will be taking residents' brush from 8 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday, Oct. 29 and Monday, Oct. 31. The tree and park dept. will be there with a chipper on those dates.

□ The Cohasset Dramatic Club is certainly excited. Bob Harlow is back, and he is directing and choreographing their November musical production "Sugar Babies." Watch for the dates to appear, and make your plans to attend.

□ Hats off to Cohasset Cable for running the debate between incumbent Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray and her challenger John Silva from Hull. It certainly helped people (voters) become aware of their positions, and a big help in deciding for whom to vote.

□ Congratulations to Jim Reidy, who broke the school's scoring record in soccer a few weeks ago, and now continues to break his own with every game. If you haven't seen Jim and the rest of the team in action, make sure to do so! Its a treat to watch.

□ Everyone is still talking about the lovely wedding that took place recently, the wedding of Lillian Carbone and Joe Sestito that is! Lillian was reported to be a beautiful bride, and she filled every eye with tears when she sang. May Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sestito have a long and happy life together.

□ The next time that you are in the area, go in! Into Cohasset High's Gallery near the art room, that is. Melissa Nothnagle is the artist of the month there and her work is wonderful.

□ This is the week that lots of people have been waiting for, the opening of the Cohasset Meat and Produce Center. For those of you that don't know, it is located in the former Bilner's building at Cushing Plaza.

□ Ladies, don't forget to circle your calendar. October 26 is the date, the Cohasset Community Center is the place, and 12 noon is the time. There is a fashion show and luncheon planned with the fashions from Appleseed's and Evana's. Karen Kirkendall, Joan Shockman, Shirley Tolan, Diane Costello, Claire Watts, Bernadette Stockinger, Ann Pratt, Claudia Story, Christine Whorisky, Dee Dee Nicyski, Lisa Koed and Patricia Lynes will do the modeling. Call 383-0088 for information.

Selectmen oppose Deck Point

Cohasset selectmen voted unanimously Monday night, Oct. 17, to oppose the Deck Point project which proposes to build a 128-unit residential condominium at 81-119 King St.

The developers are seeking a comprehensive permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals which would allow the applicant to bypass local zoning in exchange for providing affordable housing.

The project would come under the Homeownership Opportunity Program and at least 25 percent of the units would be priced as affordable, an average of $78,500.

"It isn't easy for me to vote against this project," said Selectman Martha Gjesteby.

"What concerns me is where it is, the isolation of people and the traffic problem," she said.

"There would be only one entrance. I'm concerned about children crossing the street.

"Knowing the traffic on Route 3A, and the increased traffic from office buildings to be built across the street, I wonder if it will be too much traffic.

"I know we need housing. But there seem to be some downsides to this."

Selectman chairman Burt Pratt noted a report from the Cohasset Housing Partnership.

"They think it should not go forward," said Pratt.

He quoted a line from the report, "In sum, it appeared that due to various concerns mentioned above, the overall quality of life would not be appropriate for a housing development which would include children."

Pratt also said that at last week's ZBA hearing, Webb-Norfolk Conveyor and Cohasset Heights Landfill "admitted they were lousy neighbors" because of such things as noise.

"The on-site sewer system is another downside," said Pratt.

Deck Point would have a private, on-site treatment plant and an open leaching field screened on all sides, a representative told the ZBA last week. It would cost $45,000 to $60,000 a year to run it, he said.

Selectman Cliff Mitman made a motion that the board go on record as opposed to Deck Point.

"The housing authority does have other propositions," noted Pratt.

"I agree with Cliff that it is an inappropriate use of that particular land."

Selectmen James Gallagher and Rocco Laugelle were not at the meeting.

Garden club meetings

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will sponsor a Men's night October 25.

Dessert will be served at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Parish House.

"Flower Arrangements for Home and Show" will be taught by Irish Grinnell at Bates Hall in St. Stephens Episcopal from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. October 27, November 6 and 13.

Some good viewing

During the past two weeks, there have been two debates featuring the two candidates for the office of state representative from the Third Plymouth District.

The two candidates, incumbent Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, and challenger John Silva, have agreed to a third debate which will take place tonight, Oct. 20 at 8 p.m. at Central Junior High School in Hingham. This debate will be aired on Continental Cablevision and is sponsored by the Hingham League of Women Voters.

The past two debates, one sponsored by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, and the other which was hosted by cable television personality Wigmore Pierson, have been shown live on the community cable network.

It is no surprise to us, but these debates have garnered a great amount of publicity and interest from the public. They are being watched by the residents of Hingham, Hull, and Cohasset. The candidates do indeed have an audience.

That's good news, because the two candidates have a lot of interesting and divergent thoughts on many of the current topics. These debates are the best format for opening up a candidate for public inspection, so to speak. It is an opportunity to understand how a candidate feels about important issues, and whether he can justify his actions about those issues. It is a good forum to find out if the politician is speaking about or around the issues.

As Rep. Murray has stated, agreeing to a series of debates is akin to giving her opponent free publicity. This indeed has been a wonderful and inexpensive method for Silva to get his face and his words on television in front of a large constituency.

We must then ackowledge Rep. Murray's graciousness in agreeing to participate in these debates. She has little to gain by the format, since she is a well-known, 12-year incumbent. On the other hand, Silva could gain needed recognition from his participation.

We hope their constituents are finding these debates informative and informational. Both candidates have been under the gun, answering questions from a host of inquiring panelists. That is not an easy task, yet they both have performed admirably.

As we approach election day this year, the voters of the Third Plymouth District should feel confident about the candidate they select for the seat in the state legislature. That confidence is due in no small way to cable television and the community organizations who have organized and sponsored these sessions.

On a personal note, I would like to inform the person who stole my tape recorder from last week's cable television debate, that I would like it returned.

There will be no questions asked. It may be returned by mail, or by dropping it off at either Mariner drop box - at the Cohasset Colonial drug store, or Cohasset News.

At the conclusion of last week's cable television debate, someone walked away with the taperecorder and the tape I used to record the one-hour session. In order to write about the debate, Continental Cablevision allowed me to use their facility to watch a video tape of the production.

It seems I have no luck with these gadgets. My first tape recorder was destroyed during the fire at the Hingham Mariner office last January.

Letters

Governor not in tune with environment

To the Editor:

This is an open letter intended to address the citizens of the state of Massachusetts.

Some time ago I sent a letter to your governor addressing some of the statements he has said about our environment we live in. No reply. It is quite obvious to me that the man has aligned himself with the obstructionists and opposes wise use of our natural resources.

You all know who the obstructionists are. They are the Wilderness Society, Audubon Society and Sierra Club. They applaud the burning of our forests and national parks. They work actively trying to prevent the forest service from reforesting our timberlands that burned up in 1987. The missing ingredient in their utopian dream world is people.

These preservationist are what we call gang-plankers. The boat is sailing and they are the last to board and pull the gang-plank, keeping others from sailing. "I have my house of wood but don't farm anymore trees to build more houses." "I use electricity to refrigerate my food and run my T.V., but don't build any more dams."

When your governor returns home defeated, I suggest you pressure him into cleaning up your bay. Also pin him down on balancing your state budget. From what I hear, he has borrowed from Peter to pay Paul and has not really solved anything.

A successfull season at Sandy Beach

To the Editor:

The active season at Sandy Beach has ended and now it is being enjoyed by strollers and viewers. 1988 was a very successful beach year in the hottest of summers. The Beach was well-supervised and clean and we were spared any mid-summer storms. The safety of swimmers was enhanced by the barrier buoys installed by the VFW and Austin Ahearn.

The Sandy Beach Association was pleased by the increase in donations by Cohasset people to help meet our $33,000 budget — mainly for personnel, supplies, insurance and taxes. This year we have had 70 additional donors bringing our total to 521 or about 20% of Cohasset households. The Association depends entirely on such fund-raising since it receives no part of the annual parking sticker fees.

The Sandy Beach Association gives its sincere thanks to all who supported the Beach this year and who could enjoy this valuable and beautiful town resource. For those who have not yet contributed, there is still time in 1988 to mail in a tax-deductible donation.

Community Center fall session

Cohasset Community Center is still accepting registrations for many of its fall programs, including the following:

Children age 1-3 and their moms can participate in Lex America Play Group, an 8-week course given on Friday mornings. This innovative program offers music, dance and play in foreign languages, which small children acquire naturally. Both children and adults enjoy cross-cultural experiences in a relaxed, enjoyable environment.

Children age 6-10 will love Cooking for Kids on Thursday 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. This 8-week course teaches kids cooking skills and kitchen safety as they prepare such yummy and nutritious foods as pizza, salads, and cookies.

For adults, several craft courses are being offered. Sweater Sampler Workshop (Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 12 noon) teaches a revolutionary knitting technique to create seam-free, pattern-free sweaters. In Needlepoint (Friday 10 a.m. to 12 noon) the beginner will learn a variety of canvas work stitches as well as proper techniques for creating lovely needlework. A Wreathmaking Workshop will be held on October 25 noon to 2:30 p.m. Participants will be making a Sweet Annie wreath of dried flowers and herbs in autumn colors. A workshop in Cut-and-Pierce Lampshades will be offered on Saturday, Nov. 5 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Health and Fitness is always on the agenda at the Center. In addition to our regular exercise classes, a course entitled "Five Minutes to a Better Back" will be given on Wednesday, Nov. 9 from 8 to 9:30 p.m. You'll learn how to get your back in good shape in this highly personalized session.

A special event to be held Wednesday, Oct. 26 will be our Annual Fashion Show and Luncheon.

For information concerning these or other programs, call the Cohasset Community Center at 383-0088.

Bargain bazaar items needed

Drop-off hours for the Village Fair Bargain Bazaar will begin Wednesday, Oct. 26 from 9 to 11:30 a.m., and will continue every Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and Wednesdays from 9 to 11:30 a.m. through November 30.

Please bring donations to the rear of St. Anthony's Church Rectory, 129 South Main Street.

Saleable household items, toys, sporting goods, linens, furniture, jewelry, dishes and holiday decorations are needed. No clothing, please.

Pack 38 Cub Scouts schedule

Parents and siblings are encouraged to attend the Pack Meetings. Your son may be receiving badges or participating in some of the ceremonies. You don't want to miss it.

All Scouts will be sitting with their Dens at the Pack Meetings. If there is any discipline problem, the scout will be warned. If he continues, he will be asked to sit back with his parents during the remainder of the meeting.

Eric Wenmark puts everything into his throw as he participates in the Cub Scout Bowl-a-Thon.
(Buzz Wadsworth photo)

Parents who are not Den Leaders or Assistants, are asked to donate two hours of their time to the Pack for the year. We may need volunteer parents for committees, refreshments, supervising games etc.

The Cohasset Boy Scouts recently presented the Hull Booster Club with a check to help keep their sports program going. David Townsend (far left) accepted the check in behalf of the Boosters from John Bryant, Merle Brown (committee chairman), John Pape, Cubmaster, Arthur Lehr Jr. and Linda Farrag.
(J. Paul MacDonald photo)

We will need volunteers for: Oct. 19 — Halloween Party, Dec. 22 — Christmas Party and Feb. 12 — Blue and Gold Dinner.

Thank you to Carol and Earle Bestick, who coordinated Pack 38's summer time activities: June — Nature Hunt, July — Alphabet Quiz, and August — Jungle Marathon. Many Tigers and Cubs attended. Three Attendance Awards will be given. The Pack will receive the Summer Time Pack Award Streamer for our flag.

Eight Scouts attended the Council Camporee at Stonehill College this past June. They include: Paul and Adam Sheerin, Tony Bramblett, James Drybanski, Todd Bestick, Turley Laas, Morgan Bigley and Jim Parzyck. They will present Pack 38 with a flag streamer for their participation in the Cub events. They also met their Super Heroes.

Important calendar dates: Oct. 21-23, Camporee to be announced, Oct. 27 (Thurs.), Cub/Tiger Family Day roller skating at Skateland in Whitman. Time and cost to be announced.

Round Table meetings: Nov. 2; Dec. 7; Jan. 4; Feb. 1. March 1; April 5, and May 3.

Committee Meetings (Cohasset): Nov. 13; Dec. 18; Jan. 15; Feb. 5; March 12 and April 16.

Pack Meetings (Cohasset): Nov. 16; Dec. 22, Thursday, Christmas Party; Jan. 18; Feb. 12, Blue and Gold Dinner at High School; March 15; April 19, Scout Advancement and Graduation; May 29, Memorial Day Parade; Summer Activity June, July and August.

All Den leaders will receive info on the play "Tom Sawyer" at the New England Life Hall in Boston. Dates are April 8, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, and 23. Performances are at 2 p.m. Cost is $7.50, $5.50 and $5. If interested Dens could get together or go as a Pack. Siblings invited. Order early for good seats.

Art center workshop on cartoons for kids

Examples of a cartoon strip known as "Marlin Keel" depicting the adventures of a seagoing scientist will be used by instructor Serena Brundige to illustrate successful cartoon drawings.

"Cartooning," a course for students in grades four through six, will meet at the center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, Fridays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. beginning November 4.

A new session of young artist courses begins October 31 in both Cohasset and its satellite locations in Hull, Weymouth, Quincy, Norwell, Hingham and Scituate. Advanced registration is required for all courses.

Brundige's father, George Shedd created the cartoon character Marlin Keel in a strip which became syndicated in 110 leading newspapers.

Brundige will use examples of her father's work to show her students the ingredients needed for successful cartooning, a way of communicating daily experiences through characters, symbolism and words.

Also coming up during the second fall session are courses in printmaking, firing clay, painting and mixed media for elementary students, and a design course for junior high and high school students.

For the very young, a Moms/Dads and Tots course will be taught by Nancy Connolly on Tuesdays from 10 to 11 a.m. in Cohasset. This course is for preschoolers and their parents and is a great opportunity to learn basic art and craft techniques which can be repeated at home.

For kindergarten children, Hingham artist Linda Stevens will teach Primary Skills/Primary Colors on Fridays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. in Cohasset. She will explore with her students drawing, painting, collage and sculpture while developing primary skills, imagination and visual sensitivity.

Thumbprints, vegetable prints and linoleum prints will be created in Lis Wyman's Printmaking course on Tuesdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. for students in grades four through six. She will introduce her students to traditional and non-traditional printing materials.

In addition to the Cartooning course, Brundige will also teach Firing Clay and Glazes, on Mondays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in Cohasset. Students will work with red firing clay and glazes using handbuilding techniques, such as hollowing, attaching, building and carving in creating finished pottery pieces. The course is for students in grades four through six.

For junior high and high school students, Susan Rodgerson will teach Elements of Design on Monday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. the course is designed to strengthen the young artist's understanding of the elements of good design. Projects will emphasize relationships and forces that convey a sense of balance and equilibrium in good design.

Also for this age the Saturday Morning Museum Tours will continue with trips to the Museum of Fine Arts. Rodgerson and her students in this course will select a period from art history and in turn analyze individual works for structure, techniques, expression and relationship in history. The second session of museum tours will begin October 22.

A sampling of projects and an introduction to all the teachers in the young artist department is offered through the Center's Holiday Sampler series. The course will be taught in Cohasset Thursdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. and also on varying days in Hingham, Weymouth, Norwell, Scituate and Quincy. Students work on six seasonal projects while becoming acquainted with all six children's instructors.

A complete listing of all young artist courses slated for the next session is available by calling the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548. Programs of the Center are funded in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Barbershop chorus performs Nov. 4

The South Shore Men of Harmony, 1988 Division IV Championship men's barbershop chorus, directed by Phil Carter of Hingham, will perform at 8 p.m., Friday, Nov. 4 at Cohasset High School, 143 Pond St. (off Rte. 3A).

Tickets for the Council of Aging event are $5 for adults and $3 for students. Tickets will be available at the door or by calling the Council on Aging office at 383-9112. Anyone needing transportation to the show may call us daily between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

The "evening with the South Shore Men of Harmony" is being held to raise funds to help sponsor an exercise class called "Age of Fitness" for special needs adults held on Thursday mornings at the Center. This event is being sponsored in part by the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council and the Cohasset Council on Aging.

Featured with the Men of Harmony will be a Cohasset High School barbershop quartet of students developed by Bryan Marks, music director for the school. Peter Greenman and Al Irwin are Cohasset members of the chorus.

The South Shore Men of Harmony is the largest chorus in Massachusetts. Age span is from 16 to 86 in the 100 man chorus.

Men interested in singing as a hobby are invited to join in the fun any Thursday evening at 8:15 p.m. at the Hingham Communtiy Center.

For more information regarding this program call Kathy at 383-9112.

Gourmet guild meeting

The Scituate Gourmet-Decorator Guild will meet on Tuesday November 11 at 8 p.m. at the First Trinitarian Congregational Church on Country Way in Scituate.

The meeting is entitled "Tisket A Tasket." The committee members, who participated in a workshop, will display and explain how baskets and bows can be used creatively for decorating and gift giving.

Membership to the club, which meets once a month from October to May, is still open and the fee is $20 for one year. Details of future meetings and activities are available at this meeting.

Candidates corner . . .

Golden endorsed

The Massachusetts League of Environmental Voters has endorsed William Golden, a candidate for re-election for Senator of the Norfolk and Plymouth District.

William Golden has been a strong supporter of environmental legislation in his two terms as Senator, according to the league. He is one of the leading advocates for clean up of Boston Harbor and was instrumental in founding Save the Harbor/Save the Bay, a citizens group created to monitor the harbor clean up.

The League of Environmental Voters urges citizens in the Norfolk and Plymouth District to send Senator Golden back to the State House to continue his fine work on behalf of the environment.

Taxpayers endorse Murray

The Board of Directors of Mass Taxpayers Committee endorsed the re-election of State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray.

Mass Taxpayers Committee is the largest pro-taxpayer Political Action Committee in Massachusetts.

Along with their endorsement, Mass Taxpayers Committee has contributed funds to Rep. Murray because she supports lower taxes, decreased government spending, and is a strong supporter of the private enterprise system, to promote a healthy economy and to provide good jobs for all, according to the committee.

Rep. Murray will continue to be an excellent State Representative, because in addition to her fine pro-taxpayers voting record, she is also very available to the people in her district to help them with their own particular problems, large or small, according to Gerard Mazzola, executive director of Mass. Taxpayers.

In making the announcement, Mazzola stated that Rep. Murray's record proves that she is the taxpayer's friend, as she voted with the taxpayers 88 percent of the time, according to Citizens for Limited Taxation (CLT), and in support of the private enterprise system 100 percent of the time, according to the Foundation for Economic Research.

Atkins at Silva reception

U.S. Congressman Chester Atkins will attend a reception for John M. Silva, Democratic candidate for State Representative, at the home of Diane and Jack Sullivan of 708 Jerusalem Road in Cohasset.

The fundraiser to benefit the election campaign will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or through the Committee to Elect John M. Silva, 73 Central Avenue, Hull or by calling 925-4360. The minimum donation is $25 per person.

Silva opposes Question 2

John M. Silva, candidate for the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Third Plymouth District, stated his objections to Question 2 at a recently-televised debate on Continental Cablevision.

The state referendum question proposes the repeal of the prevailing wage law which dictates that publicly funded construction projects contract to union scale wage.

"The Associated Builders and Contractors are the prime moving force behind the filing of this legislation. The group that stands the most to gain from the repeal of the prevailing wage in profits is the membership of that organization. There is absolutely no proof that because you cut salary costs on public construction projects, that you can decrease the level of bids for that job. It will just be more profits for the contractor," he said.

Quoting a report from Data Resources Inc., Silva said that the repeal "would take place at the cost of increased instability in the labor market, fiercer competition for jobs form out of state contractors and workers, and a lower standard of living for Massachusetts workers and their families."

He concluded, "I'm glad that Mrs. Murray has taken a stand on this issue that stand is for the repeal of the prevailing wage. I'm for the working man, I'm for the laborer, for the people who are trying to make a go of it in Massachusetts. I'm against Question 2."

Parent volunteers needed for PSO activities

The Cohasset Parent School Organization, better known as the PSO, began seven years ago.

At that time, there existed in each of the three schools, the Joseph Osgood, the Deerhill and the Jr. Sr. High School what was called "Communication Councils." These communication councils consisted of a small group of parents who met with their respective principals to discuss relevant issues and plan for special events.

Unfortunately because of a limited volunteer base, a very limited budget and a feeling of weak communication among all the schools, a group of parents felt a need existed for something better. After many meetings, much discussion and a great apprehension, the PSO of Cohasset came to be.

The name is unique. The "S" in s :hools represents teachers, principals, the superintendent, school committee members and the secretarial and custodial staff all working together with the parents to benefit the children.

The membership is unique in that every parent of a Cohasset school child belongs. The organization does not charge dues.

The structure of the Executive Board was designed to meet specific needs. It was felt that each school should still have their own reresentatives to the Board so that meetings could be held with principals and activities coordinated within that school. Serving as representatives to the Osgood School are Karen Devine and Kathey Walsh, at the Deerhill School are Debbie Cook and Olga Nohe, at the Jr. High School are Pat Baird and Regina Schultz and at the Sr. High School are Carol Martin and Claudia Story.

It was also felt there was a need for some standing committees to be formed to plan and coordinate activities of special interest that exist in all three schools. Curriculum Enrichment is chaired by Barbara Meehan and Sue Reardon, Fundraising by Ralph Kidder, Cheryl Bugley and Mary Margaret Senechal, Metco Hosts Families by Joan Kovac, PSO Activities by Patty McCarthy and Joan Pyfrom, Publicity by Donna O'Donnell and Elaine Coyne, and Special Needs by Betsy Connolly and Taffy Nothnagle. The organizational work of the PSO is handled by Retta Dwyer, Corresponding Secretary; Dorothy Nicynski, Recording Secretary; Letitia Jordan, Treasurer; Monica McKenney, Vice President, and Martha Equi, President.

An exciting part of the PSO is that it provides an avenue for parents' ideas to come to fruition. Many of the programs are in existance because someone was able to implement an idea or a program that they had heard about or had already successfully experienced in another community. Some of these special events include Artist of the Month, Disability Awareness, Jr. Great Books, Career Lecture Series, visiting theatrical groups, authors and illustrators as well as educational field trips.

The PSO will once again award Teacher Grants. This is the third year for this project and the PSO has been able to increase the amount of the grants awarded by 25 percent to $3,000. Teachers will fill out an application requesting items and programs that are not usually funded by the school budget. The applications selected are chosen at random by the school principals. Teachers are excited to receive these grants and the children greatly benefit by such additions to their curriculum as added software, videos and books, Museum of Science kits and guest speakers.

To support these projects, the PSO asks for a donation at the time their school calendar is sent out and again in the spring when the annual Phone-a-thon is held. During the year, individual schools hold their own fund-raising events. Each November the PSO sponsors a Monte Carlo night for all.

Parent volunteers are encouraged to participate in any area of the PSO activities that interest them. The success of the PSO, both past and future, depends on the dedicated efforts of parental volunteers and their continued commitment to quality education.

The PSO presents a general meeting each Fall and Spring for all members of the Cohasset school community. The Executive Board meets the second Thursday of the month in the High School AV Room. Parents are encouraged to attend these meetings.

Members of the PSO executive board met recently to discuss activities planned for this school year.

E. Bridgewater rolled over Skippers

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

On a breezy, cool, sunny afternoon at Milliken Field the East Bridgewater Vikings set sail and discovered how to beat a much bigger Cohasset football squad, rolling to a 30-6 rout over the Skippers on Columbus Day.

Behind the running of junior halfback Andy Dies (97 yards on 17 carries) and the leadership of captain quarterback Tom Ring, the Vikings accumulated 24 points in the second half to improve their overall record to 3-0-1 and 1-0 in the South Shore League Small Schools Division race. Cohasset, on the other hand, drops to 1-3 overall and 1-1 in the league.

"We were flat coming down here. We showed up a half-hour late because we had no bus driver to bring us to Cohasset. I was concerned about our attitude," said East Bridgewater's Ron St. George following the game. "I felt if we could utilize their quickness and size, our chances were good enough to win. Also, we had to contain Paul Froio who is probably one of the best backs in the league. He is the biggest part of their offense."

This is what East Bridgewater accomplished, holding Cohasset's tri-captain to 53 yards rushing. Before the contest, Froio had averaged 130 yards on the ground through the first three games, including a total of 202 against Carver two weeks ago.

"I don't know what it was, but it seemed like everything we did, we just fell apart. This is a tough team compared to Scituate," said Froio, whose twin brother, Chris, also a captain, was ejected in the third quarter creating a disadvantage in Cohasset's interior line.

At the time, Cohasset was only trailing East Bridgewater, 6-0. However, one play later, captain linebacker Matt Gomes returned a 5-yard interception for a touchdown, giving the Vikings a 14-0 lead as Dies converted the two-point rush.

"That interception was the turning point of the game. It really took the steam out of us," said Cohasset football coach Phil Pisano. "They basically outplayed us. They were tougher than us, and beat us to the punch everytime."

On the first play in the second quarter, Ring threw the ball to P. Froio who then tipped it to Jim Donohue. Donahue raced 75 yards down the Cohasset sidelines for an apparent touchdown, but it was nullified as the Skippers were called for an illegal block on the return. The ball was brought back to the Cohasset 43 where their drive stalled on four downs.

From there, the Vikings marched down the field in 11 plays for the first score of the game. Dies capped off a 59-yard, 5:21 drive with a one-yard dive, 6-0. Donohue stopped Ring short of the goal line for the two-point conversion.

With a minute left in the third, P. Froio fumbled the ball at the EB 48. The Vikings capitalized on the turnover as Dies scored his second touchdown of the day on a 15-yard dash, 22-0. Dies set up his own score with a 23-yard run to the Cohasset 15 prior to the touchdown.

Cohasset avoided the shutout in the fourth when P. Froio produced a 10-yard touchdown run. The key play in the Skippers' lone scoring drive was a sensational, over-the-head grab by junior split end Noah Hill on the opening series.

East Bridgewater finished the game's scoring with 31 seconds left as Aaron Danielson's five-yard plunge put the final nail in Cohasset's coffin.

"I don't want to make any excuses, but we did have some key players get hurt. Joel Whitman, Pat Conroy (neck) and Peter Kulturides (hand) missed several series. As a matter of fact, Jimmy Donohue was unable to run at full strength due to a prior injury," Pisano explaine . "I was encouraged by the poise of Mark Corkery. He improved on his passing which is a good sign. Craig Carter and Noah Hill both made nice receptions."

Cohasset will host Abington (2-2) this Saturday at Milliken Field. The game will begin at 10 a.m.

Prediction: Abington 20, Cohasset 14. The Skippers will run into a tough football team.

Green Wave too tough for the Skippers

By Bill Modestino
Mariner correspondent

A tidal wave hit Milliken Field last Saturday morning. The culprit was the Abington Green Wave football team. When the dust was cleared, Abington clobbered Cohasset (1-4 overall, 1-2 in the South Shore Small Schools Division), 27-6.

Behind juniors Buddy Fallon, who intercepted two of Mark Corkery's passes and returned a blocked punt for a touchdown and Ed Reilly (two touchdown passes), Abington (3-2) breeze to its second victory in four tries in the SSL standings.

From the outset, it appeared that Cohasset would take advantage of their size at the interior line when tri-captain halfback Paul Froio galloped 15 yards on the game's first play. However, Froio (75 yards lost nine yards on the next two carries, forcing on 14 carries) Cohasset to punt on fourth down.

With the ball at their own 37-yard line, Abington moved down the filed with amazing precision, culminating in a 19-yard touchdown run be senior fullback Kirk Sundberg, who executed the trap play by breaking several would be tacklers before reaching paydirt. Six-foot and three-inch, 230-pound lineman Scott Johnson converted the two-point rush (shades of Chicago's William "Refridgerator" Perry knocking down the New England Patriots in Super Bowl XX), 8-0.

Abington's first possession killed four minutes and 31 seconds off the clock in the first period.

In the second quarter, the Green Wave encountered with another consistent drive, but it came to an abrupt halt when John MacDonald ripped the ball from Reilly at the Cohasset 16.

On the Abington's next offensive series, they started their drive in excellent field position (Cohasset 33). Two plays later, Reilly found Barker McFarland wide open in the back left corner of the end zone for a 20-yard strike. Cohasset prevented Abington from adding the two-point conversion rush, 14-0.

After back-to-back completions (14 yards to Matt Buckley and "seven-yarder to Noah Hill) Corkery dropped back for the third time. Unfortunately, the pass fell in the wrong jersey (Fallon) at the Abington 22, ending the Skippers best penetration of the half.

More damage occurred to Cohasset with 45 seconds left in the half. After three straight incompletions, Froio stood at his own 20 to kick the ball. Utilizing a 10-man rush, Sundberg maneuvered through the middle untouched and then proceeded to block Frio's punt. Fallon recovered the free football and raced 20 yards for the touchdown, 20-0.

John Graham caught an eight-yard touchdown pass from Reilly in the third quarter, 27-0.

In the fourth, Cohasset avoided the shutout when senior fullback matt Buckley (13-81) scampered 25 yards for the score. The seven-play, 66-yard drive featured the solid running of Froio (29 yards), Steve Ritts (seven yards) and Buckley (30 yards).

"We bounced back after a disappointing defeat against Norwell (20-0) last week," Abington coach Jim Kelliher said. "We came back and started doing winning things. We got back on the right track."

"They were very well prepared," Cohasset coach Phil Pisano said. "They played very tough against us and were in control throughout the game.

The Skippers were without the benefit of Chris Froio (Paul's twin brother), who was serving a one-game suspension for his ejection in the East Bridgewater game Columbus Day, and senior tailback Jim Donohue (knee injury). With injuries to key personnel for Cohasset, lately, this is definitely taking its toll on the Skippers' overall game plan. Players are required to play at more than one position. With only 23 players on the roster, opponents are taking advantage of Cohasset's lack of depth.

Thinks will not get any easier next week when the Skippers travel to Norwell. The defending Division Four Super Bowl champions will enter the contest with a 3-2 overall record and are unbeaten in league play (2-0) as well. The Clippers suffered a 34-24 setback to Middleboro last week.

Prediction: Norwell 34 Cohasset 6. Unfortunately, Norwell will prey on Cohasset this Saturday to get back on the winning track.

In other Cohasset sports roundup:

Katie Ryan scored two goals and Nancy Reily posted the shutout in net for the Cohasset girls' soccer team as they defeated league opponent Sandwich, 3-0, October 13.

Corey DeSantis also scored with the assist going to Kristen Ellinger, giving the Skippers a 2-0 lead in the second half.

Two days earlier, Cohasset knocked off Carver, 2-0, as Katy Lord scored in the first half and Kara Hamilton added an insurance goal in the 2nd half for the Skippers. Sweeper Cindy Dormer was dominating throughout the contest.

Boys' Soccer

Jay Staunton collected 3 goals and Jim Reidy added two goals and three assists to power Cohasset to a 7-0 rout over Hull October 13.

Linc Marsac and Frank Willshire also scored for the 9-2 Skippers. Meanwhile, goalies Joel Reidy and Mike Cisnero combined out the shutout.

Field Hockey

It was a dismal week for Cohasset as they dropped back-to-back league games.

With five minutes remaining in the game, left wing Chris Smith took a pass from Heather Johnson, carried the ball 30 yards, faked a defender and scored the game-winning goal for the Hanover High School in a 1-0 triumph over Cohasset, October 11.

Two days later, Barbara Lagrotteria scored the lone goal for Cohasset as the Skippers suffered an 8-1 setback to the defending Division Two state champion Sandwich.

Benefit party

South Shore Elder Services' Meals on Wheels program will host a benefit preview party of the Boston Exotic Car Expo at the Bayside Expo Center, Boston, Thursday, Oct. 27 from 6 to 9 p.m.

Proceeds from the preview party will pay for Thanksgiving dinners for more than 1,000 elderly and handicapped residents in 11 South Shore cities and towns.

Guests will enjoy champagne, cocktails, and gourmet hors d'oeuvres while viewing — and possibly purchasing — Porches, Ferraris, Lamborghinis and other exotic replica cars.

Tickets are $50 per person. The party is sponsored by the Rockland Trust Company.

"Through federal and state funding, Meals on Wheels delivers more than 4,000 meals each week in 11 South Shore cities and towns," said Susan Young, South Shore Elder Services director.

"But there is no government funding for weekend or holiday meals," she said.

"More than 1,000 elderly and handicapped South Shore residents will be without a hot meal on Thanksgiving day unless we can raise the money we need. That's why our Exotic Car preview party on Oct. 27 is so important."

Tickets to the preview party are available at the Braintree branch of the Rockland Trust Company, at all Ticketron locations, or by charging tickets by calling Teletron at 1-800-382-8080. Tickets also are available in person or by mail from South Shore Elder Services, 639 Granite Ave., Braintree.

Dinner theatre opens

Two Cohasset residents will be featured in "Count Dracula" at the Quincy Center Dinner Theatre Oct. 27, 28, 29, 30 and Nov. 5.

Nancy Walls and Kurt Hochkeppel, both recent Boston College graduates, last appeared together over four years ago in Cohasset High's "Chinamen", which went to the finals in the state high school drama competition.

Walls, who now has her own comedy improvisation group, will play Sybil Seward in "Count Dracula".

Hockkeppel plays Jonathan Harker, the fiance of Dracula's intended victim, Mina.

Others in the cast include James Richard Morgan as vampire expert Heinrich Van Helsing, John Kinsherf as Dr. Seward, Laurie Lapides as Mina, David Lang as asylum attendant Hennessy, Greg Bazaz as the manic spider-eater Renfield, and Glen Spencer as the bloodthirsty Count himself.

Skip Maloney of Weymouth is directing the production, the first of Darling Production's second season at the Masonic Temple in Quincy.

The set, a study in gloomy grandeur, is being designed by Jeff Ripley of Rockland, and John Nevulis will be in charge of the creeping fog, wheeling bats and assorted ghoulish special effects.

The $22.50 ticket price includes the show, a full course meal featuring either roast beef or haddock, taxes and gratuities.

The Temple is located at 1170 Hancock St., across from the Quincy Center T station. Plenty of free parking is available in lots on either side of the Temple.

There will be a social hour starting at 6:30 p.m., with dinner at 7:30 p.m. and the curtain at 8:45 p.m. Also, opening night theatre goers will be invited to a post-show champagne reception with the cast.

On Halloween Eve, Oct. 30, the audience is invited to come in costume. Prizes will be offered for the best outfits. Costumes are optional.

To reserve tickets, please call Darling Productions at 843-5862 between 1 and 7 p.m.

Future productions will include a Christmas show Dec. 3, 4, 10 and 11 featuring humorous holiday skits and seasonal songs; "Arsenic and Old Lace" Feb. 11, 18, 19, 24 and 25; "No Sex Please, We're British" March 18, 24, 25, 31 and April 1; and "Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" April 22, 23, 28, 29 and 30.

Gift certificates are available for the last three shows.

Chamber Ensemble concert

Sunday, Oct. 30 at 4 p.m., the South Shore Conservatory will present the second concert by The Fort Hill Chamber Ensemble.

The series features members of the Conservatory's professional faculty in a variety of instrumental combinations. There is no formal charge for the program, but a donation of $5, at the door, is suggested.

The performers are all active professional musicians in the Boston and South Shore areas. For this program the Ensemble has chosen: Mozart's Piano Quintet with David Cross, clarinet; Michelle Vigneau, oboe; Jonathan Hayward, bassoon; Ellen Donohue-Saltman, horn; and Maya Gurevich, piano: Contrasts by Bela Bartok with Elsa Krasner Miller, violin; Anne Tyson, piano; and David Cross, clarinet; Reineke Sonata with Susan Downey, flute and Carol Rich, piano.

The emphasis in chamber music is on the ensemble and not the individual. That is not to say that the individual is not important: musicians of the highest caliber perform chamber works written by some of the world's greatest composers. Each instrumental voice is heard to its fullest, but in combination with other instruments to create a particular blend and texture. Chamber music was so called because it was written for small ensembles to be played in small halls or salons. It was often called "The Music of Friends."

Wildlife Halloween party

Animals that slither, crawl and hoot will be the featured guests at a Family Halloween Party to benefit the New England Wildlife Center Saturday, Oct. 29 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Center's new home on Fort Hill Street in Hingham.

Parents and children of all ages are invited to join Center staff and volunteers as they dress up in costumes for a "wild" afternoon of games, food, fun and special, "not-so-spooky" visits from some of nature's creepiest creatures. Live owl, spider, and snake programs will be presented in the auditorium of the center's new wildlife hospital. Prizes will be awarded for the best wild animal costumes; for both children and adults. Wildlife center tours for adults will be offered during the festivities.

Pre-registration for the Family Halloween Party is requested and parents must accompany children under the age of 12. A donation of $4 per adult and $3 per child is requested (NEWC members: $3 and $2). Proceeds will be used to help complete the habitat and wildlife study portions of the new wildlife hospital.

To pre-register for the Family Halloween Party and receive directions to the Center, call the NEWC office, 749-5387, between 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., weekdays.

Rawson at annual meeting

Ronald Rawson, former producer of the South Shore Music Circus, will be the guest speaker at the Annual Meeting of the South Shore Conservatory Board of Trustees October 21 in Hingham.

In 1987 Rawson retired after 20 years with the Music Circus. During that time, he brought the summer theater operation back from financial decline to one of the most successful still in existence.

His experiences and involvement with the stars of stage and screen will provide an evening of reminiscenses and anecdotes for the Conservatory's Annual Meeting.

TRIAL COURT OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS DISTRICT COURT DEPARTMENT HINGHAM DIVISION
Plymouth, ss.
Civil No. 68131
ORDER OF NOTICE BY PUBLICATION

HULL CO-OPERATIVE BANK, Plaintiff
DANA J. SALVADOR and PHYLLIS MARY SALVADOR, Defendant

To the above-named defendant:

A Civil action has been presented to this Court by the above named Plaintiff.

Wherein upon motion of the Plaintiff it appears that no service of process has been made on the defendant(s) and that Dana J. & Phyllis Mary Salvador now of parts unknown, it is ordered by the Court that a summons be published in the Cohasset Mariner, a newspaper printed in Marshfield, MA once in a week, three weeks successively.

You are hereby summoned and required to serve upon Seymour W. Berman plaintiff's attorney, whose address is 115 North Street, Hingham, MA a copy of your answer to the complaint which is on file in this Court, within 20 days after the final day of publication of this summons. You are also required to file your answer to the complaint in the Office of the Clerk of this Court either before service upon plaintiff's attorney, or within 5 days thereafter. If you fail to meet the above requirements, judgment by default may be rendered against you for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Unless otherwise provided by Rule 13(a), your answer must state as a counterclaim and claim which you may have against the plaintiff which arises out of the transaction or occurrences that is the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim or you will be barred from making such claim in any other action.

Witness, ALVIN C. TAMKIN, Esquire, at HINGHAM, the 6th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighty eight.

Public notice

INVITATION TO BID CONSTRUCTION OF SOLID WASTE TRANSFER STATION TOWN OF COHASSET MASSACHUSETTS

Sealed bids for the Construction of the Cohasset Solid Waste Transfer Station will be received by the Cohasset Board of Health until 11:00 a.m. prevailing time on October 27, 1988 at the Office of the Board of Health, 43 Elm Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts 02025 at which place and time they will be opened publicly and read aloud.

The work includes construction of a solid waste transfer station including all appurtenant work. All work except permanent pavement must be completed within 150 calendar days. The permanent pavement shall be completed by May 15, 1989, after the base course pavement has weathered one winter season, or as otherwise determined by the Engineer.

The project will be officially advertised in the October 5, 1988 issue of the Central Register.

Contract Documents including plans, specifications, bid form, performance bond requirements and the form of contract are on file and may be examined at the office of the Engineer, S E A Consultants Inc., 485 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02139, or at the Office of the Board of Health, 41 Highland Avenue, Cohasset, Massachusetts 02025.

Plans and specifications may be obtained at the office of S E A Consultants Inc., 485 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02139, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. on every working day from October 5 to October 26, 1988.

Each set of Drawings and Specifications shall consist of one copy of each Drawing and one bound copy of the Specifications and shall be available for the deposit specified. To obtain a set of Drawings and Specifications, a potential bidder nust deposit a certified check for $50.00 payable to S E A Consultants Inc. or deposit $50.00 in cash. Bidding documents will be mailed, if requested, upon receipt of an additional check in the amount of $15.00, payable to S E A Consultants Inc. as a nonrefundable postage and handling fee. Document deposits will be refunded upon return of the documents in good condition within fifteen (15) days after the opening of general bids. Plans and Specifications must be returned to the office of S E A Consultants Inc. for refunds of deposits; no Plans and Specifications will be accepted at the bid opening.

General Bids must be submitted on prescribed forms, enclosed in a sealed envelope bearing on the outside the bidder's name and address and titled, "Bid for Construction of the Cohasset Solid Waste Transfer Station", and addressed to Town of Cohasset, Office of the Board of Health, 43 Elm Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts 02025.

Each General Contractor must deposit with his bid, a bid security in the amount of 5 percent of the bid price and in a satisfactory form and as provided in the Instructions to Bidders. No proposal may be withdrawn for 60 days, Saturdays, Sundays, and legal Holidays excluded, after opening of bids. The successful bidder will be required to furnish in quintuplicate (i.e., five (5) copies) a Labor and Materials and a Performance Bond each equal to 100 percent of the contract price. Minimum wage rates for the project are established in the contract documents.

The Board of Health reserves the right to waive any informalities; to reject any or all proposals. A proposal which includes for any item a bid that is abnormally low or high may be rejected as unbalanced. The right is also reserved to accept any proposal deemed to be best for the Board of Health. In any event, general bids to be deemed acceptable shall conform in each and every way to all applicable Massachusetts General Laws.

A prebid conference will be held at the Cohasset Town Hall on Main Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts at 10:00 a.m. prevailing time on October 18, 1988. All interested Contractors are urged to attend.

Chapter 579 of the Acts of 1980 of the Massachusetts General Court shall apply to this contract.

General Contractors shall be required to comply with all applicable Massachusetts General Laws, and shall demonstrate current certification through the Massachusetts Division of Capital Planning and Operations for General Contracting, by submitting copies of Form 3 and Form 7. These forms must be submitted with the bid.

Materials and supplies used or incorporated in the performance of this contract are exempt from the sales and use tax.
